ARMERS' BILL WINS

redit Measure Is Saved

ch - Hour Filibuster Follows Late Session of Congressmen

ision to Return Seized Property; Session Virtually Ended

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, March 3.—In spite of an eleventh-hour filibuster in both Houses Congress today approved the conference report on the rural credits bill and sent it to the President for his signature. Mr. Harding will sign it tomorrow forenoon.

The Senate also passed the House bill providing for the return of [illegible] worth of the property of aliens seized during the war. With these accomplishments the Sixty-seventh Congress virtually finished its work tonight and will meet at 10 a.m. tomorrow for the formalities before sine die adjournment at noon.

For several hours the fate of the rural credits bill was in doubt. Southern Democrats of both houses conducted a filibuster in behalf of the Senate bill appropriating [illegible] for government purchase of fertilizer nitrates to be sold to farmers, a measure earnestly desired by the South. The filibuster eventually gave way enough to permit final approval of the rural credits bill and passage of the alien property bill by the Senate.

HARDING ADMINISTRATION WORK REVIEWED TO DATE

First Half of Four-Year Term Is Record of Accomplishment, Despite Criticisms

BY ROBERT BARRY
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
[Copyright, 1923, Public Ledger.]

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Inaugurated March 4, 1921, Warren G. Harding will have concluded at noon tomorrow half of his term as President of the United States. The Republican party, returned to control of the Federal government by 7,000,000 plurality, the greatest ever given in this country, has rounded out the first two years of its four-year period of administration.

"Has Harding made good?" is a question which is answered easily by partisans. He has kept the faith and fulfilled campaign pledges, say the Republicans. He could not be re-elected, the Democrats opine.

His acts of commission have been greater than we could have hoped for with reasonable consideration of the after-war disturbance, avow his supporters. His acts of omission have disillusioned and disappointed the nation, counter the Democrats.

WHAT LEADERS SAY

"Discontent looking for a sacrifice," was responsible for Republican reverses in 1922 elections, contend administration leaders. Discontent with the administration dedicated to special privilege and neglect of the common citizens will be greater next year, the Democrats aver.

So there you are.

The record of the Harding administration is here set down for what it is. The President himself says he seeks no greater consideration than what is shown by the record of his first two years in office.

Because he has been thoroughly sincere in his decision to do what he believed to be best for the country, he enjoys a pardonable belief that he has been a "pretty good President." Because of queer twists of popular psychology it is easy to hear out in the high roads of the country that he has not been a good President.

Mr. Harding is judged in some quarters not because he has been courageous enough to defy the treaty irreconcilables of his own party—embracing the most aggressive and able forces in the Senate—on the issue of American participation in a world court of justice to settle international disputes by judicial decision, but rather because he was supposed to play too much.

His golf was made a symbol of

PLANE TRIP TO ISLANDS UNDER WAY

Twelve Army Flyers to Draft Canal Defense Flight Over Gulf

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW ORLEANS, March 3.—Covering the 550 air line miles from San Antonio to New Orleans in six hours' flying time, twelve flyers of the United States Army Air Service in six De Haviland planes, landed here at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon, completing the first lap of a trip to Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

The squadron left Kelly Field at San Antonio shortly after 8 o'clock this morning. The only stop was at Houston, where the flyers stopped an hour and a half. The last 200 miles from Lake Charles were covered in two hours.

The first day's journey was without mishap, according to Capt. Thomas G. Lanphier, commanding the squadron. Low clouds interfered somewhat with visibility.

The squadron will "take off" at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow for the second leg of the journey, which will take the flyers to Montgomery, Ala.

Plans for the aerial defense of the Panama Canal, and of the Gulf Coast ports will depend in a large measure on the success of the present trip it was pointed out.

The flyers will go to Porto Rico and from there fly to St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands in search of a suitable air base for the primary defense of the canal.

French Strike to Heart of Ruhr

Germans Fear Occupation Long-Dreaded Wedge to Split Republic

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]
[Copyright, 1923, Public Ledger.]

BERLIN, March 3.—Reports of the surprise occupation this morning of the three most important Rhine cities in Southwestern Germany, Mannheim, Darmstadt and Karlsruhe, caused a lively fear that this was the beginning of the long dreaded French campaign to drive a wedge between Northern and Southern Germany and split the republic in half.

While later dispatches showed the new seizures have been somewhat exaggerated, covering only the harbor sections, freight yards and customshouses of the three cities, it is felt here that the South German States are gravely menaced by the French advance.

Chancellor Cuno's ministry was hastily summoned in conference today to consider the newest developments. Following the session it was announced that Chancellor Cuno will leave for Munich tomorrow night as planned, and while there he would confer with the papal nuncio, Pacell, and Archbishop Gaulsaber.

It is interesting to recall that the papal nuncio made the peace move in 1917, which was started in Munich, and that Archbishop Gaulsaber was important in the maneuver.

BAVARIA HARD HIT

Bavaria and Baden are the hardest hit of any portion of Germany by the newest occupation by the French, who are now in a position to control the southwest railways.

Otto Wells, president of the Socialist party, speaking at Dortmund today declared: "Every possibility for negotiations must be exploited. The withdrawal from the Ruhr of the French troops is our goal, but it is not an absolute essential to peace."

The second city of Germany in the area is Mannheim, owing to the great extent of its river, harbor and warehouses, while Darmstadt and Karlsruhe are capitals of the Federal States of Hesse and Baden.

POSITION PRECARIOUS

French troops are now virtually across the street and neighbors of the government in the two States. Any further advance will raise the question of the fate of these governments under the French ruling against the presence of Federal or State ministers in the occupied territory. It is understood both sets of ministers intend to sit tight and refuse to move unless force is used.

The new French advance ostensibly was taken with the intent of perfecting the French customs blockade between the Rhineland and unoccupied territory and to obtain the locomotives and rolling stock in the three important railway centers.

French hopes in regard to the latter were disappointed, as the railway authorities, aware of military concentrations on the opposite bank of the Rhine, moved the locomotives from the roundhouses during the night. Automobile owners in the three cities followed their example by removing all available cars and trucks today, fearing French seizures.

RAIL COMMISSION ACTS

The Franco-Belgian railway commission, formed under the Rhineland commission to take over the administration of railways in the occupied territories, inaugurated its operations in the occupied Bavarian Palatinate today. All traffic on the Palatinate railways and work in the railway shops and bureaus immediately stopped.

The German pacifist league will conduct its demonstration under difficulties tomorrow in favor of a Ruhr compromise with the slogan "against Foch and Ludendorff." The authorities have forbidden an outdoor meeting or a parade so the meeting will be in a hall.

The authorities also have called the director of municipal bill boards on the carpet for permitting the display of the league's posters which carried a manifesto sharply criticising the provocative measures in the Ruhr. It is reported that proceedings will be started against the signers of the manifesto under the defense of the republic statute.

"RESISTANCE" CONCERT

A rival demonstration to stiffen the Ruhr resistance will be held simultaneously under the patronage of President Ebert, when the municipal orchestras of three Ruhr cities will give a concert that promises to overshadow the pacifists' meeting completely.

Advices from Warsaw declare Poland has called the reserves of the class of 1897 to the colors for two months' service and that the classes of 1896 and 1897 will be successively mobilized for similar periods so that the army will be enlarged by this year's reservists continuously until September.

NEW SMOKING BAN DECREED

Utah Senate Adopts Bill Scored by Foes as More Restrictive and Freakish Than Old Law

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SALT LAKE, March 3.—Taking their cue from the inspired editorial in the Deseret Evening News, Mormon members of the State Senate this afternoon passed the substitute for the Standish bill modifying the Southwick anticigarette law. There was no opposition vote.

The News, the official organ of the church, practically demanded passage of the measure which has been denounced as far more restrictive and freakish than the present law and the Senators belonging to the Mormon church acted accordingly.

The bill now goes to the House, where chances are that it will be passed and thus become a law.

The Senate galleries were crowded in anticipation of some lively scenes, but aside from some mild protests the proceedings were in keeping with the machine-like working of the radical majority in the Chamber to which tobacco in any form is anathema. A formal and vehement protest against the bill was made by the Liberty League and one or two Senators announced their opposition to passage of a bill "which out-Southwicks Southwick in restricting the liberties of full-grown Utah. Then the majority took its expected action.

"SMOKE IS ANNOYING"

Tenor of the proponents of the bill is indicated in the statement of Senator Dixon, supporting the provision which forbids smoking in barber shops, "that it was annoying, when a man is helpless in a barber's chair, to be compelled to inhale the vile smoke from some cigarette smoker while in the chair."

Here is Senator Peters's defense of the provision barring advertising of tobaccos:

"We are all familiar with the alluring pictures spread over the country depicting the use of smoking or chewing tobacco as a desirable thing. I think I have been more mortified, embarrassed and chagrined by these than anything else. In my opinion, in that par-

POLICE FIND GIRL ILL IN HOUSE RAID

Nude Figure Discovered on Bed, Victim of Alcohol, is Belief; Two Are Held

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, March 3.—A young woman, who said she was Audrey Meyers, 30 years of age, of Pasadena, was rescued last night from a house on Logan avenue where it is believed she had been kept prisoner for several days. The girl, who was in a stupor, was still in a dazed condition today and unable to give a coherent account of her presence in the house. Two men, listed by the police as Robert Ellison, 23 years of age, who said he was the husband of the girl, and Fayne Bell, 19, are being held.

When found, the girl was lying on a bed, entirely nude and gasping, apparently a victim of alcoholism.

In the house, which was dirty and unkept, officers found several bottles that had contained shellac, together with a straining apparatus which it was admitted had been used to strain alcohol out of the shellac. A quantity of mash also was found. Officers also report finding evidence that a drug had been used by inmates of the place and that several parties of male guests had been entertained there.

In response to a telegram, the parents of the girl, Mr. and Mrs. A. Meyers, and a brother, arrived this morning from Pasadena and visited the girl at the hospital, afterward going to the police station.

PILGRIMAGE PLAY TO LIVE

Heirs of Founder Agree to Lease Canyon for Staging to Nonprofit Corporation of Angelenos

"The Pilgrimage Play," founded by the late Mrs. Christine Wetherill Stevenson, will go on in fulfillment of the wishes of its creator, it was announced last night by Col. Samuel P. Wetherill, Jr., brother of Mrs. Stevenson, who is here to complete arrangements.

The fourth showing of what has been termed "America's Passion Play" will be held this summer, according to present plans, in the canyon purchased by Mrs. Stevenson. The heirs to her estate have agreed to lease the property to a nonprofit corporation composed of prominent Angelenos for $1 a year.

A bard of directors to head the corporation was chosen at a meeting last Friday evening, it was stated. These officers are George L. Eastman, president of the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce, president; George G. Greenwood, of the Security Trust and Savings Bank, vice-president; Mrs. J. J. Carter, vice-president; Mrs. C. D. Clark, and Mrs. Oscar Trippett. An advisory council made up of persons of national prominence is to be chosen, as was the wish of Mrs. Stevenson.

Since Mrs. Stevenson's death on November 21, last, hundreds of inquiries have been made as to whether the Pilgrimage Play would continue. The subject was brought up in Philadelphia on January 21, at a service in honor of Mrs. Stevenson's memory, when excerpts of the play were read.

Col. Wetherill was urged to come to Los Angeles to sound out sentiment about the play, and to learn whether the people of Los Angeles desired its continued presentation on a nonprofit basis. Having been assured of this, he stated last night, Mrs. Wetherill's heirs were prepared to lease the canyon in which the play is given for $1 a year to a corporation which shall be incorporated without capital. It is to form this corporation that the board of directors was chosen.

SHIP BILL DEATH NOT SO LOVELY

British Fear American Vessel Sale Will Ruin Freight Rates

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDEN, March 3.—British shipowners glee over the Congressional funeral of the ship subsidy bill today has given way to profound misgivings as to the probable effect of the American government's sale of some 11,000,000 tons of cargo and passenger shipping.

It is feared the 1700 American vessels, when dumped into a market already overstocked with shipping, will bring the British interests into competition with quite as formidable a problem as an American mercantile marine subsidised by the Washington Treasury. The new bogey arises from the belief that many of the American ships marked for disposal are in such a condition through long disuse that they will almost be given away. The new owners then would be able to operate them with small first costs against British ships, most of which now in operation were built at excessive prices.

A brighter aspect of the outlook is the fact that the Ruhr occupation has greatly stimulated the short haul business between English ports and the continent with a corresponding increase in freight rates. Trans-Atlantic business also has been benefitted through the sudden entry of American coal into competition with English in the German market.

These booms, however, are regarded as only temporary, and the effect of a big American ship sale will be felt here for two or three years, British owners declare.

SHIP POLICY ANNOUNCED

Unfit Craft Will be Junked

Government to Operate Only Passenger Fleet in North Atlantic

For Present All Lines Will be Continued on a Normal Basis

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Sale as junk of all unusable craft made for the war and not now fit to operate by private lines at a profit; diversion of all profitable ships to private ownership and the maintenance under government control and operation of a strong fleet of merchant ships in the North Atlantic is the substance of the new Shipping Board policy as announced tonight.

Aside from a fleet of great passenger ships which can and have made money in the North Atlantic trade the United States government will, within a year, be out of the ship operation business and the great organization now maintained at a loss of more than $50,000,000 a year will be cut to the bone. There will be no new call for subsidy and what ships remain under government control and operation will show a profit and not a deficit.

LASKER'S STATEMENT

Chairman Lasker's statement tells the story:

"The Merchant Marine Act of 1920, in its preamble provides:

"'That it is necessary for the national defense and for the proper growth of its foreign and domestic commerce that the United States shall have a merchant marine of the best equipped and most suitable types of vessels sufficient to carry the greater portion of its commerce and serve as a naval or military auxiliary in time of war or national emergency, ultimately to be owned and operated privately by citizens of the United States.'

"The board for the past few years has been operating several hundred of the government-owned fleet, and in the spirit of the Merchant Marine Act of 1920, concluded more than a year ago that the experience of that operation, the results obtained therefrom and the consequent condition of the fleet had brought about a situation that made it highly desirable to have further legislation, if under the mandate of the Merchant Marine Act we were to have a merchant marine privately owned.

HOPE FOR RESULTS

"After careful study the board suggested to the President and Congress the subsidy bill, which the Senate failed to act on before adjournment. This has made necessary an announcement as to the board's plans to bring about the result contemplated under the Merchant Marine Act. This announcement I had hoped to be able to make at this time in a general way, leaving the details for future publication.

"The contemplated plans are inspired by the hope of bringing about the passage of the lines and routes operated by the government into private hands, as mandated by law, with guaranteed obligation that such lines will be maintained for a term of years, thus insuring to ports and shippers continuous service.

"After careful deliberation, the board is of the opinion that to announce any general plans that might be contemplated, without giving fullest details, could lead to misunderstanding; the board has, therefore, decided that matured plans and details had better be announced simultaneously. These we hope to have ready with all elaboration as expeditiously as possible.

SERVICE TO CONTINUE

"A committee consisting of Commissioners Lissner, Thompson and Chamberlain has been appointed to study and prepare detailed plans with a view of bringing about, without interruption of service, the

TOBACCO CURB CHANGE VOTED

ticular alone, the bill is worth the amendment to the present law.

"The bill has improved the present law also in the matter of defining public places. It requires no mere sign nor a sham, but a solid partition to prevent the fumes of tobacco reaching into the nonsmoking compartments in hotel dining rooms and restaurants."

FOUGHT BY LEAGUE

The Liberty League continued its plans to make the freak laws of the State a political issue in the next campaign. The promoters expect to win sufficient votes in the populous counties, Salt Lake, Weber and others, to force repeal of existing legislation directed at public smoking.

Representative Constantine of Carbon county roundly denounced the so-called compromise bill passed by the Senate. He declared that he would work against it, talk against it and vote against it, but the editorial in last night's News practically insures its passage unless the unexpected happens. In this respect, he said:

"This freak disregards and tramples down American liberties and will breed contempt, ridicule and disrespect. The blood of the Revolution, Civil and World wars cries out against such confiscatory, discriminatory and un-American legislation. Thank God the Federal Constitution guarantees my freedom of speech and as a member of this Legislature, I denounce the substitute as a worse freak than the Southwick law."

In the Senate, Senator Peters virtually warned the members that the pending bill represented the desires of the church authorities, who were responsible, he said, for the "educational, spiritual and moral welfare of the State." He declined, however, to answer a direct inquiry as to the authors of the bill.

Cafe and restaurant managers and managers of downtown hotels expressed the belief that the Senate bill would prove vastly more onerous than the law it would displace. The two Gentile newspapers continue their violent opposition to the proposal.

COURT IGNORES ARRESTS

The cases growing out of last week's arrests in downtown cafes were virtually thrown out of court this morning when City Judge Noel Pratt said he was too busy to waste time on them.

"Too many more important matters are demanding attention," he said and Asst. County Atty. George M. Cannon, Jr., agreed with the judge. All these cases, including that of A. N. McKay, general manager of the Salt Lake Tribune, were indefinitely postponed.

In the Third District Court this afternoon, Judge McRae heard arguments on the demurrer filed by attorneys for Sheriff Harries to the complaint charging that he was elected through political pressure exerted by the Mormon Church.

This complaint was entered in court some time ago in a petition asking that Harries be ousted from office. Harries was brought out as an independent candidate last fall and elected in a three-cornered race. He was given the unqualified indorsement of the church heads. Harries has been active in the recent raids and arrests for violations of the antismoking law.

The defense states that the election of Sheriff Harries was a moral issue and not a political one and the seventy-five or more persons who signed the complaint seeking to oust him from office are not representative of the majority of the people.

FILM STARS ARE WEDDED ONCE MORE

Lectrice Joy and Husband, Jack Gilbert, Married in Two Languages

Leatrice Joy and Jack Gilbert should serenely sail the troubled marital seas which have shipwrecked so many cinema marriages for they have been married in two languages. Last night they were married in English. In November, 1921, they were married in Spanish at Tijuana.

The second wedding came in the face of news that the Lasky star had retained a lawyer to seek an annulment of her Mexican marriage to the Fox leading man. The first ceremony was performed within two weeks after Gilbert was granted his divorce from his first wife.

The Tijuana wedding raised legal questions when the couple returned to Los Angeles by reason of its occurrence before Mr. Gilbert obtained his final decree. Bigamy charges threatening Rodolph Valentino at the time precipitated a separation until after December, 1922, when Mr. Gilbert's interlocutory decree became final.

Miss Joy has also been married before.

When asked for a statement last night relative to Miss Joy's intention to annul their marriage, Mr. Gilbert hotly denied the report. He added that within two hours both would again be wedded by a justice.

At 8:30 o'clock the twain, accompanied by Paul Bern, lately of Universal's scenario staff, in the role of Cupid, set out on their second marriage venture. They obtained a license, and then were married by Judge Summerfield at the judge's home.

Recently the first Mrs. Gilbert's demands for another separation settlement were aired in the press. Lawyers have succeeded in settling the difficulty, Mr. Gilbert said last night.

Due to the fact that Miss Joy is at work on a picture and her husband is soon to begin one, no honeymoon trip will be undertaken at this time, Mr. Gilbert stated. He intimated that a belated journey may follow at their convenience.

acts of sabotage had been carried out on railroads and canals in the Ruhr Valley and the Rhineland.

The mixed arbitration tribunal, originally composed of French and Germans, resumed its sitting in Paris today and the proceedings are being followed with been interest by those who are strongly supporting the League of Nations.

The German government, owing to political conditions, withdrew its judges sitting on this tribunal. France had foreseen the possibility of such action, and on the departure of the German judges, called on the League of Nations to apply Article 304 of the Versailles Treaty and nominate judges selected from neutral nations to replace the Germans.

POSITION OF AMERICA

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, March 3. — The United States has no more right to stop France from going into the Ruhr than France would have in compelling this country to naturalize the Japanese, declared Elihu Root, former Secretary of State, in an address to the newly appointed executive body of the Committee of One Hundred on Foreign Relations at its initial meeting today.

The primary purposes of the Committee of One Hundred, Mr. Root said, "is to get into the heads of the American people a series of noncontroversial facts to which everyone would agree, but which nine-tenths of the people of the United States do not know — facts which form the necessary basis of all sound reasoning upon international affairs."

First Half of Four-Year Term Considered

Accomplishments Notable in Spite of Criticism

President Stands Pat on Party's Performance

his official character, even though his immediate predecessors in the White House, Mr. Taft and Mr. Wilson, played as much, if not more than he did, and his taking up of golf was in obedience to medical advice to get out into the open.

Regardless of the economic merits of the proposition, the soldier bonus bill is popular among the masses and the President's courageous veto of that measure, which every student of economics declared to be dangerous and unsound, won him only disfavor among hundreds of thousands of the unthinking who regarded a bonus as issuing from an abundant treasury which did not require taxes for its replenishment.

Yet, at the same time the President was taking that step which every business man approved, those same business men were finding fault with him for something else.

All of which proves much or little, sayeth the skeptics.

Revision of the Underwood-Simmons tariff was promised by the Republicans in 1920, and the Fordney-McCumber Act was enacted, after a long fight. It has not enhanced the cost of living quite as much as its opponents predicted. It has brought in more revenue at the customshouses than its proponents estimated.

CONSUMPTION TAXES CUT

Reduction of international revenue levies was given as the party pledge. Taxes, notably the objectionable consumption levies, were lowered to the extent of $900,000,000 annually, but the demand has been for even further cuts. The increases in tariff duties—the indirect tax—has cut into that materially.

The President promised to give effect to the budget system of governmental administration and none can deny he has exerted his every influence to do just that. He brought Charles G. Dawes first to the task and now has an efficient, though perhaps less demonstrative budget director in Gen. H. M. Lord, who is rather more feared by governmental spenders than was the "Hell and Maria" of his predecessor.

Governmental expenditures have been slashed, in spite of "pork barrel" members of Congress, yet the appropriations just made for the fiscal year beginning July 1 still will hover close to the $3,000,000,000 mark. There has been a steady reduction in outlay, so that Secretary Mellon is now able to contemplate a sligh, surplus instead of a treasury deficit. The national debt has been retired more speedily than Democrats have wished.

FARMERS CAUSE WORRY

The farmer has been the chief thorn in the administration ribs. Post-war depression hit agriculture hardest, and the deflation policy of the Federal Reserve Board worked havoc on the growers of grain and cotton and the raisers of cattle.

The administration has gone far with the farm bloc to give the farmers more elastic credits, yet the Middle West has howled for lower freight rates and higher prices in the markets. Unable to meet that demand, the Republicans have seen a wave of radical discontent sweep some of their traditional strongholds. The Progressives have promised glibly what the administration did not feel was possible, economically, to give.

In the field of industrial relations the President has had his trouble. The coal and rail strikes struck great blows at the economic recovery of the nation. From the shopmen's strike there issued a direct and vigorous antagonism by organized labor to the administration, due largely to the Daugherty injunction proceedings, yet the President was contending always for the primary point of respect for decisions of a governmental tribunal. He gained that objective in the ultimate settlement.

COAL STRIKE SETTLED

The coal strike was settled largely on the terms of the miners, but out of the prolonged inactivity of the miners there issued the President's fact-finding commission, which is undertaking the first official survey of the underlying facts in the industry. Suffering in many States was the natural outcome of the absorption of coal reserves, and the President has been criticised for not imposing an embargo on shipments to Canada.

Although vetoing the soldier bonus bill, the President has sought at every turn to provide adequate hospitalization and vocational training and monetary compensation for the wounded and convalescent soldiers, sailors and marines.

He has his troubles with the hospitalization program, but never has he been accused of insincerity when expressing his determination to remedy every wrong brought to his attention. He brought about unification of all soldier relief activities in the Veterans' Bureau, and his recent difference with directing heads of that organization has been indicative only of the peculiarly vexing nature of the undertaking.

VETOES PENSION BILL

The President vetoed the Bursum pension bill, which was popular in many quarters, but unsound as a governmental principle.

With respect to prohibition enforcement the Harding administration has tried to give effect to the letter of the Volstead statute. The sincerity of purpose of Commissioner Haynes, brought to Washington from the anti-saloon hotbed of Ohio, never has been challenged, however much political influence has militated against appointment of field agents in many States.

The President called disrespect for the "dry" law a national scandal and appealed to the law-abiding elements of the nation for obedience. The rulings with respect to American ship sale of intoxicants were founded in the law as interpreted by the administration.

American ships brought the President his most outstanding reverse at the hands of Congress. He began on Feb. 28, 1922, a fight for a subsidy program which he believed to be essential to the life of an American merchant marine and to terminate government competition with private enterprise.

The House passed his bill, but the Senate killed it without permitting it to reach a vote.

TALKED TO DEATH

There was a majority of about eight for the bill in the Senate, yet the rule of unlimited debate enabled its foes to talk it to death in a highly spectacular filibuster conducted by the Democrats with the aid of six or eight "progressive" Republicans.

Restrictions to stem the post-war flood of European immigration, seeking liberty from the chaotic conditions of their own lands in the wake of war, were enacted and have been adhered to by the administration despite an employers' drive for admission of unskilled labor.

Successful termination of the war debt negotiations with the British commission headed by Sir Stanley Baldwin, Chancellor of the Exchequer, found strong Democratic support in Congress and widespread popular favor. Inability of the administration to pursue similar negotiations with other debtors has not been laid at the door of the Harding administration; rather in line with the concise prophecy of a distinguished Italian leader, "the debts will neither be canceled nor collected."

BOTH GOOD AND BAD

In the matter of his appointments, Mr. Harding has made a few bad ones and many good ones. He has been advised badly in some outstanding instances and his recommendations to the Senate have spelled trouble for him. In most instances his differences are traceable to an effort to do precisely what many Republican party workers have protested he did not do often enough—name orthodox men to party places as rewards for service.

His refusal to discharge competent Democratic office holders has been criticized, yet whenever he sought to adhere strictly to the rule of the "spoils system" he has become involved in difficulties with the Senate.

Accomplished actualities abound in the field of foreign affairs. The heritage left by the Wilson administration was in itself no light one. As often happens, the outgoing administration marked time in many matters during the last months of its tenure.

THE MANDATE TROUBLE

Most pressing probably when Mr. Harding took office was the distribution which the Allied governments were about to make of mandated territory. The rights of the United States were being calmly overlooked by the Supreme Council. To its members the President and Mr. Hughes addressed their note, reserving for the United States all the "rights accruing to the United States as common victors in the late war." As a result, equal opportunities were assured to American citizens in Mesopotamia and other rich but unexploited territories.

Development of that policy of protecting American rights growing out of the war caused the President to take membership officially on the Supreme Council and the Council of Ambassadors and an official part in the Reparations Commission.

Our relations with Germany were still those of a belligerent. Due to our failure to accept the Treaty of Versailles, the two nations were still technically at war. The state of war was declared at an end by resolution. A separate treaty, preserving all rights under the Versailles Treaty that we considered essential, was negotiated and ratified.

AVOIDING ENTANGLEMENTS

In making those commitments the administration did not deviate from its declared intention to guard against foreign entanglements. It reiterated its hostility to supergovernment, which might take the course of American foreign policy from its own charge.

The willingness to strike for world peace still existed. The President gave striking evidence of it in assembling the Washington conference for the limitation of armaments. Mr. Hughes's frank and explicit statement of what naval reductions should be made startled world diplomacy, but was accepted by world public opinion as a means of reducing crushing tax burdens and approaching peace. The four-power pact for peace in the Pacific made the work of the conference even more noteworthy. It brought to an end the Anglo-Japanese alliance which had begun to threaten Anglo-American relations. At the same time it closed the lengthy and acrimonious correspondence which had been engaging the State Department and Tokio Foreign Office for more than a year.

CONFERENCE SUCCEEDS

The success of the Washington Conference aroused the hope among European statesmen that through similar means they might solve their affairs. The Genoa conference was called, to which the United States was invited. President Harding considered the time was not ripe for such active participation by this country in European affairs and refused to enter. He still holds to that view. He expressed his disapproval of European militarism, which American public opinion generally has condemned, when he withdrew the Army of Occupation from the Rhine.

The desire to help, however, where help might be effective, has not been abandoned. Mr. Hughes, speaking for the administration, offered the good offices of this country to Europe in his New Haven speech of last year. The creation of a fact finding commission with America represented was suggested for dispassionate study of Germany's ability to pay. It was refused then but the offer holds good.

More recently the United States has expressed its willingness to enter the permanent Court of World Justice. The proposal awaits the approval of the Senate.

AMITY IS ADVANCED

Nor have all the energies of the nation in foreign affairs been devoted to the old world. Central American amity has been advanced through the kind offices of this government. Agreement for a Central American conference was obtained through the activities of the United States. The conference met and the five nations between Mexico and Panama found a solution for issues that had vexed their relations for years.

Further south lay the fester of Tacna-Arica in the body politic of Chile and Peru. The two nations, at the suggestion of Mr. Harding and Mr. Hughes, have agreed to arbitrate their differences. The President has agreed to serve as arbiter.

This month the Pan-American Congress will meet in Santiago, Chile. All but three of the nations that lie between the Southern Canadian border and Cape Horn have already agreed to attend. The United States has named a worthy delegation to represent it. From this conference may grow an entirely new relationship between the United States and its southern neighbors.

ENUNCIATION OF POLICY

Even where there has been but little progress there has been definite enunciation of policy. When Mr. Harding took office our relations with Mexico were ruptured. The administration has insisted that the Mexican government shall protect the lives and property of foreigners and renounce confiscatory legislation prior to recognition. It awaits fulfillment of these not unreasonable terms.

Similarly in the face of considerable pressure, Mr. Harding has declared that there can be no relations with Russia as matters stand today. In this case the United States demands that there be some return to economic sanity and normal productivity. The starving Russians have been fed, but recognition of soviet government and principles has been withheld.

WIFE SUES WAKEFIELD

Divorce Complaint Adds New Chapter to Marital Affairs of Society Matron

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 3.—Franklin W. Wakefield, husband of Mrs. Edith Huntington Spreckels Wakefield, frequently told his wife to go ahead and get a divorce and now she is taking him at his word, according to the divorce complaint filed today in San Rafael by Mrs. Wakefield.

The suit adds another chapter to the spectacularly tangled marital affairs of the society matron who has already figured in one divorce and as one of the apexes of the Wakefield-Kendrick love triangle.

In her complaint filed by her attorney, Charles W. Byrnes, Mrs. Wakefield recites a long list of grievances setting forth a formidable array of asserted acts on the part of her husband, which, she asserts, resulted in mental suffering and bodily suffering.

NAGGED WIFE SAYS

According to the complaint, Wakefield has for several years since their marriage in Honolulu, Dec. 15, 1913, constantly hurt his wife's feelings, found fault without cause, told her to get a divorce, habitually absented himself for days and weeks without explanation, criticised hre and her friend, nagged at her and treated her with studied indifference.

Mrs. Wakefield asks for no alimony but seeks to have her property on Geary street near Grant avenue and in Sausalito confirmed to her.

RECALLS KENDRICK CASE

Evidences of a rift in the Wakefield family became visible some months ago when Mrs. Nellie Kendrick, wife of Rodney Kendrick, newspaper artist, charged Mrs. Wakefield with diverting Kendrick's affections. Mrs. Kendrick filed a divorce suit against her husband, and also an alienation suit against Mrs. Wakefield, charging that Mrs. Wakefield had offered to pay her $100 a month for the support of herself and child if she would relinquish Kendrick.

Mrs. Kendrick died a few weeks ago.

Mrs. Wakefield was Mrs. "Jack" Spreckels when she married Wakefield in 1913, the day her divorce from Spreckels became final. Litigation over asserted ante-divorce agreements between the Spreckels couple and other asserted agreements in which John D. Spreckels, Sr., figured, has dragged out ever since Spreckels was killed in an automobile accident in 1921.

passage of the government's lines into private ownership in so far as possible.

"In the meantime the Shipping Board will continue the operation of all of its lines without change as heretofore. Shippers and passengers have the government's assurance that they need not hesitate to book on government ships; the service will be as in the past—adequate, prompt and regular.

"A committee, consisting of Vice-Chairman O'Connor and Commissioners Benson and Plummer, will make a survey of the physical condition of the fleet as a whole. There is a substantial part of the laid-up fleet that experts have always maintained cannot be successfully operated in peace times, having been built for war needs.

"Regardless of any plan that may be contemplated by the board, announcement was made today of the board's intention to recondition the ships Mt. Vernon, Agamemnon, America and President Buchanan, which, together with the Leviathan, will be assigned to the United States Line, so as to make that line second to none in the service on the North Atlantic."

PASADENA TRUSTEES SURE OF ELECTION

PASADENA, March 3.—Hiram W. Wadsworth, Franklin Thomas and John H. Simpson, incumbent members of the City Board of Trustees whose terms expire this spring, will be unopposed at the primary election on the 15th inst. Today was the last day on which nominative petitions could be filed, and none were presented. The general election is set for April 2.

RURAL CREDITS BILL IS SAVED

Legislation Goes Through Despite Filibuster

Both Houses of Congress in Lively Finish

Final Adjournment Will be Taken Today

ing notice that he did not purpose to let any more bills pass the Senate until the House passed the nitrate bill.

Leaders of the farm bloc who were looking after the chances of the rural-credits bill began running around in circles. The conference committee had been ready for several hours to report the adjustment of differences between the Senate and the House farm-loan bills, but the filibuster threatened defeat of the measure in one chamber or the other.

Finally Republican Leader Lodge, Massachusets, and Republican Whip Curtis, Kansas, journeyed to the House side and sought a conference with the Democratic filibusters on a treaty of peace which would permit the rural-credit conference report to be called up in both houses and passed tonight. In this they were successful, and the bill now is ready for the President's signature.

Earlier in the day both houses approved conference reports on minor amendments to the Revenue Act, the principal of which is designed to prevent evasion of income taxes derived from the exchange of stocks.

In addition to passing rural credits legislation the Sixty-seventh Congress—

Made peace with Germany both by joint resolution and by treaty.

Ratified the various treaties negotiated by the Washington Conference, including the Four Power Pact and the Naval Limitation Agreement.

Revised the taxes downward, eliminating the excess profits levies and lightening the tax burden to the extent of about a billion dollars annually.

EFFECTED ECONOMIES

Passed the McCormick Budget Act and operated for the first time in history under a scientific budget system, effecting large economies.

Enacted the Fordney-McCumber Tariff Act, boosting rates on imports in some instances back to Payne-Aldrich levels.

Reduced the size of the Army and the Navy, cutting the former to 125,000 enlisted men, and the latter to 86,000.

Created the Veterans' Bureau, consolidating all the various agencies having to do with the relief of ex-service men and appropriated approximately $500,000,000 for its expenditures annually.

Authorized President Harding to refund the $4,800,000,000 British debt on terms that will insure its payment in sixty-two years.

Passed the bill banning the sale of beer as medicine and otherwise tightening up the dry enforcement legislation.

Enlarged the Federal judiciary providing twenty-four additional judges to relieve the congestion in the Federal courts.

Restricted immigration to a 3 per cent basis, barring hundreds of thousands of undesirable aliens.

Established a coal commission to study and work out a solution for the growing problems of the fuel industry.

FARMERS AIDED

Passed the maternity bill under which it is estimated the lives of 80,000 infants will be saved annually.

Enacted several measures of relief to farmers, notably the bill reviving the War Finance Corporation and the co-operative marketing law.

Passed the Packer Act, placing the meat-packing industry under Federal supervision.

Enacted the Futures Trading Act designed to abolish speculation in grain.

Ratified the Colombian Treaty, paying $25,000,000 to Colombia by way of redress for asserted wrongs growing out of the acquisition of the Canal Zone.

Among the measures which failed of enactemnt were the following:

The siodiers' bonus bill, which President Harding vetoed and which lacked the two-thirds majority to pass over his veto.

Constitutional amendment proposed by the House prohibiting issuance of tax-free securities.

Constitutional amendment proposed by the Senate providing for inauguration of President and convening of new Congress in January.

The ship subsidy bill, which passed the House only to fail in the Senate because of the filibuster conducted by the opponents.

Legislation to end child labor, the Supreme Court holding the acts of Congress unconstitutional, and southern statesmen blocking constitutional amendments.

The dyer antilynching bill, blocked by filibustering tactics of Southenr Senators after passing the House.

The bill granting American vessels free passage through the Panama Canal, the House blocking it at the administration's request after it had passed the Senate.

Measures amending the present Esch-Cummins Transportation Act.

The protocol recommended by President Harding making the United States a member of the International Court of Justice.

Legislation to reorganize the executive departments of the government in the interest of efficiency.

The administration bill reforming the system of dealing with offenders against Federal laws.

For the first time in the memory of the elder Statesmen the big appropriation bills formed no part of the legislative jam on the last night of the session. Most of them were passed and signed by the President weeks ago, and the last of them went to the White House several days ago, leaving the decks clear of these mandatory measures, the failure of any one of which might necessitate the calling of an extraordinary session of Congress.

This novel situation was brought about partly by the operation of the new budget system, partly by the new method of appropriation by a single committee and partly by the expeditious procedure enforced by Representative Madden, Republican, Illinois, chairman of the House Committee on Appropriations.

Senate Places Nation's Court Plan on Shelf

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, March 3.—The protocol, submitted by President Harding a week ago, making the United States a member of the International Court of Justice under the League of Nations, was definitely sidetracked today until the new Congress meets, probably not until December.

By a vote of 24 to 49, the Senate rejected a motion offered by Senator King, Democrat, Utah, to proceed to the consideration of his resolution to ratify the protocol. The vote, with a few exceptions, was along party lines and revealed an unexpected unity among the Republicans against action on the pact at this time.

In voting down the King motion, the Senate confirmed the judgment of the Foreign Relations Committee to the effect that the time remaining before adjournment of the present Congress was too short for the careful consideration which the protocol merited.

Worth-While Diamonds

Facts Every Diamond Buyer Should Know

Considered either from the standpoint of dollars and cents or that of the pleasure of ownership, a poor quality diamond is about the most unsatisfactory investment one can make.

Do you know that at all times the market is flooded with cheap brown and yellow stones? Do you realize that diamonds that are too thin or too thick—or that are badly shaped or of poor water are worth but little as compared with the value of good diamonds? On the other hand, has it occurred to you that fine blue-white perfect diamonds have the most dependable value of any commodity in the world, and that the supply is never equal to the demand? These are facts, and explain why fine diamonds need never be sacrificed and are never found masquerading under so-called "cut prices."

When next you buy a diamond be sure before you spend your money. Your banker will tell you of the dependability of the Geo. D. Davidson Co.

Too Thin

The thin stones are known in the trade as "fish-eyes." The cut at the right shows their trouble—no life in the center. Novices buy them for their apparent size—and regret it ever after.

Too Thick

The stone at the left was cut to get the most weight from the rough diamond. Good center, but no brilliancy on sides. You pay for lots of useless weight and get only 50% in effective refraction.

Lop-Sided

Overbalanced stones, as at the right, lack life in the center and sides because their culet is not directly under the table. Recutting would help some, but at a great loss of weight.

FIRST PICTURES SENT BY RADIO

Invention of C. F. Jenkins Proves Successful

Wave Length of 1150 Meters Used in Experiment

Photos Received at Station in Philadelphia

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

[Copyright, 1923, by North American Newspaper Alliance, for the United States and Canada. Reproduction in whole or part expressly forbidden.]

PHILADELPHIA, March 3. — The first transmission of photographs by radio in the world was made today. Photographs were sent from the naval radio station in Washington and received by the radio receiving station of the Evening Bulletin here.

The test was under the auspices of North American Newspaper Alliance in the presence of newspaper publishers and scientists. The apparatus by which the pictures werent sent is the invention of C. Francis Jenkins of Washington, D. C., who received in 1898 from the city of Philadelphia, upon recommendation of the Franklin Institute, the Elliott Cressan medal for the invention of the first motion-picture machine.

Heretofore photographs have been transmitted by wire, but this is the first time that pictures have been successfully sent by radio. Pictures of President Harding, Vice-President Coolidge and Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania were received.

The photographs are not perfect, but are easily recognizable. Much of the lack of spaceness in the photographs is due to the interferences of static and other atmsopheric disturbances which are capable of elimination with improvements in radio reception.

An 1150 meter wave length was used in the sending of the photographs. The sending apparatus utilizes the principle of transferring light impulses into electrical impulses and thence into radio impulses. Sending is done from an ordinary photograph or photograhic negative. At the receiving end the process is reversed, and the picture when received is printed from a negative in the ordinary manenr.

USE ORDINARY ANTENNAE

All features of radio are preserved. The photographs were received on an ordinary antennae consisting of a single wire on top of the Bulletin Building.

The radio receiving apparatus consisted of a detector and amplifying unit of the type used by many amateurs. Previous experiments have been conducted over short distances in Washington, D. C., and this is the first attempt at transmission over any distance.

THREE DIE IN RUM BATTLE

Five Wounded in Gun Fight Between Officers and Asserted Tennessee Moonshiners

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

JELLICO (Tenn.) March 3.—A pitched battle at close range between officers and moonshiners in a lonely mountain pass near here late last night resulted in the death of three men and the wounding of five others. The dead are all asserted moonshiners and liquor runners. Four of the wounded are officers. The fifth is said to be a liquor runner who escaped after the battle, though badly wounded.

The fight occurred in a mountain gap after the officers had intercepted a liquor caravan. The alarm was spread immediately after the battle and hundreds of armed citizens are now scouring the hills in an effort to apprehend the remaining members of the band of moonshiners.

The dead are: Morrison Ayers, asserted leader of the band; George Perkins and his brother Walter.

The wounded are: W. S. Jaynes, Federal prohibition agent, shot three times; George W. Heatherly, city marshal of Jellico, shot through his neck and shoulder; Jeff Covey, deputy sheriff, shot through abdomen, and M. Perry, deputy sheriff, slightly wounded.

Heatherly and Covey are at the Knoxville Hospital, where little hope is held out for their recovery.

Cruelty Leads in Total of Reno Divorces

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

RENO, March 3.—The two District courts of Washoe county, of which Reno is the county seat, granted a total of 742 divorce decrees during 1922, according to statistics just compiled by the county clerk for the Federal Census Bureau at Washington. Only about twenty cases remained to be heard after January 1, which had been filed during the calendar year preceding.

Cruelty leads in the causes given, the figures showing that a total of 296 wives or husbands had cruel spouses. Desertion comes next with a total of 226. Failure to provide is third on the list.

UNKNOWN GAS KILLS TWO SILVER MINERS

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SALT LAKE CITY, March 3.—Two men met death from the effects of an unknown deadly gas on the 1300-foot level of the Silver King mine at Park City, Utah, late last night, according to word received here today. Joe Gastarac, 32, a miner, was first overcome and L. W. Leffer, 20, his helper, was asphyxiated in going to his rescue.

Con O'Neil, foreman of the mine crew which recovered the bodies of the two men, was also overcome by the fumes, but he is reported recovering at the mine hospital.

Rain, varying in different localities from a mere trace of moisture to heavy precipitation, visited Southern California Friday night and yesterday, and was continuing last night. Ranchers in general expressed satisfaction, for a fortnight of dry weather was beginning to slow the growth of cover crops. In most localities the precipitation to date is far behind the figures for the same date last year, in most cases being less than half. Also, observers predict an early spring, with litlte more rain after the present storm.

The local prediction for today was for cloudy weather, and with prospects of more rain. A rising temperature was promised, not an unwelcome development, after yesterday's chilly March breezes. The weather prophet predicted light frosts last night in exposed places, but nothing to do real harm. Danger of serious frost is believed to be over for this season.

High points are recording some cold weather, and probably will continue to do so. Following a heavy downpour of rain Thursday evening, totaling three-fourths of an inch, Mt. Wilson reported a drop in the mercury which froze some of their instruments. Only a trace of moisture was recorded there yesterday.

SYSTEMS OF HEALING TO BE STUDIED

Medical Associations Form Committee to Search for Truth or Fallacy

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, March 3.—The formation of a commission to study systems of healing which have gained wide public recognition for the purpose of determining the elements of truth which may be in such teachings, and practice, was voted at a meeting here today of representative leaders of the various schools of medicine.

Plans for the functioning of this commission together with its personnel and financing, will be taken up at a meeting of the same group of physicians and educators early next week.

"There has never yet been made any systematic and impartial study, or even fair investigation of the contentions of any of the minority schools of healing, under conditions which would prove to scientists or intelligent laymen their truth or fallacy," declared Dr. David Strickler, president of the Federation of State Medical Boards of the United States and chairman of the meeting.

As a result of this long continued and to us incomprehensible and irrational process and habit of ignoring and sometimes even denying that what we have assumed to understand without study of investigation, the profession of medicine has largely lost its influence and hold upon the masses."

NONPARTISAN LEAGUE CHANGES ITS NAME

QUESTION OF MEMBERSHIP FEE TO BE SETTLED LATER

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

BISMARCK (N. D.) March 3.—The principle of State autonomy was reaffirmed today when the name "Nonpartisan League of North Dakota" was adopted in the delegate convention called by Chairman W. J. Church of the league executive committee. This is a change from the old name, National Nonpartisan League of North Dakota.

The question of membership fee, yet to be settled, is expected to bring up the question of retaining a nominal connection with the national organization by remitting part of the dues collected in this State for furthering its work, which would carry the understanding, it is said, that the national organization would aid in North Dakota when necessary.

JEWELRY FOUND IN BUSY STREET

Small Fortune Discovered as Officers Search Room

Hold-up Victims Identify Gems and Suspects

Pair Held Believed Members of "Stick-up" Gang

A small fortune in gems lay unobserved in the gutter in front of a West Seventh-street hotel all afternoon yesterday while deputy Sheriffs were endeavoring to link Horace de Mandil, alias "The Count," and Dan Gray with the hold-up the night before of Mr. and Mrs. David Berman on Washington Boulevard.

The gems were picked up after a short search by Deputy Sheriffs Stensland and Dewar about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. They had been led to the spot by De Mandil who confessed that he had cast them from the automobile in which he and Gray were being conveyed to the Sheriff's office.

GEMS IDENTIFIED

A brooch of many diamonds, valued at $1000, was identified as belonging to Mrs. Berman, while a diamond stick pin, worth another $1000, was identified as the property of Ed Ellis, stock broker.

Earlier in the afternoon Ellis pointed out De Mandil and Gray as they sat in the office of Chief Deputy Sheriff Al Manning as the two men who had called him to his door on Thursday night and robbed him of a diamond pin and a diamond ring, valued at $3500.

Under pretext of asking him the address of some one living in the neighborhood, they had lured him to his front porch, he said, and there robbed him.

STRIPPED OF COAT

Mr. and Mrs. Berman were returning to Venice late Friday night from Hollywood. At a point almost opposite the gate of the Green Mill Gardens, on Washington Boulevard, they were overtaken by three men in a large automobile and robbed. Mrs. Berman was stripped of a handsome Kolinsky coat, a diamond brooch and a lavallier. Berman lost his scarf pin. They valued the jewelry and fur coat at $3500.

When Mrs. Berman saw that they were held up she snatched two diamond rings from her fingers and dropped them to the floor of the car. One of the bandits demanded that she surrender her rings and compelled the Bermans to get out of the car while he searched for them. Enraged at not finding them, he struck Mrs. Berman on the forehead with his pistol and fled with his companions.

Mrs. Berman believed the bandits had found the rings or that they had been lost from the car until they were found on the floor boards yesterday morning.

De Mandil and Gray were arrested about noon by Deputy Sheriff Stensland and Dewar as they drove up to the hotel on West Seventh street.

TAKEN TO BOOTY

After they had been identified at the Sheriff's office, De Mandil volunteered to take the officers back to the point where he had thrown the loot from the car. It was while Gray and he were under guard that he threw the gems into the gutter, De Mandil said.

De Mandil refused to admit that he had taken part in the robbery. He was acting as selling agent for the band, he said.

As "Count De Mandil" he served a term in the County Jail about two years ago and in October, 1921, was deported to Mexico as an undesirable alien. He returned to the United States a few weeks ago.

Gray was identified by Deputy Sheriff Stensland as a "stool pigeon" he had known about a year ago as "Dan McNeil."

Both Gray and De Mandil refused to implicate a third man, but authorities believe them to be members of a mob of stick-up men.

JURY FREES HEAD OF DEFUNCT BOND HOUSE

ETHERIDGE IS ACQUITTED IN OREGON ON CHARGE OF EMBEZZLEMENT

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

PORTLAND (Or.) March 3.—John L. Etheridge was found not guilty today by a jury before which he was tried on the charge of embezzlement of $28,000 worth of securities from the bond house of Morris Brothers, Inc., of which he was president.

The acquittal is an echo of the collapse of the bond house of Morris Brothers. Etheridge left Portland with his wife Dec. 23, 1920, on a trip East after having turned over the affairs of the concern to Fred S. Morris. Etheridge was arrested at Minneapolis, Dec. 27, 1920, as a result of charges developing from the crash of the bond house, a voluntary petition in bankruptcy having been filed here. A receiver was appointed on the petition which stated that interim bonds of $2,066,000 had been issued by the bond house the assets of which were stated at $1,495,815.

During the past two years Etheridge, while out on bonds has been active in reorganizing the affairs of the bond house which have been taken over by a new corporation.

Trial of Etheridge was repeatedly delayed. Other indictments are pending.

HOSPITAL PLAN CHANGES URGED

Californians in Congress Sign Round Robin Petition

Ask Gen. Hines to Reorganize Entire System

State Veterans' Needs Now National Problem

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, March 3.—California's delegation in Congress today delivered to the new chief of the Veterans' Bureau, Gen. Hines, a round robin for a complete reorganization of the hospital plan for California. According to assurances made by President Harding to members of the California delegation and Maj. A. E. Graupner, representing the California State Legion, this round robin and in fact the whole problem are to be reconsidered from the ground up to the hospitalization committee.

The round robin delivered to Gen. Hines is as follows:

Brig.-Gen. Frank T. Hines, Director, United tSates Veterans' Bureau, Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir: The undersigned, constituting the Congressional representation from the State of California, desire to call your attention to the needs of the disabled veterans residing in our State and urge the immediate construction of necessary hospitals.

NATIONAL PROBLEM

The reputation of the climate of California has induced thousands of men suffering from tuberculosis and neuro-psychosis to migrate to this State. We, therefore, have not a State, but a national problem to make provision for.

The American Legion of California, with the advice of eminent medical men and specialists, has developed a plan of hospitalization which was approved by your predecessor, and which we desire you to consider and adopt. This scheme is not intended to entirely meet the present needs, but is based upon an estimate of normal burden for a period of twenty years. The expenditure necessary is justified, therefore, by the length of the period rather than by a claim for hospitals for present emergencies. Briefly, the scheme calls for the following units:

(1.) Two tuberculosis hospitals of 500 beds' capacity each; one to be in Northern California and one in Southern California; both hospitals to be fireproof but of an economic type of construction; these hospitals to replace those hospitals now housing tuberculars and to be erected on sites provided by tuberculosis specialists of recognized standing, but selected by you.

NEED IMPERATIVE

(2.) The completion and equipment of the 500-bed hospital now under construction at Palo Alto and the construction of additions that will complete the capacity of 1000 beds. This is an imperative need, because on the completion of the present unit all of the service men committed to State insane asylums in California and Arizona must be moved to Palo Alto, under the rulings made by the authorities of those two States. This means that the estimated 800 N. P. cases that are not now hospitalized will be unable to obtain hospitalization on account of lack of facilities.

(3.) The purchase of the Angelus Hospital in Los Angeles for treatment of men medical and surgical cases, for use as a woman's hospital and for receiving and discharging T.B. and N.P. cases. This also is imperative. The Angelus Hospital can be bought for $350,000 and is fully equipped. Full particulars can be obtained from the records of your bureau which once had an option for the purchase and had the hospital appraised.

For the immediate accomplishment of propositions one and three there is over $1,500,000 available in the fund allocated for the erection of a T.B. hospital on the site purchased by the bureau and located near Livermore, Alameda county. To this can be added the $1,000,000 made available by the abandonment of the proposed hospital at Aspinall, Pa., or through other sources which, we are informed, can be made available. This will make a fund of $2,500,000 from which $250,000 can be used to purchase the Angelus Hospital in Los Angeles.

FUNDS SUFFICIENT

From the remaining $2,250,000 a site for the Southern California hospital can be purchased, plans drawn for the two tubercular hospitals proposed and the two tubercular hospitals constructed. This will, of course, mean a change in the style or type of building or buildings used for the hospital at Livermore. However, those plans call for a very expensive type of construction and an institutional form which is not required in California.

We believe that the suggested plan of the American Legion of California should meet with your hearty approval. We urge your immediate adoption and execution of the plan as an imperative measure for the benefit of the disabled ex-service men now in our State.

Sincerely,
[Signed]

Author Kills Collaborator at Reception

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, March 3.—A sensation was caused in Madrid when Pidaly Planas shot and killed Luis Anton de Olme, his collaborator in the writing of numerous popular plays.

The tragedy occurred at a reception given in their honor at the Salons Eslava Theater last night.

The motive for the shooting is not known.

TOYS WITH HIGH EXPLOSIVE

Boy Escapes Tragedy When Expert Identifies Medicine as Deadly Nitroglycerin

The specter of death hovered in the 600 block on Washington street late yesterday afternoon and only a timely warning averted a tragedy.

About a week ago Dr. J. A. McGarry of 660 Washington street died of heart disease. Late yesterday afternoon his wife was rummaging through his effects, preparing to clean the house. She found a pint bottle filled with a fluid which she was unable to identify and was about to throw it out of the window into an ash can when a neighbor stepped in and warned her not to do so, as the bottle might contain an explosive.

Mrs. McGarry laughed, saying she saw no reason why her husband should keep explosives about the house, but decided that it might be wise to call the authorities. She called the City Hall. The switchboard operator there transferred the call to the police station. Detective Lieutenant "Chester Lloyd got on the phone and warned her to leave the bottle alone until a police officer arrived.

Capt. Edward Felts, police explosive expert, hurried out to the house. He found Mrs. McGarry's son, 7 years of age, in possession of the bottle and playing with it. The little boy dashed up to the officer as the latter entered the door and shouted:

"Here is your old bottle."

Capt. Felts took the bottle. He discovered that it was filled with nitroglycerin and took it to the police station where it was destroyed. Nitroglycerin is used in the treatment of heart disease, and it is supposed that Dr. McGarry had it for that purpose.

If the bottle had been flung from the window or dropped by the boy, Capt. Felts said, some one would have been killed.

GANNA'S UP IN THE AIR

Will Decide Monday Whether to Appear in Chicago as Guest Artist With Russian Opera Company

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, March 3.—Ganna Walska McCormick will decide Monday whether she will appear as guest artist with the Russian Opera Company now playing an engagement at the Auditorium Theater.

The second Mrs. Harold McCormick will hold the conference to determine her musical career in her husband's city, in the drawing-room of her husband's mother's home, 675 Rush street.

As the Polish diva who has twice canceled concert dates in Chicago discusses professional plans with her manager, Jules Daiber, and Sol Hurok, manager for the Russians, an assembly of McCormick portraits, lining the room, will gaze down on the triumvirate.

Harold McCormick will not be present. He is in San Diego with his mother, Mrs. Cyrus McCormick. Ganna Walska McCormick is, she stated today, ont her way to him, and will remain in the city but four or five days unless plans to sing here in opera interfere.

PROBABLE THEMES

In the event of her singing with the Russians, it is expected that the diva will essay the roles of Sniegurotchka in the "Snow Maiden" and Filina in "Mignon." Mrs. McCormick, according to Leo Feodoroff, the Russian impresario, knows both these parts well, although she has never actually sung them.

As if to give added weight to the rumor that the Polish singer is seriously considering appearing in Chicago first as an operatic star instead of a concert soloist is the fact that Daiber, her manager, held no conference today with Frederick Wessels and Henry Voegeli, managers of Orchestra Hall. Her two cancelled concerts were scheduled for Orchestra Hall.

Since she slipped quietly into Chicago Friday the bride of the former head of the International Harvester Company has devoted herself almost exclusively to the Russians. Friday night she startled society by her unheralded appearance at the opera, accompanied by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Emmons Blaine.

SITS ON MAIN FLOOR

Mme. Walska has announced that she will attend the next five performances at the Auditorium. Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick has a box at the Russian grand opera, but has been of late occupying the main floor seats. There is a stir in society circles following the realization that it may be treated to a momentous clash of personalities—a meeting face to face of the Polish diva and the former Mrs. McCormick.

What will happen, they ask, when Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, one of the leaders in Chicago society, meets Mr. McCormick's bride? Society doesn't know—but a good indication of Ganna Walska's attitude was evidenced today when reporters went to interview her at the home of her sister-in-law.

The new Mrs. McCormick, refusing to be interviewed, sent down word:

"I am not here as Ganna Walska, the singer. I am Mrs. Harold F. McCormick."

M. Daiber was appealed to to use his influence toward obtaining an interview with her. He shrugged his shoulders expressively.

"What can I do?" he queried, smiling. "I am Ganna Walska's manager. I cannot presume to dictate to Mrs. Harold F. McCormick."

So there you are.

Prohibition is Not Applied in Constantinople

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 3. March 1 has come and gone and the specter of prohibition over Constantinople has definitely been laid to rest with an announcement that the Angora government has consented not to apply the measure to this city.

However, flour duties have been quintupled and the price of bread is soaring.

NEW MEMBERS TO BE RECEIVED BY CHURCH

CEREMONY TO MARK CLOSING OF PREACHING MISSION BY UNITARIANS

As a result of the preaching mission which has been conducted by Dr. William L. Sullivan, New York, and Dr. Horace Westwood, Toledo, a considerable number of people will be received into the membership of the First Unitarian Church at the close of the morning service today. Many of these persons have had no previous church connections.

Dr. Sullivan will conclude the mission with two sermons on Sunday. In the morning he preaches on "The Meaning of Faith" and in the evening on "The Spiritual Principles of Liberal Christianity."

ACTION OF GREEKS IS PUZZLING

Country is Overcrowded With Refugees; They Refuse to Release Prisoners

BY FRANK WILLS

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]
[Copyright, 1923, by the Chicago Tribune.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 3.—Local circles are uneasy on account of the action of Greek government in refusing to permit Turkish civil and military war prisoners to depart because the Turks are continuing to bring Greek prisoners out of Anatolia. Two weeks ago the Greek government informed the Turks they had all the refugees they could handle and if any more were brought out they would stop the release of Turkish prisoners.

With the problem of thousands congregating at Samsoun, Trebizond, Ineboli and other Black Sea ports, the Turks are compelled to bring the helpless victims here, where they are housed in the former military barracks, awaiting permission from the Hellenic government to send them to Greece. The latter finds a further influx embarrassing, on account of the forthcoming elections, when the government is certain to be overthrown.

With a weird logic, comprehensible only to Greek minds, the Greeks now refuse to permit Turkish prisoners, who are a Federal burden to the Greeks, to depart, because the Turkish government continues to allow Greeks to return to their own country.

Meanwhile the refugees crowded in the barracks here are dying at an appalling rate amid hideous scenes and misery. Daily I have seen corpses taken out by the wagon load from small Greek churches and piled from ten to fifteen on a wagon and handled like so much cord wood.

NEW WAR IS STARTED ON SMUGGLING

Agents Redouble Efforts in Curbing Both Narcotic and Liquor Traffic

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Indications were given at the treasury today that a new effort had been started to check smuggling.

Although official comment was withheld, it appeared that redoubled energy was being put forward to curtail the illegal bringing into this country of liquor and narcotics, as well as to strengthen the vigilance against smuggling of merchandise.

Assistant Secretary Clifford left Washington today for Jacksonville and other Florida points for the purpose, it was reported, of making a personal inspection of the rum-running and smuggling problem generally along the coast line there. At the same time it was learned that Chief Van Dorn of the customs intelligence service, was making a long tour along the West Coast, but information received from him has been withheld.

Attention was called today also to the issuance of orders to the coast guard in the last two months, all of which appeared to be designed to make that organization more effective against the smuggling of liquor. While the moves were primarily directed against rum runners, it was made known at the treasury that an eye was being kept on the other phases of the smuggling problem.

Confidential advices received by the treasury seemed to indicate a revival on the part of smugglers to bring in merchandise and avoid high tariff duties.

HOUSE LEADERS HOTLY ASSAILED

Mondell, Campbell Scored About Muscle Shoals

They're Accused of Halting Farmers' Legislation

Alabama Congressman Makes Embittered Attack

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Attacks were made today in the House on Representative Mondell, Wyoming, Republican leader, and Representative Campbell, Republican, Kansas, chairman of the Rules Committee, and speaker pro tempore, for their failure to permit House votes on Henry Ford's offer for Muscle Shoals and on a resolution proposing government purchase and resale to farmers of $10,000,000 worth of nitrates and calcium arsenate.

Representative Jeffers, Democrat, Alabama, charged the two Republican leaders with "misusing their positions" in denying a vote on the Muscle Shoals proposition "at the behest, or in accordance with the wishes and desires of the great interests, such as the fertilizer power, the Chilean nitrate interests, and the aluminum trust of this country.

ACCUSATION POINTED

"And, by the way," he added, "bear in mind that your Secretary of the Treasury is one of the aluminum kings who has the ear of the administration."

Mr. Jeffers declared that Mr. Mondell had stated on the floor of the House last August 25 that the Muscle Shoals legislation ought to be considered by Congress, but that "the promise all went for nothing."

"The legislation of the farmers of the nation," said the Alabama Representative, "have been denied by these men, repudiated at the polls by their own people, but who still are here in authority."

Failure to bring up the nitrate bill led to a filibuster on the Democratic side.

TO FORCE ACTION

Charging that an agreement to take up the nitrate resolution had not been carried out, Representative Pou of North Carolina, ranking Democrat on the Rules Committee, gave notice that its supporters would "resort to such means as we deem fair and open to force an action on it."

"You have deprived the House of a vote," he shouted to Mr. Campbell, and Mr. Mondell, adding later that the action of the Republican leadership was "tyranny."

Representative Mondell said that a filibuster had prevented action on the measure which would have assured purchase of the Cape Cod Canal. The majority leader added that he did not regard the nitrate resolution as "wise legislation," and "was opposed to bringing it up."

FIGHT BOOST IN EXPRESS RATES

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 3.—California fruit shippers, poultry raisers and department store owners appeared before an Interstate Commerce Commission field hearing here today and testified that the recently authorized nation-wide increase in railway express rates would be "disastrous" to fruit growers and cause a diversion of present express shipments to competing methods of transportation, fast freight and parcel post.

The hearing today, the first of a series in the West, resulted from the refusal of the California State Railroad Commission to accept as intrastate rates the interstate rates fixed by the Interstate Commerce Commission which increased the tariff approximately 20 per cent. As a result the interstate body ordered that western shippers in California, Oregon and Washington be heard.

Those who testified today included:

A. T. White, San Francisco; Henry Browning, Los Angeles; Henry E. Cole, Sacramento; M. E. McKirahan, Sacramento; S. S. Knight, Petaluma; I. M. Cabe, Santa Rosa, and John D. Dewan, San Francisco.

White and Browning, representing San Francisco and Los Angeles organizations of retail department owners, respectively, said that California purchasers of women's wear in New York were entitled to preferential rates on 1000 to 5000-pound express consignments.

"If an increase in express rates is granted," said Browning, "we will place a traffic man in New York to supervise the movements of our express consignments by fast freight and reduce the express consignments of our concern on New York purchases."

McKirahan, traffic manager of the California Fruit Distributors, testified that growers offering cherries to his organization for movement to New York and Chicago had expressed the opinion that California growers would be shut out from eastern markets if the express rates on refrigerator carloads were increased. McCabe, a berry grower, said the same barrier would operate against growers in his section.

The increased rates were authorised by the Interstate Commerce Commission upon the showing made in Washington by the express companies that operating expenses and the wages of employees had been increased in the aggregate more than $42,000,000.

The hearing will be resumed on Monday when the State Railroad Commission will call its experts to testify as to the cost of moving express shipments to and from California.

Copper-Treated Rope Said Ideal for Marine Use

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, March 3.—Uncle Sam has discovered a new use for copper. On the authority of the Copper and Brass Research Association, it is announced that the United States Bureau of Fisheries has found that rope may be protected from marine pests by treating it with a solution of copper.

And, strangely, the experiments conducted by the government have shown that copper-treated rope is lighter than that treated by tar. Marine pests, it is said, "literally eat the tar" out of tar-impregnated rope and then devour the rope itself, making rope renewal a costly item to the 200,000 American fishermen who use annually about 300,000,000 pounds of rope.

YOUNG WIDOW IS BACK HOME

Hunt for Mrs. Smith, Thought Dead, is Ended

Death of Husband and Her Mother Shock

Clothes and Money Left in Beach Bath-house

After an absence of almost a week, Mrs. Grace L. Smith, who disappeared from Long Beach on Monday last, leaving circumstantial evidence to indicate that she intended suicide, returned yesterday from Catalina Island.

She was met at the pier by her father, Arthur W. Moore, wealthy retired jeweler of Toronto, Can., who lives at 614 Beverly Drive, Beverly Hills, and her aunt, Mrs. P. A. Thomason.

Her aunt stated that Mrs. Smith was in a state of nervous collapse and could not be interviewed. She is under the care of a trained nurse at her father's home. Mrs. Thomason said that her niece's attacks of melancholia started after the death of her husband in 1919. When the girl's mother died last year, Mrs. Smith's grief manifested itself by intense depression.

A message was received yesterday from Catalina Island, asking Mr. Moore to meet his daughter at the pier, which was done. Mrs. Thomason said that Mrs. Smith gave no reason for her action, other than that she "wanted to get away from everybody."

The search for the missing woman started last Monday night when the police of Long Beach found a bathrobe which had been left on the beach.

It was established that Mrs. Smith had that afternoon rented a bath-house in which she left a complete outfit of clothes. She also left money and valuable jewelry in a safe deposit box at the bath-house, which were identified by Mr. Moore as his daughter's property. A note reading: "I have gone to join mother," was found with the valuables.

Because of the circumstances the Long Beach police refused to believe that Mrs. Smith intended suicide, and a search was started. Nothing was heard of the missing woman until the message was received from Catalina.

A slight mental derangement resulting from nervous breakdown is said by Mrs. Smith's family to have caused her action in feigning attempted suicide.

WOOD PUSHING PROJECTS

Manila Legislature Adjourns Without Passing Bills to Provide for Improvements

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MANILA (P. I.) March 3.—Failure of the island Legislature to appropriate $2,000,000 gold for projects outlined by Gov.-Gen. Leonard Wood brought the announcement today that another special session will be called in May or June, prior to Gen. Wood's departure for China.

The Legislature adjourned several days ago after two special sessions of 100 days each without taking action on Gov.-Gen. Wood's request for additional revenue to be used in carrying through a number of his improvement measures.

RUBBER FRANCHISES

Only economic measures will be submitted at the next special session. One of these calls for the improvement of the Island of Mindanao, which is United States public domain, and the extension of forty-year rubber plantation franchises for 50,000 acres each to a number of corporations. It has been asserted that half the land on Mindanao is suitable for rubber plantations, and that they could grow sufficient raw product to supply the rubber needs of the world.

Kermit Roosevelt, his wife, and Col. Willard will arrive here on the 7th inst. from Hongkong, China.

The first violation of the new book-keeping law, which provides that merchants must keep their accounts in English in order to facilitate tax collections, was reported yesterday. The Attorney-General has filed suit against the Chinese merchant who is accused of the offense against the new law. Many other prosecutions under the new statute are anticipated. It is expected that they will be followed with an appeal to the Supreme Court attacking the constitutionality of the law.

Pilgrimage to Bakersfield Is Shriners' Plan

The Shriners on that day will meet at Cheney's Grove for a picnic lunch furnished by Al Malaikah Temple, and will be met there by nobles of Bakersfield, who will conduct them to the latter city.

A parade in Bakersfield will start at 7 p.m., followed by a ceremonial session at the operahouse at 8 p.m., after which a Spanish supper will be served.

WHY CALIFORNIA BARS ORIENTALS

Senator Shortridge Tells Stand of State

Asiatic Standards Not for Citizens

Right of Exclusion Part of Law of Nations

BY SAMUEL M. SHORTRIDGE,
U. S. Senator From California.

[The following appears in the Fellowship Forum of February 18.]

California and the Pacific Coast are unalterably opposed to further Japanese immigration into our country. We are also as firmly opposed to any relaxation of laws as to immigration of Hindoos, of course.

The nation, through Congress, has a perfect right, recognized by all nations, to determine who may and who may not enter into and reside in the United States.

There are many reasons, economic, social and political which justify our position in regard to Japanese immigration. Under existing laws the Japanese are ineligible to citizenship. Racially they are not assimilable with our race. We must maintain our high standard of life and living, and for manifest reasons our people—that is to say, the American citizen with wife and children to support and educate—cannot and should not be required to undertake to compete with Japanese labor.

RACE PROBLEM BARRED

Manifestly we do not wish to introduce or permit to grow in our country a race problem which will inevitably cause bitter strife among our own people and endanger peaceful international relations.

In excluding Japanese labor from our country we are doing no more than Japan has done. In other words, Japan has claimed and exercised the right of admitting or excluding people of other countries. It may be added Japan has formally admitted our right to determine this question for ourselves and that in so doing we would not be giving offense to Japan or any other nation. When the so-called "gentleman's agreement" with Japan was entered into it was with the hope and understanding that such an agreement would not bring about an increase in the Japanese population in California but that it would have the contrary effect.

We know, however, there has been a rapid increase in such population instead of a falling off, as was expected. But whatever understanding was entered into and whatever may have been the hope of President Roosevelt, the time has come for us to legislate and stop this immigration.

PRAISES JOHNSON BILL

The Johnson bill, which deals with this particular question, should speedily pass the House and come to the Senate. I scarcely need to add that I earnestly hope and confidently expect the bill to pass the Senate, and be approved by the President.

An immigration question can be dealt with in two ways: Either by negotiations leading up to a treaty or by our own direct legislation. In view of all the facts and conditions which make early action imperative, I favor early and direct action, and hence shall urge the passage of the Johnson bill.

We are at peace with Japan and would continue at peace with that nation. There is no ground or reason to suppose our contemplated legislation will disturb the peaceful relationship between the two nations.

In any event, however, we must act with first regard for the welfare of our own people, State and nation.

COMMERCE BODY ADDS TO ROSTER

New Members for Year Total 668; Seek 15,000 Goal by 1924

The Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce records show that new members have doubled over the same period a year ago.

During January and February 638 were added, compared to 320 for the same months in 1922, bringing the total membership to 9320, and this figure has been maintained after a thorough house-cleaning of nonpayment memberships.

Aiming high this year, the goal of the membership was set by President W. T. Bishop of the Chamber at a banquet for members a week ago when he said that 15,000 at the end of the year will be the total membership.

If this record is attained, as it is asserted it will be by the Department Manager, Samuel A. Bostwick and R. L. McCourt, chairman of the Membership Committee, the roll will be practically doubled by the end of the year.

Business men arriving in the city, seeking the assistance of the chamber, at once are listed in large numbers among the new members.

LIBRARY IN MEMORY OF PROFESSOR

Mathematical Collection Will Honor Paul Arnold, Late of U.S.C.

One of the largest mathematical libraries in the State is being arranged at the University of Southern California as a memorial to the late Prof. Baul Arnold, himself an alumnus and for twenty years professor of mathematics of the institution.

Prof. Arnold was one of the best beloved members of the faculty of U.S.C. and the library, which will be for the general use of teachers, students and those interested in mathematics, will be a unit in the new library being planned.

Prof. Arnold graduated from the University of Southern California in 1890, and took post graduate work at Cornell and then studied in Germany and Sweden under Prof. Lei and other renowned mathematicians. For twenty years he taught higher mathematics at the university and was not only the head of the department of mathematics, but was also a member of the graduate council and an administrative officer.

During his teaching time he witnessed his alma mater develop from a small, struggling institution of a few score students to the position of a great university. He contributed generously to the upbuilding of the college and his energy, indomitable spirit, steadfast character and striking personality were such that scores of fellow-teachers and hundreds of students treasure his lessons and cherish his memory.

An interesting symbolical bookplate has been designed for the books in this collection. The funds and books for this memorial library are being secured by private subscriptions and voluntary gifts from former students who wish to show their appreciation of the work of Prof. Arnold.

How to Make Pine Cough Syrup at Home

Has no equal for prompt results. Takes but a moment to prepare, and saves you about $2.

Pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup.

To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you make a full pint—more than you can buy ready-made for three times the money. It is pure, good and tastes very pleasant.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pinex and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, or any ordinary throat ailment.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs.

Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

POLICE ARREST THEFT SUSPECT

Joe Davis is Accused of Long List of Robberies

Prisoner Said to be Known by Many Aliases

Believed to-be Fugitive From Arizona Prison

In the arrest late yesterday afternoon of Joe Davis, police believe they have apprehended one of the most daring bandits in the Southwest and the man responsible for a long series of safe blowings and hold-ups here within the past several weeks.

The suspect was arrested by Detective White and Officer Greenspoon at a rooming-house near Seventh street and Central avenue. A check-up of his activities during the past fifteen years at the identification bureau here disclosed, the police assert, that he has been implicated in scores of sensational hold-ups and bank robberies and has spent a number of years at San Quentin and city and county jails in the Southwest.

It is the belief of the police that the suspect recently escaped from the Arizona State penitentiary at Florence, Ariz., where he had been confined for blowing a safe in a physician's office at Safford, Ariz.

MANY ALIASES

According to police, Davis is known throughout the Southwest under more than a dozen aliases. Although he stoutly maintained that he was innocent of any wrongdoing, a comparison of his finger prints with those on file at the identification bureau showed, the police said, that he was one of the men who staged the daring hold-up and robbery of a San Bernardino bank in February, 1916, where the vault was blown and thousands of dollars taken. Lonnie Long and Albert Medina are said to have been implicated with Davis on this job.

An exhaustive investigation is being made by police in an effort to link up the suspect with some of the more daring robberies and bank hold-ups within recent weeks. Police are convinced that he took a leading part in a number of these "jobs," at least.

The first record of his arrest here was in 1909 when he was taken into custody by Police Chief Oaks, then a detective sergeant, and Detective Sergeant King on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. Later he bobbed up in San Francisco, where he was charged with a number of hold-ups and bank jobs. For a time he seemed to disappear and then came the San Bernardino bank blowing and his arrest and his sentence to San Quentin.

Davis is held here on suspicion of burglary, pending a complete investigation into his record. He is said to be known here under the alias of John Moore, Ed Flynn, Bennell and Foster.

Child Actress and Band Provide Rich Entertainment for Unfortunate Tots

Pain and physician defects that made them different from other children were forgotten by crippled children at the Los Angeles Foundation yesterday afternoon in their delight at the entertainment furnished by Katharine and Jane Lee, children appearing in one of the local theaters, and the mail-carriers' band of fifty pieces.

The children many of whom are unable to move from their beds, listened with delight to the music, songs and acts, and the rain which prevented many friends of the hospital from attending only increased their pleasure as they were allowed to see their benefactors at closer range. Their happiness was complete when after their act the Lee girls shook hands with all the cripples and wished them a speedy return to health.

Madge Bellamy, who is greatly interested in the hospital and its work, found time to leave her work in the studio and her presence seemed to quiet the whimpers of the children who are temporarily suffering anguish that some day may be made relieved. Last week Miss Bellamy entertained twelve of the children at a box party at the Ambassador Theater.

The Los Angeles Foundation is one of the most unique children's hospitals in the country. The children's educations are carried on while they are in the hospital and occupations are taught by which they may both earn money and keep busy. Different from most hospitals of its character boys and girls under 20 are cared for as well as the smaller ones.

Noticias de Washington

WASHINGTON, marzo 3.—Los líderes del Congreso tenían la esperanza esta noche de que las dos cámaras llegaran a un acuerdo en lo tocante a legislación sobre créditos rurales, en tiempo todavía para que el Presidente Harding subscriba el proyecto de ley antes de la clausura.

El Presidente Johnson, de la Comisión de Inmigración de la Cámara de Diputados, dijo hoy que los informes publicados a efecto de que el llamado proyecto de ley sobre corta inmigración exceptuaba a los parientes de los declarantes del prorrateo de admisibilidad, le hacían dudar de poder obtener la necesaria votación de dos tercios que la medida exige para ser aprobada por la Cámara de Diputados.

Anoche, las últimas horas del sexagésimo séptimo congreso, que expira por ley el domingo a medio día, presenciaron una disputa de pre-clausura, que dió carácter extraordinario a la estación final de "cantos del cisne" y adioses a los miembros y a las leyes.

Tanto el Senado como la Cámara tuvieron sesiones nocturnas para terminar con los negocios verdaderamente legislativos que quedaban en los "calendarios." Las sesiones de mañana comenzarán a las diez, dejando un período de dos horas para las últimas formalidades. El Presidente Harding irá al Capitolio a firmar los proyectos de ley de la undécima hora, y a medio día exacto, este Congreso habrá pasado a la historia.

Llega de Alemania el General Henry T. Allen

NUEVA YORK, marzo 3.—El Mayor General Henry T. Allen, Jefe del Ejército Americano de Ocupación en Alemania, llegó hoy a su país a bordo del buque George Washington. Es el último de los generales americanos que regresa de la guerra mundial. Con él venían su señora, otros dos Henry T. Allen—su hijo, capitán de caballería, y su nieto, nacido hace 15 meses en el Rin—unos veinte oficiales de Estado Mayor, y 54 soldados. Manifestó el General Allen que ha dado magníficos resultados para mantener la disciplina entre los hombres una prohibición modificado, dentro de la cual se ha permitido a la tropa que tome cerveza y vinos ligeros.

Bustos de Dos Diputados Muertos

WASHINGTON, marzo 3.—La Cámara de Diputados, por uno de sus últimos actos oficiales, ordenó la consignación de $4000, del fondo de imprevistos, para la hechura de bustos de mármol de los dos diputados difuntos, James R. Mann, de Illinois, y el ex-Presidente de la Cámara, Champ Clark, de Missouri.

NOTAS LOCALES

La Policía Atrapa a un Sospechoso de Muchos Robos

Con la aprehensión de Joe Davis efectuada ayer a última hora, cree la policía tener en sus manos a uno de los más audaces bandidos del sudoeste, responsable de una larga serie de fracturas de cajas de caudales y de atracos verificados aquí en las últimas semanas. El sospechoso fué detenido por el Detective White y el gendarme Greenspoon en una casa de huéspedes cercana a la esquina de la Calle Séptima y la Avenida Central. Una averiguación que de sus pasados hechos se llevó a cabo en la oficina de identificación, reveló, según dice la policía, que ha estado implicado en muchísimos atracos sensacionales, así como en robos a bancos, y que ha pasado buen número de años en San Quintín y en cárceles de ciudad y de condado del sudoeste. La policía está en la creencia de que el sospechoso se escapó hace poco de la penitenciaría del Estado de Arizona, ubicada en Florence, donde había estado preso por dinamitar la caja de caudales de la oficina de un médico, en Safford, Arizona.

Ayer Regresó la Sra. Smith de la Isla Catalina

Después de casi una semana de ausencia, regresó ayer de la Isla Catalina la Sra. Grace L. Smith, que el pasado lunes había desaparecido de Long Beach, dejando pruebas que parecían indicar que había tenido intención de suicidarse. Fueron a encontrarla al muelle, su padre, Arthur W. Moore, rico joyero de Toronto, retirado, que habita en Beverly Hills, y su tía, la Sra. P. A. Thomason. Esta última dijo que la Sra. Smith se hallaba presa de colapso nervioso, y no podía ser entrevistada. La está cuidando una enfermera profesional en la casa de su padre. La Sra. Thomason añadió que los ataques de melancolía de su sobrina habían comenzado después de la muerte de su marido, en 1919. Cuando la madre de la joven murió el año pasado, el pesar de la Sra. Smith se manifestó con una intensa depresión.

Huye la Tripulación de un Buque Presa de las Llamas

Según mensajes radiotelegráficos recibidos en el puerto de Los Angeles, el Capitán Frank Marland y veinte de tripulación se escaparon ayer en pequeños botes del barco automóvil Babinda, envuelto en llamas. Hallábase el Babinda a sesenta millas al sur de San Francisco cuando se declaró el incendio. Las llamas se extendieron con tal rapidez, que la tripulación se vió en aprietos para bajar los botes. Una hora después de que se había descubierto el fuego, había ardido el barco hasta la línea de flotación. Al llamado del buque siniestrado respondió el vapor Celilo, que tomó a su bordo a los náufragos. Iba dicho vapor a San Francisco, y se hallaba a unas cuantas millas del Babinda, cuando éste pidió auxilio.

[FL]EETS PAUSE IN WAR GAME

[Re]fitting and Repairing Take Place of Maneuvers

[Ent]ertainment and Athletics Order of Day

[No] Work at Sea Scheduled Until March 12

[BY U. S. NAVAL RADIO.]

BALBOA (Canal Zone) March 3. [Th]e enemy fleet having "destroyed" [th]e canal, which the United [Stat]es Fleet, outmaneuvered and [beaten], failed to defend, all United [Stat]es war vessels have united and [a]re now refitting in Canal Zone [wat]ers. The heavy sound of trip-hammers, of acetylene torches and [of] [illegible] on armor can be heard [through]out the zone. Four de[stroy]ers are repairing from dam[age] sustained in the fight, and the [dread]naughts are improving their [arma]ment where inspections have [sh]own them deficient. [Six]ty-three thousand officers and [men] of the Fleet are taking their [first] ease, after three [illegible] [wee]ks of sleepless, nerve-racking [battl]e drills, and all the zone is in [g]ala attire, hundreds of entertain[ments] being conducted by the American colonies and by native Panama officialdom.

Until March 12 no work at sea is scheduled and the time intervening will be spent in refitting and in recreation.

FLEET ATHLETICS

The fleet athletic tourneys, in which the Atlantic and Pacific Fleets contend for the naval trophies, are now in progress. Baseball, basketball, race-boat races whale-boat races and swimming contests, in addition to the all-Navy boxing and wrestling championships will be conducted in this period of quiet.

A very impressive ceremony in memory of the fatal sinking of the U.S.S. Woolsey, a destroyer, in the maneuvers of 1921, will be held. The Woolsey was lost with a death list of seventeen in the last southern maneuvers, and her old crew have arranged to hold memorial services on Panama soil.

Orders transferring the greatest scouting commander in the naval service, Rear-Admiral Guy H. Burrage, have also been received, and this officer will leave his command of the Pacific destroyer squadrons, probably for a land post.

The entire United States Navy submarine force is here, and they create an impressive appearance, steaming in long force columns together. Seventy-two destroyers lie in the harbor, and fourteen vessels of the dreadnaught class, the greatest single fleet, all in all, ever brought together under one command, and well able to meet any fleet in battle which now sails the seas under any flag.

Tents, kiosks and booths have sprung up all over the zone, to dispense fruits and cooling drinks to the heavy liberty parties from the fleet. The fleet bands play every noon and evening.

Numbers of squadrons of airplanes of every naval type from combat to bombers, are in the air every day, and the air is constantly bleating with the drone of naval engines and the cheers of bluejackets and officers. The entire zone is at play.

The dark rings around the strained eyes of the crews are disappearing as rest is regained, but all are eager to re-enter battle, March 12, when poison gases and heavy gunnery maneuvers will be commenced and continued day and night.

DEATH ENDS WIDOW'S GRIEF

Hollywood Woman Takes Her Life in Sorrow Over Demise of Husband

Despondency, due to the death of her husband, Ludvig Jakobsen, led Mrs. [illegible] Jakobsen, 28 years of age, to end her life early yesterday morning by inhaling gas in the kitchen of her apartment at 5780 Hollywood Boulevard.

The bodies are now lying near each other in the funeral parlors of Leroy Bagley, 5440 Hollywood Boulevard. They are to be buried tomorrow at the Inglewood Cemetery.

Mr. Jakobsen died Thursday after undergoing an operation. Overcome by the tragedy, his widow spent Friday in weeping. Yesterday morning Theodore Jakobsen, brother of the dead man, detected the odor of gas, and breaking down the kitchen door discovered her body upon an improvised bed upon the floor. In her arms was clasped a photograph of her husband.

A note, found under the blanket, expressed her desire to die. Flowers, which she intended taking to her husband's funeral, were near by.

Dr. George T. Boyd, the family physician, and Lieut. Graham and Sergt. Stevens of the Hollywood police attempted to revive her, but were unsuccessful.

The Jakobsens came here from Denmark two years ago.

SUBMARINE R-3 IS TOWED NORTHWARD

Undersea Vessel Disabled in Gale Off Coast of Mexico

With the disabled submarine R-3 in tow, the mine sweeper Ortolan yesterday morning left the Los Angeles Harbor Submarine Base for the Mare Island Navy Yard. The R-3, while on route to Panama recently with the United States battle fleet, became disabled in a gale off Magdalena Bay, Mexico, and nearly foundered with her crew before assistance reached her.

Repairs will be rushed on the undersea craft at Mare Island that she may be ready to sail for Hawaii in June with the other units of Division No. 9, now at Panama.

Officials at the local base announced yesterday that the giant submarine, S-3, will arrive here on the 8th inst., for temporary station, coming from Mare Island. She will operate from Los Angeles for several months and next summer will attempt to set a new cruising record for submarines by sailing, unconvoyed, to Cavite, Philippine Islands.

Will Prosecute Three Accused of War Frauds

The prosecution of Ben Sugarman and others, who were indicted in Southern California for conspiracy to defraud the government, will be in charge of James N. Linton of Columbus, O., who was ordered yesterday by Atty.-Gen. Daugherty to proceed here, according to a dispatch from Washington.

The indictment against Sugarman charges intent to defraud the government in the sale of surplus war materials valued at more than $500,000. Among those indicted with Sugarman are Max A. Elser and Capt. Frank Tingley, Army officers.

It is charged that the defendants, through connivance with the auctioneer, purchased at public auction at Camp Kearny quantities of surplus Army goods at a price 50 per cent below their value.

The government will push the case to speedy trial, it was declared by Atty.-Gen. Daugherty, who has asked that a date be set in the latter part of April.

RIGAS GOING EAST

Greek Actor Plans to Purchase Play for Stage

George Rigas, Greek actor in motion pictures, will leave Hollywood the early part of the week for New York City, where he will complete plans for the purchase of a foreign stage play, which he intends to open in Los Angeles during the early part of the summer.

Rigas will be gone several weeks. The name of the play has not been disclosed because of business reasons. While in the East, if the contract is closed, a translation of the play will be made before Rigas returns here.

CANNERIES INSPECTION TO BE MADE

Permission to Operate for Remainder of Season Will Probably be Granted

The canneries in the Fish Harbor district at Los Angeles Harbor will be inspected today by Health Commissioner Powers, and it is expected that he will permit them to reopen for the remainder of the canning season, which will end in about thirty days. This action will result from the co-operation between the city sewer department and the owners of the canneries in cleaning the sewers of the cannery wastes and the running to capacity of the Terminal Way pumping plant to handle the sewage.

The sewers in the Fish Harbor section had clogged because of the large amount of fish waste collected there from the canneries, but screens have been installed in these plants and the city will prosecute any owners who permit refuse to escape into the sewer system.

The harbor department takes the position that as it contributed $185,000 toward the cost of the Fish Harbor section sewer system and pumping plant, the city should handle in this system the screened waste waters from the canneries.

While willing to do this for thirty days to permit the canneries to operate City Engineer Griffin contends that before next year a special sewer should be built to handle the wastes and to discharge this material without nuisance far into the ocean instead of into the sanitary sewer system which has resulted in the fouling of the waters at Fish Harbor.

'Sky Writing' Is to be Featured in Bay District

Residents of the Bay District will get their first glimpse of "sky-writing" today, when Capt. Leslie R. Pait-Cox, British aviator and World War veteran, will fly over Long Beach, Venice, Santa Monica and Ocean Park to inscribe the words "Lucky Strike" on the sky.

Capt. Pait-Cox was brought over from England by the American Tobacco Company and has contracted to make 875 flights. The letters, written in smoke, are one mile, and the words six miles, long.

The first flight will be made at 1:30 p.m. today, with a second flight to follow shortly after. The letters are produced by introducing a chemical which intensifies the smoke from the exhaust.

Three More of Bunko Suspects Under Charges

Complaints charging attempted grand larceny were issued late yesterday afternoon by Dep. Dist.-Atty. McClelland against three more of the ten asserted bunko men held in the County Jail.

Yesterday's complaints are directed against Sam Johnson, W. Burke and W. A. Johnson. It is charged that the three are implicated with three others in an attempt to swindle J. A. Wells of Kent, O., of $40,000 in a stock-manipulation scheme.

It is also asserted that they attempted to obtain $17,000 from J. T. Larsen on a similar scheme.

The ten suspects will appear for their preliminary hearing before Justice Baird tomorrow morning.

Heir to Biddle Fortune Signs Film Contract

Craig Biddle, Jr., until a short time ago a student of Princeton University, and heir to the Biddle fortune in Philadelphia, who recently came to Hollywood to seek his fortune in the films, signed a long-term contract yesterday with the Robertson-Cole Film Corporation.

Biddle will be given his first part in the Chautard production of "Daytime Wives," and will later be assigned to play in the "Fighting Blood" series which Mal St. Clair is creating with George O'Hara in the stellar role.

Mr. Biddle's mother arrived in Los Angeles yesterday from the East and will make her home in Hollywood for a short time, it was learned last night.

STREET-CAR WORKER CRITICALLY INJURED

With both legs amputated yesterday by the wheels of a street-car, A. E. Earl, 45 years of age, employed by the Los Angeles Railway, was expected to die as a result of the accident, according to surgeons at the Receiving Hospital.

Earl attempted to board a moving car at Vernon and Long Beach avenues, tripped and fell beneath the wheels. He was dragged more than fifty feet before the car came to a stop. His wife and children, at his home in Willowbrook, were notified.

Twenty Take to Boats as Flames Destroy Babinda, Motor Vessel, Off Santa Cruz Coast

With the motorship Babinda a mass of flames, Capt. Frank Marland and a crew of twenty escaped yesterday in small boats, according to radio messages received at Los Angeles Harbor.

The Babinda was sixty miles south of San Francisco when fire broke out. The flames spread so rapidly that the crew had difficulty in lowering the boats, and an hour after the fire was discovered, the ship had turned to the water's edge.

The steamer Celilo responded to the Babinda's calls for assistance and took the crew aboard, radio messages stated. The Celilo was bound for San Francisco, and was but a few miles away when the Babinda called for help.

VESSEL TOTAL LOSS

En route to San Francisco with a small cargo of news print, the Babinda sailed Thursday from Los Angeles Harbor, after unloading 10,90 tons of news print from Portland. It was owned by the Pacific Steamship Company, and valued at $200,000. Late reports indicated yesterday that the vessel would be a total loss.

The fire started early yesterday morning, and the Babinda had drifted to a point about seventeen miles southwest of Santa Cruz after it was first sighted by Capt. William Olson, of the whaler Port Saunders. Capt. Olson attempted to approaching the burning vessel, but was unable to do so because of the flames.

FIRE SPREADS RAPIDLY

Fanned by a strong wind, the flames swept from the engine room to the bow, and burner rapidly through the decks to the water line, reaching the fuel tanks. The entire superstructure was ablaze when the crew launched the boats.

Hundreds of spectators lined the beach at Santa Cruz to watch the flaming ship, which seemed to be drifting inshore. Fishing launches that attempted to put tow lines aboard, reported that there was no chance of salvage.

TRUCKEE PROJECT CONTRACT SIGNED

POWER COMPANY GIVES UP RIGHTS TO RECLAMATION SERVICE

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Signature of a contract between the Canyon Power Company and the reclamation service authorizing release to the company of the Truckee power project on the Truckee Canal near Carson City, Nev., was announced today at the Interior Department.

The power company, it is understood, relinquishes under the terms of the new contract certain rights to other lands for a continuance of the lease on the Lahontan plant, as the Truckee project is called. The plant utilizes power generated by diversion of irrigation water in the Newlands reclamation project built by the government several years ago and has been under lease for a long period to the company.

The Canyon Power Company, it was said, gave up to the reclamation service its rights under the previous contract to land on or near the Truckee River, which was understood to be desired by the reclamation service for construction of a new reservoir to be known as the Spanish Springs Valley reservoir, which will be used to store the waters of the Truckee for irrigation purposes.

It was declared, however, that the company was given other advantages in the use of the Lahontan planty by which both the company and the reclamation service would benefit.

Court Held at Hospital Bed of Chinese Actor

Justice Baird carried his court into a sick room in the County Hospital yesterday afternoon, to conduct the hearing of Choy Den, member of a Chinese theatrical troupe, on a charge of murdering his employer, Choy You Chun. The Chinese, himself badly wounded, was held to answer to the charge.

The two Chinese were members of an acrobatic troupe performing last week at Pantages Theater. According to police, Choy Den was late for the performance, and Choy You Chun, head of the troupe, reprimanded him. Other members of the band declare that Choy Den then drew a gun, and shot and killed his employer. He then turned the weapon on himself, firing two shots into his own body.

Physicians declare that Choy Den will recover.

PADDOCK DEALT CRUSHING BLOW

U.S.C. Team is Barred From Eastern Meet

Trojan Application Tabled Till Next Year

Eligibility Question Holds Up Membership

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, March 3.—The University of Southern California's track athletes, including Charles Paddock, spectacular sprint champion, will not compete this year in the outdoor intercollegiate track and field championships. This became known tonight when it was announced the executive committee of the Intercollegiate A.A.A.A., had tabled for a year the membership application of the Pacific Coast College.

The action was taken, officials said, because of lack of information concerning scholastic and eligibility requirements of the California university, but it was understood that they felt these requirements did not measure up to eastern intercollegiate standards. The Californians, it was said, were asked to submit further information on both subjects.

Technically the application of the westerners was tabled only until the next meeting of the executive committee, but as this does not take place until March, 1924, the matter cannot be considered before another year.

Recently the University of Southern California announced it planned to invade the East for the intercollegiate meet with a team which included several prominent stars, in addition to Paddock.

The 1923 outdoor title meet was awarded to the University of Pennsylvania and will be held at Franklin Field May 25.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 3.—It was learned here late tonight in response to a report issuing from Los Angeles that neither Stanford nor California was contemplating any action toward protesting the eligibility of Charles Paddock, world champion sprinter, and Alma Richards, high jump Olympic champion of 1912, to compete on the University of Southern California track team this year.

Both the Cardinal and Bear track authorities denied that any protests against Paddock or Richards competing for the Trojans this season had been or would be issued by them.

FOR LINCOLN MEMORIAL

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

INDIANAPOLIS, March 3.—The Indiana House of Representatives passed a bill creating a State Lincoln memorial commission of nine members appointed by the Governor and appropriated $5000 to buy land near Lincoln City, in Spencer county, as a memorial to Abraham Lincoln. The members will serve without pay other than traveling expenses.

SPORT SHRAPNEL
BY
HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

Just what sort of stuff a shortstop wears inside his sleeve always has been a mystery to me. That mere bone and sinew could stand the strain of playing that position does not seem probable, but is true. Inspection of a shortstop never has revealed steel springs or other artificial devices where his arm should be.

No player in baseball imposes a greater strain on his arm than the shortstop with the exception of the pitcher, and even the latter doesn't impress one as taking as many chances with it. The twirler sets himself to deliver the ball, and follows a prescribed motion. The shortstop cuts loose from any angle. He may be forced to come in on a slow grounder and snap the ball to first or to the plate. Wonder is that he doesn't snap it off at the elbow. On the next play he may be compelled to back far onto the grass, drag in a drive and throw on a line to first, literally whipping it across. Wonder here is that he doesn't whip his arm off at the shoulder joint.

By virtue of his position, the shortstop is compelled to play more and harder baseball than any man on the club. Much of his life is devoted to throwing. Yet seldom do you hear of one retiring because of a failing or injured arm. Shortstops, as a rule, are marked by longevity of service. Wagner, Tinker, Bush, McBride, Fletcher, Maranville, Wallace, Wright, Glasscock, George Davis, Bancroft, Scott are examples, and the list could be increased almost ad infinitum.

Per contra, the mortality among the arms of the outfielders is much greater. They make comparatively few throws, and yet lame wings are a common ailment in the outer garden. One, at first thought, is inclined to attribute this to the effort which they are compelled to put into their long throws until it is recalled that the shortstop puts equal effort into his heaves.

Probably the real reason that the outfielder's arm wears out is that he does so little throwing. Sounds a bit paradoxical, but listen. His arm is called into action so seldom that it is generally hanging cold at his side. Then when a sudden effort is imposed on it something may snap, a muscle may be unduly stretched or a tendon recoil into a knot.

"Charley horse" is generally regarded as being a sort of exclusive ailment found only in the legs. Red Killefer, who tossed his arm away out in the garden one fine afternoon, speaks to the contrary. He told me that following an early throw one spring he developed a real "Charley horse" in the arm, and there is no mistaking the species.

But to me the shortstop's arm is and ever will be one of the marvels of baseball.

Brothers have frequently opposed each other on the diamonds of this league as well as elsewhere.

There was the case of Harry Covaleski of Detroit, who refused to pitch against his kid brother, Stanley, just breaking in with Cleveland. But that was an unusual situation. It was Stanley's major league debut, and the older Covaleski did not want to be the cause of featuring this with a defeat.

But once in action there as a rule is little brotherly action wasted between relatives. George Stovall, former St. Louis, Cleveland, Kansas City and Vernon manager, related an incident illustrating this. He actually put his own brother out of the major leagues in his desire to win. Jess Stovall was pitching for Detroit when George broke in with Cleveland. In his first game against the Tigers he was somewhat embarrassed to find Jess pitching for Detroit.

In the eighth, Cleveland managed to get two on. Lajoie was next up, followed by Stovall. Jess sized up the situation, saw George standing in the offing and without hesitation purposely passed Lajoie. He figured his younger brother as tapioca, and embarked on the painful necessity of whiffing him. Jimmy Barrett moved in to about where the recruit would probably hit the ball were he fortunate enough to connect. George failed this strategy and wiped out the implied insult to his doubtful ability by whanging an offering to Brother Jess far over the dome of Barrett for a homer, cleaning the bases.

Thus he became a freshly fledged hero, but it was tough on Jess. He never recovered from that blow. A short time later he was shipped to the minors, and like George eventually topped off his career in a Vernon uniform.

How difficult it is for us who see baseball from the inside, the outside, and from every other side, to fathom the thoughts, emotions and feelings of the real fan.

During a recent talk with Eddie Flannigan, I could but contrast my case with his own. I once threw up my job and beat it because I didn't want to see a world's series, let alone covering it. Eddie has just finished paying off a debt in which he contracted in order to see the last world's series. Entered in a newspaper contest involving a free trip to the series, he was unsuccessful by a few votes. This was to him a bitter disappointment. But he didn't repine for long. Instead, he decided to see the big show at his own expense. He assembled all his available resources, and borrowed more. The trip cost him $850. The other day, five months later, he paid back the last dollar. But he saw his first and perhaps his last world's series. He is satisfied and has no regrets. That's his way. He didn't stop to count the cost when he went over the top in the Argonne. His associates behind the soda fountain do say that every Saturday this winter, Eddie has walked out past the ball park just to get the atmosphere and count the days until April 3. They may be exaggerating, but Eddie has otherwise shown himself to be one of our very best fans.

MESCALL PLAYS BARBER TODAY

San Gabriel in Final Tilts of Tournament

Handicap at Los Angeles is Won by Gilmer

Hillcrest Holds Ladies' Day Despite Rains

BY BOB LOCKE

The San Gabriel Country Club will today be the scene of some of the best golf in the South when the final round of the Invitation tournament is played off. Yesterday although it rained steadily the players kept at it and with very few defaulted matches. As a result no delay was caused and the finals are on tap today per schedule.

Several great matches were played off yesterday, among them a tilt between Fred Barber and Arnold Statz. Earlier in the day Statz eliminated Max Behr in the semifinal round by a score of 3 and 2. In the afternoon Barber and Statz came together and one of the best matches played on the San Gabriel course for a long time was witnessed.

BARBER SHOWS CLASS

Barber played excellent golf all the way. Not only was he steady and consistent but at times pulled some very flashy stuff. His putting was as nice as could be expected on the heavy greens and his driving was well nigh perfect. Statz played good golf but the great ball player was not quite steady enough for the young whirlwind. The result of the match was 1 up.

Another good match was the one between J. Mescall and P. Toms played to a 5 and 4 score the former coming out on top of the affair. Both men played good golf and were even most of the way. Mescall's short playing turned the tide of victory toward him and in the last few holes he did the best playing by far.

MESCALL IN FINALS

Today when Barber and Mescall tangle for the title of the club a splendid affair is to be expected. Both players are on the top of their game and with good weather conditions will be perfect for a true contest. Barber seems to be the favorite to win the event as he is playing super golf. However, Mescall is no slouch at the game and will give the youngster a run for his money that he has not had in some time.

In the afternoon a special event has been carded in a best ball foursome. As yet the players have not been selected, but visiting fans are assured a treat in this affair.

Due to heavy rain at the Brentwood Country Club the qualifying rounds of the annual spring tournament were postponed until a week from today. Several loyal sons of King Golf turned out and played at their scheduled time, but even so the times were put off for a week. A big entry list has been amassed and prospects for a great tournament are in order.

GILMER COPS TILT

J. P. Gilmer reigns supreme at the Los Angeles Country Club where he yesterday won the annual Mid-Winter handicap tournament by defeating Dr. P. G. Hartley by a score of 6 and 5 in a 36-hole match. Both men played excellent golf. Dr. Hartley kept up the pace for a long time and played even golf with his opponent, but toward the end Gilmer had the best of the affair in every way and took the match.

H. G. Taylor copped the Class A Sweepstakes with a score of 6-6-0, while A. G. Baldwin grabbed honors in Class B with a neat score of 11-8-3.

In the second round of the Ladies' Club Championship at the Hillcrest Country Club the following results were turned in:

Mrs. H. Baruch defeated Mrs. H. Grossman, 5-4.
Mrs. L. Mayberg defeated Mrs. M. Adler, 2-1.
Mrs. J. Barth defeated Mrs. S. Loew, 7-6.
Mrs. S. Marcoheis defeated Mrs. B. Meyer, 5-4.

Mrs. H. C. Seigel won the Tin Whistle Sweepstakes with a score of 82, defeating a large field despite the rain.

Redlands Five Defeats Tiger Squad of Oxy

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

REDLANDS, March 3. — The University of Redlands basketball five defeated the Occidental College quintet, 34 to 21, in a speedy cage game played here in the Y.M.C.A. gym tonight. At no stage of the game did the Tigers threaten to make themselves dangerous. Coach Daniels shoving his second string men into the latter part of the fray.

It was the Bulldogs' final game of the conference season, which they went through suffering but one defeat. At present Redlands is leading the conference, but the S.B.U.C. Cubs can tie the locals by winning a postponed game from Whittier, which they are expected to do. If the two teams are tied no champion will be named as the conference forbids playoffs. Line-up:

APPOINT INSTRUCTORS

One of my readers has protested against the idea of having public links golfers "qualify" in some way before they are turned loose on a course where hundreds seek to play on accommodations that can take care of but a few. The thought was that, because of the congestion, the beginner be made to show that he at least knew how to swing a club.

While this would aid golfers who are able to move along with their game, there is an element of unfairness in it for the beginner, for where is he or she to learn how to swing clubs if not out on the course? And does the course not belong to the community, as much yours as mine? The proper way of going about it is, of course, to take some instruction from a professional, but the officials in charge feel that they have no right to tell the citizen that he must do that.

The legal alternative, it seems to me, is a new city job—that of city golf instructor.

With the tremendous golf development we are now witnessing and new public links coming into existence everywhere, I feel sure that it is but a matter of time only until we have these official golf instructor. The city might pay these instructors a fixed salary and have them teach golf without charge to the pupil, or they might arrange a part salary and part fee basis, by which the voter could be instructed in golf for a very nominal charge per lesson—say 25 cents.

The city would not require any out-door instruction field. A practice court, such as the courts designed for winter schools, would do. All the pupil needs is a fundamental knowledge in the proper way to swing the clubs, and he can learn that indoors as well as out.

Under this arrangement the city officials in charge of public golf links would be justified in making those who wished to play such courses prove that they had been instructed and knew enough about the game not to interfere unduly with the pleasures of others on the course. The plan would make better golfers of all those who play the public courses and thus would be a worth-while public institution. Golf promotes health and any city can well afford to go into the health-promotion business to the extent of a city golf instructor.

I do not want to put myself in the position of being criticised for criticizing, myself, the golf played by many public links players. I want to see golf played by everyone who can possibly get interested in it. I am instantly enthusiastic about anybody, man, woman, boy or girl, who has or seeks any acquaintance with golf equipment. But the wave of golf is engulfing the country so right now that the golfer on a public course finds himself in a position a good deal like the pedestrian in the streets who does not own an automobile. As Kin Hubbard says, he is liable to get killed by a car any time he thinks about something else.

It's about the same way with the public links golfer who really can play. He is likely to give up the game in despair while wondering what it'sall about.

Let some city announce its city golf instructor. Others will follow quickly!

MOURNING SKY MARS SHOOTING

Trap Trouble Slows Up Work in Doubles

Fred Gilbert and M. Ragen Tied in Handicap

Sport at Vernon Gun Club at 9 O'clock Today

Rain, wind and cloudy skies marred what might have been a regular shooting day, yesterday at the Vernon Gun Club when the annual Pacific Zone tournament was continued by the Los Angeles Trapshooting Association. The day opened with the preliminary handicap at 100 targets and was to be followed by the duobles championship at 100 targets in pairs. However, the gloomy skies and trap trouble slowed up the shooting and only half of the doubles shooting was finished. The remainder is to be contended today.

Fred Gilbert, a local shooter, tied with M. Ragen of Spokane for first honors and the medal up in the handicap. Each broke 89 from 22 yards. They shot off the tie in a 25-bird event. Gilbert breaking 23 targets and Ragen, 17, giving the honor and the medal to the local Fusilier.

Frank Troeh was placed at 23 yards, and broke only 88. This mark was equaled by H. E. Sargent, while J. W. Seavey broke 87.

However, it looks like Troeh will be high on the 500, 16-yard targets, 400 which already have been shot, Troeh breaking 394. The remaining 100 will be shot this afternoon. This morning, the Zone handicap at 100 targets will be held.

NORWALK HIGH FIVE WINS WAY TO FINALS

The Norwalk High 130-pound basketball five defeated the Colton lightweights, 22 to 13, in a semifinal play-off game for the Southern California championship Friday afternoon at Claremont. By winning this game the Norwalk aggregation won the right to meet the Whittier midgets in the final scraps for the Southern California 130-pound basketball title.

TRACK OUTLOOK BRIGHT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

HUNTINGTON PARK, March 3. The Huntington Park Union High School, in track work does not seem to know its strength for the present year, and, that it has some good material, there is no doubt. In middle distance running, Skelton is said to be the best bet, and it is thought he will probably break the Bay League record in the mile which was set by Kerr, of Santa Monica, last year, in the Bay League meet at Huntington Park.

Joe Bascos is making every effort to fill the shoes of Clem Reece, one of the best 880 men ever put out by any school in the bay region. He is said to be making good time for the early part of the season.

Two fast men, Adams and Maple, are being nicely developed by Coach DeVol for the 440.

Burrill, Reed, Bowen and Bagley are working hard on the cinders in the 100 and 220, and in all probability, these two men will make up the relay team.

"Fat" Smith and Wayne Taylor have been hard at work with the shot and Smith is said to have made a 43 record. "Salt" Reith is busy every evening throwing the discus in true Roman style.

Peterson and "Jinks" Graham are hard at work clipping seconds from their time in the hurdles.

Many men are out for positions on the water-polo team and for this reason there has been little work in the high jump, pole vault and broad jump. There are some fast and experienced men on the water-polo team. Among them are Miss, Rhodes, Tyson, Payton, Washburn, Eastering, Owenby, Holder, Simpkins, Stanley Kasperoweiz, Reynolds, Carrol, Stratten and Sharkey.

Tilden Takes Indoor Tennis Championship

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PHILADELPHIA, March 3. William T. Tilden II, national tennis champion, won the middle States indoor singles championship here tonight, winning three of four sets played with R. Lindley Murray of Buffalo, 6-1, 6-4, 1-6, 6-2.

Dean Mathey and Watson M. Washburn of New York won the middle States indoor tennis doubles championship by defeating William T. Tilden and Sandy Weiner of Philadelphia in straight sets, 6-0, 6-2, 6-3.

Tilden, because of the apparent nervousness of Weiner, his young protege, bore the brunt of the playing on his side of the net. Mathey and Washburn played well together and their smooth team work easily overcame the brilliant playing of the national champion and his young partner.

Earlier in the day Tilden defeated Watson M. Washburn, 6-4, 7-5, in the semi-final round. J. Lindley Murray defeated Harold Throckmorton, New York, 6-5, 4-7, 6-2. This brought Murray and Carl Fisher, Philadelphia, together in the other semi-final.

R. Lindley Murray defeated Carl Fisher, 8-6, 6-3, and met Tilden in the singles final.

Watson M. Washburn and Dean Mathey, New York, defeated Wallace F. Johnson, Philadelphia, and Harold Throckmorton, New York, 6-4, 6-4. This brought Tilden and Sandy Weiner, Philadelphia, and Washburn and Mathey together in the final of the doubles.

A three-time win will be the requirement to hold the cups permanently. Entries close March 7 at midnight and there will be no entry fee.

rly 600 Athletes Take Part in Meeting

Mile College Race Won by Carleton Lads

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

URBANA (Ill.) March 3.—[illegible] carnival records were shattered, two were tied and one was [illegible] in the sixth annual University of Illinois relay carnival, which attracted a record-breaking [illegible] of nearly 600 athletes, representing forty-seven universities and colleges here today. The American record for the 75-yard dash also was tied. Emerson Norton, the University of Kansas star, captured [illegible] honors in the all-around championship competition.

The first mark to go was in the [illegible] college relay, which was won by Carleton College in [illegible], beating the former record of 8m. 23⅗s., established by [illegible] College of Iowa, in 1921. [illegible] of Iowa, lowered his own record in the 300-yard dash, covering the distance in 31⅗s. and [illegible] the record, 32 1-5s. made last year.

BETTERS MARK

[illegible] of Michigan bettered the carnival shot put record by [illegible] and one inch with a [illegible] of 46ft. 1¼in. The former record was made by Cross of [illegible], in 1917. Central College [illegible], cracked the college [illegible] mark of 9m. 1⅗s. by winning the event in 8m. 44⅗s. Reinke of Michigan, captured the 1000-yard run in the record-breaking time of 2m. 17⅗s. by beating the previous record made by Win[illegible] of Minnesota last year.

The University of Iowa relay [illegible] lowered its own record of [illegible] in the one-mile university [illegible] by stepping the distance in [illegible]. Wabash cut into the record-breaking by taking the one-mile college relay in 3:34 1-5, beating its own record of 3:36 4-5, established five years ago.

SOME LEAP

[illegible] Hubbard, negro, from the University of Michigan, wound up the record-breaking with a leap of [illegible], 5-4 inch in the running broad jump. The carnival record of 22 feet 6 1-4 inches was made by Earl Gilfillan, of Notre Dame, in 1922.

[illegible] Ayers, the University of [illegible], tied the American [illegible] carnival record for the 75-yard dash, when he broke the tape in front of seven other starters in 7 3-5. Johnson, of Illinois, equaled the mark for the 75-yard high hurdles, capturing the [illegible].

[illegible] Krogh of the University [illegible], created a record [illegible] for the 1500 meter run, [illegible] time this event has been on the Illinois program.

"Hold It!" Cried the Cameraman

And Johnny Meyers Accommodated the "Still Shooter"

The gentleman on top of the heap is Johnny Meyers, world's middleweight champion wrestler, who will take on all comers at the wrestling tourney to be staged as a part of the "Soldiers' Show" at Exposition Park, March 10 to 18, inclusive. Lou Daro is acting impresario for the soldiers.

TENNIS TOURNEY ON TAP

Best Players of the North and South to Play in Select Court Jousts

With the entry list growing more starlike every day the Ambassador championship tournament that is to be held on March 14, has become a regular North vs. South meeting of all the big guns of tennisdom. San Francisco is mobilizing its forces to make a massed attack upon the fortress of Los Angeles. On the other hand Los Angeles and the South feel confident that they can withstand the siege and send the invaders home empty-handed.

NORTH HERE IN BODY

Among the leaders of the northern aggregation are the Kinsey brothers, William Johnston, Johnnie Strahan and Willis Davis. These players although well advertised throughout the country will meet plenty of stuff when they bump Harvey Snodgrass, Tom Bundy, Harold Godshall, Tom Ferrandini and other southern players; they will find that all the good players in the country do not live in San Francisco.

Already Los Angeles boasts the State doubles championship in the team of Snodgrass and Reinke and it will take some fast work on the part of those above us on the map to take home that title. Heading the list of northern doubles players are the Kinsey brothers and Johnston and probably Peck Griffin as his partner. This event at any rate will be one fast affair and many upsets in dope are on the dope sheet.

SNODGRASS A FAVORITE

To return to the singles event Harvey Snodgrass, finalist last year in the State championships, is given a good chance to cop the singles event at the Ambassador show. Harvey is playing much better tennis now than he was at that time and will give the best of them a run for their money. Snodgrass is by many prominent sportsmen and critics of the courts given a place among the first ten players in the country and next year hopes to see him in that position.

The local hotel is making vast preparations for the tournament and although the play is next week great grandstands are being erected to accommodate a record crowd as will surely turn up. The line-up being the best the country has seen for a long time warrants this action.

ROSS TO FACE MEYERS

About the best wrestling card that has been arranged here for several months will be that which will be presented by the Lyceum Athletic Club Wednesday night.

Champion Johnny Meyers, wearing the middleweight crown will take on Jack Ross. Meyers isn't worrying, and for that matter, neither is his opponent. Meyers has been permitted to use his famous "stopper" hold and the little fellow is firmly convinced that he can hold down any man in a match where that hold is permitted. Ross has a few holds of his own and when he enters the ring it will be with full confidence that he can stop Meyers.

The next bout of interest on the card will be Sam "Tham" Landford, the original "Tar Baby" of boxing fame, who makes his debut as a wrestler. "Tham" meets Roman the Powerful. This should be a whale of a match. The final bout of the evening will be between Sammy Sandow, the wrestling sage of Long Beach, and Charlie "Tiger" Mason. Both are acknowledged to be among the best in their class and they should give the fans a run for their money.

BASEBALL PLAY-OFF FOR TODAY

Standard Oil and Anaheim in Feature Contest in Managers' Tilts

Semipro baseball fans will be treated to two play-off games in the A divisions of the Managers' Association League. Huntington Beach and the Anaheim Merchants are scheduled to meet at the latter's grounds. The Huntington Beachers won the right to play in the play-off by defeating the Sawtelle nine in the Triple A division.

The Standard Oilers have not as yet announced their pitchers, but without a doubt either Shader or Cooper will do mound duty. Both these men pitched excellent ball throughout the season and in today's game will do their stuff to the best of their ability. Pitching for the Anaheim nine will be the veteran Hughes, hurler of many good games.

The other play-off game will be between Van Nuys, winners of the San Fernando League, and the Palms team. These two teams were winners in their divisions and earned the right to play in the semi-wind-up. Both teams are set and primed for the contest, which will probab'y be a hot one.

The winners of these two contests will next Sunday play for the title of the Managers' Association and as all four teams are evenly matched a whirlwind battle is expected.

In the line of independent games, Sawtelle and Santa Monica will tangle at the latter's field in a red-hot game. Both teams are at scratch, and a closely contested affair is on tap. Universal Film nine is due for a little set-to with the hard-hitting and fast-playing Ventura Elks team. The Elks played a good game of ball all season, and today will try for a big comeback.

IOWANS WIN OUT

ANN ARBOR (Mich.) March 3. A field goal by Janse from the center of the floor, in the last moments of play, gave Iowa a 20-to-18 victory over the University of Michigan basketball team here tonight.

GRASS VALLEY TEAM TO TRAVEL SOUTH

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

GRASS VALLEY, March 3. — The Grass Valley Golds, a basketball team here that has attained to more than ordinary skill and notice, will leave early next week for a playing tour of Central and Southern California. The party will comprise about ten men and will be in charge of the Golds' manager, Tom Griffith, whose success as manager of organized sports has attracted much attention.

In the south, the party will enjoy the hospitality of the Los Angeles Athletic Club and will visit Long Beach, Pasadena and other near-by cities. Exhibition games will be sought in all cities visited.

EDDIE BRUCKER IS SIGNED BY YANKEES

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, March 3. — The New York Yankees have added a new catcher to their roster, according to word received from Manager Miller Huggins. He is Eddie Brucker of Los Angeles, and was signed on the recommendation of Outfielder Bob Meusel.

SHELL OIL TO PLAY VERNON

Weather and grounds permitting, Bill Essick will send his younger Tigers against the Shell Oil club at Maier Park in Vernon this afternoon.

Rain seriously interfered with the spring training activities here yesterday, but Essick's men managed to get in a half hour's work between showers. President Maier was present and witnessed what exercise was taken. Jakie May continues to be a bit indisposed, but expects to be in shape by Monday.

Dell, Bodie and French still decline to accept the terms offered them by the club which so far has shown no tendency to raise its bid.

Walter Hagen Breaks Record in Exhibition

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW ORLEANS (La.) March 3.—Walter Hagen, British open golf champion, broke the country club record here this afternoon in match play by covering eighteen holes in 67. The previous record of 68 was established by William Mehlhorn of Shreveport in the southern open tournament last year.

Hagen and Joe Kirkwood of Australia defeated Mehlhorn and Wallie Nelson of New Orleans, eight and seven, in the thirty-six-hole match.

MOBILE (Ala.) March 3. — Walter Hagen, British open champion, and Joe Kirkwood of Australia will meet Bill Mehlhorn of Shreveport and Jimmie Campbell, local professional, in a thirty-six-hole match over the links of the Mobile Country Club here Sunday.

MIDDIES VICTORIOUS IN THREE CONTESTS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ANNAPOLIS (Md.) March 3.—Although beaten by 36 to 26 points, Rutgers College of New Jersey today gave the Navy swimmers the stiffest fight they have ever had in swimming here. Giebel of Rutgers, intercollegiate champion in several events, won the 440-yard swim and the 150-yard backstroke. He also swam as finish in the 160-yard relay, but his teammates had been so much outdistanced that he made no effort against Rule, the Navy crack, in the final laps.

Wrestlers of the University of West Virginia were defeated by the midshipmen after a game fight, 16 to 8 points. Navy gained two falls and two decisions, and the Mountaineers one fall and one decision.

Navy won from Columbia University, New York, in a dual intercollegiate fencing contest, 14 to 2 bouts, in a series of foils, sabres and epee contests.

MEETING OF WESTERN LEAGUE IS DELAYED

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, March 3. — The scheduled meeting of the Western League called for Monday in Kansas City was canceled today by Al Tearney, president of the league. Mr. Tearney said the clubs were anxious to have preparations completed and leave for the training camps.

President Tearney said the schedule could be adopted by a mail vote just as easily as by a meeting of the club owners, and that by so doing the clubs would be able quickly to wind up details in preparation for the training period.

WEISMULLER WILL GO ABROAD FOR TITLES

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, March 3.—Johnny Weissmuller, holder of an impressive string of world's records, will go abroad to seek new titles, it was announced here today. He will sail May 22, and his first appearance is to be at the Liverpool carnival, June 9. Later he will swim in several English championships.

PRINCETON WINS

CAMBRIDGE (Mass.) March 3. Princeton defeated Harvard in a wrestling meet here today, 19 to 10.

GOSSIP FROM THE TRAINING CAMPS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ST. LOUIS (Mo.) March 3.—Both St. Louis major league baseball teams played their first practice games of the season at their training camps in the South yesterday, according to advices received here today from their respective camps.

Rogers Hornsby was the star at the Nationals' camp at Bradentown, Fla., his team defeating one captained by Ray Blades, Cardinal utility player.

At the Americans' camp at Mobile, Ala., a team headed by Hubert Pruett, sensational left-hander, won, 9 to 4. Both games went the regulation number of innings.

PHILADELPHIA, March 3.—"Stuffy" McInnis, recently unconditionally released by Cleveland, has declined an offer to again become a member of the Philadelphia Americans, reports from the Athletics' training quarters at Montgomery, Ala., said today. Manager Connie Mack said that he received a telegram from McInnis intimating that he had come to terms with another club.

CINCINNATI, March 3.—Today was "Peppy Day" for the first contingent of the Cincinnati National baseball team.

In charge of Pat Moran, ten Red athletes left Cincinnati this morning for Orlando, Fla., where spring training will be started on Monday.

Twelve other Red players left today to visit their homes before reporting at the camp.

CLEVELAND, March 3.—All of the Cleveland baseball club were at the spring training camp today with the exception of two pitchers, Phil Bedgood and Jim Edwards, according to advices received from Lakeland.

Bedgood was left at Hot Springs to work out for ten days more.

The Indians indulged in another two-hour practice yesterday, part of the time being devoted to infield practice.

CHICAGO, March 3.—Charley Robertson, right-handed pitcher for the Chicago American League club, who has refused to sign a 1923 contract, still was a holdout and reports from William Gleason, White Sox manager, now with the team in Marlin, Tex., today indicates that the twirler must make the first move if he wants to work on the mound for the Sox this season.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SEALS' TRAINING CAMP, Boyes Springs, March 3.—Sam Agnew, his heels cooled off and his temper left some place in the Valley of the Moon, strolled into camp this morning like the prodigal son returning home.

"Why didn't you want to give me the $1000 bonus?" he asked of George Putnam upon signing his contract.

"If we gave you a $1000 bonus we'd have to give every player on our club the same amount," declared Putnam.

"No, you wouldn't," said Sam. "I wouldn't have said anything about it."

The ball players, including Manager Jack Miller, welcomed Sam back. All day long he was being patted on the back. Sympathy was in the air wherever he went.

Notices have been posted on the clubhouse and sleeping quarters that no more rough-house will be tolerated. Every evening beds, bureaus and rooms have been turned upside down. As George Green, the Stanford catcher, remarked on the second evening:

"That sort of stuff is funny the first couple of times, but it gets tiresome."

Denny Carroll lectured the rookies today only as a father could. They admitted it was done in fun, but agreed it was not so funny after all.

Pete Kilduff is expected here tomorrow and then the real practice will begin. The pitchers have been working long enough to put something on the ball and they have the edge on the hitters so far. Until Eddie Mulligan gets in camp Flaskamper and Noack will work around third base. That is Noack's regular position, but Flaskamper has been playing short during his brief career.

HANFORD, March 3.—It appears that the Beavers will have better pitching this year than last. Members of the hurling staff are showing the stuff.

Take Manager Jimmy Middleton, for example. Last season was his first in the Coast League. He pitched some great ball games, but never was in the shape that made him a star in the American Association. Frequent attacks of tonsilitis cut down his effectiveness. Last winter Middleton had his tonsils removed. Now, only twelve days after starting his training grind, he seems to have more stuff than any time in 1922.

Suds Sutherland at training camp last year weighed only 157 pounds and his arm bothered him into the first two or three weeks of the season. Later he hit his stride and won a lot of games, only to be put out by an injured kidney. To watch Sutherland now you would not suppose he had ever been told by the doctors that his pitching days were over. He weighs 170, looks tanned and rugged and is beginning to bear down.

Rube Harrison, the submarine ball collegian who joined the club from the Athletics last fall and wound up the season a sensational winner, is apparently ready to start where he left off. Jimmy Sullivan, also from the Athletics, is showing considerable. Connie Mack is one of Sullivan's best boosters; he told Middleton at Louisville last winter that Sullivan needs only to find himself to be a great star. Of the southpaws Lefty Schroeder in particular gives promise of living up to expectations.

Frank Brazill, second baseman, reached camp today, and two or three other late arrivals ought to get in by tomorrow. But there is no word yet from Frank O'Rourke, the third baseman, who is a real holdout.

Today's training consisted mainly of bunting and hitting practice and about fifteen minutes of sharp field work.

MYRTLEDALE, March 3.—Ray Brubaker looked after things around the third station for the Oaks in the workout this afternoon, and looked after them so well that Manager Ivan Howard has just about made up his mind to play Ray in that position when the season opens.

Boss Howard is a bit worried about the nonappearance of his southpaw, Walter Mails. The former hero of the Cleveland Indians is now three days overdue, and he has not given anybody in the camp a tumble as to his whereabouts.

According to the latest wire received from Frank Wetzel, the new outfielder is due tomorrow.

Marty McGaffigan wired four days ago that he was about to depart from his Illinois stamping ground.

Despite the fact that there was a cold wind blowing, the Oaks managed to breed in plenty of work today. They did everything but play the scheduled basketball contest, which was declared off by the boss.

The batting and fielding practice today was spirited enough and the lads showed lots of fight and pep.

There will be a regular game between the Grays and the Whites tomorrow afternoon. Howard is figuring on using four of his likely looking pitchers—Wright, McClung, Haskett and Walls.

SAN JOSE, March 3.—With an all-rookie line-up, the Seattle Indians will play their second game of the season at the Sodality Park training camp here tomorrow with the San Jose baseball team. Indications are that the rookies will find opposition tomorrow a bit more strenuous than the University of Santa Clara nine, which they defeated early in the week 11 to 1.

"Doc" Johnson, purchased from the Philadelphia Athletics to hold down first base for the Indians, and Janvrin, last year second baseman for the Brooklyn Dodgers, were easily the outstanding figures at today's workout. Baldwin and Markel, semipros from Philadelphia, also showed up well.

Among those yet to join the camp are Yaryan, catcher, purchased from the Chicago White Sox, who wired he would be in next week, and Berger, a regular on the pitching staff, who is also due next week.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

AVALON, March 3.—Sun showers at Santa Catalina today merely received the usual program of training. Mountain climbing was put on first, and this was followed by the batting and situation workout on the field in the afternoon. The hike was a long one, leading past the Wrigley mansion up on the heights overlooking Avalon Bay and far beyond up to the tall peak.

Outside of Vic Keen, Maryland University star, all of the large flock of pitchers are ready to entertain and amuse the regular gang, which arrives tomorrow. The infielders and outfielders, who are due to tackle Vernon over in Los Angeles week from today, will immediately look at high-class twirling. This means a lot during spring training.

Led by Secretary Johnny Seys the aggregation scheduled to step off at the Santa Fe Station tomorrow in time for breakfast includes Pitcher Vic Aldridge, formerly a famous headliner of the Angels; First Backer Grimes, the slugger; Johnny Kelleher, an infielder; Earl Adams, second sacker from Wichita Falls; Bob Barrett, third baseman from Little Rock; our own Hack Miller, ex-Oak, who amazed the Coast folks by delivering hugely in the majors last season; Cliff Heathcote and Marty Callaghan, excellent outfielders, and three recruit gardeners—Wels of Wichita Falls, Howard Fitzgerald of Amarillo, Tex., and Denver Grigsby of Sapulpa, Okla.

It is not breaking any confidence to say that Cheeves, Osborne and Stauffer are doing unusually well among the pitchers. Cheeves and Osborne are veterans, and are working harder than ever before. Stauffer, last season at Bridgeport, Ct., is showing up better than even hoped for. Which is saying a good deal.

Cripples, mostly with sore feet and banged up fingers, are responding nicely to treatment.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN ANTONIO, March 3.—Jimmy O'Connell, $75,000 'Frisco phenom, joined the Giants this morning. Modest and unassuming, he's just like a big boy out of school. But when he stepped out on the field, took a bat and crossed a line drive into the screen above the fence in right center, he had all the markings of a genuine big leaguer.

He worked out in the morning and again in the afternoon. Oldtimers who watched him were comparing him to the great ones of the past. The young centerfielder weighs nearly 200 pounds. He's just about 6 feet tall. Until today, he never had been farther East than Salt Lake City.

Five Giant contracts were signed today, four by late hold-outs. Both Barnes boys signed likewise, Casey Stengel, one of the tourists to Japan, and Frank Snyder and "Irish" Meusel, another Japan tourist. The contract of Johnny Rawlings was received from the Coast.

ANGELIC SPROUTS DROPPED

Killefer Cans Vigare and Douglas; Ponder is Still Sulking in His Tent

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ELSINORE, March 3.—Two young sprouts were lopped off the Angel roster today—Felix Vigare and Charles Douglas. Vigare has been trying out for a place at third for the Angels, while Douglas wanted to grab off a place in the catching staff. He is a brother of Kenneth Douglas, the left-handed twirler of the Seraphs.

Harry Nelson, the sage of El Monte, droppey into the training camp today. He handled the El Monte team and sent the youngsters to the camp. Killefer let him take the youngsters back again. Charley Deal believes Vigare has the makings of a better shortstop than a third baseman. The game scheduled today between the Sherman Indians and the Angel regulars was called off because of rain.

GET A REST

The storm also gave the Angels a rest from going over the "hump" as there were no workouts today. Elmer Ponder, who has been playing an "off again, on again" game with the Los Angeles club, has decided to stay over in the camp until next week and see Prexy J. H. Patrick then.

Ponder arrived at the training camp the other evening unexpected and unsigned. Charley Lockard, business manager of the Angels, breezed in today and told Ponder that he would have to sign a contract and be satisfied or else stay at the training camp at his own expense. Ponder said he was not satisfied wit hthe terms offered him and Killefer said he did not want a dissatisfied man on his club. Arrangements were made for Ponder to leave by machine for Los Angeles. He had his bags packed but backed out at the last minute. He said he would stay until Patrick arrived at the camp next week and would have a talk with the Angel boss at that time.

BEST EVER

Officials of the Los Angeles club say that Ponder has received the best offer he will get. If he doesn't sign he will be traded or put on the suspended list. While Lockard was here three of the players who had agreed to terms but who did not sign their contracts, were received in the fold. Art Griggs, "Lefty" Thomas and "Dixie" Carroll where the men who put their signatures to contracts. A number of the veterans left the training camp this evening to visit their homes in Los Angeles. The youngsters are scheduled to play the Irvine club at Irvine tomorrow afternoon.

Well Played Horse an Easy Tijuana Victor

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, March 3.—Clock Stocking, hammered down almost to favoritism at the last minute, proved to be a good thing and won the six furlong feature today at Tijuana by four lengths over Reap. The track was exactly to Clock Stocking's liking and she early opened up a comfortable lead. Royal Maid, the popular choice, finished far out and at no time was a contender.

Alazon sprung a little surprise by nosing out Lone Pine in the second race and Walter Dant, another outsider, came from far behind to win by a head from Dolph in the fourth. Dr. Tubbs, the favorite in the latter race, ran disappointingly and finished third. Jockey Bert Kennedy, star rider on the Kentucky turf last season, arrived at Tijuana today and signed with the Meadowbrook stables. He will take to the reins in a few days.

First race, five and one-half furlongs—Miss Bina (Long,) won; Joe Campbell (Millerick,) second; Little Smile (Watrous,) third. Time 1:10.

Second race, six furlongs—Alazon (Molter,) won; Lone Pine (Dugan,) second; Flaw Steel (Stevens,) third. Time 1:16 2-5.

Third race, mile and seventy yards—Breeze (Watrous,) won; North Tower (Millerick,) second; War God (Deford,) third. Time, 1:49 4-5.

Fourth race, mile and seventy yards—Walter Want (Cantrell,) won; Dolph (Martin,) second; Dr. Tubbs (Dugan,) third. Time, 1:48.

Fifth race, six furlongs—Clock Stocking (Watrous,) won; Rea (Martin,) second; Endive (Carter,) third. Time, 1:15 3-5.

Sixth race declared off.

Seventh race, mile and seventy yards—Marcella Bay (Stevens,) won; Philanderer (Millerick,) second; Glenwell (Watrous,) third. Time, 1:47 2-5.

Eighth race, mile and three-sixteenths—Vic (Stevens,) won; Sanhedrim (Peter,) second; Charley Boy (Petzold,) third. Time, 2:0[illegible].

TWENTY INDICTED IN RAID ON RACE TRACK

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

LOUISVILLE (Ky.) March 3.—Twenty persons were indicted here today on the charge of maintaining handbooks and taking bets on horse races at various tracks.

The indictments came on the heels of a raid on offices maintained by Ed Alvey, widely known in turf circles, when the police obtained a quantity of racing literature and what were said to be notations wagered on fancied favorites. At Mr. Alvey's preliminary examination, however, the court ruled that the manner in which the police obtained the notations constituted trespass and consequently could not be used in any prosecution of Mr. Alvey. His name did not appear today among those indicted.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

HOT SPRINGS (Ark.) March 3.—"Babe" Ruth, Yankee outfielder, ill since Thursday night with an attack of influenza, had recovered sufficiently to make the usual mid-day visit of his physician unnecessary. He was able to sit up during the day.

SLAYERS OF MESSENGER ON DESERT

Los Angeles Man Believes Five Who Killed Bank Man Here Now in Sonora

Somewhere in Sonora, in the trackless desert south of Yuma, the bandits who killed Sam McGee, chauffeur for the First National Bank of Los Angeles, and escaped with loot valued at $200,000, are making their way on foot toward the Gulf of California, according to Harry C. Mount of this city.

Mr. Mount, with a party of motorists, reached Yuma yesterday after a trip below the border. Near Noches Buena, twenty-five miles south of San Luis, the party met five men on foot. They were walking in the direction of the Gulf.

Returning evasive replies to questions, the men declared that they were going fishing. Three of them answered the descriptions of the men wanted here for murder and robbery, Mr. Mount declared. One canteen of water was all the men carried, according to the local man, and they had no provisions with them.

TAX RETURN FILING BEGUN IN EARNEST

BRANCH OFFICES OPENED TO RELIEVE CONGESTION AT MAIN STATION

Income tax returns are being filed at the rate of 5000 a day, according to Collector Goodcell. This means that 80,000 returns must be filed by the 15th inst., which is closing day under the law. There are 325,000 income taxpayers in Southern California.

In order to relieve the congestion in the Federal Building, branch offices have been opened at the Union Bank and Trust Company, Eighth and Hill; Chamber of Commerce, 130 South Broadway, and Chamber of Commerce, Hollywood, where returns may be filed and taxes paid.

SOUTHLAND TRAVEL SETTING NEW RECORD

Two daily sections of the Santa Fe's crack transcontinental train "The California Limited" have been scheduled for the month of March to accommodate the continued heavy traffic to California from the East, according to announcement yesterday by James B. Duffy, general passenger agent of the road.

Mr. Duffy said that reports from Chicago indicate that these two limited trains already have been sold out, top and bottom, for every day up to the 15th inst. He declared this condition is unprecedented, as the peak of westbound travel ordinarily is reached during February.

Questioning of travelers is said to reveal their intention of prolonging their stay over the spring and early summer months.

SEARCH BEGINS FOR LOST MINE

Legend of Untold Wealth Inspires Expedition

Old Ben Sublett's Secret Carried to Grave

Guadalupe Mountains Will be Combed for Ore

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

VAN HORN (Tex.) March 3.—Mining prospectors and other men of this part of the upper border region of Texas believe that a deposit of gold ore of untold richness is situated in the Guadalupe Mountains, forty to eighty miles north of here. Another search is now being made for the vast store of wealth by an expedition of practical mining men. Tradition says that the richest mine in the world is located in the Guadalupe Mountains, and is known as the Lost Sublett Mine. The story of this mine of fabulous richness is full of mystery and romance. According to one legend, it is located in the highest and most precipitous mountain in the Southwest, towering 5000 feet above the plains, two peaks of which reach 9000 feet above sea-level.

The discoverer of this mine was known as old Ben Sublett. He was a native of Missouri. In his youth he responded to the call of adventure and with his wife and three small children left his home in St. Louis. He spent most of his time in the Guadalupe Mountains. Many tales had been told of rich outcroppings of gold in that locality, and it was his belief in these stories that led him to take up his abode in a little hut on the side of the mountain.

TOWN GOES WILD

His efforts and persistence were at last rewarded. When one day he drove up in front of a saloon and strode to the bar with a buckskin sack filled with nuggets the little town went wild with excitement. He told his cronies that he had found the richest mine in the world, that he could buy the whole State of Texas if he wanted to, and make a backyard of it for his children to play in. He was lavish in his expenditures of the gold he had found. When one supply was exhausted he would slip away to his mine, keeping its location a secret, get another sack full of nuggets, live high until they were gone, then set out again for more.

Although his friends made every effort to induce him to reveal the location of the mine he was obstinate in his refusal to do so. He finally took his son, Ross Sublett, and a friend by the name of Mike Wilson with him on one of his trips. To all others he said:

"If anyone wants my mine let him go and hunt for it as I did. I hunted twenty-four years, wasting the best part of my life at it. Let others do likewise if they want to be rich. I am going to carry this secret with me to the other world, so that for years and years people will remember me and talk about the rich gold mine that old man Sublett found. I will be remembered when the biggest men for miles around will be forgotten. I will give people something to talk about."

SON'S SEARCH FUTILE

Ross Sublett was a small boy at the time his father took him to the mine. After his father's death he tried to find the place again, but was never able to do so. Although he remembered that the mine was situated near a spring, he could not find the exact spot.

Sublett's friend, Mike Wilson, however, is said to have later found the mine. He got a sack full of gold and when he got back to town went on a big spree to celebrate his discovery. When his gold was gone he went out for more, but lost his bearings and was unable to relocate the mine. To his dying day Wilson made effort after effort to find the lost mine, but without success.

"There is a little ravine rich with gold," he would say. "All you have to do is to stoop down and pick up the nuggets, but the richest of the ores is the cave in the heart of the mountain."

An Apache Indian once told the late G. W. Woods of El Paso that if he sought gold he should go to the mountains called Smoky on the Texas side of the border, where his people, he said, used to go and gather all the gold they could carry.

ONE DISAPPEARS

Several years ago Cicero Stewart, deputy Sheriff of Eddy county, New Mexico, and a cowboy known as Grizzly Bill, started to hunt for the lost mine. The cowboy located a gold deposit. Packing as much as he could carry in a sack, he abandoned his cattle and set out for Pecos. While celebrating his discovery he mounted a wild horse, which threw him and broke his neck. Stewart was never able to find the place where the cowboy got his supply of gold.

A thrilling account is given of the finding of the mine by Lucius Arthur several years ago. He had heard a story of two Mexicans who made periodical visits to the spot. He determined to follow the Mexicans. He trailed them from Austin to Ysleta. After remaining there a few days the men set out for the mountains with Arthur on their trail. After an absence of a month and a half Arthur returned to Ysleta, saying that he had at last found the hidden mine. He brought back as proof as much gold as he could carry, which he said was broken from the ledge near the brink of a chasm, which he could not descend into because its walls were perpendicular. The chasm, he said, was about eighty feet long, east and west, by forty feet wide. Providing himself with a strong rope he retraced his steps to the mine, determined to lower himself into the cave. He never returned.

GIRL, BONDSMAN FRIEND IN JAIL

Bail Held to be Worthless Is Vacated

Geneva Albitz

PRETTY Geneva Albitz went back to the County Jail yesterday, and with her went her bondsman, W. K. Decoursey, and Gene Wilson, an aggressive friend. Miss Albitz had been at liberty on bail for four different charges of writing worthless checks.

The girl was jailed because Dep. Dist.-Atty. McClelland said that her bond was not sufficiently backed. Decoursey was jailed because the Deputy District Attorney declared he had put up bonds of $100,000 for Miss Albitz and other prisoners, while his property did not exceed $600. Wilson was jailed because he was charged with an attempt to interfere with Miss Albitz's rearrest.

The girl was arrested first by Constable Charles Thomas on complaint of J. W. Robinson & Co., who charged the girl with buying $300 worth of clothing with a check which they said was worth nothing. She called Decoursey at once and he went on her bond. Later she was rearrested on a similar charge and again Decoursey went her bond.

According to John M. Ousby, who investigated the case, Decoursey had far exceeded his liability in the case of Miss Albitz alone and had also signed bonds for other prisoners. An order vacating the bonds was issued yesterday.

ISADORA'S LOVE RECANTS

Yessenin in Berlin, Sober, Reclaims Abjured Spouse; Comes Out as Bolshevist

BY JOHN CLAYTON

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

[Copyright, 1923, By The Chicago Tribune]

BERLIN, March 3.—Distance lends enchantment to view, and Serge Yessenin again sings love lyrics of Isadora. The temperamental Russian poet visited the correspondent's office yesterday to complain that he did not remember saying anything about his new wife and that he loved Isadora better than anything in the whole world and that he wanted to fight a duel with the correspondent and that anyway it is all wrong, because Isadora is coming to Berlin. He is living with his son.

When the correspondent suggested that perhaps Serge was under the influence of hooch he replied that he was very tired from his trip.

MEMORY LAPSES

Serge's visit was prompted by a telegram from Isadora justly complaining against Yessenin's tirade. Serge's memory of the evening following his arrival from Paris is exceedingly defective. He recalls his arrival at the station, a short taxi ride, and his conversations, but the details are all vague and hazy. The tired genius often has a lapse of memory.

At any rate, Serge asks that the following open letter be published:

"1. I am only separated temporarily from Isadora Duncan in order to arrange my business affairs in Berlin.

"2. I love Isadora Duncan better than anything in the world.

"3. I am in connection with no other woman. On my trip my new wife did not accompany me, but her maid came with me in order to help me, because orientation is very hard in Europe for me."

DISCARDS DISGUISE

As the reporter recalled various incidents of his conversation with Yessenin the poet warmed up considerably.

"In America I did not dare say I was a Bolshevik," he volunteered, "but here I am free to speak." He paused as if the fate of empires hung upon his words.

"I am a Bolshevist."

Yessenin explained that he will remain in Berlin to publish a newspaper at the request of the Bolshevik government, which is paying all expenses.

WANT SHIP TO CALL AT LOCAL PORT

Samaria, on World Cruise, Could Refuel Cheaply Here, Say Officials

Trigg Garner of Los Angeles, in a letter written aboard the S.S. Samaria as she left New York January 24 for a De Luxe cruise around the world, has advised the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce that of the 400 passengers aboard, there are thirteen from Los Angeles, two from San Diego and eight from San Francisco and San Jose, yet in the schedule bringing the ship from Japan to America via Honolulu and thence to Panama they will stop only at San Francisco and for two days.

In San Francisco the stop is partly of necessity, due to taking on fuel oil, but as Los Angeles is the center of the great oil producing center of the Pacific Coast and the fluid can be delivered on board at Los Angeles cheaper than any other port, Clarence Matson, manager of the foreign trade department of the Chamber of Commerce, is attempting to induce the Cook interests to make Los Angeles a fueling stop.

The Chamber of Commerce petition and argument are now before the officials of the Cunard Steamship Company, Ltd., in New York, and the local office of Thomas Cook & Son has also been campaigning for the change in schedule.

The Samaria, starting from New York, goes to Gibraltar, Suez Canal, Calcutta, China, Japan, Honolulu, San Francisco (maybe Los Angeles,) Balboa, Cristobal, Panama and back to New York. The Southern California passengers aboard are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Collins, Mr. and Mrs. Trigg Garner, Mr. and Mrs. William Thomas Jefferson, Miss Susanne Elizabeth Jefferson, Mrs. John Flagg Merrill, Frank L. Procter, Mr. and Mrs. John Rigby, F. Schermerhorn and Mrs. Jessie A. Shipman, Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Maron, Coronado. The Samaria is due in San Francisco on May 14.

DIPLOMATS NAMED BY PRESIDENT

Woods Goes to Japan and A. P. Moore of Pittsburg Gets Post in Madrid

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Cyrus E. Woods of Pennsylvania, now Ambassador to Spain, was named by President Harding late today to be Ambassador to Japan, succeeding Charles B. Warren, resigned. To succeed Ambassador Woods at Madrid, the President nominated Alexander P. Moore of Pittsburg, former publisher of the Pittsburg Leader and husband of the late Lillian Russell.

The new Ambassador to Japan was made Ambassador to Spain by President Harding in June, 1921, and is said to have made such an impression on the administration in the field of diplomacy as to warrant his promotion to the important post at Tokio. He was not new to the diplomatic service, having been Minister to Portugal from 1912 to 1915. At the time of his nomination to Tokio Mr. Woods was the Secretary of State of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Moore was for years publisher of the Pittsburg Leader which he recently sold. He had been in the newspaper business in Pittsburg since 1875. He married Lillian Russell, who died last year, in 1912. Mr. Moore was in Washington last week conferring with the President.

The President, it is understood, has under consideration the recommendation of the new government at Athens and has picked for Ambassador to Greece Irwin B. Laughlin, also of Pennsylvania, who has been in the diplomatic service in various capacities since 1903.

NEW SUN-MAID CONTROL ASKED

Raisin Men Want Federal Supervision

Department of Agriculture to Act Soon

Reorganization Would End Court Rule

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

FRESNO, March 3.—The United States Department of Agriculture today approved general plans for reorganization of the Sun-Maid Raisin Growers, according to dispatches from Washington. This was a preliminary step toward granting authority to the growers' association to operate under the Capper-Volstead Act.

The final decision, it was stated, however, will not be made known for perhaps two weeks, some of the minor details not having been passed on.

The Sun-Maid organization would be under the jurisdiction of the Department of Agriculture instead of the courts, as at present, and the special consent decree under which the association is doing business would be superseded. This decree was the outgrowth of charges that the co-operative organization was operating as a monopoly in violation of interstate commerce laws.

Ralph P. Merritt, managing director of the Sun-Maid, who placed the reorganization details before the Department of Agriculture, explained in Washington that recognition by the department is all that is necessary and if this is granted the reorganization will be carried out.

Merritt left Washington today for New York to lay the new program before banking interests and meet with the sales force of the association.

J. A. Brogdon, sales and advertising manager of the Sun-Maid Raisin Growers, will sail tomorrow from New York for Europe, in the interest of foreign sales. He will visit England, Copenhagen and Amsterdam.

Bootlegger Has Trade Worried by Conviction

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MONROVIA, March 3. — The "high-class trade" of A. J. Nardelli, confessed bootlegger, is on the anxious seat today, when it become known that Nardelli had not onl ytold the police the history of his own illicit dealing in liquor but had given them a list of his customers. Just what us ethe local officers will make of the list is not known, but it is rumored that many prominent Monrovians are rather keen on finding out.

Nardelli, who, according to his own confession, has been retailing whisky for several months at highly profitable figures, was this morning fined $300 and given a suspended jail sentence of 180 days, provided he would leave the county at once, which he promised to do.

Ask New Trial in San Diego Murder Case

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, March 3.—Pronouncement of judgment on J. V. Hendrix, convicted Wednesday of first-degree murder for the death of Thomas Kester, was postponed this morning until Monday, following a motion for a new trial made by E. J. Kelly, attorney for the prisoner.

Kelly demanded a new trial on the ground that the jury had received evidence out of court and had been guilty of misconduct, that the verdict had been decided by lot contrary to the law and that the court had misdirected the jury on points of law.

Judge Spencer Marsh will hear arguments on the motion for a new trial Monday at 10 a.m.

Corner-stone of Temple Is Laid by Taft Masons

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

TAFT, March 3.—Members of Masonic orders from various points in Kern county and from other cities of the valley, gathered in Taft this afternoon to witness the impressive ceremony of laying the corner-stone of the handsome new temple being erected by the order on North street.

Beginning shortly after 1 o'clock, the order of ceremonious events proceeded until the culmination, the placing of the corner-stone within its niche, was reached.

William A. Sherman of San Francisco, Grand Master of the lodge, assisted by Deputy Grand Master Arthur S. Crites of Bakersfield, had the affair in charge, assisted by selected officials.

A sacred selection played by the band was followed by the opening prayer, delivered by Rev. Oliver M. Butterfield, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Taft and grand chaplain for the day.

The assemblage stood with bared heads while the band played the national anthem, which was followed by a ritualistic ode by the Masonic choir.

C. Z. Vandernorck, master of ceremonies, made the introductory talk followed by a short speech by Grand Master Sherman.

Commerce Body at Redlands Told Highway Plans

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, March 3.—A. E. Isham, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, returned last night from Santa Cruz, where he attended the convention of the commercial secretaries.

At the secretaries' convention Harvey Toy, chairman of the State Highway Commission, was asked just what roads will be built, and he said first the Truckee road, on which construction will be started at once. Next will come the Pacific Highway, which is toward the Oregon line. Then if the gasoline tax is passed then the Needles to Barstow road will be paved. These three all come before the Mecca-Blythe section of the Ocean-to-Ocean highway, but the commissioners promised that they would continue to work on sections of this road, that from Yuma to Holtville, repair the plank road at Westmoreland and put the Yucaipa-Beaumont link in good shape. This can be done out of general funds.

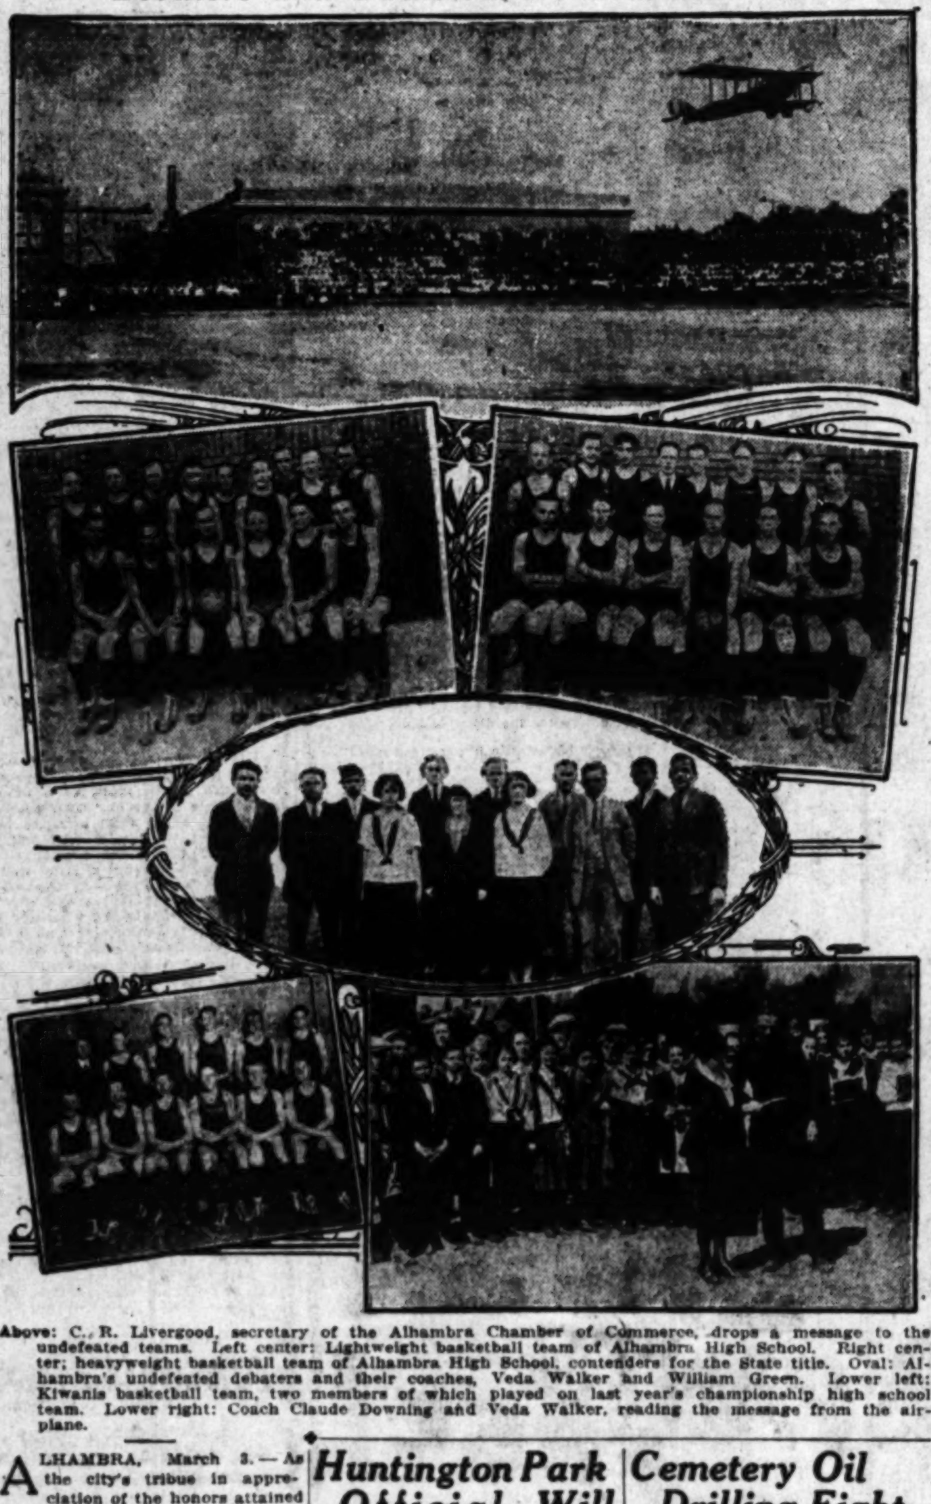
ALHAMBRA FELICITATES CHAMPIONS

Debaters and Basketballers Both Honored



Above: C. R. Livergood, secretary of the Alhambra Chamber of Commerce, drops a message to the undefeated teams. Left center: Lightweight basketball team of Alhambra High School. Right center; heavyweight basketball team of Alhambra High School, contenders for the State title. Oval: Alhambra's undefeated debaters and their coaches, Veda Walker and William Green. Lower left: Kiwanis basketball team, two members of which played on last year's championship high school team. Lower right: Coach Claude Downing and Veda Walker, reading the message from the airplane.

ALHAMBRA, March 3. — As the city's tribue in appreciation of the honors attained by students of the Alhambra High School, both in athletics and in scholarship, and the marks which local teams have made in Southern California, records unique in the annals of prep schools of the State, an airplane circled over the High School buildings Thursday afternoon in the presence of the entire student body. A scroll was dropped from the plane to the athletic field bearing a message of congratulation from every civic club and social organization in Alhambra.

This unique demonstration of the city's pride in the accomplishments of the High School was arranged by C. R. Livengood, secretary of the Business Men's Association, and the occasion marked a red-letter day in the history of the school. A cheering throng witnessed the event.

On the scroll, which was delivered to Miss Veda R. Walker and Claude C. Downing, was engraved the following message:

"The civic and social bodies of Alhambra congratulate you on your triumphal march towards your respective championships. We pledge to you our undivided support in achieving the high goal set. The eyes of all California are on Alhambra and we are proud of the fact that in athletics and education we are represented by teams of your caliber. May your goal be reached and the happiness that comes from honest striving be your reward."

This was signed by the Chamber of Commerce, Business Men's Association, Kiwanis Club, Alhambra Club, Board of Education, Federated P.-T. A., Wednesday Afternoon Club, Dos Robles Club, Alhambra Red Cross, W.C.T.U., Masonic Order, Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias, Woodmen of the World, Modern Woodmen, Alhambra Realty Board, D.A.R., United Daughters of the Confederacy, Rebecca Lodge, B.P.O.E., Royal Neighbors, American Legion and O.E.S

In debating, the Alhambra High School has attained a leading position among schools in the south. This branch of the school's activity has been largely successful through the capable direction of Miss Veda R. Walker, head of the oral English department. Last year A. H. S. won both the Central League and Southern California championships, and never once were the local teams defeated, although they faced the strongest schools of the south.

In Claude C. Downing, athletic director of the school and basketball coach, the school has one of the most able men in the State. Last year he developed a basketball team which climbed to the top, winning the Central League, Southern California and Central California championships.

This season Downing has developed not only one but two winners, his lightweight five and the regular quintet capturing Central League titles.

In addition to the two winning high school basketball teams, the Alhambra Kiwanis Club has sponsored a team which has won every game this season and stands at the top of Division A in the A.A.U. Basketball League of the Southern Pacific division.

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, March 3.—The fight to prevent drilling for oil on the edge of the Sunnyside Cemetery reached the courts yesterday when a suit was filed against the city for $150,000 damages and a writ demanded to force the municipality to allow the oil company to begin drilling.

The suit revealed that the United Oil Company is behind the project and that John C. Martin, former president of the Sunnyside Cemetery Association, is the owner of the plot of land on which the oil company wishes to drill.

It also disclosed that Mr. Martin received $20,000 for the lease to the land and is to be given a one-fourth royalty on all oil produced there. He also is to receive $5000 from the proceeds of the first oil produced and sold.

To determine whether annexation would improve conditions here the chamber will begin work at once of calling together all civic organizations of the city and thoroughly thrashing the matter out.

Among organizations which will be requested to send representatives to the meeting are the American Legion, Amusement Mens' Association, Chamber of Commerce, Charter Boosters' Club, Realty Board, the Parent-Teacher Association, grammar and high school boards, Bay Cities Consolidation League, Venice Trustees, labor organizations, Italio-American Club and any others which might be interested.

Fifty Candidates Will be Initiated

Delegation Plans Stop at Grove on Way Up

Ceremony to be Preceded by Parade

BAKERSFIELD, March 3.—Los Angeles Shriners will trek over the Ridge route to Bakersfield on the 10th inst to conduct an initiation of fifty candidates. On the way here the Shriners will stop at Cheney's grove in Tejon Canyon where they will be met by a Bakersfield delegation which will serve a basket luncheon, the party will come into Bakersfield later in the day for the ceremonies in the evening.

The ceremonial will be preceded by a parade at 7 o'clock and after the session at the Bakersfield Operahouse, a Spanish supper will be served in Eagles' Hall. The Shrine band and chanters will give an entertainment in the operahouse Sunday morning.

The proclamation issued concerning the event reads: "With the advent of glorious spring weather comes a cry from Kern county that the unregenerates have begun to stir from their lethargy and to roam aimlessly about in search of more light. After conferring with Noble I. H. Glenn the Rajah of that Oasis, and being informed by him that he had corralled a covy of profanes, your Potentate made a timely visit to the stables of the Imperial Keeper of the Kalurah and forthwith an order was issued that her hoofs be carefully trimmed, that the skins of Kaaka Hula be filled with Kamelazooks and that figs and pomegranates in abundance be provided for the caravan across the arid plains to the fair city of Bakersfield."

It is six years since the last visit of the southerners to Bakersfield and it is expected a large number will make the trip.

The committee in charge in Bakersfield is composed of W. A. Eardley, chairman; W. J. Schultz, F. N. Sawyer, F. A. Easton, J. K. Thrasher, L. D. Blodgett and I. H. Glenn.

Two Die Alone on Ranch; Aid Plea Is Unseen

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, March 3.—The bodies of Mrs. Anna Sehr, 80 years of age, and her son, Otto, 43, were found last night in their little home on an isolated ranch near Pine Hills, sixty-five miles east of San Diego. The discovery, made by a friend who called to inquire about their health, revealed a tragic chapter in which influenza played with its victims for several days and left them dead.

"Come down—want help," was the appeal penciled on a crude sign and attached to a gate near the highway, in hopes that some passer-by would heed. But few persons traveled that way and the mother and son, alone and without medical attention, succumbed.

The Sehrs had lived on the ranch for many years. The Coroner said the two died probably Wednesday.

BOOTLEGGER FLEES AND FORFEITS BOND

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

FRESNO, March 3.—Pete Condos, released three weeks ago under bond pending his deportation to Greece for bootlegging and other troubles, has forfeited his $2000 bond by going to Mexico, according to Immigration Inspector G. W. Moore. The forfeiture is to be carried out as soon as Moore can get an opinion from U. S. Atty. Williams of San Francisco, as to whether the proceedings should go through the Los Angeles or the San Francisco immigration office. No steps probably will be made to trace the fugitive, said Moore.

Tulare Woman Gets Notice From "Road Knight" to Launder Them up

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

TULARE, March 3.—When Mrs. C. L. Williams of North O street opened the back door of her home early in the morning she discovered a pair of blankets hanging on the line, which had been taken from her yard the previous night. Attached to the blankets was this note:

"Dear Madame:

"Inclosed herewith you will find two blankets. Please give same a thorough washing and hang out again, as I will return later,

"A Knight of the Open Road."

Mrs. Williams declares the Knight expects too much when he desires her to furnish the blankets and also launder them for him, but appreciates his faith in her ability to keep him supplied.

With these questions disposed of, the planning commission of the chamber will begin its work. Needs of every section of the city will be grouped into one plan. The report adds that former never have been pos- of enforcement because of personnel, and that the is therefore now approaching of a practical provision to parking for the first time in history.

WOULD MOVE TRAFFIC

It is pointed out that while the undoubtedly needs more and streets, that even with all improvements, traffic will to be a problem. It is that all traffic rules be directed toward moving traffic quickly, rather than retarding it, as many of the present rules are said to do.

"It is a fact difficult to controvert," declares the report, "that many thousands of people here have acquired the habit of going to and from their work in motor cars because the street-car service has been inadequate and time-consuming. We cannot consistently require them to use the street cars unless we provide reasonably satisfactory service.

"We believe there is a growing storm of unspoken dissatisfaction over the fact that so little progress has been made in the improvement of traffic conditions, and that this dissatisfaction is so general and so well-founded, in fact, that it must be felt, and will be felt, and that further delay is both commercially expensive and politically unwise."

The suggestions outlined are five in number: (1) regulate for the purpose of expediting traffic; (2) make no regulations that cannot be strictly enforced; (3) if necessary, enforce these in a limited area only; (4) remember that no intelligently operated railroad ever built a double track until the most skillful and scientific application of every known method of expediting traffic had been exhausted; (5) do not expect any street, no matter how wide, to accommodate successfully both street cars and motor vehicles. The wider the street, the more motor cars the street cars retard."

SPIRITUALISTS IN SESSION

Seventh Annual Convention in This City Busy When Three Days' Work is Crowded Into One

The seventh annual convention of the National Independent Spiritualist Association was held yesterday in the Hall of the Disabled World War Veterans at 246 South Hill street. Adopting the slogan, "Expedite," three days' business was concentrated into one.

The morning session, attended by about 100 delegates, was devoted mainly to the election of officers and the reading of official reports. President W. A. Jackson was re-elected by acclamation, as also were Dr. W. R. Rowe, first vice-president; Mrs. Jackson, secretary; Mrs. Katherine McCorkell, treasurer. Brother Cook resigned as second vice-president, and Sister Schmidt of Tuscan, Ariz., was elected in his stead. Mrs. Schmidt was nominated by Brother Cook.

PRESIDENT PRESIDES

The meeting was called to order by President Jackson, after which, owing to the absence of the pianist, the delgates sang "America" without music. Mrs. McCorkell gave the invocation, her prayer asking that the spirit of love and comradeship be present at the sessions.

After his re-election President Jackson made a brief speech in which he said that if the Almighty was knd to him he would continue to serve the organization with the same seal, the same indifference to ridicule, and the same fighting blood which had served him in the past.

He dwelt on the importance to this indifference to ridicule, lavished upon him and his wife and the organization, and spoke of a legal measure to be introduced which would make it an offense against law to ridicule any form of religion.

President Jackson spoke also of a Los Angeles official who talked of many complaints he had received about the spiritualist organization, but who, when challenged, could produce no data whatever, and said his office had no time to keep records.

"I will spare this man the humiliation of mentioning his name," he said.

"The only man or woman who is right is the one who will fight," said Mr. Jackson, concluding with the assertion that spiritualists must demand respect both from public officials and the newspapers.

At the final evening session lectures were given by Mme. Elizabeth Abud Renault, Rev. Nellie Dennis, Rev. Frances Plummer, Rev. Grace Fear, Pastor El Hogar De la Ferdad, and Rev. Roberto T. Gonzales, together with musical interludes and messages through various mediums.

SENATE DELAYS PACT DECISION

Body's Action Described as "Deliberate Stalling"

Arizona House Provides Cash to Pay Expenses

Anti-Ku Klux Bill Passes Both Houses

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHOENIX, March 3.—There appears to be deliberate stalling in the Senate consideration of the Colorado River compact, which still is not out of that body and which will not get to the House until Monday, with Thursday the last day of the session. There also has been singular delay with the appropriation bill, which also is expected in the House Monday afternoon. But the two houses, under suspension of the rules, did pass an emergency measure providing $10,000 more for legislative expenses.

This gave Mr. Wisener of Yuma opportunity to make observations concerning "the parody on business administration." It was explained that $5000 had been taken for investigation of the Central Bank failure, and that something of a sensation might be expected Monday, but the extra appropriation at first was turned down in the House.

KLAN BILL PROGRESSES

The anti-Ku Klux Klan bill is through both houses, with a Senate addition in the form of reference to the organization by name. In the Senate a bill was shelved that would have permitted the Governor full power over the university. The Senate passed House bills against drunken auto drivers, for protection of quail by forbidding shooting on highways, and permitting firemen and police officers to ride free.

Roberts offered an amendment to submit the Colorado River compact to popular vote, but it failed without division. With an amendment giving a reward to informers, the Senate passed a House bill tightening the law against vending of narcotics and adopted a Senate memorial asking Congress to put roads through western forest reserves, wherein the nation owns $1,500,000,000 worth of stumpage.

Bills passed the Senate appropriating money for a petrified wood monument at Navajo Springs, where the Territorial government was proclaimed in 1863 and creating the elk game preserve in Coconino and Navajo counties.

The House killed a bill that would allow renting of land on leaseholds to Japanese, and recommended passage of a bill appropriating $20,000 for investigations by the Bureau of Mines that might lead to establishment of a State cement mill, operated by convict labor, and of an appropriation of $50,000 for finishing the Cave Creek dam that protects the Capitol Building.

The Governor, after rebuffing the joint committee that had invited him to the legislative ball, appeared last night without the red necktie promised, his full dress enhanced by a diamond pin of several carats weight, and led the grand march with Mrs. Ivy, House member from Maricopa county.

POLLINATION FOR FRUITS URGED

Article in This Issue Shows How Yield in State Can Be Increased

In the Farm and Tractor section of today's Times Vincent F. Blanchard, Assistant farm adviser for Los Angeles county, has contributed a timely article on cross-pollination of fruits as a means of obtaining greater yields. He points out that there are certain fruits, especially pears and plums, that have not produced sufficient crops in Los Angeles county, and recommends the planting with them of other varieties which are known to be stronger pollinators.

As his article is based upon recent investigations and test plot experiments, it should be read with interest by fruit growers of Southern California.

H. R. Stanford, plant pathologist, Chaffey Junior College of Agriculture, has an article giving the latest information on bacterial gummosis, a disease which threatens danger to young apricot plantings throughout the State.

ROUND TRIP SHIP FARES TO BE CUT

Reduction Planned in Order to Popularize Travel by Way of United States

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, March 3.—With the idea of popularizing travel by way of the United States and winning new sources of passenger traffic for American vessels, the Shipping Board has developed a plan whereby a through ticket may be purchased at any one of the principal ports of the world for almost any port and at a lower rate than could be obtained through the purchase of a single ticket.

Most of the routes which it is hoped to popularize by the reduced through rate system includes New York and this is expected to appeal greatly to foreign travelers, most of whom are desirous of visiting this city. Thus an attractive rate will be made from South America to Europe by way of the Munson Line steamers to New York, and the United States Lines across the Atlantic.

Passengers from Europe for the Orient, accustomed to travel by steamer all the way through the Suez Canal, will be able to buy a through ticket at the same price that will carry them to New York by any of the trans-Atlantic lines, across the continent by any of the railroads and across the Pacific by the Pacific Mail by Admiral Oriental lines.

News of Ships and Sailings at Pacific Ports

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 3.—Sailing of the T.K.K. liner Siberia Maru today with a large part of her cargo destined for delivery at Dairen is said to be indicative of the increased imports that merchants of that city are demanding from this country. The Siberia Maru has almost 30,000 sacks of California flour, 1700 cases of cigarettes and other commodities for Dairen.

Plans for the Blue Star Line to maintain a permanent service between Pacific Coast ports and Europe instead of sending refrigerator ships to the Pacific side only during the apple season, are now under consideration, it became known today. The line has eighteen ships of the refrigerator type. It is believed that a greater demand can be developed abroad for salmon berries and other seasonable products which will warrant the line sending steamers during the period that has been regarded as the "off season."

SEATTLE, March 3.—The Admiral-Oriental Line steamship President McKinley sailed this morning for the Orient on her ninth trans-Pacific voyage since she was commissioned in the fall of 1921. The liner took out forty-one first-cabin passengers and 130 steerage. In addition, her holds were filled to capacity with Northwest products, including canned goods, flour, wheat and lumber.

TACOMA, March 3.—After loading about 1000 tons of cargo here, the Lurline sailed for Honolulu early this morning.

Monday the Robin Adair and Eagle, both intercoastal carriers, are due at the terminal dock to load. The vessels have general freight in and lumber, copper and other freight out from here.

Work will be under way shortly on the new dock to be constructed by the Tacoma smelter, it was announced today by Harry Y. Walker, manager of the plant. This dock, which will be an addition to the extensive docks now located here, will be 600 feet long and do much to relieve the congested condition at the docks at times when a fleet of ore ships come in. In addition to this work, the company will construct new ore handling facilities.

PORTLAND (Or.) March 3.—As forecast in waterfront predictions of a week ago, trans-Pacific lumber rates were advanced today from $11 to $12 a thousand feet by the Pacific Westbound Conference. Exceedingly heavy demands for space in recent months were the cause assigned for the advance. The rates for flour and wheat were not advanced, but it is said here that a bonus on these commodities is being paid by some shippers.

The steamer West Niger of the Federal Shipping Board's idle fleet at San Francisco, has been assigned here for operation in the North China service of the Columbia Pacific Shipping Company. This makes a total of twelve vessels of the government fleet now in service to the Orient out of Portland.

Enormous increases in domestic ocean commerce are shown by a comparison of port shipping figures for February, compiled today by the Merchants' Exchange, and similar figures for the corresponding month in 1922. Values in one year have doubled; tonnage has increased 40 per cent. Tonnage in domestic trade handled through Portland last month amounted to 160,632 tons, valued at $13,635,079, as compared with 126,043 tons in February, 1922, valued at $6,921,150.

COOS BAY (Or.) March 3.—The steamer Admiral Goodrich sailed this morning for Eureka and San Francisco.

The steamer C. A. Smith arrived last evening from Bay Point and is loading lumber.

The steamer F. A. Warner, formerly the Cotton Plant, sailed today with lumber, en route to Los Angeles.

LATEST THING IN FERRY BOATS

San Leandro Built at Local Port

At Launching Yesterday

John B. Matthews, who designed the boat; Miss Marguerite Stokes of San Leandro, sponsor, and Mayor Allen E. Pelton of San Leandro.

THE San Leandro, second turbo-electric ferryboat constructed in America, entered her element yesterday morning at the plant of the Los Angeles Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Corporation in the presence of a representative group of Pacific Coast shipping and industrial figures. As her sponsor, Miss Marguerite Stoakes, broke a bottle of California champagne across the steel bow of the San Leandro, the siren of her sister craft, the Haywards, roaded in hoarse greeting.

The San Leandro is the second of two passenger ferries being constructed by the local concern for the San Francisco and Oakland Terminal Railways and when they go into service in two months the sister ships will be the finest ferries in transbay operation.

Miss Stoakes, the sponsor at yesterday's launching, was accompanied from San Leandro by thirty-eight citizens of the Cherry City headed by Mayor Allen E. Pelton. They were taken on a tour of the harbor after the launching and at noon were the guests of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon at the California Yacht Club.

The Haywards, launched a fortnight ago, and the San Leandro were designed by John B. Matthews and represent the latest developments in ferryboat construction. The are 240 feet in length, with a molded breadth of forty-two feet and will be propelled at a speed of thirteen knots by two General Electric motors of 1350 horsepower each. The ferries have been built at a cost of $500,000 each and are equipped to carry 3000 passengers. The San Leandro, with all machinery installed, was 90 per cent completed when she took the water yesterday, while the Haywards is scheduled to be delivered at San Francisco within the month.

Notable among those present at yesterday's event were: Capt. W. A. Rasmussen, operating superintendent of the Key Route System; John S. Drum, representing the Key Route System; Fred L. Baker, and L. V. Hedrick, president and comptroller, respectively, of the Los Angeles Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Corporation; E. E. Remsberg, district manager for the United Statest Shipping Board; Guy W. Wade, secretary of the Harbor Commission, and Harry J. Summers, Southern California representative of the American Bureau of Shipping.

"POWER GRAB" IS CONDEMNED

-Called Lyon Bill Scored at Riverside Meeting

Asserted Los Angeles Monopoly Discussed

Matter Already Settled in Courts, is Argument

Representatives of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Riverside county, members of the Board of Public Utilities, Mayor John McNabb and Dwight Towne, president of the Chamber of Commerce of San Bernardino, and many other prominent officials and landowners at a meeting yesterday morning in Riverside joined in a mighty protest against the so-called Lyon bill. The resolution condemning the bill, passed almost unanimously at the mass meeting in the Court house, at midnight Friday, was [illegible] and plans were made to [illegible] the fight.

Ben L. Hammond, proprietor and editor of the Imperial Valley Press; E. P. Clark, chairman of the State Board of Education; Loyal C. Kelly, District Attorney of Riverside county; T. J. Flaherty, member of the Republican County Central Committee, representatives of the chambers of commerce of Elsinore, Hemet, Imperial, El Centro and other cities, joined in the appeal. Mayor S. C. Evans, who was chairman of the mass meeting, was asked to read the resolution, which nearly 500 citizens passed with one dissenting vote, this vote registered by George R. [illegible] of Inyo county, who is in the employ of the Los Angeles Bureau of Power and Light, according to his own admission.

MULHOLLAND SILENT

William Mulholland, who attended the mass meeting, voiced the opinion that the members of the Bureau of Power and Light were not received with open arms. He told the meeting that he had worked for the father of Mayor Evans years ago. He refused to discuss the Lyon bill.

S. C. Robinson, special attorney for the Bureau of Power and Light, who discussed the bill, was criticized for his efforts to review the case of the Southern Sierras Power Company and the city in which the District Court of Appeal recently decided in favor of the power company. Robinson, it was said, had erected a straw man, had evaded the Lyon bill and had discussed matters that already are settled in the courts.

"This so-called Lyon bill is only an effort on the part of the Bureau of Power and Light to stir up something the courts have already settled," said Dist.-Atty. Kelly. "It is dangerous. It is ambiguous and is possible of many interpretations. I should urge everybody to ask the representatives in the Legislature to vote against this dangerous bill as it will give to Los Angeles a dead monopoly."

CALLED MONOPOLY

Ben L. Hammond, editor and owner of the Imperial Valley Press, said "The Bureau of Power and Light of Los Angeles does not inspire us with confidence. Its dealings in the past have been such that we have no guarantee that it will treat us fairly in the future. Why give Los Angeles the power to condemn such properties as the Southern Sierras Power Company which is serving us in a satisfactory manner and why play into the hands of a monopoly."

When asked concerning the authorship of the so-called Lyon bill Attorney Robinson admitted that Senator Lyon had nothing to do with writing it. He stated that he, Robinson, whose salary is $50 a day during his active days in court, and $37.50 during his other days, or days out of court, had written "every word of the bill and was responsible for the bill as it stands."

Attorney Robinson is special counsel extraordinary de luxe for the Bureau of Power and Light. His interpretation of the bill did not meet with the approval of the farmers, citrus growers and officials at Riverside.

Mayor Evans, who presided, endeavored to keep the meeting well in hand, but his invitation to "deal with the matter without gloves" was taken literally by Attorney [illegible], who attacked the officials of the Southern Sierras Company. This attack was resented by a number of speakers championed the cause of the power concern.

FIGHT TO FINISH

Mayor McNabb of San Bernardino declared that his city and the county will fight the Lyon bill to a finish. He urged immediate action, when the Legislature reconvenes.

A copy of the resolution introduced by R. C. Harbison of San Bernardino and passed at the Riverside meeting follows:

Whereas: There has been introduced into the Legislature a bill known as Senate bill 503, and

Whereas: The purpose of this bill is to allow the condemnation by a municipality of water and power appropriated and devoted to the use of other municipalities,

Be It Resolved: That it be the sense of this meeting, called by the city of Riverside for the purpose of discussing this bill, that Senate bill 503 is a pernicious measure and detrimental to the interests of the [illegible] cities and counties of California and should be defeated.

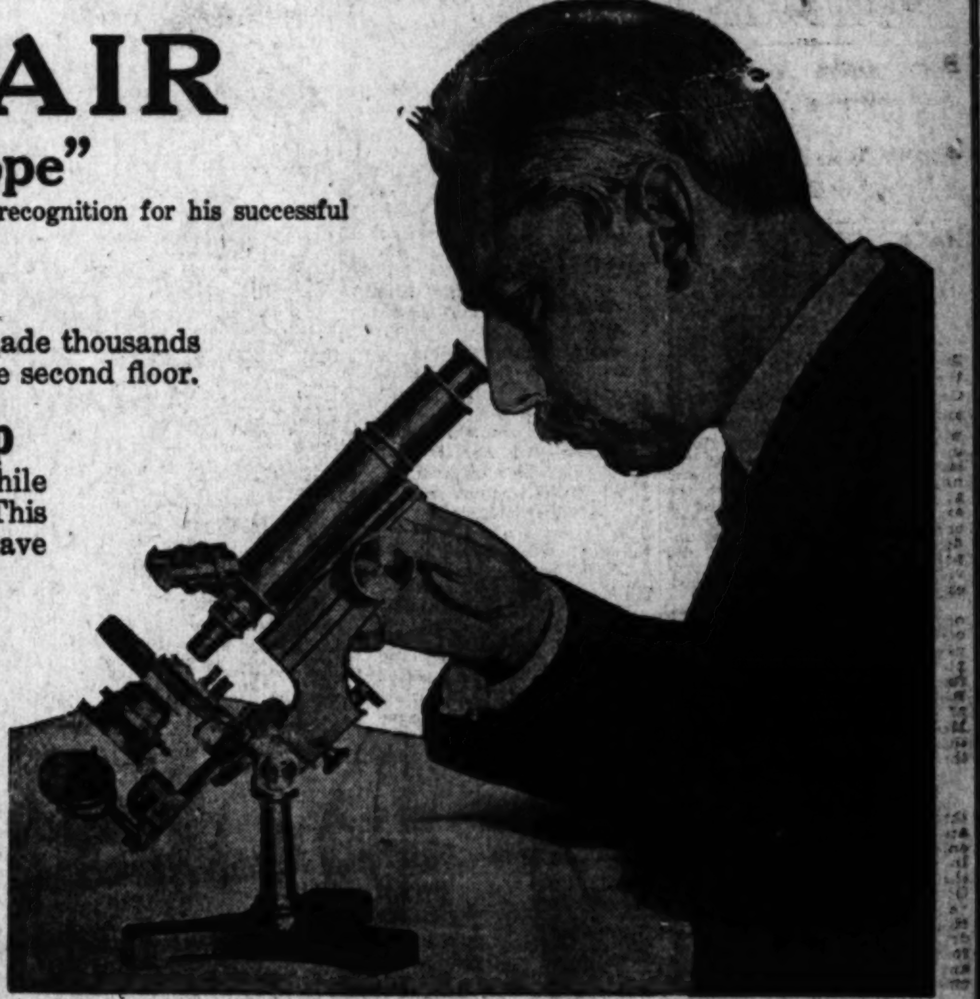
SAVE YOUR HAIR

"Where There's HAIR There's Hope"

That is the sound advice of the famous hair, scalp and beauty specialist who has gained national recognition for his successful efforts in promoting hair and scalp health—



Prof. John H. Austin

During the past eight years Prof. Austin has been at Hamburger's where he has made thousands of FREE microscopic examinations of the hair and scalp in his private offices on the second floor.

Free Microscopic Examination of the Hair and Scalp

See Prof. Austin now—don't wait for baldness to overtake you—take action while there is yet hair to save—arrest your hair troubles before they destroy your hair. This week—tomorrow—Prof. Austin presents this opportunity to you—FREE. If you have Dandruff! Itching Scalp! Brittle Hair! Dry Hair!

Oily Hair! Falling Hair! Faded Hair! Split Hair!

You are in need of immediate treatment. To delay may mean permanent baldness. Now, more than ever, is the time to save your hair—summer sun and days at the beach or mountains play havoc with the hair. Save your hair while there is hair to save. See Prof. Austin at once.

PROF. JOHN H. AUSTIN SAYS:

"I do not use an ordinary microscope. I use one of the most powerful optical machines known to science. There is no microbe so small that its presence cannot be detected. Once the cause is known, the cure is a matter of course. But you must be fair with me, with Nature and with yourself. You must not wait until you are entirely bald. That means that the parasites have done their work. There is nothing left for me or for Nature to work on. The hair roots are dead. It is when the hair begins to fall that you should seek help.

"Let me destroy the bacteria before they destroy the hair roots. Nature will fight long and well, and if given help at the right time will replace the last hair with new, stronger, thicker and more beautiful hair. I have cured many cases of patchy baldness where the papilla or hair root was still alive, but it meant a longer and more tedious battle."

Prof. John H. Austin, hair and scalp specialist who perfected Co-Lo, has devoted over 40 years to practical study and research in conditions of the hair and scalp. Are You One of 30,000 Los Angeles Men?

"The Beginning"

"The Result—Too Late"

Today, 30,000 Los Angeles men, between the ages of 20 and 35 years, are regretfully watching a slight thinning of the hair, similar to the illustration, "The Beginning."

Are YOU one of the 30,000 men who will let this trouble run its course until baldness is the final result? (Note the illustration, "The Result—Too Late.")

There is No Time to Lose Start Now to Save Your Hair

Prof. John H. Austin has to his credit thousands of cases where baldness has been arrested, and the hair and scalp returned to a normal healthy condition. Read what he says about—

"Alopecia Pityrodes"

The Cause of the Greatest Percentage of Baldness

This trouble starts with a scaling of the scalp, sometimes slight, commonly called "dandruff," sometimes abundant—producing thick, grayish-white, dry or greasy scales—which leads to falling of the hair.

This stage lasts from two to seven years, as a rule. At first, when the hair starts to fall, it is hardly noticeable, but as this ailment "Alopecia Pityrodes" becomes more deeply seated, and the micro-bacilli multiply, as they always do, the falling of the hair increases rapidly and in time the top of the head becomes entirely bald.

Science Has Discovered How to Stop Falling Hair

Even when there has been a decided loss of hair there are good prospects of staying the course of the ailment, and increasing the diameter and amount of the hair, provided the person troubled will persist in treatment. The hair is of slow growth, however, and one must be content to give the hair and scalp proper attention for several months before any great improvement can be noticed.

Prof. Austin has found that nature will fight long and well, and if given help at the right time will replace the lost hair with new, stronger, thicker and more beautiful hair.

A Powerful Microscope

Magnifies the Micro-Bacilli Thousands of Times

Thus enabling Prof. Austin to tell you the exact trouble with which your hair and scalp are afflicted. Over forty years of practical experience and scientific study certainly qualify him to advise what to do in each particular case.

Prof. Austin says, and you will find it repeated in every important scientific treatise on the hair and scalp, that the use of hair tonics, dandruff cures, elixirs, mange cures and pomades is like taking medicine without knowing what you are trying to cure.

Popular Science Monthly

October, 1922, says: "According to Drs. George M. MacKee and George C. Andrews, two prominent New York physicians, many "hair tonics" used by barbers and hairdressers may be efficacious, yet they are commonly applied improperly. Only an expert can diagnose a case and tell which type of baldness is afflicting the patient and what remedies should be used."

See Prof. Austin tomorrow. Hours 10 to 12 and 2 to 4—both men and women invited to take advantage of the FREE MICROSCOPIC EXAMINATION

GREAT OUTDOORS CALLS TO DENIZENS OF CITIES

Rush to Mountain Cabin Villages, Ruled by Forest Ranger Feudal Baron, Begins Soon

A dark bend in the trail brought the forest ranger out upon a ledge, a sort of shelf overhanging civilization. Far below, like a star-strewn sky inverted, twinkled the lights of Los Angeles. He swept a hand toward the million gleaming pin points.

"There," the ranger declared, "is the outdoor capital of America!"

"Tonight," he went on, "those [illegible] folks are sitting around the reading lamp or out at a movie. But within a month, they will start the summer rush for mountain-cabin sites.

"Now, there are only 500 or 600 [illegible] lots left in Angeles Forest. Already, 1000 have been rented, and houses built upon them. But there is plenty of land for new cabin sites—thousands more. Soon we will have a recreation expert who will do nothing else but lay out more lots, more auto camps. The boss made this announcement yesterday.

NEW FORESTRY PROBLEM

"That is really big news. It means that Los Angeles has created a new problem in forestry. Never before has the forestry service ever had a recreation expert. At Washington, they are tying [illegible] in the Federal policy of conservation, to meet our demands for cabin lots, and for roads, trails and bridges to make them accessible.

"You see, national forests are not only playgrounds. They are watersheds. The real purpose of the forestry service is fire protection. [illegible] keeping crickets! This ranger job has come to be a cross between those of a scoutmaster and a mayor. I figure that by 1920 rangers will have to wear silk hats and [illegible] stripes on their chests."

Again the ranger swept out a hand this time including the long [illegible] that bestrides the San Gabriel and San Bernardino ranges, from [illegible] tunnel, stretching eastward to Coachella Valley on the [illegible] of the desert.

"One hundred miles long," he said. "Pretty big bailiwick for only seventeen regular rangers, isn't it? One and a quarter million of the ruggedest acres in California.

BRUSH IS VALUABLE

"This is the greatest of the seventeen forests. People don't realize it. That flea-bitten brush on the lower slopes may not look valuable to picknickers who build bonfires without permits. But it is—mighty valuable. It is more valuable than the finest virgin timber of the Northwest, acre for acre!

"Why? Because a greater amount of wealth depends upon this than any other watershed in the whole West. Think of the thousands of orange groves, with the millions of dollars in crop yields. Fire protection up here means water supply for them down there. In one way, that branch is better watershed cover than timber. It renews itself quicker after fires. In ten years it becomes a jungle.

"So, in addition to being the most valuable watershed, Angeles Forest is fast growing into a cabin land. It is the most unique reserve in the world."

IS VILLAGE MAYOR

The ranger paused to light his pipe. The light flickered as he puffed. Then, from force of long habit, he thrust the ember of the match into the ground and twisted his heel upon it.

"In addition to his other duties," the ranger continued, "the man in a forestry station has to administrate affairs at the cabin villages within his district. That's why I say the job is something like a mayor's.

"In San Antonio Canyon, around Camp Baldy, houses are built as thickly as in the city. Shay, the

Where City Can Be Forgotten

HUNTING A BALD MILLIONAIRE

BY ALMA WHITAKER

Is there such a thing as a bald millionaire?

Is a good crop of hair essential to the making of millions or is the making of millions responsible for the good crop of hair?

These tremendously vital reflections were occasioned by a visit to Hotel Huntington where I found myself entirely surrounded by sumptuous millionaires, personages whose names boggle the imagination, and all,—all plastered o'er with the glamor of tangibly golden higher mathematics.

And they all, every last one of them, had hair, lots of hair, and even a well-groomed mustache or two.

Is this then a solution of that vexatious problems which besets our fine manhood? Are millions the very best, the only really reliable hair tonic?

IS IT ESSENTIAL?

And again, is hair an essential to the making of millions?

After all, making millions and keping their hair, are the two great questions that absorb masculinity today.

Well, here is the evidence. Behold Alfred Costello, of New York possibly about 65 years of age, former weilder of the leather trust, fully equipped with nice gray hair.

(Likewise he is married and has his wife along. And they are all married and all have their wives along. This may be important data, too.)

Next comes B. J. Horton, who owns palatial homes in New York, Providence, R. I., and Newport and maintains a vast army of servants, and travels all the time and doesn't live in any of them. He might be about 60 years of age. And he has lots of hair.

Or look at Barney Eckard, two pages about him in Who's Who, whose word is law to some eighty or 100 rich corporations and banks, possibly 70 years of age. Fine set-up fellow, gray hair in profusion.

Hovey Clark of Minneapolis, Thomas Shevlin, Frank Hixon, Joe Hixon, lumber kings of staggering power—and enough hair between them to provide for an overstuffed divan.

James Newcomb of New York and Commodore Wheeler—two Standard Oil magnates who wear the diamond medal of thirty years' directorial service to the dynasty, who travel in private railroad cars, and confess to an embarrassment of some fifty millions. Hair enough for a tonic advertisement.

Or behold Al Pillsbury, Minneapolis flour king, only about 50 to be sure, tall impressive bearing—and plenty of sleek gray hair. Or E. A. Cudahy, millionaire Chicago packer—Bald? I should say not. Or Stanley Tucker of Cleveland gorgeous country home, socially pre-eminent. Or Frank Peavy, the fellow who controls grain elevators throughout the Northwest. Or, Dr. E. Tappey of Detroit, of C. N. Clemson of Pittsburg, United Steel Corporation—the latter with a neat mustache as well—all frightfully rich, alarmingly influential, and not a bald head anywhere.

AND HERE'S MORE OF 'EM

Of course, James Ducey, who inherited lumber wealth and glory, in Detroit would have no right to be bald anyway—only about 42. But David May, of May's Stores, might have been bald were he a mere income-tax exemption case—but he certainly is not now.

And as for that Mr. Byfield, who practically owns all the Ambassador hotels and a score or so more besides, he not only has lots of nicely groomed gray hair, but a cute little black mustache into the bargain.

Then there is L. B. Kuppenheimer of Chicago (Kuppenheimer's form-fitting clothes for discriminating men.) and director of the Chicago Opera Company, and in spite of the opera affiliations he still has quite a sizable supply of hair, enough to part nicely.

C. H. Cates of New York, former amateur light-weight wrestler, now about 45, we'll say—well, his hair is as black as night and bushy enough to be a famous violinist or something—and Cates and millions are synonymous terms in New York society.

NOTE THE STEEL MONARCHS

Next we find a couple of steel magnates from Cleveland, Newton Calhoun and F. C. Case, both possibly about 60 years of age, and both in possession of their hair.

Or Capt. C. L. Hutchinson, S. L. Wallace, A. T. Kinney, also of Cleveland, gentleman who between them own all the ships on the great lakes and talk in millions with the same nonchalance that I talk in nickles—hair, hair, hair in abundance on every head.

Then there is that dashing young man of 45 or so of Detroit, George M. Holly, the fellow whose carbureters grace the Ford, which as anybody knows means simply everything. And there he abides at the Huntington with Mrs. Holly and three little Holly berries, and lots of beautifully rippled grey hair.

Charles L. Johnstone of St. Paul, whose papa made most of his in real estate, brother of A. D. S. Johnstone, champion golfer. Plenty of nice silver hair, while brother A. D. S. has lots of darker hued variety.

ALL NICELY MARRIED

Now, mark you, all these examples—and we could go on forever, naming quite a sizable list permanently attached to Southern California—are all married and have their ladies along to soothe their troubled breasts, all quite violently rich, and almost all of them play golf (Midwick simply oozes millionaires these days) and there positively isn't a bald pate in the whole lot.

If worry made men bald these men certainly should not have a hair left—for no matter how easily they made their millions, they worry themselves to fits over their golf. If intellectual anguish is bad for the hair, these men should be bald as billiard balls—for most of them are exercising any amount of intellectual anguish right now over the awful matter of selection on the copious Huntington menus. If matrimony makes for baldness, these men should be guiltless of even the ghost of a hair anyway, for all of them are thoroughly, completely, and a long-time married.

No, sirs, the answer seems abvious. It is single misery and poverty, that are the greatest enemies of masculine hirsute adornment. Married and rich, the hair-restorer advertisements make no appeal. Single and poor—from those that have not shall be taken away.

On the other hand, can a bald-headed man make money? Can a bald-headed man even inherit money? Can a bald-headed man even marry money? I seriously doubt it.

C. HENRY GROWS PEEVISH

Truthful Blythe Resident Indignant at Report That His Glory is Sought by Another

"When it comes to frogs with cavernous mouths give me a Rio Colorado greenback every time!" Thus spake C. Henry Ferguson of Blythe, while waxing indignant over the report from Shawmut, Tuolumne county, that he had attempted to garner some of the glory rightfully belonging to a distant relative of the "Jumping Frog of Calaveras."

For forty years after Mark Twain wrote his story of the celebrated jumping frog, no person had the temerity to suggest that there could be in any part of the universe bullfrogs comparable with those in the famous mother lode country.

Some time ago Ferguson told the world about a flock of bullfrogs that were washed down the Colorado River during the flood that swept over the Blythe-Ripley section. C. Henry said that shortly thereafter young ducks began to disappear.

One duck, larger and wiser than the rest, Ferguson declared, permitted himself to be swallowed all but his tail and legs, whereupon he started paddling and brought the bullfrog ashore. Thereafter he made a regular business of catching ambitious bullfrogs in this manner

"Now Mark Twain's frog was a prehistoric wonder," C. Henry continued as he filled his old black hod with plug cut.

CLEMENS BEATEN

"I make no claim against that hoppin' son of Jeosophat. But I'm here with a clean deck to ejaculate that the legs of the average Colorado River frog are one-half inch longer than those of the varmint that is said to have wandered into San Clemens's tent while he swapped stories with Truthful Jim Gillies on Jackass Hill at Tuttletown, Tuolumne county!

"Two of the frogs captured by my ducks during the flood at Blythe are cavorting in my backyard right now.

"Furthermore, I challenge any son-of-a-gun with good eyesight, an olfactory organ that registers with pungent keeness, and an appetite for juicy tid bits, to determine which one of those long-legged galoots can jump the fartherest, which has the largest mouth, and which, by right of well-earned conquest, is entitled to the honor which Henry W. Morris of Shawmut claims is his'n."

C. Henry was undoubtedly all fussed up over the asserted remark emanating from old Tuolumne that Morris was the first to discover the duck-eating bullfrog.

"I've been in Jimtown, through Sonora, Angeles camp, the placer country in toto, and even sunned myself on the gnarled apex of Table Mountain, but this is the first time my veracity as a pioneer of strength and endurance has been argued."

C. Henry glared about him as if seeking some undersized weakling equipped with sufficient audacity to question the statement. No comment was forthcoming.

Knocking the ashes from his pipe, C. Henry Ferguson quoth thus:

"There is no frog in the world that can shape up, from a symmetrical standpoint, with a Colorado River jingo specimen.

"They are supreme. Rio Colorado River frogs are not equipped with the rusty, raucous croak that characterizes the stamps the grass-crawling, stagnant-pool, fly-catching 'bull,' as a worldly noise producer. They sing divinely. Discriminating taste is a outstanding tribute to their skill, as witnessed by the recent duck-swallowing episode on my spacious rancho."

While maintaining that the Tuolumne county scientist has a right to achieve distinction through the antics of his justly celebrated frog, yet C. Henry favors the belief that "frogs is frogs," and that while his ambitious rover may never meet the northerners' product in gastronomic combat, even so, he is "willin'" to be shown what the Shawmut exhibit can do.

Innocent bystanders have mildly suggested to C. Henry that the argument might be decided one way or the other by one of the two truthful gentlemen producing the frog in question, and, if possible, the duck as well.

PROPORTIONATE VOTE FAVORED

Legislative Reapportionment Sentiment Gains

Other Southern Cities Join Los Angeles

Civic Organizatins Getting Behind Demand

The response to the appeal of the Los Angeles City Council that sister cities of the State join it in demanding the legislative reapportionment required by the Constitution has reached proportions that are bound to be reflected in the Legislature when it reconvenes. The response also is highly satisfactory to Mayor Cryer, President Criswell of the Council and City Clerk Domingues because it indicates that other California cities, large and small, not only show cordiality in receiving such a communication from the City of Los Angeles but for the most part agree with the justice of the South's demand for the long-delayed reapportionment which would give it the additional Senatorial and Assembly representation proportionate to population gains in the last ten years.

More than 700 copies of the resolutions adopted by the Los Angeles City Council were mailed to City Councils, Boards of Trustees, Chambers of Commerce and other civic bodies throughout the State. Many of these organizations already have adopted similar resolutions, and the letters received by City Clerk Domingues from those that have not indicate a still more wide-spread sympathy with the reapportionment demand, the right of which none questions but which has been held back by the blockade of northern legislators who are jealous of what Southern California might gain.

Especially strong is the demand for legislative reapportionment, were the resolutions adopted by the Covina Chamber of Commerce of which J. D. Reed is president. That organization also sent letters to other organizations in the State asking for similar action. Among the organizations taking similar action are the Sierra Madre Chamber of Commerce, the Chamber of Commerce and Civic Association of Pasadena, San Fernando Chamber of Commerce, the Huntington Park Chamber of Commerce, the Pacoima Chamber of Commerce and the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce. The latter organization demanded that the Legislature accomplish the redistricting of the State without further delay.

CLASSES IN SPANISH TO BE GIVEN

State University Summer Session Plans Primary and Advanced Courses

Habla usted Espanol?

Can you speak Spanish?

In Southern California the knowledge of this melodious language is an asset that is invaluable to every man and woman. Owing to our close proximity to Mexico, our large Latin-American population and the rapid development of our commercial relations with the South American countries, Spanish is the sesame to the door of opportunity for those equipped with a practical working knowledge of the language.

Spanish is to be one of the courses offered by the State University Summer Session in Los Angeles this year. There will be a number of classes for beginners and also for advanced students, while featured among the courses will be something of Spain's romance in literature and the drama.

The State University Summer Session is scheduled from June 30 to August 11, and will be held at the Southern Branch of the University of California in Los Angeles.

Because of its germ destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation. The moment you apply it healing begins. Only those who have had unsightly skin troubles can know the delight this Mentho-Sulphur brings. Even fiery, itching eczema is dried right up.

Get a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.—[Advertisement.

SOLDIER SHOW PLANS RUSHED

National Guard Event to be Full of Gayety

Circus Acts and Vaudeville Turns Arranged

Famed Horsewoman Will be Unusual Attraction

Eleventh-hour preparations will be rushed this week for the "Soldiers' Show," a military circus, which officers and enlisted men of the One Hundred and Sixtieth Infantry, California National Guard, will give from the 10th to the 18th, inst., inclusive, at Exposition Park, in order to raise a regimental welfare fund and at the same time to acquaint the general public with the work of the State Militia.

The Soldiers' Show, according to Col. W. P. Story, commanding the regiment, will be an "amusement department store," with almost every variety of entertainment offered every night and at the Saturday and Sunday matinees.

Circus acts, vaudeville turns, band concerts, aerial sensations, trained animal diversions and other novelties, will be staged, together with athletic exhibitions of all sorts, and a Wild West rodeo, starring Dorothy Morrell, heralded as the world's champion cowgirl, which Edythe Sterling, herself a well-known star of the cinema and sawdust ring, is staging for the militiamen.

NOTED RIDER COMING

The feminine western impresario is bringing Dorothy Morrell here from Cheyenne, and other bronco busters and roping experts of international fame from Pendleton, Or., home of the round-up, and from Prescott, Ariz., where the annual frontier days fiesta is held. These daredevils of the range and rancho will risk their necks several times daily for the benefit of the National Guard.

The Los Angeles Athletic Club is co-operating with the militiamen in staging the athletic events. Capt. Henri Uyttenhove, foil master of the L.A.A.C., has charge of the fencing tourneys, which will be a nightly event; Snowy Baker will referee the majority of the matches, and George Blake will superintend the boxing bouts. Lou Daro, who has staged wrestling events here and elsewhere, is handling the mat exhibitions for the show, and is trying to arrange to have Johnny Meyers, middleweight champion of the world, meet all comers.

TWO FLOORS FOR DANCING

Two floors will be provided for dancing, one with the down-to-the minute jazz for the younger element, and another featuring the old-fashioned waltz, twostep, lancers and quadrille for the older generation.

Three brand-new autos are to be given away as prizes in the patrons' popularity contest.

Noted military authorities are coming here for the Soldiers' Show. Maj.-Gen. C. G. Morton, commanding the Ninth Corps Area, will represent the Regular Army, Gov. Richardson is expected to be present as commander-in-chief of the State troops, and the Navy and Marine Corps will send delegates. One of the matinees is to be consecrated to the veterans of '61, from the Soldiers' Home at Sawtelle, while one of the nights will be dedicated to the soldiers of tomorrow from the military schools in and around Los Angeles.

ADVANCE SALE LARGE

The advance sale of tickets indicates the affair will be a huge success, according to Capt. J. Clark Thompson, finance officer of the regiment, who is handling the admissions for the event. To insure a large crowd every night, the tickets are being sold in books of nine admissions for half a dollar, as it is the desire of Col. Story that as many Los Angelans as possible visit the armory and witness the activities of the National Guard.

Crack drill squads of the regiment will vie with one another in competitive drills, for which local merchants have donated prizes. There will be a fashion show to interest the women; industrial exhibits to show the progress of Los Angeles, and clowns and tame animal acts to delight the kiddies.

The opening next Saturday will be preceded by a military street parade, with all branches of the armed service of the United States participating.

TELLS OF JOBLESS LIFE

Wife Says Husband Quit Work for Good on Wedding Day

In a complaint for divorce filed yesterday by Mrs. Gladys Schmitt against Henry Schmitt, Jr., it is recited that the day her husband was married, he threw up his job, and from that time he refused to work.

Besides retiring on his wedding day, Schmitt is declared to have borrowed his wife's diamond ring and pawned it. She then redeemed it with her own money, she states.

NORTHERN HORSES COMING

Los Angeles Show Attracts Equine Owners From All Parts of State; Record Prizes Offered

San Francisco and Santa Barbara horse owners will be well represented at the second annual horse show in Los Angeles. The local headquarters of the Southern California Riding Club yesterday sent additional entry blanks to several prominent equine exhibiters in those cities. The horse show dates from April 3 to 7, it was explained by Secretary Elmer A. Green, will make it possible for these northern owners to participate in the Santa Barbara show the 27th to 29th insts. and then ship their animals here.

The stakes and premiums put up by the Los Angeles show management aggregate $12,000. This is the largest amount ever offered at a similar show in Southern California, and it is expected to attract the pick of the prize-winners on the Pacific Coast.

It is expected that the attendance at this year's Horse Show will exceed previous records. Special arrangements will be made by the program committee for "popular matinees," which, in addition to the equine exhibitions, will feature a band concert and other diversions.

One of these will be "Children's Day," on Saturday, April 7, arranged especially for school children and juvenile equine devotees. It is probable that the Los Angeles Federation of Parent-Teachers Associations will participate, the Horse Show management having agreed to turn over to that organization the net proceeds of the show, to be applied to the milk fund for the city's poor children.

Society's participation in the show will also be marked this year, as indicated by the advance interest.

Preparations are being made to entertain visiting horse owners. Many luncheon and dinner parties have been scheduled for the Hotel Ambassador.

Pasadena is expected to send a large contingent, and the idea of a "Pasadena Day" program is being discussed. In the event that such an arrangement is made, it will probably be handled in co-operation with the leading Pasadena hotels, where at this season of the year many prominent eastern horse owners are registered.

Local department stores are planning to feature "Horse Show Week" with appropriate window displays in blue and gold, the official Horse Show colors.

CITY OF CONVENTIONS

Los Angeles Wins First Rank as Meeting Place of of National Guilds

Another convention of importance is coming to Los Angeles, according to word received yesterday at the Chamber of Commerce from the National Association of Specialty Salesmen, who voted by a large majority to accept the Chamber's invitation to meet here.

An enthusiastic representation from Los Angeles in attendance at the meeting in session now was loaded with souvenir poppies and pamphlets for distribution at the present conference, where Los Angeles won hands down, according to W. T. Christianson, leader of the Los Angeles contingent.

Although two months only of the year have elapsed the city has entertained in 1923 five conventions. In May, the next meeting with large numbers attending will convene when the representatives of the Woman Benefit Association of the Maccabees assemble 5000 strong for a series of important conferences. Among the entertainment features will be the drills to be held on the grounds at Occidental College. General management of the convention is in the hands of Bina M. West, Supreme Commander, Port Huron, Mich.

The American Hotel Men's Association is another large organization selecting Los Angeles for a scenic tour. Arriving in the city on May 8 they will entrain for San Francisco for the annual national conference after a thorough inspection of the city and its environs. The State Building Loan League will convene in Los Angeles on May 13 and 19.

Five organizations known nationally will meet in Los Angeles and a sixth in San Francisco in the months of June and July, including the American Proctologic Society, Phi Mu Sorority, the Women's General Missionary Society and the Southern California Dental Association, also the Pacific Coast Oto-Opthalmological Society. Before going north to the June meeting of the Greeters in San Francisco thousands of delegates will visit in and around Los Angeles.

July will bring a large attendance to the Motion Picture Exposition celebrating the hundredth anniversary of the Monroe Doctrine. Especially will South American, Mexican and Central American countries be well represented at this exhibit, to continue through the month of July.

Approximately 10,000 visitors are expected to stop in Los Angeles on their way to or from the N.E.A. convention at San Francisco in July. The majority of educators will took through Los Angeles to enable them to stop off and enjoy the scenic features of the city.

Additional conventions scheduled for 1923 are as follows: The American National Association of Masters of Dancing, August; the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' International Union of America and Pacific Division, Association of the Advancement of Science, September. Delegates of the Loyal Legion, convening in San Francisco, have been making arrangements to remain in Los Angeles for several days en route, as will delegates to the American Legion convention at San Francisco in October. The southern section of the Teachers' Association will hold its annual meeting in Los Angeles during December.

JACK DEMPSEY'S MOTHER JOYOUS

Lives in Los Angeles in Gift Residence

Fighter Makes Beautiful Present to Parent

She's Proud of His Success as Fistic Conqueror

Happily installed in the home at 2915 South Western avenue that her son presented to her as a gift, the mother of the world's champion heavyweight pugilist yesterday expressed her opinion of prize-fighting as a profession.

"Jack always liked to fight," said Mrs. Dempsey, "and I never tried to persuade him against it. I have always encouraged my children to follow the line of their liking, and Jack seems to have been blessed in his work. The danger of prize fighting never even occurred to me. He has never been injured but once, when he had two ribs broken, and then he fought on to a finish and won."

The champion brought his mother from Salt Lake City last week, and made her a gift of the expensive home he purchased and remodeled. She is delighted with it, and takes pride in showing visitors through it.

A small, dark, shy woman, Mrs. Dempsey is 63 years of age, and the mother of eleven children, four of whom are dead. Jack, who was born June 24, 1896, at Manassa, San Luis Valley, Colo., is the ninth child.

Mrs. Dempsey says she is related to Senator Reed Smoot of Utah. Her father, she stated, was John Smoot of Kentucky, the first cousin of Abram O. Smoot, the Senator's father. While she was in Provo, Utah, which is the Senator's home town, Mrs. Dempsey declared, with a smile, that the Smoot family failed to call on her. Later, however, when Jack won his laurel wreath as world's champion, a sister of the Senator sought her acquaintance, she said.

Jack derives his fighting blood as a Smoot heritage, his mother believes, for her father, who weighed more than 300 pounds, was known as the "bully" of Logan county, W. Va., Mrs. Dempsey's natal place.

Although like other Southerners, Mrs. Dempsey loves the colored folks, she believes her son was right when he drew the color line.

"If the public compels Jack to defend his title against a colored person, then the public should pay a million dollars for it," she declared.

Mrs. Dempsey shrank from having her picture taken, but she talked freely of her past life and early hardships with her large family. She reminisced of the days when Jack fought in mining camps for meal tickets, and expressed her pride in his pugilistic success. She doesn't care much for society, loves California and is extremely proud of her new home.

TERMS WIFE CRUEL

Husband Says She Beat Him When He Was Ill

Because his wife is said to have beaten him when he did not go to work because of ill health, John W. Trump yesterday filed suit for divorce from Mrs. Ellen W. Trump. In his complaint Trump declares that during his twenty-four years of married life he was subjected to a great deal of physical and verbal abuse.

He states that for some time he has been unable to work, and that because of this his wife beat him. He asks for a division of the couple's community property, valued at $15,300. Once, he declared, his wife caused his arrest on a charge of insanity.

SHIP HATS FOR WOMEN OF CANADA

Sale of Headgear Indicates Growing Trade of City in Feminine Apparel

Easter bonnets from a Los Angeles fashion and millinery shop for Canadian women will be shipped this week, according to word received at the Chamber of Commerce. It will require eighteen large boxes to carry the order of 316 trimmed hats in good condition to their destination, Winnipeg, Can.

This wholesale lot of Easter headgear is the largest shipment from this city to Canada, and is an indication of the growth of the Los Angeles market for apparel and millinery. For some years the city has been the fashion center of the West, the output of millinery and garments increasing annually. The value of these manufactures in 1919 was $30,000,000, approximately, and more than $40,000,000 in 1920. Lower prices in 1921 on the surface indicated a decrease but on the other hand a larger output was recorded and it is anticipated that the figures for 1922 will exceed those for the previous year, since large numbers of garment manufactories were added during the year.

Attempt to Grab Power Discovered in Move

Alarmed over the outburst of indignation in the Southern California counties, cities and communities over the Los Angeles Bureau of Power and Light attempting to obtain, by the passage of the Lyon bill, which was introduced into the present Legislature, the right to condemn water and power lands and rights in any part of the State, a delegation of Public Service Commission officials left today for Riverside and other interior counties in an effort to get support for the commission's legislation.

According to the Riverside Press the Los Angeles Public Service Commission hoped to slide the Lyon bill through the Legislature without publicity. This is the usual method of operation of General Counsel W. B. Mathews of the Board, as evidenced by his attempted secret sale of the $13,-000,000 issue of bonds for the purchase of the Los Angeles properties and business of the Southern California Edison Company to Irving H. Hellman at a discount which would have caused a loss to taxpayers of $2,000,000 had not the court set aside the secret sale, resulting in a public sale of the bonds, where they brought a premium.

MEETINGS ARRANGED

So excited did the Public Service Commission officials become over the storm against the Lyon bill that a conference was hurriedly called Friday at which Special Counsel Mathews, Dr. John R. Haynes, Public Service Commissioner, and other officials agreed that something desperate must be done at once to save the Lyon bill. So the trip to Riverside and other counties was planned, and meetings rigged up to be held in these communities. For the moment the Power Bureau officials laid aside their other projects, which include a $35,000,000 power-bond issue to be asked of the Los Angeles voters, the proposed condemnation of the $17,-000,000 electric properties of the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation and the Los Angeles-built $1000,000,000 power-generating plant at Boulder Canyon in opposition to Secretary Hoover's Colorado River compact plan for developing the river for the benefit of the entire Southwest, but not to be monopolized by Los Angeles or any other city, community or corporation.

CRITICISMS SEVERE

As showing the strong feeling aroused against Los Angeles by the Power Bureau's Lyon bill, the following comments from outside newspapers are interesting:

Riverside Press: "The real purpose back of this bill apparently is to make Los Angeles city the dictator of power so that industrial development of the smaller communities might be strangled."

Riverside Enterprise: "The whole purpose of such a bill as this would be to seize, in behalf of the Los Angeles municipal system, the hydroelectric power now being used for service in the great interior districts of Southern California, leaving these communities dependent upon the Los Angeles system for power. The introduction of this bill cannot be representative of the sentiments of a majority of the people of Los Angeles or any considerable number of the members of the Legislature from Los Angeles."

San Bernardino Sun: "There are many things about Los Angeles that all of us must admire, but that does not blind us to its everlasting selfishness, to its grasping for advantages that do not belong to it."

Hemet News: "Mr. Lyon's bill would deprive a large share of the smaller cities of the opportunity to get their share of electric light and power, and is an effort to legalize the attempt made a couple of years ago to grab power sites developed by companies which do not operate in Los Angeles."

BUREAU EXPLAINS

Corona Independent: "Los Angeles is now trying to get through the Legislature the Lyon bill. The bill makes it possible for the city of Los Angeles to acquire a monopoly of power in this part of the State. There is only one way for a bill of this character to get by and that is for the people of Southern California, outside of Los Angeles, to go to sleep quietly and pin their faith on the altruistic nature of Los Angeles, a nature, which, according to the actions of that city, is decidedly a minus quantity."

Dorothy Devore With Great Dane Entered in Show

PAMPERED pets of the picture players will have their inning in the same limelight usually enjoyed by their masters and mistresses at the third annual show of the Crown City Kennel Club, to be held in Pasadena, Friday and Saturday, for the benefit of the Pasadena Post of the American Legion.

Charlie Christie, president of the Kennel Club of Hollywood, has induced many of the film capital's celebrities to enter their canines in the Crown City show and is himself entering several varieties from tiny Scottish terriers to masterly Great Danes. Christie is in the East, but has appointed Dorothy Devore to handle his entries.

Mrs. Irene Castle is entering her griffons, the finest specimens in America; Allen Holubar will put in an entry of prize airedales, while Dorothy Phillips, Holubar's star wife, is sponsoring a fleet of tiny Pekinese.

Al St. John, the Fox comedian, will have two of his finest English bulls competing, while William Beaudine, First National director, has a pair of highly pedigreed Scotch collies seeking to win ribbons in the Pasadena competition.

The show will be held in the new Mission Laundry Building, as yet unoccupied by the laundry. Sherwood Hall, superintendent of the show, estimates that 600 canines will be on exhibition.

HARBOR PLANS ARE EXTENSIVE

For the proposed breakwater extension, 8,330,000 tons of rock! With the combination of barge and trestle this rock can be placed at the rate of approximately 85,000 tons a month. Time required for completion of extension eight and one-half years.

Thus our engineers officially place the biggest task at the harbor concretely before the eyes. According to Maj. C. T. Leeds, one can assume that the initial appropriation for the great project may be made by the government, and available in 1924; then, with work actually beginning Jan. 1, 1925, the structure should be finished at a date far into 1933.

While the breakwater extension is the largest project to be carried out at the harbor, the inner harbor is the more vital at the present time, it being obvious that the breakwater can only be finished years after the inner harbor capacity possibilities will have been outgrown. Concentrating, therefore, on the immediate development of the inner harbor, the Chamber of Commerce and its foreign trade department, the Harbor Commissioners and other civic organizations and individuals are pushing considerations of improvements therein.

The progress made and to be achieved by the Harbor Commission as reported to the Chamber of Commerce is as follows: There were 4070 lineal feet of wharf built in 1922, and 9568 lineal feet authorized for 1923 construction. Transit sheds built in 1922 totaled 1024 feet, with 2700 lineal feet authorized for 1923. The city has dredged to a total of 4,674,000 cubic yards and the authorized dredging for 1923 totals 1,500,000 cubic yards. The total amount expended and authorized by the city in harbor work is $15,272,718.

According to Maj. Leeds, it is especially noteworthy that general merchandise, which may be considered the backbone of harbor growth, has increased at a more rapid rate than either oil or lumber. The actual tonnage per front foot over the city wharves for 1922 were: Oil, 364 tons per foot; lumber, 112 tons, and general merchandise, 147.5 tons a front foot.

This raises the question of possible front footage to be obtained before the prophesied exhaustion of capacity in 1926, as estimated by Maj. Leeds. The total improved inner harbor frontage is 30,100 feet; total unimproved, 61,300 feet; possible increase by slips, 20,000 feet, a combined total of 111,400 feet. On the above basis of handling 125 tons annually per lineal foot of wharf, the inner harbor, exclusive of Long Beach, but including all possible slip development, can handle 13,-925,000 tons of general commerce.

Berthing space must be provided at once, according to Clarence H. Matson of the Chamber of Commerce, or ship lines will be turned away from the port. Water-borne freight piles up useless cost when there is a long delay in the so-called port turnaround. Space and efficiency are the powerful factors that sway the mind of the shipmaster and his backers back in Antwerp, Yokohama or Stockholm.

During the war the nation's slump in foreign shipments, according to Henry M. Robinson, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce committee of 200, reached 16 per cent, and the decrease for Puget Sound and San Francisco territory ran from 8.5 per cent to 33 per cent, yet from a total tonnage of 1,682,794 registered for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1915, Los Angeles Harbor increased to 4,306,000 tons June 30, 1921, or 147.5 per cent in the six years.

On the basis of Southern California business for February, 1922, Chairman Robinson and others estimated the gross tonnage of 10,000,000 in 1926. The harbor did more than 9,750,000 tons in 1922 and in January of this year the gross tonnage reached almost as much as the entire fiscal year of 1914-15, or 1,465,238 tons. Of this great total all but 250,000 tons were manipulated over the city wharves alone. This intimates a business this year of more than 15,000,000 tons.

Quarters Now Too Small to Fulfill Demand

The Hollywood Studio Club, residence and club center for girls of the motion-picture industry, has received the approval of the Social Service Commission of Los Angeles and the building campaign has been indorsed. This club is conducted under auspices of the national board of the Young Women's Christian Association and is directed by a committee of local women representative both of the community and the motion-picture industry.

The quarters of the club, 6129 Carlos avenue, for some time have failed to fulfill the demand made upon them. According to a statement made by rMs. Cecile B. De Mille, chairman of the campaign for a new building, ninety girls have been turned away for lack of room in six months. Twenty girls can be accommodated in the house, and many more use it as a social and recreation center.

NEW BUILDING PLANNED

Among the present residents, according to Miss Marjorie Williams, resident director of the club, are girls who are working as "extras" in the pictures, girls doing "bits" and "parts," as well as some who are taking leads. Seven different nationalities and as many different parts of the world are represented among these residents.

The new building, as planned, will have residence accommodation for eighty to 100 girls and room for many more in its general living quarters and recreation rooms. This capacity, it is estimated, will enable the club to be self-supporting. The cost of this new building, which is to take the place of the present clubhouse, will be $150,000.

FUNDS TO BE SOUGHT

This figure is the goal of the campaign, which is to take place the week of the 12th to 19th inst. Both the industry and the citizens of the community are being asked to subscribe, though the greater part of the amount needed will be assumed by the former.

Acting on the campaign committee, with Mrs. De Mille as chairman, are Mrs. William C. De Mille, Mrs. Marian Fairfax Marshall, Mrs. Harry S. Lombard, Miss Jessica Lawrence, Mrs. Willsie Martin, Mrs. J. J. Carter, Mrs. W. F. Callander, Mrs. W. A. Moses, Mrs. Sharon M. Atkins, Mrs. Kenneth McGaffey, Mrs. F. A. Habersham, Mrs. John S. Why Have Gray Hair or Dandruff?
Modern Science Says Neither is Necessary

GRAY hair handicaps one socially and in business. Moreover modern metaphysical discoveries teach us that thoughts have a harmful effect upon the body and, since gray hair constantly makes us think of age, we actually become old, despondent and discouraged. Wake up! Join the thousands who are defying old age and decay! Be youthful not only in appearance, but in fact! No matter how old you are Nourishine works, as age does not affect its action.

This tested, proven tonic has banished gray hair and dandruff for thousands of men and women. NOURISHINE is not a dye.

Reasons Why Your Hair Turns Gray

There are three chemical elements, which, in certain proportions, are furnished by the body through the hair follicle or root, and which determine the color of your hair. All these three chemicals, Iron, Sulphur and Magnesia, are in everyone's hair, whatever color it may be. If brunette, Iron predominates; if blond, Magnesia, and if brown, Sulphur. Black-haired people usually turn gray before blonds or brown-haired people because Iron is the element the body first fails to furnish.

An American chemist found that if the lost chemicals could be restored to the hair in right proportions it would return to its former color in a natural manner. After many years of patient experimentation he at last perfected a compound containing these chemicals, together with other ingredients in right proportions, and thousands of practical tests have been made, which prove that it does restore the original color by feeding and nourishing the follicle with these chemicals. He aptly named it NOURISHINE.

It is important to remember that these coloring elements are fed the hair through the roots or follicles by the body when it is in a normal condition. When the body is in an abnormal condition it ceases to furnish these elements and gray hair results. Nourishine furnishes these elements in the same manner, that is, through the roots or follicles. In using a dye or stain, it is necessary to wet the hair all over. With Nourishine you simply wet the hair roots—rubbing in vigorously. Aside from its ingredients, this is what distinguishes Nourishine from DYES or STAINS. In this connection we might state that all firms requiring you to state the original color of your hair when purchasing their preparations, are manufacturing dyes—whatever they may say to the contrary. A special dye is made for each color. THIS IS NOT THE CASE WITH NOURISHINE AS THE ONE LIQUID RESTORES THE HAIR TO ITS ORIGINAL COLOR, WHETHER BLACK, BROWN OR BLOND.

Restores Hair Color, Yet Not a Dye

Nourishine is an absolutely harmless tonic which not only restores the hair to its original color, whether it be black, brown or blond, but it cleanses the scalp, promotes hair growth and is a beneficial tonic in every way. Thousands who have no trace of gray hair use Nourishine simply as a tonic. Inasmuch as Nourishine is not a dye, you do not have to state the color of your hair when purchasing as the one bottle will restore to original shade, whatever it may be. The hair color returns naturally, evenly (no streaks.) It regains its lustre. This tonic CANNOT cause your hair to deaden, become brittle or split. Avoid dangerous substitutes.

Banishes Dandruff

If Nourishine did nothing else but remove dandruff it would remain a remarkable testimonial to scientific accomplishment. We have many cases where one-half of a bottle, used, has banished dandruff. The average case requires one bottle. It stops itching, cleanses, invigorates. Act today, for your hair health and regeneration. For dandruff alone it is worth many times the price asked. Whether you have gray hair or not use it as a tonic and to banish dandruff.

$1.25 per Bottle (8 oz.) All Drug and Department Stores.

AMONG THE KURDS

The Kemalists of Angora do not want peace. That sounds like the cry of a people brought up on goat's milk.

THE BIG THINGS

This year there are 14,061 regular full-term students at the University of California, a record which will continue to keep the university at the forefront of America's educational institutions.

WHILE THEY'RE AT IT

The Cudahy packing interests, with a firm belief in the future of Southern California, have decided to double their capacity here. But why don't they look two decades into the future, instead of one, and quadruple it?

THE PRICE-FIXERS

Minnesota farmers demand that the government fix a standard price on wheat. While Uncle Sam is setting a figure for the bearded grain he might fix the tariff on beards. There are shops where one can get a hair-cut for a quarter and there are shops where as high as six-bits or a dollar is charged.

LOOKING BRIGHT

The government reports that unemployment is decreasing, while production is greatly increasing. At the same time prices keep near the top. The latter fact may grate on the individual, but the combination means well-defined prosperity for the country as a whole. Day by day we are growing better and better in every way.

GOLD THAT STAYS

Old prospectors declare that there is gold in Griffith Park and Hollywood Hills. They are right. The realtors are taking more gold out of the Hollywood hills than was ever in the Comstock lode or the Klondike basin. There will be more gold taken out of the Hollywood hills this year than all the '49ers assembled in their careers. And it will be done without sinking a shaft, at that.

THE RANK OUTSIDER

The New York Bar Association unanimously recommends that the United States become fully affiliated with the Court of International Justice at The Hague. Not for sentimental reasons, but for the sake of world justice itself. Strange that the United States Senate never seems able to place itself in accord with the best thought of the ablest Americans. Senators are only content when searching for flaws in clay marbles. They pass the diamonds by.

OUT OF TUNE

Political gossip has it that Hiram Johnson, on his return from Washington, will give battle to Gov. Richardson's reform budget. He is said to have advised his old henchmen to cling to their jobs and defy the new regime. Efforts to economize are declared to be a slap at progressive policies. From the Johnson standpoint it is useless for a man to claim faith with the Progressives and try to save money at the same time. It simply isn't being done. One might as well attempt being a wet prohibitionist. There may be such, but they are under cover. But if Senator Johnson is going to campaign against a program of administrative economy he will appeal to sullen and unresponsive ears. In fact, some of the old-timers may take to shying rocks at him.

PERILS OF THE DEEP

The captain of an English vessel which has been used in smuggling illicit liquor into this country has his troubles. He says that it is not the revenue officers or prohibition officials that bother him, but other rum-runners and pirates. Before he can get his cargo of Scotch anywhere near the three-mile limit some bold booze buccaneer may waylay him on the high seas and unload his treasure at the point of a gun. Bootleggers and high-jackers find their greatest sport in robbing one another. The Englishman announces his intention of armoring his vessel with steel and equipping it with machine guns. First thing we know the British blockade-runners will be asking King George to assign battleships as convoys for the rum fleet. The English ships bringing Scotch whisky to the thirsty Irishmen in New York will seek protection from American pirates. How can there be any further disarmament while this critical situation is in the offing?

DESERVES HIS DISCORD

Once more the former Kaiser is reported as being hard up and the new wife is said to chafe for the fleshpots. She is said to be thrifty with her own dower. Whenever she buys a mess of hamburger for the household she charges it up against William. When she goes shopping she wants to take the Kaiser along to pay the bills, but William cannot go anywhere except to the delicatessen. The shrinkage of German marks has made a dent in William's roll. Once one of the world's richest men, he is now down to where he feels constrained to saw wood for his breakfast. The honeymoon at Doorn is over and William and his new wife are hardly comrades. The husband is said to be morose and peevish, while the bride is exacting and critical. It is not what one would call a happy home. The world, however, would be slow at conceding felicity to the Kaiser. He ought to have a wife who would chase him through a barb-wire entanglement every afternoon.

CAN GERMANY SURVIVE?

Around the question, "Is Germany a nation or only a federation?" revolves the ultimate solution of the Ruhr controversy. Twice before in history a federation of the states of Central Europe has been broken up by France. United they are a formidable force, as they proved in the period between 1870 and 1919; divided they are politically weak and not to be feared economically.

At the present time the consensus of neutral opinion in Europe is to the effect that the unexpressed purpose of the occupation of the industrial heart of Germany is to produce a political and industrial situation which will cause the German states to fall apart. It would be to the immense advantage of France if Prussia, Saxony, Bavaria, the Hamburg Free State and the Rhineland were to each establish and maintain a separate government.

In the heyday of French glory and supremacy—the reign of Louis XIV—a successful war broke up the German federation. Napoleon accomplished this feat a second time in the beginning of the nineteenth century. The present German federation, known as the empire, is only fifty years old. Roots of national unity do not extend very far into the soil in so brief a period.

At the present time Germany is an anomaly; for there is something abnormal about a federation that retains the name of empire, but constitutes a republican form of government. The republic is itself still in an experimental state and its Socialistic government is a glaring example of inefficiency. Can a federation in such a condition preserve its unity when a powerful and triumphant enemy has it by the throat?

As pointed out by The Times two months ago, the seizure of the Ruhr industrial district by the French makes the payment of reparations by the rest of Germany impossible. The French occupation has not produced to date one-tenth the cost to France of supporting an army of 150,000 men in foreign territory. There are no immediate prospects that France can ever clear enough from holding the Ruhr to pay expenses. It is for this reason that both the British and the American governments advised against seizing the Ruhr.

French financiers and economists had no illusions about making money out of the Ruhr occupation. But they were equally well aware that, possessing the Ruhr, France could exercise permanent control over the industrial life of Germany, that she could thus prevent her enemy from making either an economic or military recovery. Germany can make no extensive military preparations while deprived of the Ruhr. The French hold it as a hostage, as a guaranty against another German invasion.

But this will profit France nothing if she must keep a powerful army in German territory indefinitely. The one alternative is to encourage the decentralization of the Germanic states. There have already been intimations that the French government would look with favor on a movement to form an independent government in Bavaria and another in the Rhineland. The German press asserts that separatist propaganda has been traced to French sources; which might be true; as such a partition would secure for France the permanent domination of Western Europe.

Germany is now slowly disintegrating. The government has not met its obligations since August. The amount of taxes collected for the support of the government is not equal to one-half the governmental expense. A government that runs so far behind cannot long endure. Unless the German people consent to further sacrifices, the federated government will soon cease to function.

Is there sufficient love of the empire, sufficient national unity, to enable Germany to survive? Present indications are that the federation will fall apart, as it did in the days of Louis XIV and of Napoleon. If this does take place the occupation of the Ruhr, from the French point of view, will be justified, whatever other peoples will think about it. What the effect of Balkanizing Central Europe will have on the future is another matter.

"ILLOGICALS"

All good citizens subscribe to the principle that disputes should be settled by courts of justice instead of by strong-arm methods.

Uncle Sam wants to be a good citizen of the world.

He has shown that during the last week by paying Norway $12,000,000 for ships commandeered during the war after the claim had been adjudicated and the award made at The Hague.

The irreconcilables who don't want Uncle Sam to be a good citizen of the world say they want him to avoid all foreign arrangements which might some day entangle him in another war.

Yet disputes are human and there are only two ways of settling them, by force and by justice—by law. So irreconcilables really are illogicals.

As soon as the International Court of Justice demonstrates its power to settle international disputes by law instead of by force war will begin to go into the discard. For there isn't a country on earth the people of which do not dread war. It is, in fact, the dread of war in our own country to which the irreconcilables appeal when they try to make the impossibility of American aloofness from world affairs appear possible.

It is not fair to the rest of the world for the strongest nation of all to hold aloof from the International Court, which may do so much for the welfare and progress of humanity. And it is not fair to the people of the United States, either, for we have all had ample proof in the depression following the war that our own prosperity is greatly affected by the welfare of the world.

THE FRONTIER PASSES

A bill to sell a number of the old frontier forts has passed both the United States Senate and the House of Representatives.

This is the lowering of the curtain on the dramatic history of the old American border—a drama that supplied one of the most picturesque, colorful and thrilling chapters of recorded human history.

It is the drama that produced such types as the old fur trapper and buffalo hunter and the frontier scout—a drama that produced such characters as Daniel Boone, Davy Crockett, Kit Carson, Buffalo Bill, Wild Bill, Calamity Jane; and among the soldiers—Crook, Custer, Terry, Wesley Merritt, Chaffee and Nelson A. Miles.

It was a drama that produced such tragedies of imperishable memory as the defense of the Alamo, the massacre of the Little Big Horn River and a thousand vivid incidents that marked the trail across the plains.

It was a drama that even brought to the pages of history great Indians who would otherwise have lived and fought and have been forgotten. For who can deny the laurels to such characters as Quanah Parker, the great Comanche leader; to Chief Gall of the Sioux, Chief Joseph, American Horse and a dozen other Indians of the highest personal qualities and character. Even the blood-thirsty old Geronimo was a soldier of amazing brilliancy and resourcefulness. In his fight that lasted an entire generation against the overwhelmingly superior forces of the United States Army this old Apache wretch showed military genius that finds no comparison in recorded history outside the exploits of Alexander the Great in his first Persian campaign.

With the sale of the famous old forts—ramparts of the conquering race as they pressed in upon the savage civilizations of a primitive era—the chapter passes.

That part of our life is over.

It is not to be denied that the passing of the old, free, open days of America involves a serious national problem.

With the passing of the border there passes the day of great open spaces, the passing of days of excitement and adventure; the passing of free land and unconfined liberty of action.

A new day is coming—a day of inevitable congestion; of dense population; of intensive industrial life, of disciplined society.

We know what type of American was produced by the border period of our life. We know what ideals resulted from that phase of our national life.

What will the next phase do to us and to our race type and to our ideals and to our national life?

That is on the knees of the gods.

ISLE OF PINES

Perhaps people should not take too seriously the situation that has developed on the Isle of Pines, considering the source whence the unpleasantness started. At first sight an order from the island authorities prohibiting the flying of the American flag on Lincoln's Birthday suggests base ingratitude toward the nation that freed the Cubans from the yoke of Spain.

But later explanations may modify this judgment. It may have been, after all, merely a display of shocking bad taste by some temporary jacks-in-office.

To assume from this isolated instance that the general sentiment of Cuba is hostile to the nation to whom—not in vain—she appealed for help in her hour of need is to argue from the lesser to the greater in a way neither fair nor logical.

Evidently, anti-American propaganda has been for some time circulating in the Isle of Pines from private and interested individuals which culminated in a studied affront to our nationals on a great American anniversary.

Such propaganda has been partially effective on account of the present unsatisfactory status of the island. While nominally under Cuban sovereignty, the United States exercises mandatory authority.

The mandate is a European import that tends to cause friction wherever it is tried. The Isle of Pines should belong wholly to Cuba or wholly to the United States. "Ye cannot serve two masters."

Senator Pomerene has a resolution before Congress calling for the cession of the island to the United States. The pro-Cuban party seized on this as a pretext for a demonstration against the American flag.

The agents, however, behind the demonstration were not the people of Cuba, but the bootlegging fraternity for whom, as a base for their nefarious traffic, the Isle of Pines is worth its weight in gold.

Naturally to gentry of this description the sight of Old Glory flying to the breeze is about as soothing as a matador's cloak to an infuriated bull. Wherefore the insult of the 12th of February should not be laid against the Cuban people.

GETTING ACTION

The mills are grinding. Big Tim Murphy is now a numbered felon in the Leavenworth prison. The Chicago labor leader has been charged at various times with crimes ranging from murder down to wife-beating. He was accused of grafting on his own labor organization and of conspiracy and blackmail in connection with others. But no Chicago jury could convict him until he took to robbing the United States mails and the Federal government went after him. Even there his influence is indicated. Although the robberies in which he was concerned aggregated $200,000 or more, Murphy escapes with a four-year sentence and a fine of $20,000.

TWO MINUTES OF OPTIMISM

BY HERMAN J. STICH

Keep a Safety Valve on Your Pride

Some one has said "The human being is like a whale, whenever he gets to the top he blows."

There is much truth to the thought that little quip conveys. Most humans are inclined to "blow." The business man likes to tell his friends how much business he transacted in the past year, how much the year before, how much he expects in the year to come and how much his own progressiveness had to do with the business he did. The leader in the social world likes to be reminded of her position there. All of us like praise, and the most of us are a little pleased at reference to our positions in life, if we are ourselves pleased with our jobs.

There is a legitimate pride in self which should not be stifled. If the whale didn't come to the surface and blow once in a while he couldn't live. Most human beings must, though we admit it or not, give vent, to a smaller or greater extent, to personal vanities. Few are blessed with that virtue of taciturnity which enables us to keep ourselves to ourselves. All of us ought to try to develop and maintain a sane safety valve for our pride.

But too much "blowing," too much vanity, pride and personal advertising is disastrous. A man or a woman may have an electric and powerful personality, but once that person grows into the habit of continued extollation of self he or she is certain to become the bane of friends and acquaintances.

The man who likes to talk about himself and his pleasures and performances, no matter what they be, is tiresome. He gets to be like the continually sick or near-sick person who loves to diagnose personal ills for the edification of any who are forced to hear.

Also, there is one brand of human whom people despise and ridicule. That is the small executive who is impressed too much by the importance, or near-importance, of his duties. These men or women are usually self-satisfied, completely happy at their jobs and without a great desire to move forward. The man or woman who wishes to get ahead will look at his or her position with a more exacting eye. He or she is more apt to see that there are bigger and better things ahead.

The really "big" men and women of the world are shy. The genius and the accepted leaders in business or the arts aren't continually talking about self or self's work. They are doing the listening and the learning. They know that all is not conquered when they have captured their own small sectors.

Vermont was admitted into the Union in the year 1791.

An act of Congress providing $25,000 for traveling expenses of the President of the United States was approved by Congress in the year 1907. The next Congress made this a permanent addition to the President's salary.

OUR SUNNY FRIEND

Two of a Kind

Long years agone a yarn I read
Of a guy who made folks fit his bed
By stretching their limbs with tackle and block
Or lopping them off with his snickersnock
In a manner quite unlawful,
But as I pass adown the years
I find fate doing the same, my dears,
To white or black or bond or free,
To Smith or Libby or you or me,
It's really rather awful.

My soul has always said I'm not
(And surely a soul should know what's what,)
The sort that ought to be confined
To work of body or work of mind,
My soul has kept repeating
That I by rights had ought to be
As free to loaf as the birds are free,
But fate says get on the job, Old Top,
Or you'll be lacking a place to flop
Or a place to do your eating.

Jones knows that he was really made
For finer things than the plumbing trade.
Smith would have mastered the saxophone,
But neighbors made him leave it alone.
Jack Libby pined for fame
And to sit in the seat where Lincoln sat,
But fate made him a Democrat.
And so it goes, Procrustes trimmed
Up folks or left them horribly jimmed,
But fate does quite the same.

I was going down the street the other day with Billie Lale and we met a couple, or you might say three, for the man was wheeling a baby buggy, and Billie spoke to the man and, after we had passed, I asked him who they were.

"Mr. and Mrs. Addison Pugh and their community child."

I asked him what a community child was and he said, well, they have both been married before and now they have three children, one is his and one is hers and the one he was wheeling that day is their community child.

Professor Dink Beeson asks why the world is so much stricter in its judgment of those who make their living by their brain than it is of those who make their living by brawn.

Take Alexander Patty, for instance, we pay to see him walk on his head and smoke a cigarette on his head and so long as he does it in business hours we don't care what he does outside of business hours.

But let a man stand on his head intellectually, the prof says, let him be a philosopher, for instance, like Nietzsche and discover that white is really deep-dyed black or claim to discover it.

He has no escape granted him so long as he lives, but must build his whole scheme of existence around his theory, must make all on, not only his writing, but his life aside from his writings, agree with it.

No joining the Methodist Church for Nietzsche.

Or the Rotary Club.

Charlie Chaplin wears awkward shoes "on the lot," yet no one for a minute claims that he is betraying his art if he puts on a pair of neat-fitting Regal vici kids or Douglas ox-bloods when he goes strolling with Pola Negri.

Let a man write a book with the words misspelled, the prof says, like Josh Billings, and he must go on misspelling them similarly for the rest of his career. Let him write a book full of errors in grammar, like Ring Lardner, and the expression of thought in the classic diction of Laura Jean Libbey or Walter Pater is denied to him for evermore.

over there, has started a department of his own. The pay $6 a year for garb- collection, three times a week. Supervisor Carleton, ed a contract for a make the collections. I know what the silent, open are coming to.

In other districts the can- in about the same shape naked Indians went roam- on, dodging nettle bushes.

ERS BIG DISTRICT

a ranger sometimes feels feudal baron you read about, over a broad province. ranger's district is a heap than a lot of feudal prov- I bet. The Big Bear has 500,000 acres, two of are level ground. There are 970 permits out there—a few more than in San Antonio Canyon, where there are 250. A feudal baron would likely go nutty trying to boss places like those are in the summer.

"Of course, about half of the reserve is patented land—title vested in private ownership before the reserve boundaries were made. But that only makes a ranger's job all the harder.

"Every man, woman and child who comes into the reserve is a potential fire hazard. More fires are started by careless smokers than in any other way, so I guess you might call the men extra hazardous. A cigaret butt flicked out of an automobile may wipe out miles of forest—and a lot of cabins, too, and a resort or so.

"The big fire that threatened Pine Knot and Arrowhead Lake resorts last October started from a match or a bit of burning tobacco, in back of the Arrowhead Hot Springs garage.

RECORD IS SPOILED

"We never found out who started it. But 13,500 acres were burned over. And up until then we had a record year. Only 1500 acres in Angeles Forest, beside that big one, burned in 1922.

"In 1921, 10,000 acres were swept over. In the last ten years, the lowest annual fire loss on the watershed was 2000 acres. In 1919 we had a disastrous season. Great fires took 160,000 acres. One wiped out the entire San Gabriel watershed. That fire has cost ranchers thousands of dollars in water shortage, in floods that eroded their fields and in destruction of grazing range.

"Unless the department at Washington is convinced that a request for a road or trail is a step in fire protection, it is difficult for our office to get funds to build it. The bureau of forestry doesn't care about revenue. Last year, cabin permits brought in $25,000 in Angeles Forest. But we have to operate on appropriations. That $35,000 went into Uncle Sam's treasury.

USE MEANS AVAILABLE

"So we have to lay out a group of cabin sites according to the means we have for making it accessible. The big flood control dam in San Dimas Canyon helped us to open a lot of beautiful sites in the west and main forks of San Dimas Creek. Two hundred sites have been taken and about 150 homes built in there.

"The county built part of the road. The forestry service spent about $25,000 on it, to. Some day, there will be scores of big flood control dams in the watershed. Some of them, instead of controlling the runoff during storms, will be permanent lakes, filled with bass or trout.

"A permitee pays $15 a year to lease a lot. If he sells his cabin, the second permitee pays $20. The limit is $25 a year. Think of that! For $500 to $1000 a family can build a comfortable home in the mountains! Unless business obliges them to live in the city, they can make a year-round home in most of the districts. Because some of the best cabin sites are only two or three hours' drive from Los Angeles. Yet some folks say this is a 'rich man's country!'

RENEWAL OF TRAILS

"Eventually Angeles Forest will be a network of roads and trails, and hundreds of mountain villages. Right now we have 1300 miles of trail. It has to be worked over once every three years. That means 400 miles of trail building every season. Of course, we have help. Seventeen rangers can't do all that single-handed. Often assistant rangers who wear a badge just during the summer months are kept busy at trail building all winter.

"A permitee has one year to improve his lot. He must build a house in harmony with the surroundings. By that, I mean no rag shack set upon a board floor. It must be a permanent building.

"You see all sorts of weird houses. Every owner has a plan all his own of what a mountain cabin should be like. Some of them look like they were cut out of the funny paper.

"Then there is a lady who persuaded her husband to file on a lot up in Burnt Mill Canyon at Arrowhead Lake so she could send all her old furniture up there and get new things for her home in town. Funny things happen to a married man and he never knows it.

ROBBERIES ARE SCARCE

"A lot of cabin builders avoid putting expensive things in their houses because they are afraid of thieves. Sometimes cabins are broken into while the owners are away, but not often. The rangers get to know the owners, and are quick to observe a stranger in a district. There are probably just as many burglaries right in Los Angeles—yes, more—than in Angeles Forest. It's too bad that when folks come out from town that they have to bring town ways with them—padlocks and the like.

"A lot of cabins are built by a bunch of young fellows who club in together on the expense. Figuring these and the cabins I know where two families own them jointly, I would say that more than 10,000 persons have mountain homes. Multiply this many times by the guests they bring and you get an idea of the ranger's work in the busy summer.

"There are many campers, besides. We have auto camps, in many places, with water developed and fireplaces built. There are a string of these camps in Bouquet Canyon. Right now a new one is being built just above Glenn Ranch in Lytle Creek Canyon. They are using a stump puller to clear off four and one-half acres of ground. They will level it and plant shade trees.

CAMPS CONVENIENT

"Auto camps are built at places to suit public convenience. For instance, there is the camp just below the control on Mill Creek, on the road to Big Bear Lake. We found that so many camped there, waiting to catch the first morning control to make the climb in the cool of the day, that we established the camp grounds for them.

"All rangers are State fire wardens. They have power to command any citizen to fight fires, in emergency. Although the law does not compel it, we pay fire fighters 35 cents an hour. We had 500 men working at one time in the Arrowhead fire last October.

"A lot of people like to watch fires but don't especially crave to get in and fight 'em. I saw a fellow one time, watching a firecrew sweating over shovel handles, who had come up from a resort barefoot, so he couldn't be asked to go into the brush.

"But I took care of him. I lent him a pair of shoes, made him put 'em on, and saw that he got a nice, hot position up in the first row.

DUTY OF CITIZENS

"It is every citizen's duty to help protect the forest. What if private interests had absorbed the forest before the reserve policy was created? Then few of us would be allowed to visit these places. There be 'no trespassing' signs on every bush."

The ranger knocked his pipe bowl against the heel of his boot and toed the glowing ashes into the soil, evidently untrustful of the green grass, that it might burst into flame.

"Three miles to go up the hill, yet. I must move along," said he.

A growing moon cast a radiance that silhouetted the long ridge beyond. The ranger paused to admire the scene and said:

"I never get tired of the hills. I'm not making a lot of money, but there's something here that you never can buy in the city. Don't you feel sorry for the thousands of people who want to be where 'there's something doing' all the time?

"Why, there's a lot going on right in these hills, if they only had eyes and ears to see and hear it. The other day I met a geologist who told me that this is the youngest mountain chain on the American Continent.

"He said that these mountains haven't really grown up yet; that each year, the peaks are getting a little higher, raising faster than erosion wears them away. They are still growing, he said, just like everything else in Southern California!"

Dutch Planning to Honor Queen on Anniversary

On September 6, Queen Wilhelmina of Holland will celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of her ascension to the throne. That event will be enthusiastically celebrated in Holland and her colonies. A special committee has been organized in Holland charged with the celebration of the silver jubilee.

This committee has decided to present to the Queen a token from contributions received from native-born Hollanders throughout the world.

F. J. Zeehandelaar, Consul of the Netherlands for Southern California and Arizona, has been requested to appeal to the Hollanders in this section for funds for that purpose. The Consul's office is at 1008 Van Nuys Building.

LOOKING AHEAD IN RADIO

Descendants Century from Now Must Recognize That KHJ Programs Were Meritorious

BY BEN A. MARKSON

[The idea used in this review was suggested by Canon Perdido, writer of plays.]

It was 100 years from yesterday, if you can project yourself that far into the future at a moment's notice. Say, for example, Saturday, March 3, 2023 A.D. A radio device had been perfected, a powerful oscillation detector which tapped the strata of space without regard to light-years, whatever that means.

In other words, with this marvelous radio instrument, the operator could adjust his set to catch the faintest vibration lingering in the celestial distances—reach out and tune in on concerts that had been broadcast 100 years back, or 1923, to be specific. Had the instrument been just a mite more powerful it might have been possible to glean from circling infinity the exact words uttered by Napoleon about the Battle of Waterloo; or with still more power, absorb the original rehearsals of Demosthenes to the sea waves.

But it was capable of getting behind the flight of time as long ago as 1923, and following is a description of the KHJ concert as written by one of our reportorial descendents:

From out of the tomb of time last night the Radio Lightyear Annihilator disintered a radio concert given on March 3, 1923, by ancestors of the present generation. Although radio was in its infancy at that period the newly perfected contrivance delved through the cosmic acoustic recedents and resuscitated the sounds clearly, exactly as produced by KHJ, the Los Angeles Times, when the world was a full century younger.

SONGS SEEM STRANGE

Strange, exotic and old-fashioned were some of the songs and the instrumental numbers; others still survive and are familiar to the present age as classics.

According to historical records of newspaper broadcast stations the announced was called Uncle John. Scientists grouped in the radio test tower of the observatory on Mt. Wilson heard a clear, strong voice call out:

"The program tonight has been arranged through the courtesy of C. W. Harsin, basso cantante, with Mrs. C. W. Harsin as accompanist."

The songs given by Mr. Harsin were entitled "Out on the Deep," by Lohr, and "Song of the Heart," by Tunison.

It is the marvelous to speculate on the survival of voices long after the singers have departed. The voice of the basso was full-throated and dynamic, and contained a wealth of understanding. It boomed forth like a mighty trumpet of an era long gone by. The accompaniment was distinct, bell-like and lavishing. Little did they dream, these artists, that today we would have interplanetary concerts with spheres millions of miles distant.

"Camille Firestone," said the announcer, "violinist, will favor you with 'Viennese Melody,' by Kreisler, accompanied on the Knabe by Edith Bokenkrager."

RIVULET OF MUSIC

A thread of silken tone emanated from space. It was truly a harmony gift from another world and through it beat the subtle cadence of piano notes. Another violin solo was "Serenade," by Arensky, a seraphic thing that caused grey-headed radio professors to exclaim in wonder. And still another was "The Brook," by Rene de Boisdeffre. It was as though a rivulet of music trickled from the skies.

Mary Teitsworth, mezzo soprano, was announced in a number, "The Wren," by Benedict. Unseen, like a feathered singer hidden in the foliage of a tree, she trilled the beautiful melody and with it came a flute obligato by Marjorie Teitsworth. "Creole Love Song," was next on the ether, odd, warm, beautiful workmanship of song, and then "Lungi Dal Caro Bene," by Secchi. The voice, revived after a lapse of 100 years was fresh and lovely.

These invisible artists, did they ever in their weirdest dreams speculate that they would be heard five-score years from the date of their program? Marjorie Teitsworth, flutist, in those olden days, might have had that thought when she played "On Wings of Songs," by Mendelssohn. For unquestionably she gave the melody wings with which it fluttered like a great, golden butterfly until caught in the net of radio science. Like a fragrant page from the past was her playing of "Albumleaf," by Kirchner.

CLASSIC PIECES LIVE

Reborn from the void of time were several piano solos by Edith Bokenkrager, pianist, classic pieces that have lived until now. The wondrous chords of Liszt's "Concert Etude in D Flat," and Paderewski's "Minuet in G," were included. And to think that the pianist's fingers glided over the keys in The Times radio studio before the present age lived!

Does the spirit of Ralph Beegle hold a shining horn in some far off realm today? One hundred years ago he lifted his cornet to his lips, blew softly and awakened the notes of jubilance contained in half-forgotten pieces such as "The World is Waiting for the Sunrise," by Ernest Seitz, "The Sunshine of Your Smile," and "Only a Year Ago," the last number written by Fred G. Bowles. "Only a Year Ago!" The keenly interested radio scientists smiled at the humor in the contrast, for instead of one year, 100 years had sped. The announcer said that Hasel Wilkins was the accompanist, and the piano blended excellently with the cornet.

Two earlier programs were caught by the magic radio detector. It was evening when the voice of Alma E. Urquart, contralto, was transmitted through the vacuum plates of the radio light-year annihilator, and a hush fell upon the assembled men of science on Mt. Wilson. The towers of the eighty-five-story buildings in Los Angeles were burnished in the rays of the setting sun. A panorama of vivid colors mantled the Pacific skies. Gloaming, like a purple cape, settled softly over the mountain ranges, and then was heard "Cradle Song," by Kate Vannah; "Evening Brings Rest and You," with a soothing violin obligato by William E. Ranson; "There is Ever a Song Somewhere," by James W. Riley; and "Carmela," by Torri.

How the voice lulled one! How it crooned! There was rest, there was bliss, there was a clairyoyant repose to it. On top the world in this age of mighty machinery and mechanical wonders, songs from dim, graceful yesterday descended at dusk like a benison. And with it was a tender witchery of piano accompaniment by Florence H. Jones.

SOLOS ON PIANO

The last program caught included piano solos by Lois Ellenberger, and the voice of the announcer made it known that she was the artist pupil of Leah Wood. Records show that Miss Ellenberger was a young girl when she played, but it was apparent that the marvel of radio at that time gave her great inspiration. There seemed to be a youthful delight in her playing of "Valse Caprice," by Newlands, and "Theme and Variations," by Beethoven. One could fairly picture her at the piano, smiling, alive with enthusiasm and putting her heart into the music.

The last thing speared from the ether was a talk by Stephen W. Cunningham, secretary of the Southern California Canners' Bureau. It was in regard to a national canned-foods week, and the importance of the canned-foods industry to California. It is tremendously more important today, but from his subject it is seen that our ancestors were not such a slow aggregation.

A treatise on the 100-year-old concert is being written by Prof. Hoosis of the California Museum and Radio Research Bureau.

Passes Century Mark But Takes Life Membership

That the first hundred years is the easiest is the belief of former Senator Cornelius Cole, who, though past the century mark, has just taken out a life membership in the Sons of the Revolution, California Society.

After handing his check for $100 to Pierson W. Banning, president of the local society, Senator Cole declared his belief that he had made a good investment. He is one of a number who recently have become life members of the society.

ANNOUNCE AWARDS IN PRINT SHOW

Judges Select Winners at the Fourth International Exhibition

Armin Hansen was yesterday awarded the gold medal offered by the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce for the best group of prints exhibited at the Fourth International Print Makers' Exhibition which opened at the Los Angeles Museum, Exposition Park, on the 1st inst., and which will be continued throughout the month. The picture which decided the contest was Mr. Hansen's "Sardine Barge."

Mrs. Henry E. Huntington's prize, offered for the best etching, was won by Alfred Bentley for his contribution entitled "The Wayfarers" and the prize given by Mr. and Mrs. Alanson Bryan for the best American print was awarded to Edward Hoffer for "East Side Interior." The silver and bronze medals, offered by the Print Makers' Society, were awarded to Leonard R. Squirrell for "The High Mill" and to William A. Levy for his "Ben Ami."

The exhibition at the Los Angeles Museum of History, Science and Art is said to be the most comprehensive collection of contemporary work of its character ever shown. The exhibit consists of etchings, lithographs, block prints and engravnigs. Nearly 1500 prints were submitted by artists from various parts of the world, but for lack of exhibiting space the jury found it impossible to select more than 423 prints.

SUPPOSED PENNILESS MAN LEAVES $5000

ONCE WEALTHY MINE OWNER LOST CLAIMS BEFORE PASSING OUT

When David Cohn died on February 17, at his home, 3019½ South Raymond avenue, it was reported that he was penniless, although he and his brother Adolph at one time had held title to the Irish Mag mining claims in Bisbee, now estimated to be worth many millions of dollars.

A life insurance policy came to light yesterday, however, by which his two nieces, Miss Flora Cohn and Mrs. Dora Lannigan, with whom he made his home, will receive about $5000. A small balance also has been found in a downtown bank.

The Cohn brothers conducted a cigar store at Tombstone, Ariz., almost thirty years ago when they acquired title to the Irish Mag claims from an insolvent saloonkeeper. Subsequently they lost them by adverse court rulings. David Cohn afterward became prominent in Masonic Lodge affairs in Arizona.

NEW LIFE IN FUND DRIVE FOR CHURCH

Building Campaign Will be Launched Late This Month for Wilshire Edifice

Added impetus is being given to the building fund campaign to be launched the latter part of this month to finance the erection of a Cathedral Church in the Wilshire district.

The proposed Wilshire Boulevard Congregational Church is to be built at Wilshire Boulevard and Plymouth avenue, and the edifice, designed to cost $500,000 will be one of the most stately and beautiful in the city.

The spiritual need of the Wilshire district residents will be met in the proposed new Cathedral Church, which, while erected as a Congregational edifice, will stand as a strictly democratic, truly nonsectarian, community church, its doors being open to the people of all creeds, all denominations, the visitors within our midst, the chance passer-by.

With the plan of financing this splendid church edifice of which Rev. Frank Dyer, D.D., is the pastor, an extensive building campaign will be conducted during the latter part of March. Organization plans are now under way and the selection of committees and teams will be completed soon.

AID SOUGHT FOR CHILDREN'S HOME

OLD INSTITUTION MAY BE FORCED TO CLOSE FOR LACK OF FUNDS

An appeal to the citizens of Los Angeles to come to the aid of the Children's Home Society of Southern California "in its hour of greatest need" was issued yesterday by Jessie Jordan, superintendent of the home.

Unless additional funds are forthcoming at once, the society, one of the oldest of its kind in California, will be forced to close its home and suspend activities, it was stated. The society has been operating for approximately thirty years and has found homes for hundreds of orphaned and abandoned children. The society offices are located at 919 East Twenty-fifth street.

PLEADS FOR FAIRNESS TO NEGRO RACE

Writer Tells City Club to Solve Problem by Use of Common Sense

"Back of social and economic problems—yes, and back of the race problem—stand the dragon of selfishness and the sloth of ignorance," declared William E. Dubois, negro author, speaking before the City Club yesterday on "The Negro in America."

The race problem is not local but international and, affecting all humanity, is a human problem, Dr. Dubois said. This problem, he continued, cannot be solved by prejudice and vituperation, but must be met by common sense and courage and the will to justice.

"The world belongs to all races," declared the speaker. "No race can lose by assisting all other races to live and progress, and no people can truly progress if they attempt to profit at the expense of the degradation of their fellow beings.

"The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People might as well have been called an association for the advancement of Americans, for the solution of the race problem including economic and social difficulties, must of necessity advance the well being of the nation as a whole," said the speaker.

The program of the City Club for next week is as follows: Monday, noon, Hamilton Holt will speak on "America and the Peace;" evening, "The Santa Fe Slauson Franchise" will be discussed by Fred P. Gregson, traffic manager of the Los Angeles Jobbers' Association, and George H. Dunlop, for the Municipal League; Wednesday noon, John Dickinson will speak on "Los Angeles and the Motor Bus;" Friday, noon, community sing, and at the luncheon hour Saturday, Edward S. Jordan will give an address on "The Public and the Greatest Business in the World."

COUE'S IDEA IS OLD, SAY ATTORNEY'S

Defendants Fight Court's Injunction Against "Day-by-Day" Film

Dr. Emile Coue neither originated the theory of auto-sugestion nor its accompanying phrase, attorneys for the Coast Film Exchange and S. M. Herzog argued before Judge Keeth in Superior Court yesterday in their efforts to dissolve a temporary writ restraining them from exhibiting their picture "Day by Day."

The attorneys contended that the Coue theory of self cure was enunciated some score of years ago and the "Day by Day" phrase also had its inception some years before the little Frenchman's advent on the world's scientific stage.

Judge Keetch, however, refused to dissolve the writ and set the hearing for Tuesday.

The injunction was obtained by the Educational Film Corporation of America, which contended that it has the exclusive rights to exhibit Coue pictures in this country under a contract with the Frenchman. The Educational Corporation maintains that the Coast exchange is infringing on its rights and misleading the public by exhibiting its "Day by Day" film and asks for a temporary injunction and $100,000 in punitive and exemplary damages. Judge Keptch raised the bond of the Educational Corporation from $2500 to $20,000 yesterday to protect the defendant in case an adverse judgment is handed down against the plaintiff company.

Chamber Will Take Up Safety First Project

Discussion of Los Angeles' safety first campaign conducted in the industries of the city will occupy the noon hour at the next regular luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce Wednesday, at the Alexandria.

Under the direction of John D. Maxfield, the safety and fire prevention department of the chamber has effected a saving to the city of $800,000 by methods used for several years in the department. Fire insurance buyers have been saved exceptionally large sums through reduction of rates on dwellings by 20 per cent and on mercantile risks 15 per cent approximately.

Speakers on the program will talk briefly. Will French, chairman of the State Industrial Accident Commission, and George B. Muldaur of the National Board of Fire Underwriters will deal with safety prevention campaign results along industrial and fire lines.

This animal weighed about 2000 pounds.

The following day the party shot two Colobus monkeys, and in the next two killed several small antelope and a large water buck, with twenty-five inch horns.

VARIETY OF GAME

On the rest of the trip to the Kenna River, about 350 miles, Mr. Burge shot five or six more bucks, one lesser koodoo, a prize specimen, and many birds. Mrs. Burge shot twenty guinea and spur fowl; Selecman killed two Grant's gazelles, with one shot, and also shot a large oryx, and Herman Burge killed one gazelle, one oryx and one zebra.

"All this shooting," the diary said, "while traveling with four wagons and a Ford car."

On Christmas Day the party lined up its eighty porters, skinners, gun-bearers, cooks, trackers and the like for the raising of the American and British flags. As this region is just north of the equator, the sun shines almost straight down and it is doubtless 160 degrees in the sun at noon, Mr. Burge estimates. The shade is pleasant and the nights are cool enough for blankets, however.

Gamut Club to Give Regular Monthly Dinner

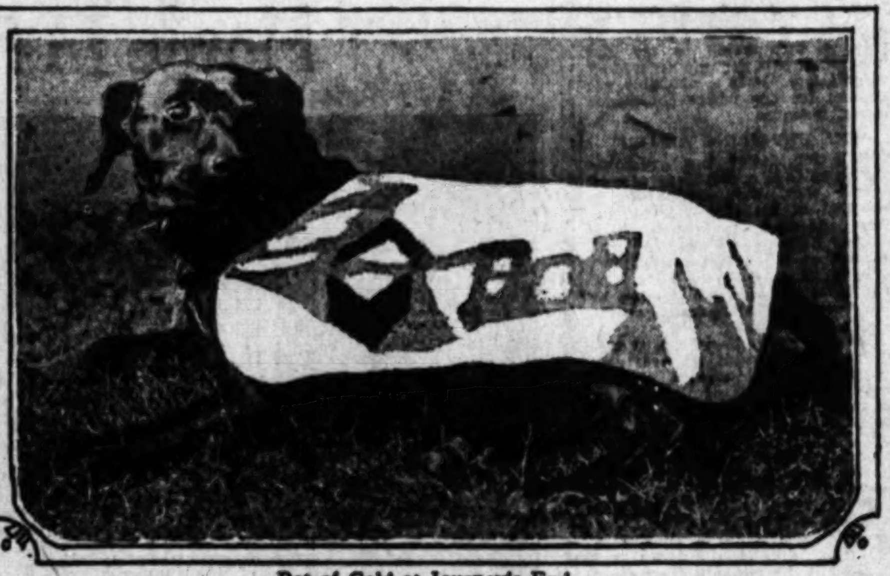
The Gamut Club's regular monthly dinner for members and male guests is announced for Wednesday evening, March 7, by Roy W. Dodd, newly elected manager. The dinner will start at 6:30 o'clock and will be followed by a program of entertainment to be supplied by W. Francis Gates. Reservations must be in by Monday, Dodd announces.

Ballots on the question of the club holding a monthly social dance have been mailed to the membership, and the result probably will be announced at the dinner Wednesday.

The club, in association with the Verse Writers' Club of Southern California, will present Monday night Jessie B. Rittenhouse, poet, author and lecturer, who will speak on "Prominent Figures in Poetic Revival." Tickets are now on sale at the club, 1044 South Hope street. Music for the occasion will be furnished by the Jamison singing quartet, composed of Jean Colwell, Hazel Bryson Anderson, Edna Voorhees, Daisy Prideaux and Abbie Norton Jamison, including the accompanist.

RAINBOW DIVISION'S FIGHTING MASCOT

The Dog That Enlisted for the Duration of the War



Pot of Gold at Journey's End

REAL girl, real dog. What's his name? Pot of Gold. He's the Rainbow Division's dog, born in a crackerbox back of the kitchen at Neuf-Maison, Lorraine. No, he's not a thoroughbred, never wore stripes or hung around Washington during the war. Just dog, but he went through hell with the Los Angeles companies E and F, of the Rainbow Division.

He never missed a day at the front. Pot of Gold suffered shell shock in the Argonne and has been recuperating in Southern California. Waited until he got home and took an American wife, liked the climate here and has settled down and raised a large family, gifted as mascots. He will appear in "Name It" the Rainbow Division's big merry-go-round revue, with a dancing cast of one hundred and fifty dashing society damsels which will be shown at Philharmonic Auditorium evenings of March 7 and 8.

The Rainbow Division got its name because composed of National Guard units from twenty-seven different States and the District of Columbia. The Los Angeles companies E and F were entirely volunteer and sighted the dripping shore of France November 1917. The Rainbow Division became renowned at the Somme-Marne defensive, where they settled the enemy.

Southern California Chapter, of the Rainbow Division has never solicited funds. It is a virile organization, helping its men to help themselves. Its president, Leroy Dawson, is the most shot-up man in the Division. He boasts a false leg and eye, an imitation eyebrow and a goodlooking nose made out of a rib. He admits with Adam that strange and wonderful things have been made out of ribs. Dawson is studying law in Los Angeles.

The Division is financing "Name It" which promises Los Angeles a brilliant "King Tut" ballet, a classical dance burlesque and the latest songs and dances from Paris. The funds will be used by the Division to give home-comforts to their buddies in tuberculosis hospitals and to start a building fund for a clubhouse.

HAT SALE WILL AID CHARITY

Headgear of Any Kind is Asked for Children's Hospital Aid

Hats!

Spring hats in every variety—large, small and in the popular shades and colors—

These will be included in the third of the pre-Easter sales being held by the Salvage Committee of the Children's Hospital, of which Mrs. Budd Frankenfield is chairman—funds from these special events going toward the maintenance of the hospital.

The hat sale is scheduled to open Monday, continuing for three days, and a large and complete assortment of headwear is needed in order to meet the great demand of the salvage department's clientele of men, women and children.

"Look through your bandboxes and in your wardrobes," is the earnest appeal being sent out by the committee. The salvage department can use spring hats if all sizes, shapes, colors and kinds.

Hats for men, hats for women and hats for children—send them in, for every hat means a contribution toward the happiness of some little child in the Children's Hospital, relief from suffering, and a chance to grow well and strong.

The hospital salvage department maintains a truck, and will send for any donations that cannot be delivered at the headquarters, 712 Maple avenue. Any useful articles in the way of furniture, dishes, rugs, pictures, toys, books, bric-a-brac and clothing, will be welcomed as contributions. The telephone number is Pico 2116.

TAILORS PREPARING FOR DISPLAY WEEK

SPRING STYLES TO BE SHOWN IN IMPORTANT COAST CENTERS

Arrangements for "Merchant Tailors' Spring Display Week," which is to be conducted in Los Angeles and in all other important Pacific Coast cities next week, will be made by committees appointed yesterday at a special meeting of the local merchant tailors.

The seasonal display weeks, planned for the spring and fall, were decided on at the recent convention of the Pacific Coast Merchant Tailors' Association at Oakland in order to mark the different seasons in men's apparel and to set styles in the West in competition with eastern fashion centers.

Several hundred tailors are expected to attend the mass meeting tomorrow night in the banquet rooms of the Elite, 633 South Flower street.

Grow better vegetables

Mongrel seeds produce mongrels—and Germain's California seeds produce thoroughbreds. We have been breeding better seeds since 1871. The pedigrees of many varieties of Germain's vegetables and flowers show 53 generations of thoroughbreds. Remember this all-important fact when planning your garden.

Since practically every variety of Germain's California seeds can be planted this month, we advise you to make your selections from our free 1923 planting annual. It pictures and describes the best varieties, gives complete cultural instructions, and also has special departments on poultry, rabbits, pet stock, birds and fancy fish.

Tomato, egg plant and pepper seed should be sown NOW. It will soon be too late to plant these garden necessities.

Don't put off planting corn and potatoes if you expect early crops.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound tonight and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.—[Advertisement.

CHRIST IN GETHSEMANE

Christ in Gethsemane—Text of Today's Bible Talk by Mr. Bryan

This is the Sunday-School Lesson for Next Sunday, March 11.

(Luke xxii, 39-48 54)

And he came out, and went, as he was wont, to the mount of Olives; and his disciples also followed him.

And when he was at the place, he said unto them, Pray that ye enter not into temptation.

And he was withdrawn from them about a stone's cast, and kneeled down and prayed,

Saying, Father, if thou be willing, remove this cup from me: nevertheless not my will, but thine, be done.

And there appeared an angel unto him from heaven, strengthening him.

And being in an agony he prayed more earnestly: and his sweat was as it were great drops of blood falling down to the ground.

And when he rose up from prayer, and was come to his disciples, he found them sleeping for sorrow.

And said unto them, Why sleep ye? rise and pray, lest ye enter into temptation.

And while he yet spake, behold a multitude, and he that was called Judas, one of the twelve, went before them, and drew near unto Jesus to kiss him.

But Jesus said unto him, Judas, betrayest thou the Son of man with a kiss?

Then they took him, and led him, and brought him into the high priest's house. And Peter followed afar off.

One of the most fascinating and impressive pictures of Jesus is Hoffman's painting, "Christ in Gethsemane," to which event in Luke's account of Christ's life we now come.

Kneeling by the side of a stone, the Messiah lifts His heart in prayer to the Father as He draws near to the great sacrifice for which He came and the approach of which He had revealed to His disciples.

Next to the scene upon the cross, nothing grips the Christian so strongly as the agony through which the Savior passed in the Garden of Gethsemane.

We see here more clearly than anywhere else, except in the hour of His crucifixion, the commingling of the human and the divine.

His flesh shrinks, as all flesh does, from pain, and the sense of physical suffering is deepened by the seeming failure of His mission. "He came unto his own and his own received him not."

Even His disciples, who caught occasional glimpses of the glory side of His personality, could hardly comprehend the magnitude of His salvation, while others to whom He offered the unspeakable honor of comradeship hissed and jeered.

PRAYER'S TESTIMONIAL

At every moment of His ministry upon earth His words were watched that they might be turned into accusations against Him; and now He passes through these hours of sorrow on the way to His seat at the right hand of God.

As was the custom, He went unto the Mount of Olives and His disciples followed Him. He enjoined them to pray that they enter not into temptation, and then He went apart from them and poured forth His heart in petition to God.

Here we have the highest testimonial ever given to prayer. The second part of the Trinity—He who was Himself one with God—gave solemn indorsement of communion with the Heavenly Father through prayer.

To His disciples He gave one reason for prayer, while for another reason He Himself engaged in prayer. "Father, if Thou be willing, remove this cup from me: nevertheless not my will, but thine, be done." Who, considering the experience of that sorrowful night, will say that there is no need for prayer?

WHO SO FOOLISH

If those whom Christ Himself chose—who enjoyed daily companionship with Him and were inspired by His presence and His words—if they needed to pray that they enter not into temptation, who of us can be so foolhardy as to think himself fully fortified against the tempter?

It is just such overconfidence that invites Satan to try his power on man. When one is in the attitude of prayer he makes his strongest resistance to the wiles of the evil one.

Christ taught His followers to beware of the beginnings of evil. His philosophy of life was sound and it has, therefore, endured and will endure.

Just as no human strength is sufficient to save one who goes near enough to the falls of Niagara to be caught in the current, so human strength is not sufficient to withstand temptations when one toy with sin. Three illustrations will suffice.

THE BEGINNING OF SIN

Tolstoy says that if one would understand the life of a murderer one must not begin one's examination at the time the murder is committed, but should go back to the point where the criminal first deliberately suppressed his conscience and did that which he knew to be wrong. That was the beginning; after that he was weaker and still weaker until finally he yielded to the temptation to take a human life either out of revenge or for some other motive.

One who cherishes the thought of killing is in his heart a murderer even though fear of detection may restrain him from striking the fatal blow. The desire to kill must be strangled at its inception.

Christ has pointed the way in the teaching of love and forgiveness. We are to love our enemies—this is the cure for revenge. We are to forgive—this restores broken friendships and makes neighborliness possible.

TEMPTATION TO STEAL

The second temptation is the temptation to steal—not merely the common forms of theft such as larceny, burglary and highway robbery—the punishment for these is quite certain—but the more refined forms of stealing, such as embezzlement and exploitation.

To the average man old fashioned stealing is no temptation; he would be indignant at the very suggestion that he would pick your pockets or enter into your house, day or night, and appropriate money or property. And yet, embezzlement by trustees is not so unusual among so-called respectable men.

A bank official who divides his time between reading the stock market reports and the counting of money has to meet a temptation that does not come to mankind in general. It seems so easy to use just a little of the money of which he is the custodian, and he is so sure that he can make a profit within a day or two and replace the money. Nobody need know of the temporary use of the deposit and he will soon have money of his own with which to lay the foundation of a fortune secured by speculation. It is a plausible argument for one whose conscience is not sensitive.

THE UNFAILING REMEDY

This temptation has overcome the scruples of a multitude of men—and then the community is shocked at an arrest or suicide when the discovery is made.

Only a few years ago the head of one of the oldest and most trusted banks in New York died and investigation disclosed that he had been committing frauds on the bank for a decade.

What is the remedy? Christ supplies it. He cleanses the heart; He purges it of the love of money which "is the root of all evil," or, as the new version puts it, "a root of every kind of evil."

The third illustration is to be found in the infidelity that wrecks homes, ruins lives, and does injustice to so many children.

What is the trouble? Dallying with sin, gradual yielding until the temptation becomes a consuming flame.

What is the remedy? Here again Christ supplies it. He warns against the thought before it ripens into act. Here, too, the beginning of evil must be avoided.

WE MUST PRAY

And so with every sin. But care in the avoiding of temptation is not sufficient; those who are conscious of human weakness and anxious to abstain from wrong doing will pray as Christ advised His disciples to do, that they enter not into temptation. We must pray as well as watch.

But the Master felt another need of prayer, a need of strength to pass through an ordeal toward which He had been journeying and for which He waited. It was not fear that moved Him, it was the human side of Christ that asked the Father, "If thou be willing, remove this cup from me," but it was the deity in Christ that added, "nevertheless not my will, but thine, be done."

And as Jesus prayed there appeared unto Him an angel from heaven to strengthen Him, just as in the days before and since an all-loving Heavenly Father has sent winged messengers unto His children to be allies when the night is darkest and the fight is hottest.

CHRIST READY

As Elisha drew back the curtain that his frightened servant might behold the heavenly reinforcements camped upon the mountain top, so Luke records for us the appearance of an angel that brought strength in answer to a prayer uttered so earnestly that His sweat "was as it were great drops of blood."

When Christ arose, He was ready for the final chapter. His flesh had been brought into subjection to the spirit and He who might have called legions to his defense meekly gave Himself into the hands of His executioners.

Judas comes for a moment into the limelight, gives the betraying kiss and then takes up his journey toward the porter's field, whcih he enters through the suicide gate.

And Peter? He "followed afar off."

A poor example, certainly. If this were all we knew of Peter it would have been worse than a poor example. The story of Peter's life would have been even less interesting if it ended in a little later when he thrice denied the Saviour.

But Peter outlived the experience recorded in this chapter; he continued to follow Christ and his pace quickened with the years. When he sat by the fire in the high priest's house where they had taken Jesus, he played a sorry part for a disciple, but Peter did a wonderful work when, as Dr. Marquis puts it, he was warmed up.

PETER A HELPFUL EXAMPLE

To the average Christian Peter is the most helpful of the great personalities whom Christ called into service. Few can expect a conversion such as came to Paul and of these still less can hope to rival Paul in eloquence, but all Christians pass through hours of temptation and many yield.

The Christian is not to be distinguished by sinlessness, but rather by an earnest desire to be sinless. If under the pressure of temptation he falls, it is the sin that grieves him, not the discovery of it. He does not delay repentance until he is confronted by punishment—he repents when the fact of his sin burns itself into his consciousness and he prays for strength to resist future temptations.

Peter was emotional and, because emotional, had to pass through the valleys that lay between the mountain ranges which his enthusiasm enabled him to scale.

UTILIZES SIN TO AID OTHERS

Sin can neither be desired nor justified on the ground that it sometimes furnishes a stimulus to great achievement, but sin, when it does come, ought to be utilized as far as possible as an aid to others.

A man who has been a drunkard, especially if he has allowed drink to drag him down into that awful disease known as delirium tremens, can warn aganst alcohol as those cannot who have always been total abstainers. Those who have been released from bondage to intoxicants must find at least a crumb of comfort in the consciousness that they can use their own wretched experience to save others from similar degradation.

The lesson of Christ in Gethsemane may be summed up in three sentences:

First, even Christ—Diety shining through humanity—needed prayer to strengthen Him when He entered upon the greatest of His struggles—how much more we!

Second, man needs constant and intimate communion with the Heavenly Father as a protection against the temptations that beset him—his easily besetting sins.

Third, Peter, by his triumph over his weakness, shows us how frail human beings may be made strong by faith.

THE MIGHTY ALCHEMIST

Christ is the Alchemist who can transform base human clay into the refined gold of a righteous life. He can lift man from the mire of sin to a place among those whose robes have been washed in the blood of the Lamb.

NAVY REDUCTION TERMED FUTILE AND DANGEROUS

"Economies" Shown to be Small and Loss of Prestige at Sea a Blow to Trade

BY CAPT. YATES STIRLING, JR., U.S.N.
Commanding the U.S.S. New Mexico

The Navy League of the United States is a self-constituted band of patriotic, informed citizens, who cannot be stampeded by the insidious promises of the pacifist and the demagogue. They believe an effective Navy is a fundamental requirement. They look frankly out upon this world of ours and do not fear to observe the signs of danger appearing on the horizon. Likewise they are bold enough to speak their thoughts and show the dire results of playing politics with the nation's safety. The Navy League has given us an analysis of the recent betrayal of our first line of defense.

We see from the undisputed figures that our Navy has been permitted to fall below the ratios allowed us by the Washington Conference, ratios which our statesmen at that time declared were the minimum for safety.

This Navy League study shows that we are inferior to Japan and England in tonnage as follows:

Fast cruisers. The equivalent of twenty-two 10,000 ton vessels.

Seagoing submarines. The equivalent of forty long-radius vessels.

Aircraft carriers. The equivalent of two airplane carriers of 35,000 tons each.

Besides these tremendous shortages we have not modernized our eighteen battleships, while both England and Japan have done so. The result is that while the guns of our fleet can range only to nine miles, the other two powers can range to twelve and one-half miles. British and Japanese battleships can therefore deluge our ships with gas and high explosive shells at twelve and one-half miles distance while our own shells will fall three and one-half miles short of their targets at this range.

BUILDING DELAYED

Furthermore, the auxiliary ships of the fleet already authorized are being delayed indefinitely in construction by Congress in not appropriating the money to complete them, a method of filibustering very disastrous to our prestige as a world power.

The bases of the fleet, so essential to its upkeep, are likewise being starved for lack of funds.

Do the American people desire that their Navy shall become a weakling, a laughing-stock among our rivals in trade?

The following naval policy has been suggested by the Secretary of the Navy:

"1. To create, maintain and operate a Navy second to none in conformity with the ratios for capital ships established by the treaty for the limitation of naval armaments.

"2. To make the capital ship ratios the basis of building effort in all classes of fighting ships.

"3. To maintain an active personnel afloat in conformity with the ratios for capital ships established by the treaty for the limitation of naval armaments."

BELOW TREATY RATIOS

And in making his appeal for saneness in naval legislation, he states that in certain types such as fast cruisers, aircraft carriers, seagoing submarines and aircraft, the Navy is deficient, in other words is below the ratios of the Washington treaty.

It has been through the most subtle propaganda that the people have been lulled to sleep while this rape of the Navy has been progressing. The people have been told in silken tones that the national purse needs retrenching and that retrenchment is possible only by cutting down to the bone appropriations for the Army and Navy. Figures in the bulk have been given them to ponder. A saving of so many hundred millions seems a great sum to one who feels he is overburdened with taxes, but when the actual amount saved to him is seen he finds that he has been deceived. The aim of the politician has been achieved and many of us will never know how small was the saving to the taxpayer.

ACTUAL SAVINGS

Here are some figures which will tell us what we saved in coin while our Navy was strangled to its present state of impotence to back up our diplomacy.

The cost in 1922 to the taxpayer for his State, county and city averaged $61.66 per capita and the cost to him for Federal purposes averaged $39.03 per capita. The Navy cost $2.78 per capita.

Or a better way to state the same thing might be to say that for every $100 paid in taxes, $68 was used for State, county and city purposes, while $32 went for Federal uses. The Navy received just $3 in every hundred.

The naval appropriation in 1922 was $300,000,000, a vast sum to an individual but not so to a nation of 110,000,000 persons with an accumulated wealth of upward of five hundred billion dollars.

The voting in Congress for and against maintaining our Navy at the 5-5-3 ratios caused a division in the ranks of our legislators in no way political but on the other hand sectional.

MIDWEST OPPOSED

Twenty-five States, including nine Southern States and sixteen Central States, with a total population of 51,000,000 persons, voted to cut the naval appropriation to $300,000,000 while twenty-three States with a population of 53,000,000, including four Southern, ten Atlantic Coast, three Pacific Coast and six Central States, voted to give $400,000,000 to the Navy in order to maintain the treaty ratios in all types of fighting ships. This saving of $100,000,000 meant a per capita saving for the "little Navy" States of 62 cents and to the "treaty Navy" States of $1.12. And for this pittance we are putting our Navy in third place among the three great naval powers. The saving when brought down to the basis of dollars and cents per capita makes the transaction almost Pickwickian. And this is the great saving heralded abroad by the "little Navy" legislators as a great feat of national thrift.

What shall we do with our 62 cents or our dollar and eighteen cents a year saving? Buy chewing gum or soda water, or possibly go twice to the movies.

How can we reach these foolish virgins, these twenty-three States who are blinded in their lack of knowledge of history or have succumbed to the insidious voice of the pacifist, and make them see the benefit to themselves of maintaining an adequate Navy?

HISTORY IS GUIDE

Those States that have not seen the light are principally of the middle of the country, among them Colorado, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, Nevada, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Utah and Wisconsin. All these States are great industrial and farming communities, and they have voted to kill the hen that has been laying their golden egg and do not appreciate the seriousness of their act.

About 800 years ago, henw all England had a population of only 5,000,000, the lack of work and extreme poverty of the people made many believe that the country was overcrowded. The inland countries objected to contribute to the support of the navy because they believed the navy was purely for the business of protecting the coast. They said: "Let the coastal countries pay for their own protection; we can look out for ourselves." How similar is this to the psychology of our twenty-three "little navy" States.

BENEFITS FOR ALL

But when England's oversea trade began to expand rapidly and the poverty of not only the coastal counties was relieved, but also counties inland, then the people of the inland agricultural sections began to understand that by giving them work in industries making exports, they were equally benefited by the navy. They saw that the navy not only prevented the invasion of coastal counties but opened up and gave protection to markets for the products originating in the inland counties.

And so it is with our Central States. Our Navy, if sufficient, will not only protect the Coastal States from invasion, but will open up, through the channels of diplomacy, markets for industries originating in these States and will protect these markets and give assurance to our citizens with wealth invested in our foreign trade. Anyway, 62 cents per capita a year is not a great sum to invest as an insurance for future trade prosperity.

WOMEN FORM PERSONNEL CLUB

Training of Sales People Is Promoted

Mrs. Lula Eckles

President of the Woman's Advertising Club and advertising and sales manager of A. Hamburger & Sons, Inc., talks to the Personnel Women's Club.

A NEW organization in Los Angeles is the Personnal Women's Club, comprised of representatives of the personnel departments of various business organizations in the city, and devoted to the institution of educational features in the training of sales people and co-operation between the management and the public.

The members of the club all are connected with the employment department of their firms and are in a position to supervise educational training for salesmen and saleswomen employed, it is said.

At a dinner given at the Italian Village last Tuesday, the club was addressed by Mrs. Lulu Eckles, president of the Women's Advertising Club, on the progress made recently by department stores along educational lines.

An intelligent desire to serve the public must co-ordinate the various departments of a store, said Mrs. Eckles, who pointed out that as salespeople are the chief point of contact between retail organization and the public, in them lies the chief road to service.

Among the future plans of the Personnel Club is an affiliation with the Los Angeles Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, it is said.

ANDREAS CLUB FILLED

All Members Obtained in Effort to Save Native Palm and Preserve Canyon's Beauty

According to Secretary Frank Wiggins of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, who has fostered the Andreas Club since its inception a year ago, all of the members of the latter organization have been obtained by Dr. George L. Clements, manager of the agricultural department of the chamber, who was named president.

To preserve the native palms in San Andreas Canyon, not included in the bill passed in 1922 by Congress creating the Monument of Palms, was the purpose of the organizers who have arranged to purchase 1100 acres east of Palm Springs with an application for a lease on 180 acres of land at the mouth of San Andreas Canyon in the hands of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs. To safeguard these scenic beauties and pay for the upkeep of the Indian lands twenty-three men joined the San Andreas Club.

It was the idea in organizing to select a single man from each profession for membership representing art, music, drama, medicine, law, engineering, businesses and one member only from each family was permitted to join.

The purchasing price was $25,000 and the property is in the hands of trustees.

Funds contributed by each member in equal shares will be used without any desire to make profits, and while a few additional leases may be granted, it will be done after the consent of each member is obtained.

When the plan was first announced by Dr. Clements, he said that it was his hope that the government would take over the holdings from members to be included in the Monument of Palms for a national playground and that the club will hold in trust for the government this property until that time arrives.

With the recent building boom in the Palm Springs district, 130 miles from Los Angeles, residents are cognizant of the money value of these desert regions. Nature lovers have found the beauty of these only wild palms a source of joy.

The approach to this playground is bound by snow-peaks, the high-way rising to 3000 feet at one point and dropping again to sea level at Palm Springs.

The choice property held by the Andreas Club is in the hands of the following members, one membership being held in reserve to be conferred at a later date: Dr. George P. Clements, president; A. E. Nicholls, vice-president; C. P. Cooke, secretary; J. O. Mills, treasurer; J. B. Haas, A. E. Nicholls and George P. Clements, executive committee; Josiah A. Briggs, Jr., committee on architecture.

Members supporting the conservation program and holding property are Frank Wiggins, Secretary of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce; C. H. Whitney, J. B. Haas, Mark Grimes, H. L. Musser, Josiah A. Briggs, Jr., G. B. Lindsley, Dr. A. Halden Jones, I. O. Kemble, Ed. C. Harwood, F. E. Woodley, A. Judson Sayre, Dr. J. I. Clark, Will F. Peck, E. C. Townely, J. H. Williams, Dr. F. C. Clark, Duke Hunt, Dr. John C. Shedd.

PLAN CROSS WALKS IN PERSHING SQUARE

As the result of complaints from the public that no method of crossing Pershing Square east and west between Fifth and Sixth streets existed, the Park Department has completed plans for cross-walks, art stone entrances and cement seats to be placed in the park, and yesterday asked the City Council for an appropriation of $4175 for the improvements.

RUPTURE EXPERT HERE

Seeley, Famous in This Specialty, Called to Los Angeles

F. H. Seeley, of Chicago and Philadelphia, the noted truss expert, will personally be at the Rosslyn Hotel, and will remain in Los Angeles tomorrow (Monday,) Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, from 9 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. daily. Mr. Seeley says: "The Spermatic Shield will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly, but contracts the opening in 10 days on the average case. This result effected during the day—the repair continues of itself throughout the night while all strain is removed. Being a vast advancement over all former methods—exemplifying instantaneous effects immediately appreciable and withstanding any strain or position no matter the size or location. Large or difficult cases, or incisional ruptures, (following operations) specially solicited. This instrument received the only award in England and in Spain, producing results without surgery, injections, medical treatments or prescription. Warning—All cases should be cautioned against the use of any elastic or web truss with understraps, as same rest where the lump is and not where the opening is, producing complications necessitating surgical operations. Mr. Seeley has documents from the United States Government, Washington, D. C., for inspection. He will be glad to demonstrate, without charge or fit them if desired. Business demands prevent stopping at any other place in this section.

P. S.—Every statement in this notice has been verified before the Federal and State Courts.—F. H. Seeley. Home Office, 117 North Dearborn Street, Chicago.—[Advertisement.

TELLS HOW SICK CAN BE HEALED

Christianity Includes Cures, Says Lecturer

Points Out Wrong Concept of Jesus' Power

Scientist Urges Return to Primitive Religion

William D. Kilpatrick, C.S.B., member of the board of lectureship of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, delivered the last of a series of lectures on Christian Science Friday evening at Third Church of Christ, Scientist, in Los Angeles. The lecturer spoke in part as follows:

"Christian Science is primarily and exclusively the religion of Jesus the Christ. It is a return to the teachings of primitive Christianity and as such it must necessarily include the practice of healing which exemplified the life, not only of Jesus, but the lives, as well, of many of the early Christians, even the lives of those who had never been taught of Jesus. We have been prone to think that the healing of the sick, the maimed, the halt and the blind by Jesus and by his disciples and apostles was the outcome or result of a special dispensation from God to Jesus which was, in turn, passed along by Him to His followers in some mysterious or occult manner. That is, we have been taught to believe that the healing works accomplished by Jesus were the manifestations of the superhuman power with which Jesus was especially endowed to distinguish him from the rest of mankind; that this power was something mysterious and that it is in no wise the heritage of all who obey God.

"This is a very erroneous concept of Jesus and of the import of his holy mission and it is a concept which has robbed Christianity of the very essence of that for which Jesus struggled and for which He permitted his crucifixion. In this erroneous concept, that the power to heal the sick and to raise the dead by spiritual means alone ended at the cross, do we find the binding limitation from which Christianity must be freed. This wrong concept, that spiritual healing was a special dispensation from God bestowed upon Jesus alone and for a limited period of time, has for centuries deprived mankind of those wonderful blessings which Christian Science has come to restore.

"Jesus did not heal the sick, walk the waves, multiply the loaves and fishes, raise the dead and many other wonderful things solely for the gratification of the multitude, nor were those works done for the mere purpose of showing mankind what he personally could do. He did these things to prove to the world, to you and to me, what are the fruits of a right understanding of God and man's relation to God. He did these things to show humanity what it means to be a true Christian.

"What Jesus accomplished by way of healing and saving was the positive result of his mental application of a scientific principle. He was the only truly scientific man who ever lived and he scarcely uttered a word or accomplished a deed that was not in direct opposition to what we have always conceived to be physically or materially scientific. In other words, Jesus completely disregarded and nullified, through those works which he accomplished, every so-called scientific principle based upon materiality, or matter, of which you or I have any knowledge, showing conclusively that God does not operate through material law and that the law of God, when scientifically and intelligently applied, is one of annihilation to the so-called laws of matter, or of evil.

"Jesus disregarded all the so-called laws of material existence through his understanding of God's power—through the religion he came to give to you and to me.

"The important thing, then, for you and for me to glean from the life and the teachings and the works of the Master is a clear understanding of what this Father, this God, is which enabled Jesus to do those mighty works which he said you and I should be able to do also. And that, my friends, is the mission of Christian Science.

"The discoverer and founder of Christian Science, Mary Baker Eddy, has given to the world a concept of God which always attributes all power to Him and which is making it possible for millions of earnest, honest people to so demonstrate their God-bestowed relationship with the Father that once again are the sick being healed, the sorrowful being comforted and the sinners being saved as was done in Jesus' time. Mrs. Eddy, among other things, discovered that God is divine Mind.

"We all know, from our study of the Bible, that the only method employed by Jesus in accomplishing his works of healing and regeneration — his miracles — was prayer or communion with God. It was through prayer that he was enabled to walk the waves, feed the multitudes, heal the sick and raise the dead. Prayer is the process of right thinking and nothing else, so, if God be divine Mind, God can only be known or expressed through right thinking, or thinking good. Consequently, Jesus' process of prayer was a process of of establishing his unity with God through thinking those thoughts which emanate from divine Mind.

"God being Mind and man's true relationship with God being established by knowing this Mind which is God, by thinking rightly, it can readily be seen that the true man, or man of God's creating, must be that man who has a complete and full comprehension of divine Mind. That is, he must be that man who knows nothing unlike that which is contained in the divine Mind.

"Now, it would seem, on first blush, quite incredible that humanity, merely through a right mental process, through spiritual thinking, could overmaster physical conditions and laws and overcome the manifestations, in all its various forms, of evil, or matter. Yet, that was what Jesus did, and that is what he always did in his three years with men. Mrs. Eddy's discovery, however, made through her search of the Scriptures and devout and unceasing prayer, has solved this problem for us and has explained most clearly how Jesus was able to overcome all the so-called laws of matter and how you and I, by demonstrating our conscious unity with the Father, as Christian Science teaches us how to do, are enabled to obey his command to follow His example."

War Veterans Find Rest Near Foothills

POST CARES FOR DISABLED

Builds Colony of Cottages Where 1000 Former Soldiers Have Found Relief in Eighteen Months

Nestling in the shadows of the Sierra Nevada foothills, one and one-half miles from Altadena, with the flickering sheen of the Devil Gate Dam shining in the distance, a little colony of cottages, surrounded by tall eucalyptus and spreading pepper trees, has become the haven for hundreds of battle-scarred veterans of the World War—veterans whose gas-torn lungs and general nervous condition has rebelled against the rigors of the metropolitan life and who, for the sake of their health, have been forced to seek solace and rest in this semi-mountain fastness.

Sponsored and managed by Post No. 1, Disabled Veterans of the World War, this little ranch of fifty-eight acres, consisting of fourteen cottages and one large administration building, was made possible as a rest camp for former soldiers through the courtesy and philanthropic interest of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Giddings, 1318 East Colorado avenue, Pasadena. One year and a half ago this ranch with its buildings was leased to the local post by Mr. Giddings, for a period of five years at an annual rental of $1.

Since its establishment more than 1000 veterans, their nervous system deranged through shell shock or their physical condition blasted by gas exposure overseas, have passed up the winding road to the camp for short periods of rest and relaxation. Unable to carry on their normal labors these men have been encouraged by the local post to remain as long as it was of benefit to them and all expense incidental to their stay where veterans have been unable to assume the small fee charged by the post, has been taken from the coffers of the post treasury or has been paid by some other military organization of this city or Pasadena. The fee, $3.50 per week, covers all expenses and is the sole source of income at present for the maintenance of the camp.

RED CROSS AIDS

Practically ever since it was instituted the local Red Cross unit has sent on the average of six men a week to the camp and has paid their expenses. At present there are about twenty men in the camp although it has a capacity for sixty.

The ranch was leased in September, 1920 from Mr. Giddings with only one stipulation included in the contract—that of doing the utmost in providing a restful home for veterans who were incapacitated overseas or at home and who need a few weeks of relaxation to put them on the road to health. All taxes are being paid by Mr. Giddings, the post only assumes the operating expenses; and very frequently the post treasury has been called upon to make up a deficit brought about through insufficient income by the end of the month.

The ranch is under the immediate supervision of Oliver F. Doerr, vice-president of the post, but Mrs. F. B. Vaughn, "Mother" as most of the boys at the camp call her, is general manager and supervises the needs of the service men there. Assisting Mrs. Vaughn are two former service men, William St. Clair and Edward Robinson, both of whom were wounded overseas.

Two days ago, an aftermath of the war's work, St. Clair who had been gassed in the Soisson sector, was suddenly taken ill and was rushed to the St. Catherines Hospital in Santa Monica, where he underwent a dangerous operation induced by his experience in France. Last night he was reported as resting easy but still in a serious condition. It is just such cases as these, gas victims, who have suffered relapses that have taken the opportunity of fresh air and relaxation that the post camp has offered them.

BOYS ARE IMPROVED

"The camp has proved of great benefit to the boys," Mr. Doerr said yesterday. "They come here dejected, down-hearted and some feeling as if the last vestige of strength had left them. In several weeks' time their spirit has increased amazingly, and they leave with a buoyant step and in much better physical condition. Immediate medical cases, of course, cannot be taken. While here they may occupy themselves with making improvements about the place, as almost all our work has to be done by these men, who donate their services. They are not required to work, only most of them seem to improve faster when they do. We are going to make extensive improvements, but have been seriously handicapped for lack of equipment. We have from twenty to thirty acres in orchard land, figs, oranges, lemons, apples, cherries and pears, and all of it has been developed by the men who have come here to build themselves up.

"Agriculturally, we have great prospects on the land, but the lack of a tractor has held up operations. If we could plow up this land and set it out in tomatoes or some other commodity, inside of one year it would begin to pay all the expenses incident to the running of the place. We also lack other farm implements and as our current income hardly ever balances our expenditures, we cannot buy everything that we need."

According to Mr. Doerr the present camp in another years time will surpass any other such place in the country. At the southwestern end of the ranch, some of the men are already laying out a chicken yard which will house over 1000 young chickens recently bought through funds personally donated by St. Clair, Doerr, Robinson and Mrs. Vaughn. It is also planned to add twenty hogs and a cow to the ranch at a later period.

FURNISHINGS GIVEN

The cottages surround an oval and overlook the Arroyo Seco Canyon. Each one holds two men, although several will hold more. Four of the cottages have been furnished through funds contributed by the Victory Post, Rainbow organization, Los Angeles War Mothers and John A. Wallace, and bear the names of the respective donors. A large building at the rear of the immediate grounds is shortly to be remodeled by the men into an assembly hall and dance hall. Social activities, which have been prevented so far through lack of facilities, will then be centered in this building. It is also planned to increase the library, which at present only consists of fifty books and very few magazines, all of which have been donated to the camp by various people. Business, educational and farming books have been the ones chiefly in demand by the men, Mr. Doerr said.

The Daughters of the American Revolution of Pasadena and the Knights of Columbus have been the chief organizations which have been consistently aiding the camp. The Pasadena organization pays the salary of one of the camp officials and has helped in buying supplies, while every week-end members of the Knights of Columbus have sent up a large consignment of tobacco and candy which is apportioned off equally to the men. This organization is also going to aid in the obtaining of equipment for a tennis court which will be shortly laid out.

STUDENTS CLEAR GROUND

A week ago about twenty men from the Federal class at the University of California, Southern Branch, and members of the post came out to the camp and spent the day clearing away brush and making various improvements. Next Saturday more than 100 men from the university have volunteered their services for this work. Many private individuals have also given aid to the veterans' camp at various times.

Next Friday the local post will celebrate with elaborate social ceremonies at its headquarters, 246 South Hill street. William Gibbs McAdoo, Mayor Cryer and others are scheduled to speak.

Officers of the post follow: Claude L. Whitney, president; O. F. Doerr, vice-president; W. J. Scott, secretary; W. A. Grinnell, treasurer; G. L. Newman, sergeant-at-arms; R. J. Desmond, relief officer; H. R. Sleeper, recording secretary; W. Wolf, D.V.W.W. representative; S. De Costa, publicity manager, and Rev. G. I. R. Lawrence, chaplain.

FIRE BREAKS PLANNED

Supervisor Charlton will put a big force of men at work on Mt. Lowe tomorrow morning building fire breaks around the summit of the peak and Alpine Tavern, a distance of about five miles. The cost of the work, about $1500, will be met by the Pacific Electric Railway, and the Forest Service.

OFFICIALS TOURING ALONG BORDER LINE

CUSTOMS OFFICIALS START OUT ON SURVEY TO SEE WHAT IS NEEDED

A party of Federal customs officials consisting of N. G. Van Dorn, director of the special agency service, Washington; M. T. Harteson, customs collector at Seattle; Charles Salter, customs agent at that point; Frank E. Johnson, customs agent in this city, and L. H. Schwaebe, customs collector of the Los Angeles district, left yesterday for a tour of the Mexican border. They will begin at San Diego and go as far east as Yuma and Nogales, Ariz. They will be absent ten days.

Under a recent order abolishing the San Diego district, Collector Schwaebe has jurisdiction of everything south of Santa Barbara to the border. It is to look after the requirements of the enlarged district that the trip is being made. It is expected that the result of the tour will be a recommendation backed by Director Van Dorn in favor of additional men for the border service.

Cotton Trading More Active; New Highs Reached

Goldwyn Pictures Intrigue Interest of Investors

Reported Entry of the May Stores Into Los Angeles

Cotton was subjected during the past week to the most active and strongest trading enjoyed since the bull market of 1920. The 30-cent mark was crossed several times by the old crop options, and yesterday, May registered a new high at 30.84 cents. The continuation of the advance, according to Los Angeles cotton merchants, has left the speculators and trade buyers in some doubt as to the probable top, since the opinion had become general that a decline would ensue after the 30-cent level was once touched.

Spot cotton finished the week at 30.90 cents, an advance of 140 points over the preceding week. March closed at 30.68, up 104; May at 30.78, up 117; July at 29.76, up 145; October at 26.77, up 82; and December at 26.32, up 62 points.

The gains made by the new crop contracts, October and December, excited some comment among cotton men yesterday. No reports of a bullish nature were forthcoming from the trade, and all previous crop comment has been favorable to the new acreage.

Speculators, the trade and export demand were the factors participating in the market during the past week. The dealing was almost entirely in futures, spot cotton remaining relatively quiet. Trade buyers still continue to adopt hand-to-mouth tactics regarding spot purchases, until the mills determine what the demands of the retailers will be.

The California movement is rapidly approaching a culmination. Predictions are made by merchants that in three weeks, not more than 5000 bales will remain in the State. Approximately 1500 bales are yet to be marketed in the Imperial Valley, but the staple in the warehouses is being transported to centers of consumption as fast as means are available.

The existence of the favorable prices for the new crop options is being taken advantage of by California growers, who desire to protect themselves with hedging operations. Sufficient cotton is sold in advance for delivery after picking to cover overhead expenses under this method, and growers are then protected from severe losses through decline in price.

GOLDWYN PICTURES

Los Angeles brokerage houses executed heavy orders in Goldwyn Picture stock yesterday on the basis of advices from New York predicting favorable things for Goldwyn. The company is one of the active producers in the motion-picture industry, operating one of the largest studios in the world at Culver City. The buying was predicted largely on a renewal of the report that the company would amalgamate with the First National Exhibitors, one of the strongest links in the exhibiting end of the industry, controlling heavy interests in a large number of theaters.

Goldwyn has been improving its financial condition in the last few months by the retirement of its entire funded debt consisting of $1,788,450 8 per cent two-year convertible notes. Capitalization is made up of 482,426 shares of no par common stock from an authorized issue of 1,000,000 shares. The company has been increasing its net revenue through the sale of several popular feature pictures in the last six months, and it is said that plans have been laid to materially increase the staff of 1000 persons now working on the Goldwyn lot.

It is said that New York market gossip has linked the DuPont interests to the present activity in the stock.

DAILY TRADE TALK

Business Continues Its Upward Swing; Bulls in the Saddle; Outlook for Prices; Review

BY CHAPIN HALL

March entered the arena most auspiciously with all sails set, and a brisk trade wind blowing from a favorable quarter. Soundings indicate a deep channel easily negotiable by an alert skipper, but with shoals marking the shore lines of Germany, France and the Balkans.

There was an uninterrupted upward swing throughout February, and at this writing there is no apparent reason why it will not continue during the current month. There has been perhaps an overstimulation of speculation which frequently accompanies easy money and abundant credit.

Retail buyers who have been working on a hand-to-mouth policy in the expectation of revision downward are coming to the conclusion that nothing of the kind is likely to occur, but that on the contrary the trend is in the opposite direction, and are placing their spring orders with more confidence, and in larger volume. This is having a tendency to speed up production, and with rising inventories forms another spur to business.

In Los Angeles occasional complaint is heard of oversupply of labor, but investigation leads to the opinion that this condition is traceable entirely to seasonal fluctuation, which brings thousands of unskilled hands into this market during the winter months. As a matter of fact skilled labor appears to be fully employed while there is a consistent demand for farm hands and for laborers who are willing to forsake the white lights and comfortable park benches.

INCREASED PRODUCTION

At large the automotive and steel industries report increased production, and the automobile business seems to be going into the spring months on a more stable basis than ever, after a winter of unprecedented activity. This, in itself, is indicative of general business conditions, because it may be taken for granted that people do not spend lavishly on new cars if they have reason to be financially pessimistic.

Armour & Co.'s current review says that rural conditions continue to show improvement. Farmers are making money on their hogs and their cattle. The cotton grower is in good shape. Grain farmers are finding a ready market for their cereals, though a large portion of the cereals are going into live stock and being marketed profitably in that way. The farmer is about to enter upon a spring planting season better grounded than he has been since the war. That augurs well for other industries.

Export trade in virtually all lines of industry is dormant. No new orders of consequence are being filled, and very little inquiry is being received for future trade.

The financial, economic and political conditions of most of the European countries make trading with them a matter of hazard. The last thirty days have seen no apparent alleviation of those conditions, and the next thirty days can be looked forward to only with hope.

The stock market has been quite active. Industrials have held their own, and in some cases, gained ground. Bonds are steady and the manner in which new investment securities have been absorbed by the public is a further indication of the improved financial condition.

A review of the annual statements of the larger industrial corporations would show that most of them of any consequence have declared dividends this year, whereas last year quite a few were passed, and quite as many others showed deficits instead of profits. None of the published profits seem abnormal, and it is apparent that business is red-blooded.

NOT ALL SUNSHINE

Lest we permit ourselves to run away with the idea that everything in the business, financial, industrial and commercial world is resting on a downy bed of ease; that deflation is a nightmare of yesterday and that everyone rides in the chassis of optimism flaunting the theory of interminable prosperity, it may be well for a moment to turn the cloud inside out, and let the silver lining bide a wee.

McDonnell and Company, for instance, point out that while the spirit of spending is in the air, the old codgers of Wall street who know more about economics than 90 per cent of the rest of us, and are hated for it, are watching the time to cash their profits.

The dreadful plight of our European brothers, their shortage of food, fuel and stagnating industry—all caused by the damnable doctrine of race hatred, not infrequently preached in America—seem not elements of weight. Generally, prices are rising, but note the falling prices of food. Railroad car loadings are remarkable, the spirit conciliation between executives and employees is encouraging, and shortage of labor appears, not so much by lack of men as by lack of men where most needed. Some vocations are overcrowded while others are lean, indeed.

The order of the day is full speed ahead, and—praise be to Allah—the country is to have rest from Federal legislative uncertainty. By and by, when the momentum of trade exceeds the speed limit, some economic traffic cop will halt the mad rush of business and we will begin to deflate again. The stock market will discount the coming of depression. Hence, the stock market is the great barometer of trade which all wise men should study. Probably we will have material bulge in the prices of some shares this spring. Possibly you had better begin to think about cashing your profits, which are always elusive things.

OUTLOOK FOR PRICES

Prof. Irving Fisher, the nationally known economist, whose weekly price index appears in this department of The Times, said the other day that few questions are so agitating business men as the outlook for prices. This authority holds that there will be a general advance in commodity prices during the coming year, a view which is given plausibility by the fact that a number of staple commodities have advanced materially since the beginning of the year; notably crude rubber, crude petroleum, copper and cotton, to mention a few of the basic commodities.

Several other statements concerning business problems are of interest. For example, in answer to a question on the subject, Prof. Fisher stated that he does not believe that costs of manufacture will stabilize around current levels, but that in obedience to the strong economic forces of the present and immediate future, they will tend to advance.

The view is also held that, in obedience to the same influences, "the purchasing power of the consumer, principally the farmer, is likely to be increased within a reasonable period."

The general picture given, therefore, is that we are on the road to another period of inflation, with its usual phenomena of rising prices, advancing labor costs, higher costs of manufacturing operation and a generally higher volume of business.

CITRUS SHIPMENTS

The citrus crop in Southern California is estimated at a total of 36,000 carloads of oranges and 8500 carloads of lemons, making a grand total from the southern district of 44,500 carloads. On oranges the estimate for Southern California is about 50 per cent higher than the total shipments last season, but is over 5000 cars less than two years ago. The shipments for 1921-22 were 24,086 cars, and for the season 1920-21 they were 41,330 cars. The estimate on the lemon crop is for a smaller crop than last year, when we shipped 9307 cars.

The estimate for the citrus crop in Central California district is given at a total of 5400 carloads. The Northern California district is estimated at a total of 400 carloads at the present time. These totals added to total carload estimate of 44,500 for Southern California make a grand total for the State of 50,300. Tulare county is now showing up as a big citrus district, where they have 39,680 acres in citrus fruits, according to figures compiled by the horticultural commissioner of that county.

PEIRSON RECEPTION

Several hundred friends of Charles Heston Peirson participated in a delightful reception given in his honor at the Virginia Hotel, Long Beach, last evening by Miss Belle McCord Roberts, publisher of a newspaper in the seaside metropolis. The honor guest, who heads the publicity and research department of the Southern California Edison Company, was 63 years old. A double commemoration was held, the date also being announced as the anniversary of his fiftieth year as a writer for American newspapers. This would have precipitated the talented author into the journalistic arena at the tender age of 13 and, as there is no evidence to the contrary, Trade Talks pays its homage on the shrine and trusts that in another half-century he will still be going strong.

CALIFORNIANS IN NEW YORK

Financiers of Golden State Leave Their Impress

Human Interest Built Into Steel and Concrete

Wall Street District Full of Historic Memories

BY RICHARD SPILLANE
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]
[Copyright, 1923, Public Ledger.]

NEW YORK, March 3.—By its buildings Wall street tells much of its history and gives evidence of how it has drawn to it men of enterprise and wealth from all parts of America, and even beyond the seas. The Mills Building is a monument to Darius O. Mills, one of the pioneers of California.

India House, in Hanover Square, once was the cotton exchange, later the headquarters of William R. Grace & Co., and now the home of the foreign trade council. There James Stillman, who came to New York from Texas and rose to be president of the National City Bank made his fortune.

John W. Mackey, who, like Mills, came from California, has two monuments, one in Broad street near the Stock Exchange and the other in Broadway fronting City Hall Park, known as the Postal Telegraph structure.

The Equitable Building, one of the largest office buildings in the world, might be called a monument to Coleman Dupont or to the powder industry. The story of how its construction was pushed under the most adverse financial conditions has much of drama and human interest, but never has been told in full.

TWO WOMEN

Number 44 Broad street is associated with Tennessee Claflin and Victoria Woodhull. Not in the present building, but in the one that formerly stood on that site those two remarkable women, the first to attempt to play a part in Wall street affairs, had their headquarters.

John W. Gates, one of the most spectacular figures Wall street ever has known, has two monuments in the twin structures at 111 and 115 Broadway. It was a realty company in which Gates and his associates had very large interests that put up those fine temples of business.

In the building that occupied the 111 Broadway site before Gates and his friends acquired it, Richard Croker, long the great mogul of Tammany, had his office when, a bit tired perhaps of politics, he moved down to the financial district.

Number 30 Broad street, known as the Johnston Building, and in which James R. Keene long had his offices, is a monument to a man who never lost faith in anthracite or Jersey Central stock. In the greatest slump that Jersey Central ever had Johnston held on to all his stock and even added to his holdings. With the subsequent recovery his fortune was so great that he sought outlet from some of it and the Johnston Building was a result.

BANKER'S MONUMENT

Number 2 Wall street is a monument to a banker, George F. Baker, who came from up the State and in the First National has built up one of the most powerful financial institutions in the world. The bank is unique in that while it has comparatively few depositors, considering its size, it probably has the highest average deposits, per depositor, of any bank in America, if not in the world. Big corporations bulk large among its patrons.

Down at Broad and Beaver there is a monument to the Louisiana lottery. It used to bear the name of the family that was most prominent in connection with the lottery but now its name is changed.

Number 26 Broadway is the monument to the oil. Once it housed practically all of the Standard Oil offices in New York but since dismemberment and the colossal growth of the various severed sections, the oil companies are scattered pretty well over the lower part of Manhattan. But the light still glows at Number 26.

HOME OF MORGAN

At Broad and Wall is the Morgan monument in the classic structure that houses the bank of J. P. Morgan & Co. It traces back to the Morgan who was a dry goods man in Connecticut and left there to come to New York, and in association with the Philadelphian, Drexel, established the house of Drexel, Morgan & Co. Later it became J. P. Morgan & Co., and now ranks among the greatest of the world.

Around in William street, is the temple of finance on which is the legend "Kuhn, Loeb and Company." That house grew out of a general merchandising concern of Cincinnati which gave up catering to the needs of the town along the Ohio River to come to New York and go into banking. The Kuhns and the Loebs have passed on but their successors have today perhaps the second greatest private banking house of the western world.

Down in Wall street is Brown Brothers' bank, a monument to Alexander Brown of Baltimore, who, more than a century ago established perhaps the first private banking house in America that has endured up to this time. Today the business of Brown Brothers is world wide.

In Broad street not far from Exchange Place, there is an old building that is a monument to two Turks. Years ago they used to sit in what might be called the show window on the ground floor of that building and roll cigarettes which they sold to curb brokers and others. From that beginning they developed an immense business. Some years ago one of the brothers built a marble palace on Riverside Drive for his home and he was credited with owning real estate in New York City valued at $6,000,000 all of which was free and clear of mortgage.

ANCIENT HERITAGE

In Wall street there are two

Over 8% in dividend returns with attractive redemption features

THE 8% cumulative prior preference stock of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, which is now available at $98 per share flat (including dividends from January 1) returns over 8% on the present cost, and as it is redeemable at 110 through a strong sinking fund, it offers the possibility of a much higher yield.

1922 sales amounted to $102,904,177. Earnings before interest and other charges, were $10,938,474, and as the Company is again operating with inventories averaging at or under the current market, the year 1923 should show a substantial increase. Net tangible assets for the prior preference stock are equivalent to $376 per share.

Primary Factors in California's Growth

Nationally, two California public utility concerns—the Pacific Gas and Electric and Southern California Edison—are recognized as predominating factors in California's growth. Nationally, these companies have arrived. Their securities are nationally distributed and possess good marketability in the financial centers of the country.

Pacific Gas and Electric Company

This Company is the third largest public utility of its kind in America. About 70% of its properties are electric and 30% gas. It serves 36 counties in Northern California having a population of about 1,850,000. The Company, or its predecessors, has been in the electric business for over forty-one years and in the gas business for sixty-nine years. Its Pit River project insures a source of hydro-electric power for increased power demands likely to be made for many years.

Foremost among Pacific Gas & Electric securities is the recent issue of First and Refunding Mortgage 5½% Gold Bonds, dated December 1, 1922, and due in 1952. They are exempt from California Personal Property Tax. Redeemable at 105 and interest. Price $98.50 and interest, to yield 5.60%.

Southern California Edison

An area of 55,000 square miles, a population of 1,500,000, 10 counties, 313 cities—this is the prosperous rapidly growing territory served by the Southern California Edison Co. It is a background for marketing electric light and power under the most favorable conditions.

Already 43,000 people have recognized the strength and earning power of this company by becoming stockholders. 98% of them live in its operating territory. During the next 10 years the company will bring into service upwards of 1,000,000 h. p. of electric energy.

As a good investment, consider Southern California Edison Company General and Refunding 5½% bonds—a new issue. Due February 1, 1944. Redeemable for 10 years at 105. They are exempt from California Personal Property Tax. Price $97.50 and interest yielding over 5.70%.

As an associate in the financing of these two utilities, we strongly recommend as safe investments Pacific G. & E. First and Refunding 5½% bonds and Southern California Edison Co. General and Refunding 5½% bonds. Descriptive circulars sent on request.

Land Owner's Oil Royalties Santa Fe Springs, Signal Hill and Huntington Beach

Santa Fe Springs broke all previous records in the past week by bringing in new production aggregating approximately 30,000 barrels per day, among which are Getty No. 2, producing 5000 barrels daily and steadily increasing; Petroleum Midway Foix No. 1, 6200 barrels; Superior Oil Company, Wardman No. 2, 6600 barrels; Standard Oil Company, Koontz No. 1A, 6800 barrels.

You should see the smile on the face of the Royalty owner in any of the above mentioned properties and in the numerous other big gushers at Santa Fe Springs.

A 1% Royalty in a 6000-barrel oil well means 60 barrels of oil per day, or approximately $90 daily income. It requires very little money to acquire a 1% Royalty interest.

We are offering some unusually attractive Royalties in 6000-barrel territory.

Buying direct assignments of Land Owner's Royalties is the safe way to play the oil game. We are in a position to render you a service not only in the selection of Royalties, but in the investigation of titles, securing for you Royalties in properties that are among the most desirous in the field. NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, March 3.—Railroad shares were bid up vigorously in today's brief, but active session of the stock market while heavy profit-taking sales were being made in the industrial group.

The bullish demonstration in rails, which had been lagging behind the market, was in belated response to the substantial improvement in earning shown by the January earnings reports over those of the same month last year.

New high records were established by New York Central at 99 1-2; Atchison, at 105 1-8, Baltimore and Ohio, at 55 1-2; Northern Pacific, at 81; Southern Railway, at 34 1-2; Rock Island, at 37 3-8; Great Northern preferred, 79 3-8, and St. Paul preferred, at 44 3-4, the net gains ranging from small fractions to nearly 3 points. At the end of the session, the average price of twenty leading railroad stocks was at the highest figure since April, 1920.

Steels which were strong yesterday slipped back today but not until after new peak prices had been established by United States Steel common at 108 7-8, Bethlehem B, at 71 7-8, and Republic, at 81 3-8. Operations of steel mills are now reported to be at about 90 per cent of capacity with several mills closing their books until a substantial reduction has been made in present unfilled orders. Despite the unusually heavy demand for steel, the United States Steel Corporation's monthly tonnage statement next Saturday is not expected to show much change because of the large volume of business turned down by the company.

Baldwin and Studebaker offered good resistance to selling pressure, yielding only fractionally on the day, but California Petroleum, which had recorded an extreme rise of 17 points during the week, dropped 1⅛ to 94⅞, while Pan-American Oil and American Can each slipped back more than a point. Good buying support was forthcoming in the copper issues which showed only nominal changes on the day.

There were a few strong spots in the specialty list, notably American metals, United Railway investment common and preferred, Adams Express, Owens Bottle and Postum Cereal, all up 1¼ to nearly 4 points. United Drug was conspicuously weak.

Foreign exchanges were firmer with business more active. Demand sterling sold around $4.70¼, and French francs were again quoted above 6.10 cents.

The weekly clearinghouse statement showed decreases of $23,476,000 in loans, discounts and investments; $3,451,000 in cash in own vaults, and $11,121,000 in net demand deposits. Reserve of member banks in the Federal Reserve Bank was increased by $16,564,000 and time deposits jumped $21,037,000. Aggregate reserve totaled $527,070,000, making a deficit in reserve of $385,660 as against a deficit of $17,627,850 the week before.

Day's total sales, 776,000 shares.

Twenty industrials averaged 104.91; net loss .14. High 1923, 104.65; low 96.96.

Twenty railroads averaged 90.63. Net gain .97. High 1923, 90.63; low 84.53.

FINANCIAL MEXICO IN GOOD SHAPE

Banker Says Credit of Republic Will Soon be on Firm Footing

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) March 3. While in San Antonio on his way to New York to attend a conference with the International Bankers' Committee, E. Casas Alatriste, head of the Mexican Finance Commission, made an optimistic statement in regard to the financial condition of Mexico.

"Our commission has for its purpose the definite exchange of bonds in payment of the foreign debt of Mexico, according to the terms of the Lamont-Adolfo De la Huerta agreement," he explained. "The conference at New York will be with the International Bankers' Commission on the subject of the foreign debt and does not have anything to do with the Banco Unico. At least I have not had any such instructions. After the first conference it has been tentatively decided that 25,000,000 pesos will be the initial payment of interest to the international bankers. Further arrangements for meeting the Mexican foreign debt will be worked out by the Mexican commission in conference with the International Bankers' Commission, but what our proposals will be I am not at liberty to give out."

Mexico was never in better financial shape than it is at present, according to Dr. Alatriste. He stated that governmental affairs are being handled in a much better manner than ever before and the credit of Mexico in the world markets will be established on a firm basis within the next few years.

Thrift Habit Gives Way to Falling Mark

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BERLIN, March 3.—The German Savings Bank Association has circularized its members, authorizing them to accept deposits on a gold basis on the strength of the internal $50,000,000 loan which the Reichstag has authorized.

The saving habit has been practically obsolete in Germany since the revolution, no one being stupid enough to lay up his treasure in a savings bank against the practical certainty of its depreciating away to nothing under the constant decline of the mark. Depositors, if they prefer, can now lay away against rainy days the money equivalent of so many bushels of rye or tons of coal, as the savings banks are authorized to accept deposits on the basis of various stabilized railway, coal and forthcoming potash loans, as well as the new dollar bonds.

A Reichsbank statement shows the note circulation—following the floating debt—is now way beyond the third trillion, reaching 3,136,000,000,000 at the close of business on February 23, 2,000,000,000,000 of which was issued during the preceding two months.

The Reichsbank directors point with pride to the slight slackening of pressure upon the Reichsbank as compared with January, owing to the successful campaign to improve the mark, but nevertheless they were forced to print 419,000,000 of new money during the week.

THREE BANKRUPTS FILE

The following petitions in bankruptcy were filed in the United States District Court yesterday:

Eugene H. Kendall, truck operator; liabilities, $16,765.94; assets, nothing.

Nand Singh, Brawley; liabilities, $3084.50; assets, nothing.

Irving Goldman, salesman; liabilities, $1777.93; assets, nothing.

NEW YORK CURB

Standard Stocks Up

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, March 3.—There were wide movements in many important stocks and groups the past week, with the most interest attached to issues that made substantial advances. Standard Oil stocks were naturally influenced by the favorable statement of Standard Oil of Indiana, which responded with an advance of 3 points to above 68. Borne Scrymser had the widest movement, ranging from 115 to 138. Galena Signal Oil rose from 72⅛ to 79; Standard Oil of Kentucky was another strong feature, advancing to 109, and there was heavy buying of Standard Oil of Kansas at prices ranging from 52½ to 56½. Prairie Oil and Gas moved up from 256 to 268, followed by a reaction to 260. Vacuum Oil was also strong during the greater part of the week, making an advance of 3 points, with a reaction when the supply of stock appeared. Solar Refining, which moved up 20 points in the preceding week, rose seven points to 212½, but also reacted in the later trading. Independent oil stocks were irregular. Gulf Oil rose over 4 points to 63 and there was active trading in a number of the low-priced issues, including Penn-Beaver, which sold at a new high record on statements of large production.

BOND QUOTATIONS

Small Declines

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, March 3.—Although there were several strong spots in today's bond market, the majority of the active issues showed small net declines at the close. Confirmation of reports that much of the recent selling pressure came from larger institutions was furnished by today's report of the 778 member banks of the Federal reserve system, showing conditions as of February 21, which revealed a substantial reduction in the holdings of both government and corporate securities.

Strength of the Mexican issues in reflection of the progress being made in connection with the service on the national debt was the feature of the foreign list.

The sharp advance in railroad stocks failed to entice much response from the bonds of those carriers although gains of 3-4 to 1 1-2 were registered by Union Pacific 4s, Norfolk and Western convertible 6s, Atchison adjustments 4s and Denver and Rio Grande consolidated 4s.

Except for a decline of 1 point in Cerro de Pasco 8s, most of the losses in the industrial division were forced to fractions. Trading in United States government securities continued irregular pending announcement of the terms of the government's new financing. Today's fluctuations were limited to a radius of 6 cents on $100. Latest Wall street reports indicate that the amount of the government's new loan will be $300,000,000, but opinion varied widely as to the probable rate of interest. Total sales (par value) were $7,209,000.

CALIFORNIA DRIED FRUIT

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, March 3.—Evaporated apples dull. Prunes improved slightly. Apricots firm, but quiet. Peaches, dull. Raisins, heavy.

LOS ANGELES EXCHANGE

Marked firmness in the Union Oil stocks and the termination of the heavy liquidation in Telluride were the only developments in yesterday's quiet market on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange. The oil stocks as a group exhibited a better tone than the mines, while Southern California Edison common was the only representative of the public utility and industrial list to indicate signs of animation.

Union Oil Associates opened at 50 and on an influx of profit-taking orders, the stock sold off to a close of 49 5-8, unchanged from the previous day. Union of California at 112 was up 1 point, and United Oil held firmly at 1.50, representing a gain of 2 cents over the final price of the preceding session. U. S. Royalties only appeared on the board for one sale of 200 shares at $1, but the scarcity of offerings moved the closing bid up to 1.04.

Telluride was opened at 14, and on a fair amount of supporting orders advanced to a final quotation of 15 cents, up 1¼ over the previous closing price. Tom Reed was unchanged at 1.12 and United Eastern sold at 2.20, up 3 cents. Yellow Dog sold at 90 cents.

Southern California Edison was firm at 103 3-8, and Los Angeles Investment was taken at 1.43.

Following are the closing quotations and sales:

On or Before March 15

AT a recent meeting of the Board of Directors of the Federal Discount Corporation, a resolution was passed increasing the selling price of the shares in the corporation, to take effect on or before March 15.

At the same meeting the directing board announced a dividend of 8% on all preferred stock, as of record February 20, 1923.

The action taken again emphasizes that this security offers the shareholder income, combined with marketability and safety of principal. That the day set for the advance in the price may be BEFORE March 15, is not at all unproblematical. We therefore urge those contemplating purchase to make their reservations early so as to take advantage of the present price of one share of preferred and one share of common for $12.50.

NEW GLORY FOR OLD BUSINESS

Small Companies Emerge From Twilight Zone

Intelligent Promotion Brings Blessing of Wealth

Few Signs of Trade Reaction in Near Future

BY CLINTON B. EVANS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

[Copyright, 1923, Public Ledger.]

CHICAGO, March 3.—The procession of comparatively small companies out from the twilight of past years in this city into the blaze of trading continues and largely the new entries on the Chicago Stock Exchange list are made up of these companies. They seem strange to many of the younger generation, but some of them are old fellows with the wrinkles of years smoothed out by new financiering, mainly the proper use of earnings and opportunities that have existed for a long time.

These concerns are bona-fide affairs, real expressions of work and capital, little known heretofore, coming up out of the desert of 1921 where for some of them there was scarcely a drink of water, though to others came gradually the accumulations now making them rich.

Wealth is accruing to persons who in many instances have been strangers to that blessing. It required the art of the promoter to work this change, the promoter who knows the difference between a fish and a sandbar and who refused to place these concerns in the category of the ordinary observer, not understanding the makings of value and what might come to them under a proper management with adequate capital.

In every case traders have given their approval to the recasting or recapitalization or revivification of these companies by stock prices above those at which they were placed before the people. And the private investor who not long ago would take fright at a crack in the sidewalk as he went through his daily routine is now picking up these stocks.

Even Kellogg Switchboard and Supply Company, too modest to have itself listed on the exchange, has had its little dance, they say up to 54⅛ on the curb. It showed extraordinary daring on the part of that concern to get so far away from its home par of 25 and its recent market quotation of 46, and some of the friends of the company are actually talking of 100 for it. But at the moment it seems unlikely that this sound old timber will allow itself to be used in being framed into some other corporation.

Among those companies not yet distinctively in the new game, one occasionally hears of the Byproducts Coke Company, which in the last four months of 1922 made up a deficit of the preceding eight months.

NO REGRESSION

Others of these are soon to be led up into the light. They are more attractive than some concerns with higher quotations because it takes less money to carry them and if you make a profit the percentage thereof puts to shame anything you can get on the high-priced stocks. Moreover the government is not standing by to tell you just how much money, or how little, you may make. It is notable that in the case of several of the corporations a large part of the inventory is on the basis of the prices of the latter part of 1921 or early 1922 and, accordingly, there is a profit at the present market levels.

At financial centers of the country last year the distinguishing thing was the issuance of bonds. The country had not reached the point at which stock offerings of a large scale seemed expedient, for the timidity of the public was well known. How definitely that characteristic has lasted over into 1923 is evidenced by many opinions of a week or a few weeks ago that business activity had "reached its peak." It is likely enough that building construction should be slackened, but elsewhere in busines there seems to be no surplus of supplies. Building has had a long run of activity, the greatest in its history, since the armistice, and the conservative man would be glad enough to see prudence enter into that interest to a greater extent, but in view of the great number of plans now on hand it is unlikely that we shall see any rapid regression.

In other lines there is scarcely a sign of reaction. Temporary relaxation of demand appears to indicate only the hope on the part of the buyer that he will get his goods at lower prices.

Armour & Co., whose business is largely foreign, pay their respects to the countries across the water with the statement "the financial, economic and political conditions of most of the European countries make trading with them a matter of hazard. SUBWAY SMOKERS ARE GIVEN FINES

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, March 3.—Sixteen men were fined $5 each and another $7 by Magistrate Simmons in Harlem Court. The men were accused of smoking in the subway at One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street and Lexington avenue.

"The conditions at this subway station have grown terible," said Magistrate Simms. "It has grown so bad in the last few months that men even light their cigars, cigarettes and pipes in the vestibules of the subway cars. I am going to do everything I can to stamp out this nuisance, and the subway smokers who come before me can expect to get the limit."

ECONOMIST WRITES OF EXCHANGE

University Professor is Author of Text-Book on Vital Subject

Under the title of "Domestic and Foreign Exchange," the McMillan Company has just published a book written by Ira B. Cross, professor of economics, University of California. The book should prove of assistance to students, bankers, exporters, shipping men and to all others interested in international finance. The general theory of international exchange is well covered from an historical, legal and economic point of view. The first two chapters are devoted to a discussion of domestic exchange as it existed prior to 1913 and the revolutionary changes brought about in the exchange situation by the passage of the Federal Reserve Bank Act. The remainder of the book is devoted entirely to a discussion of the theory and practice of international exchange, the author dealing with such subjects as the "gold points," "gold movements," "arbitration," "demand and supply of bills of exchange," etc.

A special chapter is devoted to import and export credits and negotiation of drafts drawn thereunder, the legal aspects of liability under indorsements, acceptances, trust receipts, the various types of commercial credits and the progress made by the American bankers in introducing the dollar letter of credit all over the world.

The "quantity theory of money," the "international standard of value," the "purchasing power parity" and various other modern and interesting economic theories are given critical consideration by the author.

The last chapter on "the World War and the exchanges" deals with the various methods thus far proposed for stabilization of the depreciated exchanges, a matter of considerable concern to all those interested in the world's economic progress.

The book is illustrated with various charts and forms actually in use by banks in the United States in their international transactions, thus giving the reader an insight into the actual workings of our larger international banking institutions. The book is the deep study over a number of years and for its clearness and thoroughness it will be of great assistance to all those desiring to broaden their view and increase their knowledge in international finance and trade and is of particular value to bankers.

HE-VAMPS ARE TO BE PUNISHED

Protests From Women Bring Prompt Action From Detective Bureau

With scores of letters from women pouring into the office of Captain of Detectives George K. Home, decrying the insults they are receiving at the hands of men young and old on the principal street corners of the city, a large squad of special detectives has been detailed to curtail the nuisance.

Thoroughly angered that such a condition should exist, Capt. Home yesterday declared his intention of herding in the "floppers," as the insulting male flappers are termed, and striving to have jail sentences given them.

"It is getting so a decent woman or girl cannot walk our streets without being approached by these men, who must be feeble-minded," he said. "It is nothing less than rotten. And it must be stopped.

"We have been conducting a campaign against these male flirts in Pershing Square and vicinity, and now it appears they have merely changed the site of their endeavors to down-town streets. One thing necessary is more severe punishment than they have been getting."

WOMEN WILL GET GREAT CLUBHOUSE

PLAN FOURTEEN - STORY BUILDING IN NEW YORK; TALK CO-OPERATION

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, March 3. — The status of women in business life, whether on the stage or otherwise employed, was discussed at a dinner of the American Woman's Assocation at its headquarters, 218 Madison avenue.

The speakers, who included Francis Starr, Marian Kerby, Gladys Hanson, Janet Beecher, Ethel Watts Mumford and Cecile Preston, said that there was no difference between actresses and women engaged in other professions. They held that there should be as much co-operation between business women as there is between business men.

Miss Robinson Smith, president of the association, said that the clubhouse for business women was to be realized. The site will be announced later, but she said that a fourteen-story building would be erected on a plot 100 by 200 feet, and the entire cost of land, building and furnishing will be $2,600,000.

"It is much more difficult," she said, "for women than for men to be friendly and cordial to each other. This is natural, for women during so many centuries have been sheltered and isolated from the outside world. We are still rather prone to cling to this isolation."

NEWSPAPER MAN FETED ON BIRTHDAY

Miss Roberts Entertains at Long Beach for C. H. Peirson, Fifty Years a Writer

In the grand salon of the Hotel Virginia at Long Beach last evening there was assembled a brilliant company, numbering thousands, who had been bidden by Miss Belle McCord Roberts to a reception in honor of Charles Heston Peirson, her father's oldest friend, upon his sixty-second birthday anniversary, which takes place in the fiftieth year of his active work as a writer for American newspapers.

Early in the evening Miss Roberts and Mr. Peirson took their places in the receiving line, which was formed between the main rotunda and the ballroom, and began receiving the felicitations of the guests. At 8:30 o'clock several hundred had extended their greetings. The line outside the Virginia Hotel was growing into large proportions.

Many invitations had been sent to friends of Mr. Peirson in New York, Washington, Albany, Buffalo, San Francisco and other cities where he spent much of his early life as a newspaper writer. Scores of telegrams of congraulations were received. Among them was one from Byron R. Newton of New York City, political writer for Collier's Magazine, which said, "The first fifty years of newspaper work is always the worst—I found it so."

From Mrs. Jack London, who is now in Paris, came a cablegram which ran as follows, "You have done pretty well for the first fifty years; try and make a success during the next fifty."

Mrs. William Friend Richardson, wife of the Governor, wired Miss Roberts that the serious illness of a relative would prevent her from attending the reception.

Miss Roberts wore black velvet with opalescent sequin bodice. Some of the ladies in the receiving line were gowned as follows:

Countess Sistarelli of Rome, Italy, wife of the composer, black velvet and diamonds.

Mrs. Edward A. Dickson, wife of the editor of the Los Angeles Express, black jet.

Mrs. Edwin R. Collins, wife of the managing editor of the Los Angeles Herald, draped gown of red velvet.

Mrs. Pierre Letchworth of Pénjerio Ranch, Covina, silver spangles over gray velvet.

Mrs. Walter Lineberger, wife of Congressman Lineberger, black net over silver cloth, with crystal beads.

Mrs. Rex Kennedy, wife of the editor of the Whittier News, black jet.

Mrs. Margaret Campbell of the Mary Pickford organization, green and gold brocade.

Mrs. Frederick Runyon, wife of the managing editor of the Pasadena Post, black sequin gown.

Miss Ruth Sterry, novelist and short story writer, white lace.

Mrs. Wilbur Hall of Sausalito, wife of Wilbur Hall of the Saturday Evening Post, American beauty satin banded with crystal beads.

Mrs. Florence Collins Porter, clubwoman and political writer of Pasadena, black lace.

Mrs. Joseph Rominger, wife of Senator Rominger, brown lace over satin.

Mrs. George A. Barry, wife of the editor of the Monrovia News, black velvet.

Mrs. Arthur Dodge, wife of the art director of the Los Angeles Times, orchid-brocaded satin.

Mrs. John M. Edgar, short-story writer and newspaper woman, rose pink and gold over pink satin.

Mrs. Justus Craemer, wife of the editor of the Orange News, French blue embroidered in gold.

Mrs. A. Chester Keel (Florabel Muir,) feature writer of the San Francisco Chronicle, white hand-embroidered net and lace.

Miss Reta Whitfield, secretary to Miss Roberts, black tulle and sequin.

On Ryder's 20,000 Barrel Recommendation

The Petroleum Midway's gigantic producer—marvel of Signal Hill—sensation of the Petroleum world—is a recommendation for Signal Hill few oil fields in the world can boast.

Long ago we gave to Signal Hill the title "mightiest oil field in America." We did this at the time because we believed in Signal Hill. Its 3000, 4000 and 5000-barrel wells—its two extensive production sands—its record of production—its tremendous dividend paying—aroused and stimulated our faith in it.

Then came the great Midway Petroleum Company's 20,000-barrel flush production Ryder well—proving to the general public what we already knew—that Signal Hill is in fact "America's greatest oil field."

Signal Hill had abundant proof of its worth before the monster Ryder gusher came in. But this gusher—the biggest in the West—one of the biggest in the world—constitutes a recommendation for Signal Hill that should this very minute move you to buy Miracle Units, so that you may have an opportunity to share in some of the wealth that is daily flowing from its wells.

Miracle Has Six Leases in this Mightiest of Oil Fields

Not one opportunity, but six are offered you in Miracle—three of its wells are drilling—a fourth is rigging—lumber is on the ground for the fifth—the sixth is a location.

Miracle's leases are among the best on Signal Hill—two of them are in the neighborhood of the great Ryder gusher—two others are surrounded by big producers—two may be classed as "wild cats" not far from production, but at the same time far enough to justify the name.

You get 60% of Miracle's oil from all its wells, on all its leases.

You get paid every thirty days for your share of Miracle's production at the market price of oil.

We guarantee to drill these wells to the deep pay sands—from whence came the great Ryder gusher—unless wells of 1000 barrels or more are obtained at a lesser depth.

100% to you--FIRST!

You get your money back first—100% before Fred B. Foster & Company shares in a cent of Miracle's profits—after that it's a 50-50 split.

You should take full advantage of the opportunity Miracle offers in this greatest of oil fields.

Accept today the recommendation of that mighty 20,000-barrel gusher—put a bet down on Miracle of Signal Hill—with its SIX WELLS—its SIX LEASES.

Wire in your reservation—put your order in the mail—call at any of our offices. Miracle units are $100 each—oversubscriptions will be returned.

Rains Depress Prices on New Crop Options

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, March 3.—A partial breaking of the drought over the southwestern winter wheat belt, together with bearish statistics brought about, scattered liquidation in all grains, and while there was fair support on the decline, the lowest figures of the day were made about the last. Wheat closed 1⅝@2c lower, with the new crop deliveries leading, while corn was ⅝@1c lower, oats, ⅛@⅝c lower, and rye, 1⅝@2c lower. Provisions were dull with lard 2½@5c lower and ribs unchanged.

Grain values held within relatively narrow limits the past week with rapid fluctuations. The close, however, was about the inside figures of the week on wheat, with net losses of ⅝@1c, while rye was off 3⅝@4⅛c. Coarse grains showed more strength, corn gaining ¼@⅝c and oats ⅛@⅝c for the week. Lard was up 7½@10c and short ribs 2½@5c, as compared with the finish of the previous week.

Heavy rains fell over part of the Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska wheat sections and resulted in considerable change in sentiment. New crop deliveries were under the most pressure with scattered liquidation in evidence the greater part of the day which offset aggressive commission-house buying, part of which looked like important short covering. Numerous stop-loss orders were uncovered on the way down and rallies were feeble throughout the day.

The break led to considerable export business in Manitoba wheat and sales late Friday and today were estimated at around 1,000,000 bushels. Domestic shipping demand slow with sample values lower. Liverpool closed ⅝@1⅛d higher on prospects of a better demand, due to a settlement of the Irish mill strike.

With wheat weak and a slow export and shipping demand a decline in corn was easily attained with stop-loss orders caught at 74⅝c and under for May. At 74c for that delivery there was buying on resting orders which checked the decline, and the trade generally looked for a bullish report on farm reserves to be issued by Snow on Monday. Country offerings are small. Sales of 100,000 bushels were made to go to store.

Oats showed fair resistance to pressure and closed on a small rally. Messages from Minneapolis reported liberal sales of cash grain the past week, with a sale of 800,000 bushels. Part of this will go to other markets.

ORANGES

LOS ANGELES, March 3.—(Office of the Fruit World.:) The market on California navel oranges, both at auction and private sale, has been lower the past week, particularly on sizes 126s and larger.

Shipments for the past week climbed to 1328 cars, an increase of 464 cars over the previous week. A heavier supply of navels in all markets is directly responsible for lowering prices.

With the large size problem comes the necessity for again reviving the crop estimate. Latest figures now being compiled promise another 10 per cent increase in navel production. Estimates as to the number of carloads of navels left for shipment range between 10,000 and 11,000. That would mean 5000 cars per month for the months of March and April, after which Valencia shipping will open up in full force.

Florida orange shipments the past seven days totaled 1000 cars. It will be well along toward the end of March before Florida shipments will be materially reduced. Florida Valencia oranges are now selling in eastern markets.

The two most important competitive factors in the California navel deal are apples and Florida oranges.

Apple values are more stable than at any time during the past three months. Holdings are somewhat heavier than a year ago. An unusually large proportion of the holdings show full maturity. To what extent the apple situation will continue to influence the navel market is problematical. The larger holdings of apples and the heavy proportion of fully matured fruit are weak spots in the situation. The result might be a continuance of the low level of prices which would have considerable bearing on the orange market.

Full and general bloom of orange trees will be under way during March. The bloom last year came largely in May. A general bloom in March is rare. An early bloom will make it possible for the oranges to attain a good size before the usual June hot spell.

F.o.b. California quotations are unchanged: size 80s, 1.90 per box; 100s, 2.40; 126s, 2.90; 150s, 3.15; smaller sizes, 3.40. Cash California quotations are as follows: Standard sizes, 10 per cent 100s and 20 per cent 126s, balance smaller, 2.65@3.00 per box for fancy fruit. Choice fruit, 2.00@2.75 per box. Straight cars of 126s and larger are quoted as follows according to size: 80s, 1.85; 100s, 2.35; 126s, 2.60.

At the present time weather conditions are such as to encourage a large orange consumption.

In other lines general activity continues. The trend of values is upward. Iron and steel, cotton, the building trades, etc., are all active. Factories and mills are operating on full time with full forces. There is practically no unemployment.

LEMONS

The influenza epidemic throughout the country is responsible for an unusually active demand for lemons.

F.o.b. California quotations are on a basis of 4.75@5.25 per box for extra choice fruit.

There are on hand and available for sale at all ports in the United States within the next thirty days approximately 166,000 boxes of foreign lemons.

FISHER'S WEEKLY INDEX

Showing the average movement, from week to week, (1) of the wholesale prices of 200 representative commodities and (2) of the purchasing power of the dollar. Both are relative to the prewar year 1913. (Thus the "low" of prices in January, 1922, exceeded prewar prices, on the average, by 38%, i. e., the dollar was worth 72.5 prewar cents.)

(This is the only weekly index number of general prices in the world. Its calculation (comprising 200 price quotations, each carefully weighted) in time to be published at the close of each week has been rendered possible through new devices described in Prof. Irving Fisher's new book, "The Making of Index Numbers." The price quotations used are from Dun's Weekly Review; the weights, from the War Industries Board reports.)

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, March 3.—Chief interest of the financial community this week was divided between the sharp upturn in the prices of industrial stocks, carrying the averages to the highest level since the spring of 1920, and sales of spot and old crop cotton above 30½c a pound, also the highest prices recorded in three years. Bond prices and foreign exchange rates showed only nominal fluctuations.

While the impetus for the advance in stock prices was furnished by operations of pool and professional traders, it was founded on the rising tendency of commodity prices, the market already having witnessed 17c copper, 5½c raw and 9c refined sugar and substantially higher prices for zinc, lead, steel and iron products, textiles and a large number of other commodities.

Further indications of trade and business improvement are also furnished by a continuation of record car loadings, a large increase in bank clearings, operations of steel mills at 90 per cent of capacity, resumption of dividends by the Anaconda Copper Mining Company, doubling of the Utah Copper dividend and a marked decrease in business failures, which amounted to approximately 25 per cent in the first two months of the year below the corresponding months last year.

NEW CORN OPTIONS LEAD COTTON MART

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, March 3.—The new crop months led another advance in the cotton market today. Trading was active and prices on the old crop were 15 to 21 points net higher at the close and on the new crop, 64 to 66 points higher. Short covering was evident throughout the list, but it was more conspicuous in the distant months. There was some buying in the latter part of the short session of the new crop positions against sales of the year. Some scattered selling was well absorbed by the trade and commission houses. Weekly statistics were construed as favorable.

Spot cotton was steady, 15 points advance for middling upland at 30.90.

Southern markets: Galveston 31.00, 50 points advance. New Orleans 30.50, 12 points advance. Savannah 30.60, 23 points advance. Augusta 30.63, 13 points advance. Memphis 30.50, 50 points advance. Houston 31.00 points advance. Little Rock, 29.75, unchanged.

HIT OR MISS

Most of us know just what should be done if some other man would get busy and do it.

You may have noticed that mighty few men of your acquaintance can be furious without being sulphurious.

A woman is more worried about feathers in this world than she is about wings in the next world.

The devil hates the man who minds his own business about as much as he loves the militant hypocrite.

About the only time the average married man fools his wife is the day he marries her.

We all try to help a modest person. We all try to injure one who is conceited.

A wife is a better fellow than a husband. She will stand around with the neighbor women and brag about her husband's ability even when she knows he hasn't any.

Still those who marry for money have as much chance for happiness as those who marry without it.

What doth it profit a married man to have five pay days in a month? It merely means five payout days to him.

Of course we might in all probability fail. But if we were a preacher we would try to make our sermons as broad as they are long.

DANGEROUS SUBJECT

There was a self-made man whose plenteous pile was not altogether free from taint.

He employed an expensive architect to build him a lordly pleasure house.

"I think," remarked the man of plans, "that you had better have a southern exposure."

The man of money grew red and shuffled his feet.

"Not so much of the 'exposure,'" he growled, "if you want to retain your contract."

BOND OF TRADE WITH MEXICO

Carriers Announce Sharp Cut in Freight Rates

Los Angeles Given Chance at Rich New Field

Concessions Granted Gratify Local Business Men

Since the excursions of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce to Mexico City, trade possibilities with the neighboring republic have taken an upward trend which will be expanded by a special line of freight rates, announced here yesterday by J. T. Saunders, general freight agent of the Southern Pacific Company, to be published shortly.

Similar readjustments of carload and class rates were also announced by H. P. Anewalt, general freight agent of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway Company, on shipments from both Northern and Southern California to El Paso, and destined for export to Mexico. The new rates will be substantially the same as now applicable to traffic from St. Louis and Kansas City to El Paso.

Under the new rates, material reductions will be effected on many Southern California products shipped to El Paso and destined to San Luis Potosi, Aguascalientes and points south on and beyond the National Railways of Mexico.

Local business men who have been co-operating with Mr. Saunders in obtaining the reductions say that the new rates will undoubtedly be of great assistance to California shippers in reaching the principal markets of Mexico in competition with other sections of the United States.

Chicago, St. Louis and Mississippi Valley interests are making determined efforts to work up the Mexican export trade and the new rates are expected to be of assistance to California shippers in their efforts to get the full measure of business that can be controlled from the Pacific Coast.

The action of the railroad companies was received with great satisfaction by Maynard McFie, chairman, and other members of the foreign trade committee of the Chamber of Commerce, and by F. P. Gregson, traffic manager of the Associated Jobbers. These men emphasized the importance of the Mexican situation.

SWEEPING REDUCTIONS

The reductions will range to a point higher than 50 per cent and will include all class rates, as well as the following commodities:

Agricultural implements, bags, barytes, beans, cans, canned goods, empty carriers, cordage, drugs, fertilizer, cereals and cereal products, furniture, clay and its products, beverages, gypsum, plaster, axle grease, fullers earth, hides, structural iron, machinery, condensed milk, olive oil, paints, roofing and building paper, soap and bicarbonate of soda.

In co-operation the Mexican railroads have published special rates from El Paso to apply on California products, making it possible for California merchants and manufacturers to enter that country at lower transportation costs than have prevailed since the beginning of the revolution that started with the downfall of the Diaz regime a decade ago.

GOOD FOR HOME TRADE

Commenting on the announcement of the rates, Mr. Gregson said:

"The announcement is good news for Los Angeles and Southern California generally. We long have been anxious to do business with cities in the central and eastern part of Mexico, to which sections trade relations so far have been controlled by eastern roads and cities through extremely low rates through El Paso and Eagle Pass.

"During the recent visits through Mexico by merchants of Los Angeles, which were made under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce, the Mexican people became interested in our activities and expressed a strong desire to do business with us.

"The Southern Pacific since that time has taken an active part in the negotiations and the new rates to be put into effect will permit us to actively compete with St. Louis, Kansas City, Chicago and other eastern cities for this Mexican trade.

"St. Louis has been the principal city doing business with Mexico and with which we now can most strongly compete. I am confident that a vast new channel of trade for this section will be rapidly developed."

BUILDING UP

In making the announcement, Mr. Saunders pointed out that the Southern Pacific, with the advent of a heavy movement of intercoastal traffic via water lines through the Panama Canal, is centering its attention to the building up of local territory and trade relations.

"While the rail carriers are not going out of the transcontinental traffic, they have turned their attention to the building up of local territory and realize that for the future a very large proportion of revenue will be derived from local traffic, incident to the building up of industries on the Pacific Coast.

"The present rates will apply from Los Angeles, Burbank, San Pedro, Long Beach, Pasadena, Colton, Riverside, San Bernardino, Redlands, Banning and other points generally taking the same rates in Southern California.

While the rates to El Paso will apply on many commodities, the following are given as examples of the reductions:

	Present.	New.
Class 1 rates	$3.21	$2.00
Class 2 rates	2.81½	1.73½
Class 3 rates	2.12	1.45

Class 5 rates	1.52	1.01

MARKET REVIEW

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, March 3.—The two most striking features of last week's markets, the great activity in stocks and the rapid advance in price of cotton, were emphasized at the week-end. In volume of business, today's market overtopped the very large business of the third Saturday in February and reached the highest total of any Saturday since June 3, 1922. With most of the industrial shares this active business reflected the double process of new buying and of heavy realizing sales on account of the week's professional operations for the rise. The result was that, although many of these stocks advanced further in the early trading, net declines were more numerous at the end than net advances.

On the other hand, most of the railway shares moved strongly upward and closed around the day's best prices. How far the advance in this group was spontaneous and how far a result of maneuvers to hold the general market while "taking profits" in the industrials, it might perhaps be difficult to say. The inactivity and hesitancy of the railway shares, at a time when the rest of the market was advancing, may have resulted from doubt over the achievement of really satisfactory net earnings even from the present full traffic or it may have resulted from vague fear of hostile legislation. If the first was the main hindrance to any real improvement of prices, events must still be awaited to prove the facts. If dread of proposals by the Brookharts and Cappers was the cause then at any rate Congress will not be in session again until next December.

The foreign exchange market did not shake off its recent lethargy; sterling, the Italian lire and the German mark ended unchanged from Friday and virtually at the previous week's closing prices. The franc was higher; it did not reach the best figure of the week, but it showed signs of good support. Spot cotton touched 30.90 cents a pound; it was only last Tuesday that it first crossed 30 cents partment Stores into the Los Angeles field, which was denied by M. A. Hamburger when the news first reached this city, has resulted in considerable comment by New York financial writers where the May Stores stock is frequently a favorite trader.

The following version of the transaction is from the Wall Street Journal:

"Purchase by May Department Stores of Hamburger & Sons, the largest department store of Los Angeles, Cal., for approximately $8,500,000 involves a long-term lease of one of most valuable blocks in Los Angeles.

"Annual profits of this store are about $1,000,000. This addition should bring net income of May Department Stores for 1923 to approximately $6,000,000 allowing for earnings of four stores now operated on basis of 1922. This increase would be equivalent to nearly $2 a share on 520,000 shares common stock of May now outstanding.

"Sales volume of May's four stores in 1922 was about $62,000,000 and addition of a fifth store in Los Angeles will add approximately $18,000,000 to turnover bringing total to $80,000,000."

ADDS BOND OFFICE

The association of H. C. Barroll with the First Securities Company was announced yesterday by John E. Barber, vice-president. Mr. Barroll was formerly associated with the original firm of N. W. Harris & Co., and was later engaged in business in Chicago and Los Angeles under the name of H. C. Barroll & Co.

WHITE MOTORS

Preliminary figures for the White Motor Company for the year 1922 show gross sales of over $37,000,000 and net earnings after all charges except dividends, of more than $3,700,000. The company continued dividend payments throughout the year, and after disbursements of $2,000,000, or 8 per cent, for this purpose, a balance of about $1,700,000 remains to be carried to the surplus account.

SOUND BANKING

Widespread approval of the recent action of the California Bank in prohibiting its trust company from accepting any securities from the California Securities Company, a subsidiary of the bank, is reported by A. N. Kemp, vice-president. Mr. Kemp says that several investment firms have congratulated the bank for its stand in this respect.

Under this decision, the trust company is not allowed to purchase bonds from the Securities Company, but must go into the open market for its needs. Where the California Trust Company is administering trusts that require the purchase of bonds, these securities cannot come from the slow and inactive issues that might be held by the California Securities Company. The unloading of such bonds from one department onto another has been severely criticised on the outside, and the California Bank has taken the lead in removing the evil.

RICH STEEL PRODUCTS

Business of the Rich Steel Products for the year of 1922, as reported by the First Seurities Company and Hunter, Dulin & Co., shows an increase of 60 per cent in net sales over 1921 from the two plants at Battle Creek, Mich., and in Los Angeles. Net income after Federal taxes and all charges indicate an increase of 100 per cent over the previous twelve months.

AGENCY REVIEWS

Dun's reports 389 commercial failures in United States this week, against 336 for five-day week preceding and 629 a year ago. The review says that as a reflection of improvement in trade conditions a point has been reached in some commodity lines where the main problem is not one of closing new contracts, but of meeting all demands and making deliveries promptly. Bradstreet's says that conditions in trade and industry generally are of a very cheerful tenor.

banks within a short distance of each other, one a monument to Alexander Hamilton, the other to Aaron Burr, who founded them.

Exchange Place has a towering office structure once called the Ice House, because the head of the big ice company of that day was interested in it and had his offices there.

The Seaboard National Bank Building is a mounment to Samuel Bayne, once an oil machinery man in Bradford, Pa., who came to New York and established the Seadboard Bank in 1883 at the time of the Grant and Ward failure, and who still manages the now great institution.

So it goes through a very long list. On the outskirts of Wall street you have a bit of the Astor monument in the fragment of the old Astor House that remains, the Astor House, once the pride of New York, and the only place Daniel Webster would live in while in New York.

Near by you have the National Park Bank, a monument you might say to Baron Steuben, whose house stood on the land now occupied by the bank.

And near by also is the Woolworth, the tallest building in the world, monument to a man who made a mighty fortune on 5 and 10-cent sales.

OUT OF THE PAST

No. 71 Broadway once was the business address of three men of world fame, Cyrus W. Field, Jay Gould, and Russell Sage. That was before the present towering structure displaced the former building.

At the junction of Beaver and South William is a building made famous by the Delmonicos, but now given over to insurance companies.

Not far away in Hanover Square is a very old house. It probably is not the one in which Capt. Kidd lived, but it was in a dwelling on that site that the famous pirate had his home.

Wall street is full of history and to some not the least of all centers around the subtreasury site where George Washington took the oath of office as first President of the United States and Fraunces's Tavern, near by, where he delivered his farewell address.

Effort to Read Bible Passages Leads to Cell

Paul Sigley will spend the next three months in the County Jail reflecting on the complications of a world in which girls refuse to listen to Bible readings during the course of pleasant evening drills. Sigley pleaded guilty to assault in Judge Reeve's court yesterday, and drew the three-month term.

According to the complaint, Sigley went to call one night on Miss Nellie Guy. During the evening, he suggested that she hear him read a few selections from the Bible. But Miss Guy, the testimony indicated, was loath to listen.

Thereupon, she charged, Sigley became angry and finally drew out a gun and beat her into insensibility. Originally, the charge against Sigley was assault with intent to do bodily harm, but the lighter charge was later substituted. Sigley spent three months in jail awaiting trial.

ADDITIONAL POLICEMEN ARE URGED

Crime Commission Sends Council Request for Added Officers

Continuous increase in the personnel of the Los Angeles Police Department at the rate of not less than fifty additional officers a month until 500 officers have been added is urged upon the City Council in a resolution adopted by the Crime Commission of Los Angeles, and submitted to the Council by Walter K. Tuller, chairman of the commission.

The commission expresses its opinion that such action will be necessary immediately to check the wave of violent crime prevalent in the city environs. At the same time, the commission thanks the County Board of Supervisors for their co-operation in the commission's effort to organize a concerted offensive against criminals.

The resolution to the Council follows:

Be it resolved that the Crime Commission of Los Angeles express to the Council of the city of Los Angeles its appreciation of the action of that body in increasing the base pay in the police department, believing as it does that this action is an important step in increasing the effectiveness of our police department.

Be it further resolved that it is the opinion of this commission that an immediate increase in the personnel of the Los Angeles Police Department should be made in order to suppress the wave of violent crime prevalent in our city; and that the said increases in the personnel of the police department be made on the basis of not less than fifty (50) additional officers per month until five hundred (500) officers have been added.

Be is further resolved that a copy of this resolution be transmitted to the City Council and furnished to the public press.

The commission resolution, sent to the Board of Supervisors, follows:

Be it resolved that the Crime Commission of Los Angeles express to the Board of Supervisors of Los Angeles county its appreciation for its co-operation and assistance in the endeavor of this commission to inaugurate and carry on a concerted defensive against crimes of violence in the State of California as manifested in their recent action in increasing the personnel and efficiency of the criminal department of the office of the Sheriff of Los Angeles county.

Be it further resolved that a copy of this resolution be transmitted to the Board of Supervisors and furnished to the public press.

Violator of Dry Laws Is Facing New Sentence

The Second District Court of Appeal has curtailed the freedom of Charley Adams, admitted violator of the Wright Act, who, following his commitment to the City Jail to serve a 130-day sentence, applied for and obtained a writ of habeas corpus in the Appellate Court and has since been at large. In an opinion handed down yesterday by Judge Conrey of Division No. 1, it is held that Adams is still lawfully within the jurisdiction of the Police Court where he was originally sentenced and he is ordered remanded to custody to await a second sentence.

Adams, said to have been formerly an enlisted man of the U. S. Navy, was arrested more than two months ago at the harbor charged with having liquor illegally in his possession. He pleaded guilty before Police Judge Crawford and received a six-month jail sentence. He was subsequently released on a writ of habeas corpus issued by the Appellate Court when attorneys for Adams established the point that the Police Court sentence was void inasmuch as the Volstead ruling provides a maximum punishment of $500 in fine, without imprisonment, where the culprit's possession of liquor is a first offense. Adams, through his counsel contended that the illegal sentence of the Police Justice deprived that court of the power to resentence him.

Widow Fails to File Answer to Damage Action

Mrs. Clara Richardson, wealthy widow, will not contest the $25,000 damage suit brought against her by Mrs. Tekla Harvey for the asserted theft of the love of her husband, Wallace George Harvey. The time limit for filing an answer or a demurrer to the suit passed yesterday without action by Mrs. Richardson.

In the complaint filed in Superior Court Mrs. Harvey relates that she was married to Mr. Harvey in August, last, and that just two months later, Mrs. Richardson sought to gain the affections of her husband. The wife declares that the widow induced Mr. Harvey to spend a great deal of his time with her, so that he lost his love for his wife.

As the suit is not contested, the case is expected to be set for trial in the near future. Attorney Ben C. Cohen represents Mrs. Harvey.

FILM FOLK SEEK DATA ON JAUNT

Scenes of Wright Stories to be Visited to Aid in Screen Adaptations

Eleanore Coffee and John Goodrich, who have been engaged by Principal Pictures Corporation to adapt the series of Harold Bell Wright stories for the screen, are preparing for a novel trip in quest of data pertaining to the first of the Wright series, "The Winning of Barbara Worth."

These film folk, accompanied by Michael Rosenberg, secretary of Principal Pictures Corporation, left yesterday for the Arizona home of Harold Bell Wright, and will spend considerable time at the author's ranch near Tucson. Here they expect to obtain facts pertaining to the author's ideas of the stories shortly to be filmed.

Harold Bell Wright is a most unique story writer. In all his novels, he has used living models with which to surround his tales.

After their visit, Miss Coffee, Mr. Goodrich, and Mr. Rosenberg will depart for Imperial Valley, the scene of action of "The Winning of Barbara Worth." Here they will meet and talk to the people whom Harold Bell Wright used in this story.

In almost every instance, Wright has used California as the background for his books.

The continuity for the George M. Cohan stage success, "The Meanest Man in the World" was arranged by Miss Coffee and Mr. Goodrich. This production will be started immediately by Principal Pictures Corporation.

"Show Me"

One weak point in my new four-well offer at Santa Fe Springs

"Show Me" where the odds are not greatly in my favor of drilling in 4 big wells on these four locations.

"Show Me" where you can make an investment that has one-tenth the possibility that my offer presents.

"Folks"

I'm just so enthusiastic and sure of the results that I am going to get for you on these 4 wells, I'm inviting you to participate in, that the language I have to use does not even come near giving you any idea of the confidence I have in my two five-acre leases and my ability to carry this project through to success.

Why do you suppose I stepped out and paid $130,000 in cash for these two leases? That's the exact amount to a dollar that I laid on the table and my affidavit is on file to that effect. Had I wanted to take a chance I could have secured acreage for a twentieth of this amount.

I'm playing this game as safe as it is possible to play the oil business and unless I was absolutely sure of my territory, I wouldn't dare to spend one dollar of your money.

Why do you suppose I give you every barrel of my production from these 4 wells until you have been paid back every dime you put in before I take a barrel of oil myself, and then only retain 12½% of the proceeds?

I'll tell you why, because I'm so sure that these 4 wells will produce millions of dollars of oil that I can afford to wait for mine until you are riding on velvet.

Why do you suppose that I am starting all these four wells down to the oil sand together? Do you think if there was a millionth part of a doubt in my mind about getting big producers on all 4 locations I would take a chance of drilling two wells on each tract? Not on your life; I'm smart enough to know that were I to drill two dry holes along side of each other I'd ruin my reputation with you forever. "Not me folks"; the confidence you have shown me is too valuable for me to ever take a chance of losing it.

Without your financial assistance what could I do in the oil business? I could go back into a drilling rig and work ten hours a day.

You can't give me credit for committing suicide by pulling a boner at this stage of the game, with a future staring me in the face, greater than I ever dreamed of a year ago.

You know that I know it is you wonderful people that made it all possible for me. "Could you imagine me biting the hand that fed me?"

No! No! No! No!

I'm so sure of my stuff this time that I'd bet my life on it and I've just got to make you believe me, too. Just let me get going with these 4 wells and I'll run a race for you to that big Meyer pay at Santa Fe Springs that will take some beating.

WAR DECLARED ON MENDICANTS

Associated Charities Ask Halt on Gratuities

All Street Beggars Called Professionals

Aid for Everyone Supplied by Organizations

The first gun of a war of extermination against beggars, panhandlers and other mendicants who infest the streets of Los Angeles was fired yesterday by sixteen local charitable agencies, with the distribution of a folder warning the public and listing the various places where distress is alleviated.

The folder is issued by the Social Service Commission of Los Angeles. It requests the public not to give money to street mendicants. Work, food, clothing and shelter are available for the needy through the regular channels of relief, it declares, and requests that when an appeal is made by anyone, even the handicapped, one of th social agencies be telephoned to for advice.

The folder quotes John D. Godfrey, mendicant officer for the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities, as saying: "For more than twenty years I have been in daily contact with beggars on the streets of Greater New York. I have assisted, investigated, or talked with thousands of mendicants. Looking back on it all, I have to confess that I have yet to uncover a single deserving case. Three years ago my department sent out investigators who followed up 800 cases of street begging. In every instance the mendicant was a professional."

Expert Assistance in Furnishing the Living Room

DEDICATED TO BETTER HOMES

Wherein does one Living Room differ from another? Not necessarily in the amount spent upon the furnishings.

For have not all of us at some time sensed the lacking note in a Living Room upon which has been lavished a small fortune.

On the other hand we have often admired the quiet simplicity, the warmth of color, the inviting arrangement, within some modest Living Room that has caused us to say: "This is a real home."

The correct furnishing of this important room does not depend so much upon the amount expended as upon the knowledge of how and where to select and how to arrange the proper furnishings.

For this reason the advice, counsel and experience of experts in home furnishing at the disposal of patrons of the "California" have created many distinctive and beautiful Living Rooms without the necessity of lavish expenditure.

The "California" gladly offers this important service to those who wish to avail themselves of it, with no obligation whatsoever incurred or implied.

Sapphire Between Diamonds
The Choice of the Duke of York

As the royal bridegroom of the year, the Duke of York becomes the arbiter of fashion in several particulars—none more important than in the mode for the engagement ring.

His betrothal gift to Lady Elizabeth is a ring set with a large sapphire in the center and a diamond on either side. The gems are held in a mounting of platinum.

The precedent set by the Duke is regarded as almost de rigueur throughout British society, and as a consequence the sapphire may be regarded there as the stone of the year. Even in America, the influence of the royal choice has been already felt, giving the sapphire an unusual prominence in engagement rings.

Unusual, but not undeserved, for in its deep blue loveliness, the sapphire is admirably befitting as love's token. And it can be shown to no better advantage than in close conjunction with diamonds, as is the case in Lady Elizabeth's ring.

Sapphires in combination with diamonds are featured in a number of the exclusive gem-set pieces, manufactured in our shops and now available for your selection.

"Everything in Silk"

—showing Hamburger's readiness for national silk week

Since its discovery in time immemorial silk has influenced the dress and customs of succeeding civilizations. Strong nations have gone to war for the mastery of its trade. Through the ancient civilizations of the East, the great Roman Empire and the gorgeous courts of the medieval world, clear down to modern times its influence can be traced. In its weaving and dyeing is reflected the spirit of every succeeding century.

In no way has silk been more cherished than as an aid to the charms of womankind. For centuries its beauties belonged only to royalty and the aristocracy. But with the march of the ages science brought to the silk industry modern methods of dyeing and weaving, thus increasing the output and reducing the cost. So today it would be hard to find a wardrobe that does not contain a goodly number of silken garments.

The Spring of 1923 brings probably the most gorgeous array of silks the world has ever seen. In variety of weaves, in beauty and profusion of patterns and designs the silks of this season stand preeminent. The industry has turned back a few centuries to find inspirations for patterns but has gone a long stride ahead in providing new weaves of lovely texture.

The best of the new silks are now ready at Hamburger's. Many departments have made special provisions for the national silk week making it worth any woman's time to visit Hamburger's. The outstanding feature is the great silk sale that starts tomorrow.—Main Floor.

For the closing numbers Miss Broadwell was dressed in the party costume loaned to her by a Chinese lady, this group of songs including one number in Chinese. LINDSAY

Mrs. Lyman D. Stookey of Los Angeles, State regent of the D.A.R., was in Lindsay Saturday as guest of the local D.A.R. She was honor guest at a luncheon at the Hotel Lindsay given by the members, and later attended a meeting at the J. B. Frisbee home. The John Boardman home was the scene of a dinner party in the evening, Mrs. Stookey and husbands of the members being guests. Mrs. Stookey stopped here en route to the State convention at Oakland.

Mrs. A. L. Evans entertained the Pioneer Bridge Club at her home Thursday with a 1 o'clock luncheon. Table decorations were in keeping with Washington's Birthday. In the center of the table was a miniature George Washington with his hatchet and the cherry tree. The candle shades, favors and place cards further carried out the prevailing motif. Following luncheon the usual rounds of bridge were enjoyed. Mrs. A. M. Roberston, who was a club guest, was awarded the guest prize. Mrs. A. M. Hostetter, holding high score for members, received the club prize.

Mrs. Annie Little Barry gave the last of her series of four current-event reviews Tuesday afternoon at the Tuesday Club. Events of the moment were reviewed most entertainingly and discussion was given to the late movies, "Old Testament" being considered one of the best. Others included "The Covered Wagon," etc. Among books reviewed were "The Sun Chaser," "Black Oxen," "The Old Crow," "Man's Country" and "American Individualism."

TULARE

Members and guests of the Friday Bridge Club were entertained Friday afternoon by Mrs. M. C. Zumwalt and Mrs. R. D. Helm at the Zumwalt home on King and North H streets. Prizes were awarded and refreshments served at the conclusion of the games.

Substitutes for the afternoon were Mmes. J. T. Crowe, J. C. Kendrick, Leo Smith, C. E. Taylor, Paul Hanner, C. E. Harper, P. C. Taylor, Louis Lachman, Tom Cook, A. H. Osborne, L. J. Haney of San Francisco; Grace Cather of San Francisco and Orland Montgomery of Lindsay.

One of the largest crowds of the season gathered in the Woman's Clubhouse for the George Washington ball. Streamers of red, white and blue hung from the center of the ceiling to all four corners and great sprays of wild cherry blossoms filled the orchestra stage and corners. Low-hung lights were shrouded in the prevailing colors, shedding a pleasant glow over the beautiful gowns and lovely dancers.

Ladies of '76 presided over the punch bowls, around which gathered many merry groups.

A number of specialty dances proved most popular, honors going to Miss Ella Mahoney and Mr. Winter Poston for the waltz, while Miss Helen Kingsbury and Mr. Darden LaMarsna took first for the fox trot.

Clair Thompson of this city and Miss Helen Storm also of Tulare, surprised their parents and many friends by unexpectedly getting married following a delightful banquet of the Umo Club at the Congregational Church parlors Thursday evening. Mrs. Thompson is a member of the club and had told none of her friends of the happy secret. The young couple left for Los Angeles immediately for a brief honeymoon. They will make their home in this city.

PORTERVILLE

At a quiet home wedding in the presence of only immediate relatives, Lloyd Frame and Miss Alberta Brown, both of this city, were united in marriage Monday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Brown of Roche avenue, Rev. P. C. Metcalf, of the Methodist Church, officiating. The bride was becomingly gowned in gray duvetyn and carried a shower bouquet of Cecile Brunner roses.

A delicious six-course dinner was served immediately following the ceremony, table decorations consisting of Cecile Brunners and maidenhair fern. Just after dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Frame departed for a brief honeymoon in Los Angeles. Only guests, other than relatives, were Mr. and Mrs. Roswell Martin.

Mrs. Frame is the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Brown and is well known in the younger social set of which she is a popular favorite. Mr. Frame is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Frame, among the older residents of this city. He is employed by the Associated Oil Company here. They will make their home in Porterville.

Announcement of the marriage in Berkeley of Clair McFarland and Miss Esther Albertine Touraine is of interest to Porterville people, as Mr. McFarland was formerly a resident of this city. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. S. McFarland, who have resided west of Porterville for many years, and was a graduate of the local high school in 1912, later attending the University of California. Business carried him to Schenectady, N. Y., on completing his university course, and there he enlisted in service during the World War.

VISALIA

Mrs. Effie Scott and her daughter, Mrs. Edna Scott Frasher of Hanford, were charming hostesses Tuesday afternoon, entertaining in honor of Miss Myrtle Scott. The afternoon opened with three tables of mah jongg in the prettily decorated living-rooms, spring blossoms lending an attractive oriental effect.

At 5 o'clock a six-course luncheon was served in the dining-room, fresias and hearts being daintily combined in decorations. Chief feature of the table decoration was in the centerpiece, from which dainty ribbons strung to the places holding miniature hearts, announcing the betrothal of Miss Myrtle Scott to Roy Reed of Hanford. The ribbon of the bride-to-be drew a handsome engagement ring. Hearty congratulations were showered upon Miss Scott.

Fourteen of Miss Scott's intimate friends, including most of her sorority sisters, were guests for the happy occasion. They were the Misses Gwen Jones of Los Angeles, Margaret Sherman and Nome Barston of Hollywood, and a number of Visalia friends, who were week-end guests at the Scott home. Other out-of-town guests were Misses Iva and Ruth James of Coalinga, and Mildred and Ann Harrington of Lemoore.

98 Out of Every 100 Women Benefited

An Absolutely Reliable Statement Important to Every Woman

Remarkable Results Shown by a Nation Wide Canvass of Women Purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
—— 50,000 Women Answer ——

For some time a circular has been enclosed with each bottle of our medicine bearing this question: "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?"

Replies, to date, have been received from over 50,000 women answering that question.

98 per cent of which say YES. That means that 98 out of every 100 women who take the medicine for the ailments for which it is recommended are benefited by it.

This is a most remarkable record of efficiency. We doubt if any other medicine in the world equals it.

Think of it—only two women out of 100 received no benefit—98 successes out of a possible 100. Did you ever hear of anything like it? We must admit that we, ourselves, are astonished.

Of course we know that our medicine does benefit the large majority of women who take it. But that only two out of 100 received no benefit is most astonishing.

It only goes to prove, however, that a medicine specialized for certain definite ailments—not a cure all—one that is made by the most scientific process; not from drugs, but from a combination of nature's roots and herbs, can and does do more good than hastily prepared prescriptions.

You see, we have been making, improving and refining this medicine for over 50 years until it is so perfect and so well adapted to women's needs that it actually has the virtue to benefit 98 out of every 100 women who take it.

It's reliability and recognized efficiency has gained for it a sale in almost every country in the world—leading all others.

Such evidence should induce every woman suffering from any ailment peculiar to her sex to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and see if she can't be one of the 98

SARDINES IN SHIMMERING TONS IN SAN PEDRO NETS

Greatest Haul in the History of Local Fisheries; Scientific Methods of the Brainy Jap Fishermen Bring Amazing Results

BY SYL MacDOWELL

The greatest sardine pack in history is being made at Los Angeles Harbor this season. Seventeen canneries are running at capacity, producing half the American output. "Yesterday," says a busy plant foreman, stopping long enough to light his pipe, "the sardine fleet brought in 2000 tons!" And 90 per cent of the catch is being harvested by Japanese. "Nice fish—nice, cheap food," chatters the grinning Nipponese as he wallows waistdeep in a shimmering deckload.

"Fifteen tons of fish right there," the foreman estimates. "You won't see sights like that if our Legislature passes the alien fishing bill. Americans won't stand hardships of the sea like these little leather devils."

"Very int'resting vocation," asserts K. Tomonaga, skipper and owner of the "Lucky Strike." "Very int'resting. But quite hard."

HIGH-BROW FISHER

Tomonaga started to fish when he was 5 years old. His father and his grandfather were fish chieftains. He went to Namura—a Japan university—to study English law, German and fish-catching. Then, in 1915, he came to California. Some day he is going to write a book about California fish and how to get 'em.

Also, since leaving school, Tomonaga has studied gas engines. So every afternoon he turns the air compressor valve and his two-cycle, forty-five-horsepower motor heads for the fishing grounds.

"Tommyhawk will be back before morning with a limit load," promises the foreman.

SCIENTIFIC FISHING

The Lucky Strike is a typical [illegible]-foot albacore boat. She carries a crew of nine. An 1800-foot seine net is heaped on her stern. A skiff trails in the wake.

Below deck forward Tomonaga is buried in a mess of charts. In his fishing log he writes such entries as these:

"Sunset, 5:51 p.m.; moonset, 11:11 p.m. Low tide, 6:35 p.m.; high tide, 1:00 a.m."

Then he studies his navigation charts awhile. Pencil marks indicate locations of previous catches. At length he decides.

SARDINES AT TEN

"Ten o'clock," he says with confident finality. "Sardines come to top tonight at 10:00 o'clock. They will not be afraid then."

The boat is plunging around the end of the breakwater. Tomonaga squeezes past the galley table and thrusts his head up through the open hatchway, shouting a command to the helmsman in the pilot house.

The wheel spins and the Lucky Strike sweeps onto a steady course, west one point north.

Tomonaga knows just where he is going to catch fish. Sardines are like Iowa tourists; they flock for a nice climate.

"Climate in water here no good," explains Tomonaga, laying a finger on the twenty-fathom contour of his geodetic chart. "But over here water is deep. Nice fish climate."

THE FISH GROUNDS

It is only a fifty-minute run from Fish Harbor to the grounds off Portuguese Bend—twenty-five miles from Broadway. At the bow stands the fish captain (he has a Japanese title that defies translation) peering into the mist ahead to sight a school. Too bad, this fog. Maybe it will lift with a sundown breeze.

The boat idles along at a four-mile gait. Astern, the Yale, as white as the fog wreaths, noses seaward, her racing propellers sending out a long wake. She passes a weatherbeaten freighter, putting into the outer harbor.

Overhead tired gulls wing their way to roost on the rocks at Point Firmin. An oily swell is running. The deck is shipshape and the silent crew lounges along the rail, smoking while there is chance. Their flaring sea boots are rolled down to their knees and the dank fog does not seem to chill their bare arms and chests.

Here comes the shore breeze, ruffling the water. The fishermen take down coats that hang aft the pilot-house and huddle at the lee rail. Low-sweeping smoke from galley stove smarts their eyes. They crowd below and find a meal.

HOW THEY LIVE

Rice? Chopsticks? Not for these orientals who run a $10,000 craft. At sea baker's bread is handier. They toast it on a stove lid and wash it down with coffee.

The fish captain sights the splash of a leaping fish. On the stern-light standard is a bell button. He presses it and an alarm jangles forward. Tossing off their coats the crew races aft on the slippery decks, scrambling into oilskins and yanking up their boots as they run.

It is dusk now and the breeze has cleared the mist. At a shout the helmsman puts the wheel over hard and the boat circles slowly. Everyone is looking for the school.

"TOMARERU, HAYAKU!"

"Tomareru, hayaku!" barks the fish captain from the bow. The man at the wheel obeys—stops, quick. For they must see where the fish are heading. Always the pocket of the net must be dropped ahead of the school.

A sharp cry again from the fish captain and man in the stern leaps into the skiff. In a twinkling he casts off, gripping a rope tied to one wing of the heaped net.

The helmsman slams the gear lever forward and the boat throbs and leaps ahead. The skiff bobs and the distance widens quickly between it and the boat. The net whips out. The Lucky Strike races in a big circle inclosing the school. The bunt drops with a splash and the corkline slithers and swishes, ten, twenty, thirty fathoms. A bucket of water is sloshed over the melting pile of net. It must not snarl.

The reverse gear grinds and shakes the deck as the boat hauls to and picks up the skiff. The net is spread now, 500 feet across. The wing rope is passed aboard. The skiffman ties up alongside. Some one flings out the bow anchor; the boat must be steady for the haul. Without waste effort or the least confusion the long net has been cast and now all nine of the crew are hauling at it astern.

AN EMPTY HAUL

This is the moment of promise, as the net closes. Five men pull at one wing, four at the other. They work fast, grunting a strange chant. Sweat pours from them, mingling with the dripping net piled around them.

At length, a sorry wagon load of a mixed catch is swept onto the deck; kingfish, anchovies, a few sardines of varying size, some squid and a dozen or so big mackerel that beat the deck with their tails.

The fishermen pick out the squid and mackerel. These they consider choice food. The others are tossed scornfully back into the sea. Up anchor, and they pile the net for next cast and foray for another school.

"No good time now," says Tomonaga, with an I-told-you-so-grin. "Ten o'clock. Then we catch fish."

In a half hour, another cast is made. A few fish are brought in, but the net is dumped.

NO LITTLE FELLOWS

"Too small," says the skipper. The canneries are packing fish that are eight to twelve inches long—four-fifths and six-sevenths they call them, as four or five or six and seven, alternating, are packed in the one-pound oval tins.

Only the San Diego canneries buy small fish this season. They are put into quarter-pound flat tins, eleven and twelve to a pack. These smaller fish—quarter oils, they call them—reach a choice market and vie with the world-famous Norwegian product.

"Six, seven years ago," says Tomonaga, "people would not eat big sardines. Then came big war and they ate anything. Now they like big ones and we catch 'em."

At 8:30 the third cast is made. A scant ton of fish is hauled aboard.

At 9:45 another try. This was a good school, but the net came up empty.

"Seal!" succinctly exclaimed a disappointed toiler. A seal had come into the net and frightened the fish down.

FISHING IN THE DARK

Ten o'clock came and Tomonaga's reputation was at stake. Frequent schools were sighted now from the bow. But they were small, broken ones. So the fish captain didn't ring the bell.

Suddenly there loomed a great phosphorescent patch a few feet off the starboard quarter. A chorus of excited cries went up along the rail. For here was a mighty school, moving slowly at the surface, leaving a wake like the milky way.

Then another flaming school. A series of explosive commands from the bow and the helmsman performed a rare feat of boatmanship. Spinning on the keel, the Lucky Strike charged away at a tangent and headed both great schools together.

Now the skiff shot out astern of

AN OLD INDIAN SECRET

Hollywood Author Finds Mineral Deposit from Which Mojave Pottery Came—Kaolin, Lost Clay

BY BILL, THE PROSPECTOR

The ancient secret of the Indian pottery makers has just been [illegible] by a Hollywood scenario writer. It is a valuable deposit of [illegible], a rare clay from which the aborigines molded ware that is [illegible] of entymologists.

The finder of this lost lode is Ar[illegible] A. Statter, former Assistant [illegible] of the United States [illegible] during Theodore Roosevelt administrations, and now a [illegible] writer for Lasky, Goldwyn, Universal and other companies.

The kaolin mine lies on the [illegible] desert wastes midway [illegible] Mojave and Randsburg. [illegible] has filed mineral claim to [illegible] property, has recorded it under the name of "Black Butte [illegible]" and expects to begin quarrying operations soon. The product will be shipped from Mojave to [illegible] Angeles, to be used in the manufacture of china and high-[illegible].

[illegible] of the clay, tested, show it to be equal to the renowned [illegible] in France from which [illegible] china is made.

[illegible] a juniper twig fire, at the [illegible] Statter has baked samples of the native clay. Even by such crude baking it becomes a fine-textured substance which explains the age-lasting qualities of the Indian pottery.

THE OLD DIGGINGS

Traces of old diggings, presumed to have been made by aborigines, are found in the vicinity of Black Butte, a landmark which can be seen for miles.

The Mojave Indians were pottery makers. Other tribes wove baskets. They lacked the fine clay beds, did the other desert people and the Serranos, or Indians of the mountains. So they were obliged to spend painstaking hours in weaving containers for food.

A wide variety of minerals and metals is found in this part of the desert.

Not many miles from Statter's claim is the big tungsten mine near Atolia, which is the world's greatest producer of this rare metal. So productive were its operations that a world's reserve supply of

OUR QUEER TENANTS

BY GRACE WILCOX

Our old office building houses not only queer sounds, but queer tenants.

We don't know we are queer.

We think we are a little bit of all right; we like ourselves; our funny old building that is handy to both jails and the Courthouse; our manager who runs everything including the elevator; our janitor, who cedar-mops us, furniture-polishes us and leaves us to our fate for another month—in fact, we like everything.

Those poor wild-eyed business fiends in the downtown offices surrounded by handsomely polished mahogany, plate glass, bronze wickets, double-down furniture and shining halls of stately magnificence make us feel sad whenever we think of them.

A little dust would do them good.

Trying to live up to D. W. Griffith's idea of a Wall street broker's office is all right on the screen, but almost too roomy in real life. It takes too long to get to the push-buttons.

Our manager is partly to blame for his tenants being queer.

In fact, he encourages the Bohemians to move in on him.

He looks like a clergyman, dresses like a boulevardier—and is in fact a changeling dropped in the pond of landlords by mistake.

He actually likes the tenants.

We all feel that if we happen to let our rent quiver in the air too long, we can go and borrow it from him.

Undoubtedly when we began to analyze the situation we are more than merely queer, we are positively eccentric.

We adore the landlord.

That alone is enough to brand us as subjects for a quiet, secluded place where nothing happens except attendants.

Two doors down the hall struggles the Italian composer.

We say "struggles" unadvisedly—for his father is a successful grape-grower.

We call him "Scarpia"—because he looks like Scotti in the first act.

He plays the violin divinely. Sometimes he sounds like a Carl Sandberg or Amy Lowell poem—and again more like a Robert Henri painting.

He is a composer of the "new" music—of which Ornstein is a conspicuous example.

He does not like our writing.

It is not radical enough for him; he hopes some day that we shall be able to write like Tolstoi, Gorky or Pushkin.

We know how he feels—but we can't write it.

He composes without his collar.

This is a sure sign of absolute and beautiful sanity.

Any sane man hates his collar.

Scarpia has a great love affair hanging in the offing.

She looks more like Mimi than Tosca, but she is a dear.

Because he believes in the doctrine of humanity he teaches the violin to four pupils—whose fathers have no grapes.

Perhaps some day this young signor with his grand-opera manner and his impressionistic ideas may catch some of the heartaches, some of the high hopes, some of the gay banter, some of the comradeship, some of the anticipations that cling to the walls of the old building where we all work—and from them he may send out a theme—a theme pulsing with the heartbeats of those who strive—a theme strung together with the little notes of hidden souls struggling to be heard in a wilderness of song.

He is always finding something wonderful and new—this young composer.

He leads us to his neighbor, the violin maker.

Here is a character—a man who performs the most delicate operations on an old, worn-out violin and makes him behave as if he had been rejuvenated with monkey glands.

The violin maker has a big frame like the village blacksmith, a mustache something like Chester Conklin's, and eyes that are so keen and sharp that one feels he has detected that wicked little thought that had been so carefully packed away for a fortnight.

His studio is draped in violins; in fact there is nothing in it but violins.

Some of them are so old that they sit all day mumbling about the tunes that used to be played upon them; some of them are shining and new and eager for their chance. One over in the corner is old and wise and wicked. He has no patience with these young chaps and their peon pants, who do not even know who Chopin was; he remembers the joke on him perpetrated by his master, who told him of George Sand—and whom he thought a man—right up to the end of the story. Up by the window is a little flapper violin with a blonde, gold look. She lisps slightly but becomingly. She has been sent in for trouble

'ROUND ABOUT LOS ANGELES

Back to Bacchus! A retired local liquor dealer—they are all retired now—says that he knows seven pre-Volstead saloon-keepers who are now farming and that four of them are growing grapes.

A young woman who admits that it takes a serial, a comedy and some love-stuff to get her properly flickered up, says that thousands still pine for the old lightning comedies, in which the Mack Sennett cops ran wild over the Edendale hills.

A little trade war is being fought to a sanguinary finish right in our midst. Whenever the Shell Oil Company, an English-Dutch owned concern, puts up a filling station, the Standard follows suit. The Standard puts them up fast, too, the average being about two days from the sod to the bright lights and the white uniforms.

Pleasant Hill, which is between First and Temple streets, just west of Alvarado—if you can adequately bound a hill—has a more varied architecture and its appurtenances than any other part of town. There is a church there, which is modern to a fault; a house, a few doors below, that is walled in somewhat after the English fashion, and another, a few doors up the street, which is so snugly nestled in a hollow all its own that you can jump from the ground to the roof.

OUR ONE-MAN CHURCHES

Unique Houses of Worship in Los Angeles Where Parson Owns the Edifice—the Whole Works

BY KATHERINE LIPKE

There are two one-man churches in Los Angeles and vicinity. They are becoming quite the popular places of worship. Both have been born of a long-felt need, although the need in each case is very different. They neither of them boast of a parish, and do not solicit for members. But here the similarity ends.

The Beth-El Mission is the family chapel of the community which lies to the east of the city along the Garvanza car line. The members of this family are Mormons, Japanese, Chinese, Catholics, Jews, Protestants and all others who choose to come.

It is the one church in Los Angeles which takes no offering.

In reality it is not a one-man church, but a two-man-and-a-woman church, and its leader is Dr. J. P. Widney, 82 years of age. He is the pastor of the church, the leader of the Sunday-school and the father of all who come. He plays the violin, the bass viol and the flute.

NO CREED HERE

Dr. Widney lives at the top of a hill in a many-windowed house, which towers over the little mission below. With him live his brother and the latter's wife who are associated in the work.

I walked up the hill the other day to see them, and found Dr. Widney seated before an open fireplace, a blue Army cape thrown about his shoulders. On one side of the fire stood a sword, a rifle, a bass viol and a choir stand. The combination was the most unique one I had ever seen.

As we sat toasting our toes and listening to the crackling fire, I asked him how he conceived the idea of having a family chapel without creed or dogma, and where no financial return was expected. "I have always believed that creed was the private right of each individual," he said, "and that the only thing vital was the fact that each one is trying to live his life in the best way. Besides, there ought to be one place in Los Angeles where money isn't the first consideration. So, when the people of the community asked me to start a church here, I built the little mission at the foot of the hill."

OPEN TO ALL

The words "all are welcome" were the keynote of the whole conversation. If a Mohammedan should come and say, "I am doing the best I can with my life"—he could become a member of Beth-El Mission. It would seem that those big, clear windows in his house had broadened Dr. Widney's outlook on life, and that of those associated with him.

There are no curtains or drapes hung there. When you look out of the window, you see no tiny section of landscape shrouded in cretonne or velvet or silk. You see Los Angeles with its hills, its business, its homes—all of it. And that which your eye cannot see because of the limits of the community, your imagination can picture. Looking from those windows, great things could be planned. Things of as broad a nature as the Beth-El Mission.

A HOME ORCHESTRA

The church services are presided over and conducted entirely by Dr. Widney and his brother and wife. The music is furnished by the three. Dr. Widney plays either the violin or the bass viol, or the flute which, by the way, he learned to play after his seventieth year. His brother plays almost anything you could desire. I counted seven stringed instruments around the room. Mrs. Widney is very modest about her musical attainments, only playing the organ, the piano and the harp.

The children love to stay to church at the Beth-El Mission. Which marks it as unusual in itself. They drape themselves around the platform, and there they sit while the service goes on. It is their church you see, and they feel a responsibility in what takes place. They are self-appointed ushers, too. This business of being joint partners in a church is heavy stuff, and the children realize it.

THE BIBLE—THAT'S ALL

I was curious to know Dr. Widney's method in preaching to people of perhaps eight or nine or ten different religions, and doing it harmoniously, and so I asked him. He looked at me, shocked that I should ask such a question. "I preach from the Bible, that's all," he said. "The Bible knows no creed, and each denomination takes its religion from it, so there is no trouble at all."

Many of Dr. Widney's congregation are visitors in the community. While they are here they attend the mission, and then go their way. They may be Mormons, or Methodists, or Unitarians—it matters not. They find in the Beth-El Mission a home while they stay. One family visited here twelve years ago for three months, and then moved to Nova Scotia. Letters are still received from them talking of the Beth-El Mission as "our church." According to Dr. Widney it does not matter the name a religion has, the real thing being the truth it contains.

The little mission church is growing too large for its present quarters. It cannot accommodate the people who come. And so plans are being made by Dr. Widney for a new church to be built on the other side of the hill which will be larger and more modern. A music and art conservatory will be established in the old building. So the Beth-El Mission is expanding and growing with community life, and will become not only a power in a religious way but in an artistic and musical connection also.

ANOTHER ONE-MAN CHURCH

The other one-man church lies next to the Hollywood hills. It is a long, low structure which faces New Hampshire street just north of Hollywood Boulevard. The name which one sees in approaching is Our Church of St. Mary of the Angels. But the name most often applied to it is "The Church of the Motion-Picture People." Dr. Neel Dodd is the rector and founder.

It is as firmly a part of the life in the motion-picture colony as the Little Church Around the Corner is of the theatrical life in New York. But this didn't just happen! The motion-picture people didn't select Dr. Neal Dodd and his little white church for their own. The idea was his!

Five years ago, when he was first given that portion of the Diocese of St. Francis and had permission to start a church there, he had rooms on North Vermont. The church wasn't really a church at

WHEN BETTY SAW HAWAII

Interesting Travel Story by Film Star

She Had to Pass the Fat Making Taro

But She Saw Girls Dance in Grass Skirts

BY BETTY COMPSON

My trip to New York has only served to accentuate the beauty of the Hawaiian Islands I recently left. From Honolulu to New York all in the course of eight weeks presents a rare opportunity for severe comparison which may or may not be a little unjust; nevertheless, New York has always held a warm spot in my heart, but to be in its snow and its cold cause my thoughts to wander to a land rich in tropical color with vivid flowers and foliage, with rainbows that beggar description not only by day, but also at night when their many colors blend themselves into one, a roseate glow.

As we approached Honolulu after a fine six-days voyage on the Pacific, the island of Oahu rose from the sea hiding behind hundreds of cocoanut palms that fringed its shores, and it seemed saturated in romance. Silently we stole into the harbor, a row of brown and grey buildings appeared low against the water and as I looked around a small tug suddenly drew alongside the boat, a perfect bower of flowers, and there in the midst of them stood Mrs. Ivers, my director; she had come out to welcome us with beautiful leis, which as you know are long strings of flowers—It has long been a custim of the island to place them around the neck of a new arrival or malahini (as they call you there) and it is the nicest way of being made welcome imaginable. An Hawaiian orchestra was strumming as we landed and I knew at once that I was going to love the islands.

PEACE AND QUIET

My first impression was a picture of absolute peace and quiet aroused only by the brilliant foliage.

How slowly everyone moved! How at peace with the world! The word "haste" has become obsolete. Fire insurance must be very high in Honolulu, as they are unable to make the four horses that pull the engine do better than a walk.

We arrived at the Moana Hotel at Waikiki Beach, just far enough from town to make it thoroughly pleasant—and the beach itself is a gem—long stretches of water so blue and green and purple that you can only think of a gigantic peacock tail spread over the yellow sand. The waves are small, breaking a mile out from shore and boys on surfboards and outriggers riding them in.

STRENUOUS KING

Fortunately we were unable to begin work for a couple of days as they were building a lab to develop our film, so I had an opportunity to become more familiar with the beauties of the island and its many interesting spots. One in particular was the Pali, an historic windswept cliff miles above the city. It was here that the victorious King Kamehameha first lured his enemies and then drove them over its sheer sides. Looking back now and knowing the natives' utter disgust for physical exertion of any kind, I am at a loss to know how Kamehameha could persuade his friends, much less his enemies, to take such a strenuous journey to its summit.

I've already mentioned Waikiki but I must tell you about the swimming. It is ideal. The temperature of the water is such that one can comfortably remain in it for hours and there is no sport so exhilirating as riding the surf on one of the native boards or in an outrigger canoe.

Moonlight bathing here is a fact, a reality, not just something to be talked about before and after dinner.

THE LUAU

MAKE YOURSELF VENUS

All That's Necessary Is Will Power; Coue Is Fairly Out-Coued by New Yogi Who Is Coming

You can put on weight or take it off simply through mental gymnastics. You can become a Venus or a Valentino, a "perfect 36" or an Apollo.

Such is the golden promise held out to American men and women by Swami Yogananda, personal representative of Sir Manindra Chandra Nundy Bahadur, Maharajah of Kasimbazar, and nicknamed the "Rockefeller of India."

Yogananda has come to America to introduce the Indian Yogis system of perfect muscle development by power of the will. He intends to found in Los Angeles and several other cities branches of the famous Indian Sat-Sanga, for instruction in the Yogis system. He is backed by the Maharajah's millions.

OUT-COUES COUE

Yogananda is out-coueing Coue in Boston, where he has established the first branch of the Sat-Sanga. The Little Old Man of Nancy promised only health through will control. Yogananda insists perfect physical development as well as health can be attained and preserved through will power.

This Indian, a graduate of the University of Calcutta, is a living example of the possibilities of the Yogis system. "I was once as thin as the proverbial rail," said he to an interviewer. "I wanted to gain flesh. Look at me now!"

He removed his coat and pulled up his shirt sleeve, disclosing an arm of perfect physical appearance, yet not the overdeveloped arm of the pugilist or wrestler. By will power alone, he caused the muscles of the upper arm to expand and harden like iron, then to relax. He repeated the process several times. There was no doubt but what he had perfect control of his muscles.

"You Americans exercise your bodies and brains too much and your will power too little," Swami Yogananda went on.

POMONA

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Mary Coover, daughter of Mrs. Grace Coover, 675 West Monterey street, to Dale Hunter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Forest Hunter. The date for the wedding has not yet been named. Tidings of the forthcoming event came as a very pleasant surprise to Miss Coover's friends Wednesday evening when the announcement was featured at an informal dinner party given by Miss Faye Marston, 370 East Pearl street.

"Bolshevism is doomed. I don't know how long it will be until the Bolsheviks are gone from Russia, but they can't last. They have been striving for equality—equality of everything—and now they have it—the equality of misery. Bolshevism can't last. Lenin can't last. Russia is starving. It is the agony of Bolshevism. I don't know what will be the outcome, but I do know that the best people of Russia want a republic—a government by the people, for the people—a United States of Russia."

Thus spoke Count Ilya Tolstoy, son of the famous Leo Tolstoy, late Russian prophet, in a spirited lecture before a monster gathering of Pomona women in the Ebell Clubhouse, Friday afternoon. Mrs. W. A. McCormick, president of Ebell, presided and presented the distinguished visitor who later greeted the women informally in the parlors.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Ogle, 223 West Pearl street, celebrated their silver wedding anniversary Saturday evening and delightfully entertained numerous friends and relatives, at which a mock wedding was a feature.

Mrs. S. D. McIntyre, 475 East Holt avenue, was hostess at an interesting meeting of the Shakespeare Club Monday afternoon, when the first of two study programs on the life and works of the poet Shelley was presented by Miss Helen Brooks of Cumnock School of Expression, Los Angeles.

Hearts—A, K, Q, J,
Clubs—10, 8,
Diamonds—7, 6, 2,
Spades—9, 8, 7, 6,

partner must still bid two even though the heart suit much stronger. The point sound doubles is that the is prepared for the spade and therefore infers that his hasn't four spades if he to bid that suit. In this ex- the heart suit will be a good suit and the hand will better results with spades as purely on the hypothesis the doubler is prepared to as- the spade suit, and may not be prepared for a heart bid. With the following:

Hearts—7, 6, 2,
Clubs—J, 10, 4, 2,
Diamonds—K, 7, 2,
Spades—J, 10, 7,

doublers' partner must bid two clubs. Never bid a three-card major suit, even spades, under any conditions. There is no exception to this rule. The so-called spade convention calls for a spade bid in preference to any other suit, but only in case it is a suit of at least four cards. With the following:

Hearts—10, 7,
Clubs—A, K, Q, 7, 2,
Diamonds—4, 2,
Spades—9, 8, 7, 5,

doubler's partner should bid two spades, preferring the spade bid to the longer and stronger club bid. This is a good example of the spade convention.

It is very apparent that the spade convention has really added a great deal to the soundness of the informatory doubles. When the players realize that their partners whenever possible will bid two spades over a no trump double, and that they must be prepared to assist that bid or overbid with their own suit, they will pass many hands on which they otherwise would have doubled. Such tactics automatically eliminate many unsound doubles, and therefore add to the pleasure of the game, especially for one's partner.

Madge Bellamy Treasures Offer of Barrymores

One of Madge Bellamy's most treasured possessions is a telegram sent her by Alf Hayman a short time before his death a year or so ago, offering her a part with the Barrymores, Lionel, John and Ethel, in "Clare de Lune," of which Mrs. John Barrymore (Michael Strange) is the author.

Miss Bellamy had just commenced her motion-picture career at that time, so of course could not accept, but she said she was very glad Broadway hadn't forgotten her and wanted her back.

She played on that noted Broadway in "Dear Brutus," with William Gillette before Thomas H. Ince "discovered" her and brought her west to work in his pictures.

SECRET OF SUCCESS

To the success she has attained on the silver sheet in Maurice Tourneur's "Lorna Doone," recently seen here, and "The Hottentot," in which she is now appearing at the Alhambra, she attributes this experience on the New York stage.

In "The Hottentot" Miss Bellamy does some clever riding and manages to stay on the horse all the time, which is more than the eighteen horsemen could achieve when they went over the jumps in the steeplechase.

REASON IN ALTERATION OF STORIES

Producer Tells Why Book Rarely Is Suitable for Film Purposes

"One seldom sees the picturization of a well-known book or stage play flashed on the screen with the original story or action intact, and the comments upon this fact from the audiences wax long and loud," says J. L. Warner, one of the Warner Brothers, those enterprising producers whose ambition seems to be to corner every usable stage play and novel in existence.

"When we made it our policy to produce only books and plays well known to the public," continues Mr. Warner, "I made a careful study of the effects upon the public of the changes made in the film from the book or play, and although some people object to the alterations made, most of them realize the necessity of the changes.

"In our adaptations from books and plays for screening I always compare the book or play to a Middle Western farmhouse. The farmhouse was built very small originally and then, as the years flew by, an increase in income and family demanded larger quarters, and so the family built a little on each year, but no matter how much larger it was made, there still remained the original house, which was "home" in every sense. And that's what we try to do: we take the book or play and, without losing the original story, we add a little to make it screenable, but still keep the original plot as much as possible."

STAGE COMPLETED

Warner Brothers' new interior stage has been completed. The property buildings, electrical building and new executive office will be finished by the middle of March.

AN INTERVIEW IN VERSE

With Myrtle Stedman

BY HALLETT ABEND

I've lunched and dined with many picture stars;
Have supped at midnight and at dusk had tea,
But breakfast tete-a-tete with one of them
I'd never had before. This novelty

Fell to my lot last week when I enjoyed
Grapefruit and rolls, a mushroom omelet hot,
With Myrtle Stedman; oh, and coffee, too—
Between us we quite emptied a large pot.

It sounds just like those tales of Hollywood
Credulous easterners delight to read,
But let no one attempt a wild surmise,
For actually (alas!) there is no need.

Myrtle Stedman

We met downtown, you see, at half past twelve
When noontime crowds were surging on Broadway,
Then elbowed through the throng and found Marcell's.
We scanned the luncheon menu, and dismay

Was on Miss Stedman's face when I looked up
And proffered soup and salad. "Oh, please not!"
She said. "You see, I haven't breakfasted.
I worked till after midnight on the lot."

Therefore, the grapefruit and the crisp brown rolls,
The omelet and the coffee; for I, too,
Had risen late, skipped breakfast in my rush
To meet Miss Stedman and discuss her new

Screenland success, "The Famous Mrs. Fair."
"I wish you'd seen the film," she said to me.
"Ah, but I have," I countered; "just last week
In San Francisco, and I want to be "One of the first to tell you how it goes."

So I detailed the crowds on Market street;
The theater, packed, the ripples of applause
That swept the house; the way the fans would greet

The clever titles and the comedy,
And the tense hush that every now and then Held the great throng when Mrs. Fair was swept Close to the brink of tragedy; how when

Her home and loved ones seemed quite lost to her
Dry eyes were scarce. And then she asked for faults
In acting or in structure. I deplored
The abrupt way in which the story halts.

"I know," she said; her face was wistful then;
"So much fine footage has been cut away.
It seems to me the Mrs. Fair that's left
Is different greatly from the fine stage play

"That Blanche Bates starred in. As the film is cut
This Nancy Fair is just a little hard.
She loved her family, but was led astray
By what she thought was duty. If she's marred

"In the screen version it's because whole scenes
Were sacrificed to footage toward the last,
And what is left makes Nancy seem—well—cold.
The future seems a problem, and her past

"Feelings and motives are a trifle vague.
One cannot quite envision all the years
That lie ahead as happy, though she's learned
Her lesson and has paid the price of tears.

"Nancy, just back from France and her war tasks,
Feels there is still a work for her to do,
And does not dream of breakers just ahead
For both her children and her husband, too.

"Ambition and the longing for applause
Are not the basic reasons when she goes
Out on her lecture tour and leaves her home
And loved ones for a time, for Nancy knows

"(Or thinks she does) that home's inviolate.
The missing scenes that follow her return
Show her devotion and her sacrifice
Make clear the reasons why she's sure to spurn

"The call for a career to save her home.
Where Nancy erred was thinking every heart
Was like her own—that every love endures
The lapse of time and lonely months apart.

"On her return her eyes are opened wide.
Love, to endure, must not be left to chance,
But must be cared for like a lovely flower—
Not buffeted by winds of circumstance."

as Nancy Fair

I wondered, as I listened, which heard—
The actress or the woman? So few know
The truths she had just spoken. Most of us
By inattention let life's best gifts go.

The omelet was a memory by now;
Our coffee cups had both been emptied twice.
The day was warm; we veered to lunch-time mood;
I smoked a cigarette—she took an ice.

I scanned Miss Stedman while she thought I was Watching the gray smoke curl and float away;
And I decided, as I watched her face,
Her best work is before her. It's this way:

Consider April, and a flawless sky;
The blue is unrelieved—seems empty too.
So with Miss Stedman's beauty in the past.
It was too round—too perfect. Something new

Is in her eyes, is in her wistful smile
Her beauty now is like a summer sky—
The blue has grown more radiant by far
In contrast to a white cloud drifting by.

Faces are like that—actors like that, too—
In their first youth too smooth for deep appeal.
And then maturity brings something fine—
Something we do not see but rather feel.

"Love, to endure, must not be left to chance,
But must be cared for like a lovely flower."
So she had said. Grief taught her that perhaps,
And, teaching, gave new beauty and new power.

OF ART AND ARTISTS

BY ANTONY ANDERSON

The New Life

Perhaps they laughed at Dante in his youth,
Told him that truth
Had unappealably been said
In the great masterpieces of the dead:—
Perhaps he listened and but bowed his head
In acquiescent honor, while his heart
Held natal tidings—that a new life is the part
Of every man that's born,
A new life never lived before,
And a new expectant art;
It is the variations of the morn
That are forever, more and more,
The single dawning of the single truth
So answers Dante to the heart of youth!

FRENCH ART AT THE LOS ANGELES MUSEUM

The much-trumpeted exhibition of contemporary French art is installed at the Los Angeles Museum at last, 500 entries that overflow the lower corridors and mount the stairways to take possession of the upper walls. The sculptures, which are decidedly the better part of the exhibition, are shown in the center of the main gallery, where they are not out of harmony with the Fourth International Print Makers' Exhibition.

It must be confessed that we are sadly disappointed in many of the examples of pictorial French art. This is not a representative showing of modern French painting. There are a number of pictures signed by famous names, but they are not particularly fine examples, and, indeed, in some cases are decidedly mediocre ones. As for the others—well, here and there we come upon a corkingly good one, but it is generally surrounded by so many bad ones that it is apt to be lost in the shuffle.

However, let us not lose our heads. Let us not condemn the whole lump, since there are not a few signs of an ameliorating leaven. It is up to us, it appears, to hunt for the leaven and let the rest go. Not an easy task, and one that, I think, should not have been put upon us, since we are of the West and do not see much French art, contemporary or otherwise, very often.

I don't know exactly how this collection was made, but the method seems to have been a haphazard one, with an eye to quantity rather than quality. The general effect is that of a rummage sale, since very little thought seems to have been given to the hanging of these acres of paint and canvas. However, the juxtaposition of some of these very bad canvases from Paris and the Harrison collection has one good result—it convinces us that Los Angeles Museum possesses a number of good pictures, it informs us that we'd better learn to appreciate our own. Perhaps we needed the lesson.

Where the numbers are so many, it is impossible to mention any of them in detail. Our brief survey will therefore be a general one. I would like to call attention to the water colors, many of which are esthetically very satisfying, possessing the "significant form" that we must search for in painting—rythmic arrangement of masses and colors. Not a few of them are tiny bits, but they are perfect.

A number of the impressionists and their descendants are gathered together—indeed, the upstairs walls are far better hung than those downstairs—and here, too, we shall find much to delight us, even if we do not come upon thoroughly representative examples of Monet, Renoir, Cezanne, Gauguin and the rest. However, some of the Sisleys are very good.

It appears to be an easier matter to collect good sculptures than good paintings, perhaps because excellent replicas are made in small form and at moderate cost. At all events, the group of bronzes in the main gallery includes some wonderful things — a series of portrait masks by Rodin, his "The Thinker," "Youth Triumphant," "Meditation and so on; a powerful series by Antoine Bourdelle, much of it, full of dramatic action; some exquisite figures, pure and lovely, by Joseph Bernard "Youth," "Girl With Pitcher," etc., and Bouchard's exquisite pastoral, "Girl and Gazelle."

Search and you shall find.

"PRINCETON TIGER" AND OTHER BRONZES

Alexander Phimster Proctor, westerner, but of course an easterner and a Parisian in the matter of art education, will hold an exhibition of some twenty or thirty bronzes and figures in marble and plaster at the Stendahl Gallery, Hotel Ambassador, beginning tomorrow.

In the collection are figures and groups, men and animals, that are full of life and action, superbly modeled, records of the vanishing West that, interesting as they are today, will be even more interesting to generations to come. The bronzes at the Ambassador are not large in size, but are reduced replicas of the original bronzes, many of which are of heroic dimensions as befits their subjects.

One of the attractive bronzes is a small copy of the famous "Princeton Tiger," whose original of heroic size is placed at the entrance to Princeton University. The sketch of this beautiful piece of sculpture was given to President Wilson. Other bronzes and plaster casts are "Buckaroo," a rampant broncho and his Centaur-like rider; "The Buffalo Hunt," "The Circuit Rider," "Theodore Roosevelt as a Rough Rider," "The Puma" and many charming portraits in low relief—for Proctor has the touch of sympathetic refinement as well as the sinews of power.

Important works by this fine sculptor are: Two heroic pumas, at entrance to Prospect Park, Brooklyn; four colossal sleeping lions, McKinley Monument, Buffalo, N. Y.; four colossal buffaloes, entrance Q-street Bridge, Washington, D. C.; four colossal tigers, Pity Branch Bridge, Washington, D. C.; heroic statue of pioneer, campus University of Oregon, Eugene, Or.; heroic statue of Indian, "On the War Trail," and companion piece of broncho-buster, Civic Center, Denver, Colo. And in Los Angeles——?

Proctor has won so many medals and is member of so many art clubs that a mere enumeration of them would take more space than I can afford today. But you may hear more about them next week, when I shall speak of the sculpture in detail. I also promise you a good story, for I'm going to corner Alexander Philmister Proctor, N. A., and make him tell me one or many. He'll be worth listening to.

And, by the way, on turning over a sheet of paper on my desk, I find that I've not enumerated half the list of his "heroic bronzes!" Here is the rest of the formidable array: Heroic figure of seated Indian, presented to the State of New York, at Lake George, by George D. Pratt, whose father founded Pratt Institute; heroic figure of Roosevelt, as Colonel of Rough Riders, presented to Portland, Or., by Dr. Henry Waldo Coe; stature of pioneer circuit rider, riding on horseback and reading his Bible, at State capital grounds, Salem, Or., presented to the State by ex-Senator R. A. Booth.

Proctor is represented in many museums: Museum of Arts and Sciences, Brooklyn, case of small bronzes and marble statue of sleeping lion; Corcoran Art Gallery Washington, two Indian groups in bronze; National Art Galley of Canada and Ottawa; Metropolitan Museum of New York; Carnegie Museum of Pittsburg, and art museums of St Louis and Portland. What an array of honors! This, however, is not all—he has done important work for exposition in Chicago, Paris, Buffalo, and St. Louis—in fact, for all the great expositions held in the last thirty years.

Proctor is not a talker—he is very modest—but you may expect a story next week.

FLOWER STUDIES BY CARLE J. BLENNER

"Who loves a garden, loves a greenhouse, too," said William Cowper, and to this dictum of a poet we may confidently add another, "Who loves a garden, loves a bouquet."

Since Southern California is one vast garden all the year round, the flower painter is attracted as inevitably as the bee, and thus it happens that once every year Carl J. Blenner comes from New York to Los Angeles, bringing with him the pictures he has painted in the East and eager to paint new ones in the West.

He will open a show of twenty flower studies at Cannell & Chaffin's tomorrow, six of which have been painted here in the past few weeks. The six are perhaps the most gorgeously beautiful ones in the whole collection, for the sunshine of California has a keener touch than any other, turning the whole expanse of landscape into a carpet from Samarkand.

Let us add yet another line to Cowper's, "Who loves a bouquet, loves a picture of it." Such a lover of nature and art will enjoy himself to the full in Blenner's present exhibition, for here are bouquets of every hue—red, white,

TONY SARG BRINGS NEW PUPPETS

Latest Marionette Show Masterpiece; Tells Story of Don Quixote

Everyone who had the good fortune of witnessing a performance of the Tony Sarg Marionettes at the Gamut Theater last year will welcome the announcement of their return to Los Angeles for three performances. The first will be Friday evening the 9th inst., at Bovard Auditorium under the auspices of the University Women's Club, with Monday afternoon and evening, March 12, at the Gamut.

This year Mr. Sarg is sending two entirely new productions, the irresistible Uncle Wiggily and his various elations and antics will be given in the afternoon, with "Don Quixote" scheduled for both evening performances at Bovard and Gamut.

Uncle Wiggily, this much-loved gentleman rabbit, with his muskrat lady housekeeper, the opossum physician, the puppy-dog boy, the monkey boy and four villains, make a large cast of characters appearing in the play, divided into four scenes. What child and surreptitiously what parent has not been delighted with the antics of Jackie Bow Wow, Jacko Kinkytail, Fuzzy Fox, the Skeezicks, and the Skillery-Scallery Alligator?

SARG'S MASTERPIECE

The "Don Quixote" production is a Sarg masterpiece. Originally from Spain, but through some difficulty with the customs not permitted entry, and after several years' storage sold at auction, the wooden-headed actors and actresses in "Don Quixote" are dressed in the finest armor, exquisite silk with small hand-embroidered shawls to match, real little leather shoes and boots, miniature swords, firearms and pieces of furniture of every description, not to forget horses, mules, etc.

In dramatizing Cervantes's classic romance, both Mr. Sarg and Anne Stoddard so saturated themselves with the spirit of the book that the play delights and satisfies those who know the story, as well as those who are first introduced to it via the marionettes.

CURIOSITY STARTED IT

"All my life, it seems to me, I've been reading history," she said. "I loved it in school, and I loved tales of romance, the stories of Dumas and Hugo, of Dickens and Thackeray, the poems of Shelly and Keats, the plays of Anatole France and Shakespeare. An Impression of Filmdom's Bachelors

BY ALMA WHITAKER

OF COURSE, there is probably some quite simple explanation. There can't be anything seriously wrong. But all the same, the fact remains that there are some forty bachelors at large in screenland. Oh, not mere directors, or cameramen—but actors—men who look really dashing on the screen, make love so convincingly, convey a general impression of being utterly irresistible, and yet the girls are overlooking them in real life.

After trembling very near the edge of "the shelf," one or two of them recently seized heaven-sent opportunities. Tony Moreno was saved from being a crusty old bachelor by Mrs. Daisy Danziger. Harold Lloyd leaped at the chance graciously conceded him by Mildred Davis. And Charlie Chaplin, who of course, is only a bachelor by judicial decree, looks as if he would be rescued by Pola Negri.

You see, since the advent of Will Hays, domesticity has been decidedly fashionable in filmland. Of course, if a bachelor couldn't help it, one didn't make unpleasant remarks. All the same, it has been clearly understood for some time that at least a wife, and preferably a couple of babies, was infinitely more comme il faut in a profession in which 99 per cent vide the press agents, are happy domesticated, law-abiding people.

All of which brings us to a tour of inspection of these forty unattached specimens. If they can't get married themselves, we must help to get them off.

For instance, there is Eugene O'Brien. As he is pictured on the screen with Norma Talmadge, they call him a "perfect lover."

We ourselves can find no special defect. True, he is 39, but that is only nine years beyond the ideal age set by Sir Conan Doyle for all masculinity in heaven.

But apart from that, he has a nice income, based upon a fairly secure contract. He is tall, dashing, and there is every reason to believe his hair curls naturally. Why can Eugene have been allowed to languish so long?

Or Richard Dix, now. Well, of course, Richard is only 27—but still. On the whole, the girls like them young. And Richard owns a nice house in Hollywood and other real estate. He has nice brown hair and soft dark dove-like eyes. And really, after he has been seen as the hero in "Souls for Sale" his eligibility should be no longer in doubt.

Raymond Griffith, on the other hand, is 31. Getting on. But for those that like style, he makes a corking designing villain in "The Eternal Three." And he is the popular brunette variety, with an added cute little black moustache—which could add zest to any breakfast table. After all, breakfast is the real test.

As for Earle Foxe, who plays Capt. Dobbin in "Vanity Fair," are we all going to treat him like Amelia treated her Dobbin in the book? Earle is a nice well-preserved 30, and with his hair properly curled, he is good looking enough for anyone.

TWO YOUNG ELIGIBLES

Perhaps we may pass over William Haynes and Gareth Hughes without any immediate anxiety. After all Haynes is only 23, and after he has shown how wonderful he is in "Three Wise Fools," his sweet Virginian beauty and gentlemanly charm win him the matrimonial recognition he craves. But perhaps it will take Gareth Hughes's portrayal of "Little Billy" in "Trilby" to make him a really desirable person—he does look a bit mushy in "The Christian."

We have every reason to be alarmed for Edward Everett Horton. Edward is the sort of man who ought to make an ideal husband. He is so sweet to his mother, for one thing. Then he is a bit

BY EDWIN SCHALLERT

VERY rarely do I ever seek to issue a wail about the "good old days." Nor am I one to howl my head off to the effect that pictures aren't progressing. In my private mind, of course, I may be evolving conclusions on this subject, but as yet I would consider it rather premature to shout them out. I am still young enough to be willing to travel the present high road, let where it may, and though I find it littered with obstacles at times. At least, I have a belief that somewhere in the future of the pictures lies the art of pictures, that is, if anything of such a hugely conglomerate nature as pictures can ever be more truly artistic than screen production now is. And I think that it can when it is less stupidly conglomerate.

However, that's beside the question. I really have a wail to register, and that is a stentorian one. As to what in the deuce has become of the comedy spirit. Where are the pies and mallet of yesteryear, and what are the new ideas of what is funny if there are any.

Mack Sennett, they say, is coming back into the field to make a real old-fashioned type of comedies. He is going to bring back the puddle-haunting funny man, the perilous bathtub, the frisky dynamite, and mayhap even the lissome bathing girl. Of course, there are not going to be the same funny man, bathtub, dynamite and bathing girl that used to frolic together, because the old-time varieties have slipped away. But at least Sennett is going to offer some sort of modern substitute. And the hopes are that Sennett will go at this with his usual energy, and give us some really good two-reelers to brighten the screen, let the custard fly whither it will.

ONE complication about the comedies is that the directors who used to be successful have nearly all gone into feature making. Even the redoubtable Dick Jones has eschewed the short-reeler almost completely. His next picture will be the feature starring Phyllis Haver, and that's a story of length and elaborate serious interest.

Take the others, too—men like Billy Beaudine, Eddie Klein, and Victor Heerman. Many's the pot of paste that they've sent splashing about for the sake of one good hearty ha-ha.

Beaudine, you know, is now concerned with productions of a serious type for Warner Brothers. Klein has recently directed a production for Jackie Coogan. Heerman has been the helmsman for "Rupert of Hentzau." Mal St. Clair is making fight pictures, and Erle Kenton's latest is "Tea With a Kick," a comedy to be sure, but, I believe, a highly refined one.

All of these men were specialists in the stomach laugh and the rib titillation in their time, and I wonder if some times they don't regret their old line of effects. I know that we occasionally do.

NEW YORK SEES TWO COMEDIES

"Adam's Rib" Is Humorous, Manhattan Finds

Gales of Laughter Greet De Mille's Film

Chaplin Production Hailed as Treasure

BY HELEN KLUMPF
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, March 3.—The great moment came this week when Charlie Chaplin's latest and Cecil De Mille's latest were flashed before eager crowds. We'll never be able to thank Charlie enough for giving us "The Pilgrim" in time to act as an antidote for "Adam's Rib." But I can't truthfully say that even Charlie's picture brought forth more gales of laughter than the De Mille effusion. I haven't seen such a thoroughly bewildered and amused audience as the one that watched "Adam's Rib" last Sunday since a Brooklyn baker fostered a stage production just so that his daughter might star. And when Theodore Kosloff, in person, came out and danced a prologue of the picture, the fat matron next to me clutched me and gasped, "I always knew the Russians didn't have a sense of humor like ours."

It seems to me that "Adam's Rib" fails in all the promise of "Saturday Night" and "Manslaughter." There was at least some human interest there. But I'm told that the picture is booked for four weeks at the Rivoli and to date it has played to capacity business, so who can blame De Mille? It is the actors I feel sorry for. Having once seen Anna Q. Nilsson and Pauline Garon and Elliott Dexter in this tortous potpourri, I doubt if I can have implicit confidence in them again.

CHAPLIN THEATER

But to be more cheerful, there is "The Pilgrim." I would like to start a movement to endow a Chaplin theater where one of his films would always be on view, so that after the sorest cinematic trials one could always rush there and get back his faith in the art of the motion picture. "The Pilgrim" has two particularly memorable scenes; one where Charlie, masquerading as a minister, preaches in pantomine the story of "David and Goliath" and the other where an exapserating child gleefully slaps him over and over again.

Another important opening this week was the German "Othello," sponsored by Ben Blumenthal and with Emil Jannings and Werner Kraus in the cast. It is a curiously uneven production. Sometimes the acting in it is magnificent, and again it is worthy of cheap vaudeville. Emil Jannings presents the most ponderous and the blackest Moor imaginable and Werner Kraus conceives Iago as a low comedy villain in sleek black tights.

The whole production seems to be a motion picture of a stage production rather than a story planned to be told through the medium of motion pictures. Small groups sometimes appear before dark hangings with no scene-set at all. Other times papier-mache palaces that look as if they would go over if given one good push form the background for the story. And occasionally there flashes on the screen an unforgettable scene with great, looming lights and shadows that foretell the story, even as the distorted wall of "Caligari" played their part in that. They give a hint of what this production might have been.

WHERE FILM FAILS

But is there any sense in trying to film Shakespeare's play? There are no actors who can suggest the magic of his words. Shakespeare supplied his own pictures, his own stage settings, just in his dialogue. Praise be that motion-picture producers are content to seek their film material elsewhere.

As though this were not enough to make up a gala week, Marshall Neilan has contributed "Minnie" to it. It is one of those things that we forgive Neilan, thinking that perhaps he was tired or overwrought when he did it. The direction is hectic. Surprisingly good in little touches, but unbelievably bad most of the time. Leatrice Joy as an ugly duckling who invents an admirer for herself wins new laurels in this picture which are quite unnecessary, as she is fairly swamped with them already.

Betty Compson in "The White Flower" rounds out the new shows on Broadway. The story is just about as poor as they come but

Dear Sir:-

It is the fundamental and most important part of the program of the Federation of Women's Clubs in the work for better films to endorse and encourage patronage of the best pictures.

In line with this work, I want to congratulate you on "The Dangerous Age". A representative group of women from the various organizations previewed the picture, and they were unanimous in their enthusiastic approval.

We believe great credit is due the director, John M. Stahl, that the picture was not cheapened by touches of the risque. It must have been his ability as well as his artistry that gave the splendid acting an opportunity to carry a very beautiful and really clever picture through to a logical conclusion.

Very sincerely,

William Beaudine, who recently signed a long-term contract with Warner Brothers, has been loaned to the J. K. McDonald productions to make one picture. He will finish in time to start with Wesley Barry when he returns from his personal appearance tour.

CAST LEAVES

Part of the cast selected to play in the Warner Brothers production of "Wolf Fangs," the north-woods story which Chester M. Franklin is directing, left for the north, where Franklin and most of the company have already gone. Later McGrail, who will be remembered as the lover in "Suzanna," has the leading male role. Pat Hartigan, who attained fame by his portrayal of the villainous Morgan in "Furry," and Ralph Yearsley, who played the half-wit in "Tol'able David," all left yesterday. The leading feminine role has not, as yet, been cast. Rintintin, the police dog, has a featured part in the picture.

she is sincere, so moving and so beautiful that she almost makes you overlook all the faults, including the atrocious subtitles. The triangle in this picture is the tried and true one of the native girl, the young man from the States and his financee. Do you wonder that Will Rogers calls them Paramour pictures?

The latest news of Rodolph Valentino is that that enterprising young man has signed a contract with Jack Curley, fight promoter, to dance in seventy-five cities west of Chicago. Many of these appearances will be one-night stands and it is believed that tremendous profits will be rolled up. He can't appear on the stage, so the highways and byways of the country are being searched for ballrooms big enough to accommodate the Valentino flappers.

MR. MALAPROP

Just before leaving New York Jackie Coogan gave a big luncheon to his friends, the comic strip artists and a few publishers and writers. With his usual sanfroid Jackie entertained the crowd with jokes and games and recitations. He called upon a few of his friends to make speeches, and one of them, at least, will never be forgotten. The speaker, who is connected with one of the biggest national magazines, regretted that Mrs. Coogan was unable to be present and referred to her as "the goose that laid the golden egg." Amid guffaws of laughter and while parent Jack Coogan was doubled up with mirth, the poor man tried to go on but no one would listen to him. "Stop right now," a voice called out, "you've made yourself famous already."

There isn't much going on in the New York studios just now. Dorothy Gish is visiting her mother at a sanitarium up in the Catskills, "The Bright Shawl" having been finished. Richard Barthelmess and John Robertson are pouring over histories of the Cromwell period in preparation for starting "The Fighting Blade." Agnes Ayres is laid up with a cold and is unable to work and the new Bebe Daniels picture has not been put into production because Wesley Ruggles, her director, did not like the story that had been selected.

Hope Hampton has moved over to the Famous Players-Lasky studio to do "Lawful Larceny," leaving the Fox studio deserted. And speaking of Fox, there are rumors that by April William Fox will have withdrawn from the company, leaving Winfield Sheehan in entire command. A big program of expansion is rumored, with several feminine stars on the Fox lot.

Conrad Nagel and his wife and Lois Wilson are in town seeing as many shows as they can in a few days. He is the subject of one of the weirdest rumors yet started about "Ben Hur." It is said to be all settled that he will don a dark wig and play "Ben Hur." And I bet that is the first time he has even been mentioned as a substitute for Valentino.

JOB FOR HIM

Edward Langley, art director for Douglas Fairbanks, and the man who is given credit for the magnificence of the "Robin Hood" sets, has been called upon to lend his talents to another form of amusement enterprise. He has been secured by the Allied Amusement Company to act as construction manager for the unique park, "Somewhere in France," which is to be built on Washington Boulevard. The structures in the park will be all of foreign architecture and Langley is expected to create a unique group of buildings which will be a landmark for Southern California.

"DAYTIME WIVES"

"Daytime Wives," a story by Leonore Coffee and John Goodrich, is now in course of production by F.B.O., with Derelys Perdue in the stellar role. The subject is said to be treated in a realistic and dramatic manner, although making no pretense to being a social-reform picture. "Daytime Wives' will show for the first time the important part played in our modern life by the young business woman of brains and beauty, who works side by side with husband, sweetheart or lover.

sent his message to Maid Marian, and Guy of Gisborne and his plotters have released the falcon to prevent the letter reaching its destination, hoping thus to frustrate Robin Hood's plan for his return to England, and the protection of his lady. The photography is quite amazing because it seems to have been taken in mid-air, and without any visible evidence of camera trickery.

As a matter of fact, the only trick that was employed was the use of a telescopic lens, which made possible a seemingly close-up of the birds as they were photographed at a height. When the falcon pounced on the dove and brought him to the ground, the two birds were, of course, photographed without any telescopic device.

A real falcon was used in the picture, but I am told that every precaution was used to protect the dove in order to avoid the stigma of cruelty, which attaches to scenes of this kind.

As the episode had to be photographed several times, this became increasingly difficult, because the falcon worked up quite an appetite. Finally he pounced on the dove so hard that it was impossible to save the bird, and so later they allowed the falcon to devour the dove for recompense for his efforts.

After he swallows a bird it is the falcon's habit to disgorge the feathers, but owing to his long abstinence from feathered kind this particular falcon's disgorging apparatus didn't run on all six cylinders. Instead of emitting the feathers, he gave one or two ineffectual gulps and finally keeled over and died.

It became necessary in several subsequent scenes to have a common ordinary variety of hawk double for the falcon, but nobody except the very closest observer could possibly detect the difference where the two birds are on the ground together.

IT MAY not be improper to mention here that the custom of wantonly mistreating animals for the sake of the public's entertainment is a rather useless and sometimes a cheap expedient. This does not apply to the foregoing incident recited regarding "Robin Hood." There, as I have mentioned, precautions were used to prevent any semblance of cruelty, through guarding the falcon's talons and beak as far as possible.

But there are many instances where the utmost carelessness has been exhibited in the treatment of animals, such as causing worn-out nags to plunge over steep cliffs, inducing wild steeple-chasing of horses, and forcing sheep or goats to fall down mountain precipices.

Where the hand of man actually induces cruelty there is reason to oppose this for humanitarian reasons. It is a needless and comparatively valueless thrill in view of the amount of pain it induces. Moreover, these episodes are often offensive to a majority of the members of an audience.

DISCOVERIES regarding the young Ramon Navarro never seem to cease. First of all, he disclosed talent as a dancer. That was when his name was still Ramon Samaniegos. Then, suddenly, his possibilities as a film actor were seen by Rex Ingram. Now the latest secret talent of this young man that has been uncovered is that of singer.

Navarro sings, it seems, for the love of the art. He has a tenor voice, and likes particularly church music. Occasionally, when his work permits of a Sunday, he joins in the singing of the masses at a chapel in the western section of the city.

Navarro is said to read music as readily as he dances or film acts, and his voice has a very attractive quality.

EVEN as the Richard of Wallace Beery shone out as a portrayal of consuming interest and amusement in "Robin Hood," it seems that the Richard of "Rob 'Em Good," the Bull Montana burlesque, is also bidding for fame in the comic field. The subtitles of this picture, and "Chuck" Reisner's Richard are one long laugh. I wouldn't be a tall surprised if "Chuck" earned starring honors on his own eventually. He has a considerable talent, if he makes as good use of it henceforward as in this particular role, which, by the way, is a fat one.

Clearing Lot for New Scenes in 'Terwilliger'

The usual procedure of building sets for motion pictures has been reversed. Now they're wrecking 'em, because Arthur H. Jacobs, producer of the new Frank Borzage productions, has started razing three sets at the United Studios to make room for a huge new set for "Terwilliger," his initial all-star offering of the new series.

One of the doomed scenes is a gorgeous castle, while the second is an extensive Egyptian ruin covering two acres and the third is an old New York street. Borzage's new set calls for an expenditure of $25,000. A tract of three acres was needed as building sites for these scenes, hence the decision to demolish the large structures to make room for the massive buildings which are to represent those surrounding Gramercy Park in the heart of Manhattan, as well as the park itself and the six streets leading to it.

WORK UNDER WAY

Wreckers have started this huge task while surveyors are staking out the plot in accordance with the plans of Frank D. Ormiston, special art director for the Jacobs firm. It will take a week to raze the buildings with a crew of thirty men and two tractors, and three weeks more to erect the new ones and lay out the park with its walks, fences, trees and flower beds. This is one of the biggest motion-picture building contracts ever negotiated in Los Angeles.

Pauline Garon, of "Adam's Rib" fame and one of filmdom's newest stars, has been signed by Jacobs. She is now en route to the Coast to play the leading feminine role in this picture, which is to be released through Associated First National.

O'HARA LOCATIONS

George O'Hara, star of the "Fighting Blood" series, spent most of last week on location at Sierra Madre, where the photography for "Christopher of Columbus" was taken on the extensive Hastings ranch. Mr. O'Hara reports a wonderful time, for the owner was most courteous to the company, while the meals in the open made it seem like a perpetual picnic.

EMBARRASSMENT

Montana cleverly gives the that the girls embar- with their attentions, but he prefers bachelorhood. But afraid the real trouble is that is a flirt—and nice girls are of flirtatious husbands. people like them red-head- There doesn't seem to be any good reason why Vernon Steele, who played the lead in "Thelma," should be left to languish on the shelf. Vernon is English, of course, which takes some living down—but his manners are charming and his hazel eyes quite effective on occasions. And Philo McCullough's red curly hair is rather becoming. But his wall-flowering may be accounted for by the fact that he plays "heavy" parts. All the same, he has a red moustache, which has been likened to a kiss as the salt to an egg.

For those who like a distinguished looking escort, Allan Sears should prove attractive enough. Very impressive on the first night of an opera—easily mistaken for a duke.

Perhaps Franklyn Lewis is rather young, but when they are as adorable as he seems to be they are usually snatched up, anyway. And he is quite Valentinoish. But Hugh Thompson, who plays leads with numerous beautiful stars, radiant in his swarthy beauty, ought to be able to make a conquest. He would set off a blonde so well.

And Richard Tucker, getting gray at the temples, really makes quite a good showing in "The Branding Iron." And he has a nice mother, and must have been nicely brought up. But Richard is still a wallflower.

Gaston Glass, seen in "Rupert of Hentzau," ought to be able to get off. Of course, Gaston would be an awkward name for a husband! And it wouldn't be quite nice to call him "Gassy," even in wifely affection.

One young man, highly recommended by Edna Purviance, surely only needs introducing. Edna is doing her best for him in this new society play of hers. Carl Miller has a number of nice attributes—reads Dickens, I believe, wears his evening clothes quite normally, nice manners at table—southern family, you know—goes in for sculpturing as a hobby—and owns his own home all ready for a bride to step into. And, really, he can't be more than 30 or so.

George O'Hara, who is cutting such a dash in "Fighting Blood," is only about 22, so he will probably be a victim of Cupid in good time. George is very athletic, could fill the house with trophies. And he owns a nice new house, and reads quite good stuff—and although his car is only a Ford, it may reasonably be a Rolls-Royce some day.

JUVENILE BEAUS

Somebody ought to give a few debutante parties for a little coterie of the younger set. Mervyn Le Roy, Taylor Graves, Rex Leash, Malcolm MacGregor and Edward Phillips are all good-looking, nice boys, perfectly adorable in juvenile parts, ages ranging from 22 to 26. Taken young they could be trained as excellent husbands—with gentle but firm discipline. But if they are allowed to get much older, chaperones will find the task of getting them married much harder.

Of course, the fact that he is a blond probably militates against Ralph Faulkner's matrimonial chances. But Ralph is nice and big and strong, and his blue eyes would go awfully well with the California climate. But Ralph is getting on. Youth is so fleeting.

And what's the matter with Huntley Gordon, who has played "lead" quite often. He looks quite bright. Of course, Charles Richards does rather give an impression of blase ennui in the parts he has played, but perhaps he isn't a cankered peach in real life.

But really, there isn't a thing the matter with that dashing screen aviator, Lieut. Richard Grace, that I can see—and, while "Dicky" isn't a very dignified name for a husband, one could always call him Richard when one was annoyed. And any man who could do the stunts that he does could clean the upstairs windows without breaking his neck beautifully.

Of course, we may have inadvertently included some specimens in this list who have at least been married once and therefore cannot be said to have been wholly neglected. We have also not included Messrs. Jackie Coogan, Wesley Barry and Richard Headricks purposefully. They cannot in any sense be said to be crusty old bachelors, or even passe fifth-season debutantes yet. And they all have clever mammas, who will doubtless see that they get every reasonable opportunity before it is too late.

Our main anxiety in this article is to bring the charms of the apparently neglected before marrying girls. It is a shame that they should be allowed to wither on the parent stem without some public effort to save them from the fate of single misery. Every nice man should at least have an opportunity to marry, to round out his life, to fulfill his rights to domestic bliss. There is a cruel stigma about old bachelorhood, thoughtless ridicule—which — er —isn't at all nice. Do your duty, girls.

ONE WAY TO GET IT

Barbara Bedford, who portrays the heroine in "The Spoilers," recently arrived from New York. She has experienced difficulty in getting the right kind of a house, with a telephone. As the latter is absolutely necessary to a film actress, Miss Bedford found a way. She bought a new eight-room bungalow on Fountain avenue in West Hollywood. That's one way to get a telephone.

LILLIAN BURKHART ON PANTAGES BILL

Lillian Burkhart

The long-awaited appearance at Pantages of Lillian Burkhart in "Mother's Right Here" has finally been announced for next week, and Monday's matinee will give Los Angeles its first glimpse of the popular comedienne in her latest and best comedy. This is not the first playlet written for Lillian Burkhart by Ruth Comfort Mitchell. The act in which the popular actress made her farewell vaudeville tour some time ago was by the same author.

The comedy is based upon the present epidemic of "flapperism," and besides its cleverness and the genuine comedy of its situations, it has the piquancy of truth and a dash of satire to recommend it to the palate of the discriminating seeker after entertainment.

Supporting Lillian Burkhart in the role of the mother is Ruth Willard Phillips as an old and somewhat presuming family retainer, Carol Wines as the daughter and Jay Morley as a studio hevamp. Mr. Pantages has arranged a supporting cast of unusual merit and "Hoot" Gibson will be seen in "The Gentleman from America," a Universal production.

Rogers's Humor Saves the Day in Emergency

Will Rogers, rope thrower and dispenser of sparkling wit, is the featured player of "Fruits of Faith," his latest comedy, that opens at the Miller Theater today.

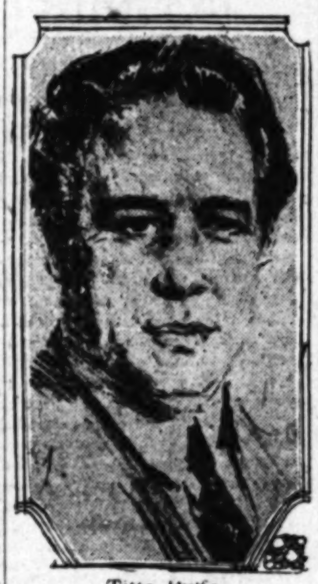
New York had seen Will Rogers in vaudeville at Hammerstein's long before he burst on the theatergoers' view as a sure enough "find" of the stage. His real introduction to the metropolis came in a dramatic manner one night about four years ago at the Follies Bergere in Forty-sixth street, now the Fulton Theater. A revue produced by Harry B. Harris and Jesse Lasky was well under way, with Rogers on the stage, when every light in the house suddenly went out. Panic threatened for a moment—but only for a moment.

From the blackness of the stage came a soothing not unmusical voice begging the people to keep their seats. There followed a flow of impromptu funny stories that so amused the frightened audience that it forgot everything for half an hour and doubled up in the dark and laughed. When the lights went on Will Rogers was revealed as the man who had saved the night. Next morning the newspaper critics neglected everybody else to pay tribute to the cowboy humorist and his original brand of fun.

BARRYMORE HOLDS RECORD

John S. Robertson, now directing Richard Barthelmess in "The Bright Shawl," by Joseph Hergesheimer, recently made the statement that John Barrymore, whom he directed in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," held the screen alone for a full 1000 feet in this picture. This, he believes, to be a record, and something which may not be equalled in some time. Critics now acclaim Robertson as one of the five biggest directors for the screen, his name being linked with that of Griffith, Allan Dwan, Rex Ingram and Henry King. It will be recalled that Robertson, with his "Sentimental Tommy," raised two comparatively obscure players to stardom, May McAvoy and Gareth Hughes.

FAMED SINGER HERE FRIDAY



Titta Ruffo

Titta Ruffo, Tuscan, 36 years of age, and for the past eight years a great figure in the operatic world of America, gives his first Los Angeles concert next Friday night at Philharmonic Auditorium. Ruffo is of heroic mold. Formerly a worker in bronze, a wreath executed by him reposes on the tomb, in Paris, of the martyred Sadi Carnot, once President of France.

Ruffo's debut as an opera singer was made at the Costanzi in Rome, as the herald in "Lohengrin," when the critics informed him he was destined for a great career. Since then he has sung in Italy, Spain, France, England, Hungary, Poland, Russia, Germany, Rumania, Egypt, South America and the United States, and has attained triumphs in more than fifty operas.

His singular versatility may be understood when it is known that he sings such widely different roles as Hamlet, Tonio, Scarpia, Don Giovanni, Athanael in "Thais," Nelusko in "L'Africana," Cristoforo Colombo, Figaro and more than twenty others. His love for the artistic is inherent, as his family for generations has been noted for painters it has produced. His sister, Fosca, is a poetess of distinction, and his brother, Ettore, is a well-known Italian composer, his opera "Malena" having been produced at La Scala this year.

His family name is Titta, Ruffo being his Christian name, the reversal having been made for the sake of euphony. Ruffo was heard in Los Angeles in 1914 with the Chicago Opera Company. At that time he was paid a salary by the Chicago company, equal to that paid Caruso by the Metropolitan. With the passing of Caruso, the Metropolitan Opera Company quickly obtained Ruffo, and he comes to Los Angeles directly from a series of operatic successes with that organization. With him comes the Metropolitan's youngest and most beautiful coloratura soprano, Yvonne D'Arle, as assisting artist.

Operatic arias and duets will feature his program here. Ruffo comes as a number of the Fitzgerald series, of which Merle Armitage is manager. Mr. Armitage has asked Ruffo to include the Prologue from "Pagliacci" in addition to:

ARTIST STUDENTS IN FARCE COMEDY

Artist students of the Marion Warde School gave a farce comedy in Music Arts Hall on Wednesday evening of last week for the Sunshine Home Society. Appearing in the cast of the play were Elvira Tanzi, Fairybelle Creager, Hugh Griffin and Walter Farnum.

Other Warde players giving programs during the past week were Gladys Rasmussen, Beatrice Mariette, Hilda Hess, Annabelle Lynn, William Moore, Victor Fisher and Gordon Barclay. Kiddies whose work was much enjoyed on other Warde programs were Mary Elizabeth Kerr, Marion Garvin and Nancy Garrison in song and dance numbers.

WILL CHARM IN CONCERT TODAY

Norma Hewlett

A program of diversified musical efforts will compose Grauman's Sunday Morning "Discovery" Concert.

Jan Sofer, who conducts the Grauman Hollywood Egyptian Orchestra, has a clever act for the occasion, impersonating our most famous violinists and playing snatches from their repertoires.

The glorious aria from Puccini's "Madame Butterfly" will serve Louise Martinez a splendid scope for her lovely soprano. Elsa Phennig Musgrave, pianist, will play of Liszt's beautiful "Liebestraum" and her own arrangement of "Chinese Love Song," from "East is West."

Other important features of the program will be vocal duets by Norma Hewlett, soprano, and Dudley B. Chambers, tenor, "The Rosary," in their own special interpretation, and "Will You Remember," from "Maytime;" a brass sextet composed of such well-known players as L. Castellucci, H. Klass, L. Donatelli, G. Curti, A. Mestrengon and L. Andriani, will play the famous Sextette from "Lucia di Lammermoor."

F. Gaillard in 'cello solo, and Jeannette Rogers and V. Donatelli are scheduled to present a flute and clarinet duet giving "Lo, Here the Gentle Lark," by request, and little George Pepper, a child violinist, will astonish with his remarkable talents.

"I spent most of the time sitting in some one else's steamer chair. Mine was never where I left it the evening before."

VERDICT FAVORABLE

"Please don't let people tell you that foreigners don't like Americans," continued Mabel. "Anyhow, I didn't find any of that spirit at all. I found them all—English, French, Germans, anybody—kindly, cordial. I think that when an Englishman is your friend, he is your friend.

"I spent some time in English country homes, and I think that the English country life is the most ideal in the world. The atmosphere of leisure and elegance, the air of having things done right for so many centuries that they couldn't do anything incorrectly or ungracefully, that feeling of having plenty of time for everything, combined with the lovely countryside, the charming and easy hospitality, makes you feel as though you were in another world.

"I like the English girls. They have lovely complexions and nice manners. But they are not so smart as American girls. There's a something breezy and smart about an American girl that no other girl in the world has. And the American woman is the best-dressed woman in the world.

"Oh, but I loved browsing about with maybe a friend, or better still, all alone, in the nooks and corners that I loved. Don't take a guide with you when you travel. See things for yourself. I loved to linger in the Louvre for hours. How could any misguided guide tell me what I wanted to see?

"And what guide would have let me stay two solid hours in one charming little perfume shop in Paris, as I did? Or wander for a whole day in Westminster Abbey, conjuring up the dead and gone heroes?

"Oh, I found the cutest little quaint street near the abbey! The houses have been there for centuries. Some of the houses still bear their plaintive old messages to the public, and the sign on one reads, 'Bless my house as you pass by!' I wonder if people did?

"I loved the French theaters in Paris. The French actors have a technique so skillful and finished that I think every actor in the world should see them. And then there is a sense of elegance and cordiality and enthusiasm about a French theater that is like none other in the world.

"I liked Berlin, too. It is so clean and orderly and beautiful. I have a piece of brocade tapestry from the ex-kaiser's palace! See!"

She unwound it for me—yards and yards of thick red-and-gold textile, which formerly adorned an alcove.

"I saw no evidences of suffering in Germany, by the way, and all the people are very cordial to Americans."

Ben Turpin Goes to Work on New Laugh Producer

Encouraged by the success with which his most recent comedy, "The Shriek of Araby," is meeting, now in its third week at the Symphony Theater, Mack Sennett, its producer, has started Ben Turpin, his well-known and popular comedy, star, in a new and what is considered by those who are capable of judging, a more humorous production than anything he has previously attempted.

The new production, known by the working title "Pitfalls of a Big City," is also a burlesque. In "The Shriek," Turpin achieved such a decided hit in his characterization of a Sheik that it is expected that he will far exceed in his new character, anything he has accomplished before. "Burlesque is Ben Turpin's greatest forte," is the claim of Mack Sennett.

In "The Pitfalls of a Big City," all the characters in the supporting cast will be dramatic artists, and Turpin too, will play his part "straight." Can you imagine what chance Ben Turpin, as a cross-eyed country lad, has in winning the affections of a wised-up city bred girl? Can you imagine Dot Farley as his mother, with her vision as scrambled as her son's, trying to persuade him to "let her go her way, she is only toying with you?" And, can you imagine a beautiful little country girl idolizing Ben and worshiping the ground he walks on?

Then too, try to picture Turpin as a love-sick swain, uttering such expressions as "On the wings of love we will be carried far," "Every morn' I bring thee violets," or, gathering daisies and while picking the petals repeating, "She loves me, she loves me not."

One undisputed advantage Ben Turpin has in roles of this kind is the fact that he does not have to work very hard to get a laugh. He is so funny to look at naturally, that any attempt he makes to be serious or dramatic is ridiculous in the extreme.

Roy del Ruth is directing the new Turpin comedy and Priscilla Bonner will play the ingenue lead, while Madeline Hurlock does the "vamping" in the character of the city girl.

SINGING VOICE TO BRING FAME

Percy Bullock

Percy Wynne Bullock, not so many months ago a South Pasadena school boy athlete, has carved a name for himself on Broadway, New York. In musical circles he is regarded as a promising rival to John McCormack, whom Mr. Bullock reveres.

Mr. Bullock has a tenor voice of surpassing beauty and timbre. He is a diligent student and has his heart in his musical work. His teacher, Francis Stuart is rounding Mr. Bullock into a finished product.

While perfecting himself under Mr. Stuart, who will shortly arrive in Los Angeles for a stay, Percy is acquiring the mechanical part in the Music Box Review, having leaped in a few months to understudy for John Steel, leading tenor.

Mr. Bullock's progress in New York as understudy to so prominent a singer as Mr. Steel is hailed by his South Pasadena friends. That he will rank among the world's tenors in time is the prediction of New York's musical critics. He is the son of Mrs. Georgia P. Bullock, a prominent woman attorney of Los Angeles.

STORY OF CONVICT IS DRAMATIC

Bert Lytell Reveals Tale of Sacrifice on Which Triumph Was Based

Several years ago, in New York City, Bert Lytell caused no little sensation and no end of talking as the curtain dropped on his "Lamb's Gambol" dramatic playlet, "The Valiant." The offering presented by Lytell became the topic of conversation in the Lambs' Club, the Friars' Club, the Green Room Club and all other organizations and meeting places of authors, stars, producers and managers.

"The Valiant" made a deep and everlasting impression on that galaxy of stage and screen folk. It was referred to as the best piece of dramatic effort ever "put across" by a male star.

HERE TOMORROW

Beginning tomorrow, Los Angeles theatergoers will have an opportunity to witness another performance of "The Valiant." Lytell will present this remarkable playlet on the Orpheum stage next week, which will mark his first footlight appearance since that eventful night several years ago on the eastern Broadway.

In speaking of "The Valiant"—Lytell of course, plays the title role—the star says:

"One must, in my mind, know life before he can depict it. The story of 'The Valiant' is a more or less true one, but the facts were established by direct contact 'in the flesh' as it were. I met 'the Valiant' when I was playing in stock in San Francisco. He lived beyond the waters of the Golden Gate and his abode was in that dark-walled building called San Quentin. His 'guests' were few and could see him only with the assistance of the government and a special government boat to escort them to his 'home.'

STUDIED HIS MAN

"What a man he was, this 'Valiant.' I studied him. I met him as often as my stage work would permit my getting away. I learned much from him. I saw him make the great sacrifice and prior to that I saw him make an even greater sacrifice—the saving of his sister's heart and the breaking of his own. My footlight offering was patterned from his existence behind those cold gray walls. I never hope to meet a more valiant 'valiant.'"

It was only due to a brief period before resuming his studio work, that Lytell, through the courtesy of his film production managers, to whom he is under contract, will appear behind the footlights of the Orpheum stage. For as soon as his Los Angeles appearance is terminated, he will start work on the film adaptation of George M. Cohan's "The Meanest Man in the World."

WILL GIVE SCENES FROM BARD'S PLAYS

Florence Dobinson, member of the board of lectureship of the National Shakespearean Federation, has in training a number of young people who will appear during April in costumed scenes from Shakespeare's plays, in commemoration of the bard's natal day.

Mrs. Dobinson has the pleasure this season of having one of her pupils, William Harvey Stephens, make his debut in the company of Walter Hampden.

WILL SEEK NEW TEMPO IN FRANCE

Mae Murray to Give Paris Improvements on American Jazz the Once-Over

Having temporarily exhausted the sources of American jazz, Mae Murray, star of many glittering and dazzling photoplays of syncopated rhythm, will shortly hie herself from California to Paris, Deauville and Nice to seek, or create, if necessary, the spirit of a jazz a la Francaise for a forthcoming production.

Making the European trip is more than a whim on the part of the star. It is the culmination of a desire she has felt for some time to film a picture with a Parisian atmosphere in the native locale and it is also the fulfillment of an idea that she cherishes, namely that success in the business of making motion pictures means keeping on the move, seeing new people, getting constantly new ideas.

"I think it is a mistake," she said with conviction, "for people producing pictures, or for that latter, doing anything else, especially in artistic forms of expression to remain in one place any great length of time. That is why I plan going abroad immediately after we finish this picture, partly for a vacation—I wouldn't say 'rest' because the word always implies for me inertia and dull passivity—but chiefly for business reasons."

In her conversation, as in her screen characterizations, Miss Murray radiates vitality. She talks fast, thinks fast, shows alacrity on practically every subject. A talk with this scintillant star fills you full of that nervous energy which she expends in her work, notably in such portrayals as "Broadway Rose," "Peacock Alley," "Fascination" and "Jazzmania," her latest picture, now showing at the California Theater.

"Ever since I have been a little girl—" she continued, "my life has been one of changes. I have always kept on the go in my professional work, and I have always avoided a stupefying routine in my themes and portrayals."

"Just Suppose" Postponed for Sake of Art

Register another victory for art over money!

Hundreds of seats had been reserved, the money for them lying snug and secure in the theater's safe, and all was in readiness for the opening of "Just Suppose" at the Mason Operahouse Monday night.

The actors, too, were ready; when they went to the theater Monday afternoon for their final dress rehearsal each felt that nothing could make him stumble over a word or forget a cue.

But something was wrong. Nothing disastrous—just a rough spot here and there, but those rough spots were enough.

ONLY ONE THING

"There's just one thing to do," quoth Creighton Hale, the lead. "Postpone the show."

So the show was postponed, despite the moans, very audible, of the business manager and press agent.

Next Monday night is the new date for the premiere of "Just Suppose" in Los Angeles, and the entire cast is working day and night, planing down those rough spots that they found last Monday afternoon.

WHO'LL DIRECT HER?

Who is going to direct Baby Peggy? This is the question that is confronting J. Travers Montgomery, father of the jitney Juliet. Since it was decided to star Peggy in feature productions, Daddy Montgomery has been scanning the best available directors, to find a really big-league director for his infant prodigy.

Holman Playing Hard-Boiled Egg Is Reminiscent

Before he doubled his weight and entered vaudeville, Harry Holman, globular comedian coming to the Hillstreet this week in his new playlet, "Hard-Boiled Hampton," was a serious actor. He played the sort of roles where his brow darkened and he stamped across the stage muttering in his best bottom-of-the-sea voice, "the hero, the hero, my bank roll for the hero."

In "Hard-Boiled Hampton" Mr. Holman assumes a character we often meet in a business way, almost every theatergoer will soon put down this hard-boiled egg as somebody he or she has come in contact with, and people in the audience remark to one another, "Doesn't he remind you of So and So?" If there are any telephone operators in the audience they too will soon find a place for Hampton among men they have heard talk over the phone.

There are a lot of big laughs for Mr. Holman in his manner of handling "Hard-Boiled Hampton," but it is merely the way that Mr. Holman plays the character that produces the actual results. And when this calloused old party finally is brought to his footing by a woman, who turns out to be the wife of his son who was killed in the war, there is a complete change in Hampton. Then it is that the audience again finds someone among their acquaintances who would act "just like that." Mrs. Holman and "Hard-Boiled Hampton" are a pair of classics, well suited to each other.

Turpin Finds Life of Sheik Not So Tough

The life of a sheik can't be so tough after all, even if he does live on the hot and shifting sands of the Sahara Desert, with the Sphynx and the pyramids as a background.

According to Mack Sennett's latest five-reel burlesque, "The Shriek of Araby," now going into the third and last week of its world premiere at the Symphony, the usual story of the sad life of a shiek is not to be taken seriously.

It takes five reels to tell the adventures of Turpin, but those five reels are crammed full of a new brand of riotous comedy, with many thrills and here and there touches of real drama, to say nothing of the surprising climax. "The Shriek of Araby" sends everybody who sees it on their way homeward with "a smile that won't come off."

Mack Sennett wrote the story and supervised the direction, which was carried out by F. Richard Jones, who, by the way, is responsible for the direction of previous Sennett successes. Mack Sennett can, if he cares to, rest on his laurels for a while, for it will be a long time before anything as funny as "The Shriek of Araby" comes to the screen.

Film Director Fails to Make Good as 'Crook'

Edwin Carewe could never make good as a "crook!"

The director of "The Girl of the Golden West" was given an opportunity to walk away with a gold ingot worth more than $250,000 if he could lift the precious metal.

Officials of the First National Bank of Sonora, Cal., invited Carewe to take away the gold if he could do so without assistance. It looked easy, as the ingot was hardly as large as an ordinary shoe box. The director tugged and tugged, strained his muscles and put forth all his energy, but he couldn't even budge it.

Then J. Warren Kerrigan, Russell Simpson, Hector Sarno and other members of the company tried, but without success. Gold is one of the heaviest of elements, and this ingot was beyond the lifting power of the average man.

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S WHAT

A Department of Questions and Answers Concerning the Pictures and Players

BY MARJORIE PERRY

M. C. R., Pasadena—The late Frank Bacon's story, "Lightnin'," has never been produced on the screen. The stage play was first presented in New York City, Mr. Bacon taking the leading character part of "Old Bill" Jones.

Cecelia W., Emporia, Kan.—J. Warren Kerrigan of the naturally wavy hair and genial smile will take the male lead in "The Girl of the Golden West," an Edwin Carewe production. Mr. Kerrigan is not married. He lives with his mother in Hollywood.

Russell M., Los Angeles—Why don't you send your poetic praise of Bebe Daniels to her direct? She can be addressed in care of Famous Players-Lasky Studio, Hollywood. I also enjoyed "The World's Applause," in which Miss Daniels played the stellar role.

Katherine W., Los Angeles—Baby Peggy's parents are Mr. and Mrs. J. Travers Montgomery, and proud parents they are, too. Although this little star has barely reached her fourth birthday, she has thirty-one pictures to her credit.

Harry H., Hugo, Colo.—Speaking of comedies, I'd walk miles to see one of Louise Fazenda's pictures. It might sound doubtful, but in real life she's a very charming and, I might say, attractive young lady. Harry (Snub) Pollard is now on his way to Melbourne, Australia for a vacation trip. He will be gone about three months. Mr. Pollard was recently married to Elizabeth Bowen.

Mrs. Dora L., Los Angeles—Yes, I believe the two stars you mention would send you their pictures. Wanda Hawley is abroad now, as it happens. Dorothy Gish is the wife of James Rennie, and may be addressed through the office of the D. W. Griffith Productions, Longacre Building, New York, N. Y.

Jack R., Los Angeles—You were right about Gladys Brockwell. She played the part of Nancy in "Oliver Twist."

C. B. S., Clintonville, Wis.—Rex Ingram directed the production of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse." Mae Murray is Mrs. Robert Z. Leonard in private life. Her latest release is "Jazzmania."

Phil M., Los Angeles—Richard Barthelmess played a dual role in "Sonny." He is about 28 years old and married. Anna Q. Nilsson was born in Ystad, Sweden; also educated there. Stuart Holmes was born in Chicago.

Mrs. Ora B., Los Angeles—If you have been informed that your scenario lack realism, you should take no end of time in reconstructing it. Possibly a course in some reputable scenario school would benefit you.

Eddie D., Denver, Colo.—The motion-picture industry is undoubtedly the leading industry of Los Angeles. Eighty per cent of the motion pictures are made in this vicinity.

Mary R., Long Beach—Norma Talmadge entered motion-picture work at the age of 14, having had previous stage experience. She has just recently completed her new First National release—"Within the Law."

E. H., Venice—Rockliffe Fellows is an old favorite of the legitimate stage, as well as of the cinema, having played leading roles with Mrs. Fiske, Grace George and other notables. Mr. Fellows

ONE NEW PLAY ON BOARDS FOR WEEK

"Just Suppose," a play starring [illegible]belle Lowe and Creighton Hale that was to have opened at the Mason last week, will have its first [illegible] public performance at the [illegible]ater tomorrow night. The players have had an extra week of rehearsals, and are well prepared for the occasion.

There are no other new attractions on the local boards. "The Poppy Kiss" continues at the Majestic, "The Timber Wolf" enters the final week of its engagement at the Egan Theater, the Morosco [illegible] continued with "Tiger Rose," and the "Mission Play" is well under way at San Gabriel.

Bert Lytell and his playlet, "The Valiant," which set the Lambs Club talking a while back, will be the featured attraction at the Orpheum.

Melodrama at Hip

Melodrama, the secret service, counterfeiters, love affairs in New York's free and easy Bohemian quarter, Greenwich Village, mystery. These are the factors entering into Charles A. Logue's story "The Amazing Lovers," a picturization of which will be presented at the Hippodrome today for a week's run.

Marc McDermott, Diana Allen, [illegible] Strong, Sally Crute, E. J. [illegible], Tatjanna Irrah, and [illegible] L. Shine were given the principal parts.

The vaudeville program consists of many interesting features. The Orpheum Comedy Four, known as "The Grouch Killers," will headline this almost all-comedy bill, the Three Astellas, American [illegible] tumblers, will present [illegible] movie comedy gymnastic [illegible] interspersed with many [illegible]. Conboy and Leigh will present a comedy, singing, and [illegible] travesty. Jack and Flo [illegible] have another comedy offering, "The Boob and The Girl," [illegible] North will be seen in a [illegible] oddity, with a surprise [illegible], and Evans and Maye present a pleasing potpourri of nonsense and singing numbers. The World News and comedy photoplays will complete the bill.

[illegible] Musical Comedy

Following in the footsteps of their tremendous success with last week's spectacular Hi-Jinks Revue production, this clever company of [illegible] entertainers at the Burbank Theater has prepared an entirely new musical comedy which will be the attraction for the [illegible] week. The cast is again headed by the favorite blackface comedian, Lee Bud Harrison, who is backed by such prominent entertainers as George Clark, Ruby [illegible], Jean Darby, William Mc[illegible], and a host of others always popular on the Burbank stage.

[illegible] Drama

Of all the military organizations the world ever knew, there are probably none that stand forth more gloriously in deeds of valor, [illegible], or at point of arms than the heroic little body of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police.

Of them much has been written and they still remains a fertile field for the dramatist, as is evidenced by the latest addition to the [illegible] of stirring melodrama, "The Timber Wolf" at the Egan Theater. This virile play of the [illegible] Northwest will go into its second and last week Monday [illegible].

Undoubtedly much of the success accorded the piece here is due to the well balanced cast which [illegible] the various roles and which includes Jean De Briac, Iva [illegible], George Chesebro, Doris [illegible], Frank Caffery, Jeffery Wil[illegible], Marie Stuart, Thomas Nosia, [illegible] Taylor and others.

[illegible] at Orpheum

Bert Lytell, who was a stage [illegible] before he ever went into pictures, is the headliner at the Orpheum for the week beginning Monday matinee, when he will [illegible] a snappy little one-act play, "The Valiant,"—one of those [illegible] things given at a Lambs' Gambol in New York, where the audience is made up of professionals and only the exceptional [illegible]. On the screen, even as on the stage, Mr. Lytell has attained wide popularity, and though [illegible] here have never seen [illegible] in pictures, this opportunity to meet him in the flesh will be most welcome.

Harry Langdon, whose "Johnny's First Car" was an auto [illegible] in the way of satire, is [illegible] as much now for golf in a [illegible], "After the Ball." Harry [illegible] experiences "in the ruff" [illegible] of it; the little white pill [illegible] affords a lot of comedy. [illegible] Rose and Cecil, who help him, [illegible] as pretty to look at in golfing [illegible] as they were in auto garb. [illegible] from Seattle organized a jazz band and are the Seattle Harmony Kings now.

Milt Collins as "speaker of the House" will have a lot of political satire to deliver, in a way that will reach home emphatically. Hap Fernall, with Florence, has a nonsense act, "For No Reason," and makes a lot of fun with it, and Johnson and Baker are hat tossers and jugglers. Topics of the Day and news views will be added, and—greater joy—there will be one of those unique afterpieces that now and then happen at the Orpheum. This one is led by Harry Langdon, and everyone in the bill has part in the hilarity; it even has a plot and a reason, but they do not interfere with the gayety and fun.

The Mission Play

Taking his place as the seventh in succession of a line of great actors to portary the immortal role of Fray Junipero Serra in the Mission Play at old San Gabriel, Monroe Salisbury, the noted California romantic actor, is winning new laurels daily in California's great dramatic epic of the Missions.

His leading support, Harry Lonsdale, is a fine old actor who is also making a great impression in the play. Lonsdale went up the ladder of dramatic fame from the old Boston Museum and in the star companies of Richard Mansfield and E. S. Willard.

Four great tenors, Wilbur Herwig, George P. Willey, S. M. Dickinson and Lester Reese; baritones, Ian Campbell and William Magginetti; bassos, Wilfred Pollard and Alexander Smith; contraltos, Myranna Richards, Catherine Snyder and the great Hawiian singer Roumalia Ena, would be famous anywhere. And as for dancers, it would be difficult to find better in the world than Julita Ruiz, Juanita Vigare and Juan Zorraquinos.

With Original Cast

Bringing to the role the same charm and dramatic force that made her a David Belasco favorite in the original New York and road production, Francesca Cappellano is contiuning in "Tiger Rose" at the Morosco for the remainder of the presentation here of the Willard Mack success. Miss Cappellano entered the Morosco cast when sudden illness caused the withdrawal of Miss Adda Gleason, who had been appearing in the role played by Miss Cappellano earlier in New York and large eastern cities.

"Tiger Rose" this afternoon enters its fourth week at the Morosco. With the exception of Miss Cappellano in the title role, the Morosco cast remains the same as when "Tiger Rose" began its successful engagement. Harland Tucker appears as the get-your-man member of the Northwest Mounted Police and Gayne Whitman. Joseph Eggenton, Joseph Bell, Harry Garrity, Lillian Elliott, Arthur MacDonald and Arthur Clare fill the other main roles.

PLAYCRAFTERS MEET

The weekly meeting of the Playcrafters will take place tomorrow evening at 932 South Grand avenue. At this session two original plays will be read: "Good References," by Cora Gray Burcon, and "Co-operation," by Herman Sisk.

Elsie Ferguson Coming Here in 'Wheel of Life'

Perhaps no announcement of the current theatrical season will arouse more interest and enthusiasm than the one heralding the coming of Elsie Ferbuson, in person, to the Mason Operahouse for the week commencing Monday night the 12th inst.

The impending visit will be the first one that this distinguished actress has paid Los Angeles since she went into the picture some six years ago and became an idol of the silver screen. For her return to the stage, Miss Ferguson chose a London success of last year, "The Wheel of Life," said to be a thrilling, surprising drama of an unusual love whose picturesque scenes are placed in the glamorous atmosphere of the Far East.

In Chicago this vehicle was considered the most interesting one in which this star has been seen in many years. According to the Buddhist philosophy the passion of love is an illusion. But is it? questions James Bernard Fagan, the author of this entertainment. In his play he depicts a conflict between the flesh and the spirit. Miss Ferguson's role is that of an alluring young wife who loves and is loved by a man twenty years the junior of her husband. The supporting company, which is the original American, numbers Frederick Worlock as the leading man, and C. T. Davis, Irby Marshall, J. Fisher White, George Thorpe and Eric Cowley in the other principal parts. Marc Klaw, Inc., give the production.

ATTRACTIVE FILM PLAYS ENTERTAIN

With a wide range of photoplays to select from, the theater goer should have little trouble this week in finding suitable entertainment. Working together again after separation of several years, are Norma Talmadge and Eugene O'Brien, who may be seen in "The Voice From the Minaret" at the Kinema Theater. "The Famous Mrs. Fair" with Myrtle Steadman, Marguerite de la Motte, and Cullen Landis, will be the featured attraction at Loew's State. Over at Ninth and Main Mae Murray will appear in her latest pep film, "Jazzmania," at the California Theater. Miller's will show "The Hero" with Gaston Glass and Barbara Le Marr in the leading roles. "Adam and Eva" is the Metropolitan feature. Tomorrow "Brass Commandments" with William Farnum, opens at Grauman's Third-street house.

Among the revivals and holdovers, "The Hottentot" in which Douglas MacLean and Madge Bellamy share honors, will be seen at the Alhambra. "Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood" at the Egyptian, "One Exciting Night" at the Mission, "Adam's Rib" at the Rialto, "The Shriek of Araby" at the Symphony, and "The Dangerous Age" at Tally's continue.

The Perfect Lovers

Of unusual interest to theatergoers is the announcement of the program at the Kinema next week. Topping the bill is a picturization of Robert Hichens's great story of love in the desert, "The Voice from the Minaret," starring Norma Talmadge, supported by Eugene O'Brien. It is the first picture in three years in which these two players, recognized as "the perfect screen lovers," have been seen together. Others in the cast are Edwin Stevens, who died soon after the picture was finished, Claire DuBrey, Carl Gerard, Winter Hall and Lillian Lawrence. Adding further stimulus to the interest is the showing of the only motion-picture made by Emile Coue during his recent visit to the United States, "The Message of Emile Coue," setting forth in pleasing pictorial fashion the theories and the practice of his remarkable methods of curing by autosuggestion.

For the musical features, Constantine Bakaleinikoff, in addition to leading the orchestra in original score of oriental motifs composed by himself, will present as a 'cello solo, Cui's "Orientale."

"The Hottentot" Back

The recent engagement of "The Hottentot" at the Kinema was not sufficiently long to enable the entire roster of Los Angeles playgoers to see this merry William Collier farce, which Thomas H. Ince has made into a remarkably enjoyable film comedy. So back it comes to the Alhambra by popular demand. Douglas MacLean, Madge Bellamy as the winsome Peggy Fairfax, and Raymond Hatton as the eccentric butler, are in the cast.

Still Another Week

Still another week is going to be necessary in order to give all an opportunity of seeing John M. Stahl's "The Dangerous Age" at Tally's Broadway. The fourth week will positively be the last as the coming attractions cannot be held back any longer.

Lewis Stone, Cleo Madison and Ruth Clifford are receiving no end of praise for their great work in "The Dangerous Age" and it is certain that their popularity will be increased many fold in the eyes of all those thousands who have seen them in this picture. The directive work of Mr. Stahl will no doubt stand for some time as the greatest he has ever done.

Kiddies on Tour

Jane and Catherine Lee, familiarly known as the "Baby Grands" postponed their European vaudeville tour to run back to little old Los Angeles and put on their act at Grauman's Metropolitan Theater this week.

"Adam and Eva," the Broadway comedy hit, transferred to the screen under the direction of Robert Vignola, is the feature film attraction. Waring's Pennsylvanians continue to maintain their reputation as the most popular jazz orchestra in the country. The eleven college syncopaters play new numbers in brand new settings.

Henry Murtagh at the Wurlitzer plays a musical mind-reading selection and Grauman's Symphony Orchestra under the baton of S. Leopold Kohls, guest conductor, renders the Victor Herbert overture, "Mlle. Modiste." Easter and Hazelton will appear in a new dance novelty and the program is completed by specialty reels.

In Fifth Week

Building a photoplay a la Cecil De Mille, means touching the camera art at many points, for this producer is ever striving to bring a novel theme and unusual settings to his pictures. In "Adam's Rib," now entering its fifth big week at Grauman's Rialto Theater, he has succeeded in doing this to a superlative degree and it stands as the original creation of the season.

A great cast of players were assembled for this picture of modern and ancient days, including such artists as Milton Sills, Elliott Dexter, Theodore Kosloff, Anna Q. Nilsson and Pauline Garon, who play convincingly and with the correct romantic tempo.

To Fight Again

"Brass Commandments" which comes to Grauman's Million Dollar Theater tomorrow is described as a dramatic offering with rousing action and glowing, live romance. It is a story of the West containing exhibitions of dazzling riding, clever shooting and a whirlwind fight, which furnishe a powerful climax. Thi is between William Farnum and Tom Santschi, and those who recall the memorable struggle between these two men in "The Spoilers" will look forward to an added thrill in the new production. The romantic touch is added by Wanda Hawley and Claire Adams and the remainder of the cast includes Charles LeMoyne, Lon Poff and Al Fremont.

Sid Grauman presents his usual prologue typical of the photoplay, and Grauman's Symphony Orchestra, Stagliano conducting.

Two Feature Plays

A big double bill is on the program at the Miller Theater next week. "The Hero," with Gaston Glass and Barbara La Marr in the leading roles, heads the attractions. This is a slice of throbbing life, simple but dramatic. A story of peace heroes and a tale of valor and sacrifice performed far from the field of battle.

The second feature is Will Rogers in his latest and funniest comedy "Fruits of Faith," the story of a tramp who became a substantial citizen after he finds an abandoned baby in the desert. It certainly looks like the patrons of Miller's are in for a good time when they see this big double bill.

Every Night Exciting

There seems no doubt that D. W. Griffith's latest ten-reel production, "One Exciting Night," which is nearing the beginning of its fourth week at the Mission Theater, will start a new fashion in films.

The picture, a mystery romance, has startled not only that vast army of film fans but that very imposing array of producers who always make it a point to see what the nature of the latest Griffith novelty is. In providing his public with a mystery film, Griffith has departed from every known tradition of film construction and therefore one point must be observed as important. It is vital that everyone who desires to witness "One Exciting Night" be seated at starting times in order to fully enjoy the development of suspense.

The cast of the production is headed by Carol Dempster, Morgan Wallace and Henry Hull. There are fifteen other well-known Griffith players in the picture.

Mae in "Jazzmania"

The dazzling, dancing little star Mae Murray is the featured player in "Jazzmania," the attraction at the California Theater next week. As Queen Ninon, of the little country of Jazzmania, she loses her throne because of neglecting her duties for the thrill of the jazz dance. She comes to America and is a hit, but at the height of her career a summons comes from her country and she gives up the limelight to again assume the sceptre. This gay burlesque of saxophones and sovereigns gives Miss Murray ample chance to show her ability as a dancer and proves to the world that the clarinet is mightier than the sword. "Jazzmania" is indeed a photoplay of syncopation and splendor.

Distinguished Premiere

The world premiere of "The Famous Mrs. Fair," a Fred Niblo production is the feature photoplay attraction of the program that opens today at Loew's State Theater.

A distinguished list of players is exceptionally well cast in this adaptation of the Henry Miller-Blanche Bates recent stage success. The cast includes Marguerite de la Motte, Cullen Landis, Carmel Myers, Myrtle Stedman, Helen Ferguson, Ward Crane and Huntly Gordon.

Other features included on the bill are Ciccolini, the noted operatic tenor, rendering new selections and Max Fisher and his syncopationists in "A Trip to Catalina on the Good Ship Avalon," a novel presentation.

PRESENT CHILDREN IN DANCE RECITAL

Today at 2:30 p.m. the Egan School, will present the children's classes in recital, under the direction of Miss Oatman and Mme. Dowdall.

"Colonial Days" is a sketch of two scenes of a patriotic nature. The first scene consists of character comedy in negro dialect in the bustle and hustle of preparing for a Washington Birthday party; the second scene is entertainment for the party, and consists of many dance numbers, including toe, Egyptian, eccentric, character and ballet, in which are presented both the private pupils and classes of Mme. Dowdall.

"The Shepherd Afar" is an esthetic pantimome, and tells the story of a beautiful princess who fall in love with a handsome shepherd and elopes with him. Others in the caste are two ladies-in-waiting, two Egyptian slaves, a court jester, a beggar, an old chess player and a goat. The entire action is accompanied by music and much of the interpretation is expressed in dancing.

MUSICAL

TWO AMERICAN ARTISTS

MAY PETERSON AND CAROLINA LAZZARI THIS WEEK

Two American girls, who made themselves favorites in previous appearances here, will be presented in song recitals during the coming week. They are May Peterson, soprano, who will sing next Tuesday evening, and Carolina Lazzari, contralto, who will be presented Saturday afternoon. Both recitals will be at the Philharmonic Auditorium.

Each of these girls has achieved success only after a struggle. Miss Peterson, born in a little town in Wisconsin, daughter of a clergyman, made her first public appearances, singing and accompanying herself on the organ of her father's church. Her father died, leaving a family of nine children. Nothing, however, seemed to deter her ambition to become a singer. She continued, by every possible means, until sufficient funds had been saved to go to Europe. There, through fees earned in coaching others, playing accompaniments, giving lessons in English and reading aloud evenings to an older patron, she finally finished with Jean de Rezke and secured an appearance at the Opera Comique.

Her debut was made in "Manon," and she was accredited with the greatest success of any singer, either American or French, since Mary Garden appeared with the same company.

The program she has chosen for her only appearance in Los Angeles includes the Bach aria from "Phoebus et Pan," Irish, French-Canadian and Norwegian folk songs, a French group, "Le coeur de ma mie" (Dalcroze,) "Viens une flute invisible" (Caplet,) "Chanson des Papillons (Mesquite;) a German group, Maria's Slumber Song (Reger,) Hans and Gretel (Mahler,) and the Marietta aria from "Die Tote Stadt" (Korngold.) The group of American songs include "Wings of the Night" (Watts,) "Little Brown Owl" (Buzzi-Peccia,) "Thy Beaming Eyes" (MacDowell,) a negro spiritual (Grant-Schaefer) and "Homage to Spring" (MacFadyen.)

Lazzari at Matinee

Carolina Lazzari, was a Christmas Day gift to her parents, then living in a small Massachusetts town. After the usual public school education, she was sent to the seminary at Buckport, Me., and from there to three years' study at a college in Milan.

She has sung with great success in opera in South and Central America and the City of Mexico, but her real forte seems rather to be on the recital stage.

The program for Saturday afternoon includes arias from "Samson and Delilah" and "Dinorah," "Girametta" (Sibella,) "L'Esclave" (Lalo) and two groups of songs in English by Hageman, Foster, MacFadyen, Griffes and La Forge.

Lyric Club Concert

Fritz Gaillard, violoncellist, will be featured as soloist with the Woman's Lyric Club in the second concert of the season, Monday evening, at Philharmonic Auditorium. Los Angeles music lovers will welcome the opportunity to hear a real master of 'cello technique. Of great interest, also, will be the premiere presentation of a new choral composition by one of California's most talented composers. This number is a musical setting of Browning's "Rabbi Ben Ezra," by F. Marion Ralston. It was written especially for the Lyric Club, and is admirably suited to Lyric capabilities.

Miss Lucile Verrity, soprano, and Mrs. Antoinette Girard, mezzo-soprano, will sing the tuneful duet from "Lakme." This is an arrangement by J. B. Poulin, conductor of the club. Solos and quartets in "Rabbi Ben Ezra" will be rendered by Mrs. Florence Lorbeer, soprano, Mrs. Louise Kohlmier Flack, contralto, and the Lyric Club double quartet. Sol Cohen, well-known Los Angeles violinist, will be heard in the charming obligato of Leroux's "Le Nil."

Levitzki to be Heard

The announcement of the return of Mischa Levitzki for the next symphony pair of the Philharmonic Orchestra, on Friday afternoon and Saturday evening will be welcomed by every student of the piano and admirer of his great art. Since his last appearance here Mr. Levitzki has made a tour of the world, adding fresh laurels to his many triumphs achieved on former visits.

For his solo work with the orchestra Mr. Levitzki will play the Liszt "Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No. 1 in E Flat."

The orchestral program selected by Conductor Rothwell will open with the Schumann "Symphony No. 1 in B Major, Op. 38" ("Spring") and will include the tone poem "Finlandia" (Sibelius) and "Baba-Yaga," a musical picture after a Russian folk-tale (Liadlow.)

Tschaikowsky Program

For the ninth popular concert this afternoon the Philharmonic Orchestra will present an all-Tschaikowsky program with Calmon Luboviski, first violinist of the orchestra, as the soloist. The numbers selected by Mr. Rothwell include the most popular compositions of this famous Russian's masterpieces, opening with the "Symphony Pathetique," Mr. Luboviski will play the 'Serenade Melencholique," the program concluding with the thrilling "Overture Solonelle, "The Year 1812."

This program is the third of the series of four special programs arranged by Conductor Rothwell. The last being given on Sunday afternoon, March 18, will be devoted entirely to compositions of living American composers.

Orpheus Club Concert

The second concert of the eighteenth season of the Orpheus Club will be given at Trinity Auditorium on the evening of the 8th inst., Miss Frieda Peycke will assist the club, and will present some new numbers. Miss Peycke's work is so wonderfully pleasing and so much in demand that the Orpheus Club was very fortunate in securing this date. In the absence of Raymond McFeeters, Inez Jacobson will be at the piano, which position she filled so creditably at the "Radio Concert" given by the club club on February 9, and from which returns have been received from points as far distant as Lynn, Mass., and Jacksonville, Fla.

In New Art

Perhaps one of the most versatile young musicians now in California is Sol Cohen, violin soloist, composer, teacher, and orchestra leader, whose newest work is synchronizing music for the motion pictures produced by the Thomas Ince studios.

Some of the recent photoplays for which he has synchronized the music are: "Lorna Doone," "The Hottentot," "Skin Deep," "Ten Ton Love," and "Michael O'Halloran."

Wins Salt Lake

When Charles Wakefield Cadman and Princess Tsianina appeared in Salt Lake lately, they were accorded a reception that they will not soon forget. The concert was given in the Mormon Tabernacle with the Mormon choir of 300 voices under the direction of A. C. Lund. Professor J. J. McClellan, first organist of the tabernacle, presided at the console. There was a capacity audience.

New Compositions

As an innovation for her coming recital Monday before the Santa Monica Bay Women's Club, Gertrude Ross, California composer-pianist, has set to music Mrs. Creager's exquisite atmospheric poem, "Evening on Santa Monica Bay," which will be sung by Annis Howell, soprano, the assisting soloist. Miss Howell will also sing Mrs. Ross's newest songs, "Goblins," "Sakura Blossoms," and the "Delight of the Out-of-Doors." Other interesting concert appearances for Mrs. Ross in March are: The California Art Club on Saturday evening, March 3 at the Otis Art Institute, when she will be assisted by Margaret Fisher Monson, mezzo-soprano, for the Council of Jewish Women at the Ambassador Hotel on Wednesday afternoon, when Melba French Barr will be the joint soloist, and for the Eagle Rock Women's Club on Thursday afternoon, March 22.

Adding Radiance to Melodies Horizon

Carolina Lazzari, contralto

Hugo Kirchhofen, Director Orpheus Club

Blanche Rogers-Lott, Pianist

May Peterson, operatic soprano.

Mischa Levitzki, soloist, Philharmonic Orchestra

Soprano's Engagements

Margaret Messer Morris, the popular young soprano, has filled several interesting engagements the last month, both in Los Angeles and other cities in Southern California. On the 15th she appeared as soloist with the Neighborhood Club of Pasadena, on the 16th at La Jolla, with Doris June Struble and Sol Cohen, violinist, on the 18th at the Coronado Hotel, on the 22nd at the Annadale Country Club, and on the 28th with Charles Wakefield Cadman at the Los Angeles High School.

Adds to Library

Gino Severi, violin soloist and conductor of the Mission Theater orchestra, received a valuable shipment of music from Europe last week, which complements his extensive library, that can now be considered worth thousands of dollars. The manuscripts are filed in ten trunks. In all, it is estimated that his files contain over 15,000 various compositions, including complete scores of operas, symphonies, tone poems and concertos.

The violin solo which Severi plays this week is an importation, brought over on his first visit to America. It is a rhapsodic form of the most popular Hungarian folk songs, arranged by Lehar and called "Magjar Dalok." It has never been played here by a theater orchestra and the symphony orchestras have as yet not included this concerto on their programs.

At Convention

A feature of the convention of California Federation of Music Clubs, to be held at Santa Ana April 4 to 7, will be the exhibits of programs, year books and other literature of the affiliated clubs. There also will be an exhibit of photographs of the clubs and productions which they have staged. An exhibition of compositions by California composers, in either manuscript or printed form, will also be an attraction.

Four Artists

The personnel of the faculty concert to be given by the Davis Musical College Tuesday at the First Presbyterian Church is in the nature of an all-star affair. Dr. Ray Hastings, organist; Alice Forsythe-Mosher, soprano; Sol Cohen, violinist, and Hallet Gilberte, composer, will all take part. Ordinarily, a program given by any one of them would insure an evening of pleasure.

Chorus Triumphs

An artistic triumph was the entertainment given at the Whittier College auditorium Tuesday evening by the Whittier Men's Chorus, assisted by the piano composer, Miss Frieda Peycke of Los Angeles and New York. The chorus gave seven numbers, closing the concert with Strauss's rousing "Blue Danube." Prof. Howard L. Hockett, who has been at the head of the department of vocal music at Whittier College for a number of years, is the director of the Whittier Men's Chorus, which is composed of thirty-five voices, soloists, choir singers and others interested in ensemble singing. Ivan Knox, one of the promising young pianists of the Coast, is the accompanist for the chorus.

Young Pianist

At a recent meeting of the Indiana State Society, Miss Herma Wise, 9 years of age, and her mother, Mrs. Cecelia Wise, played two piano numbers which were very well received. A selection from "Il Trovatore" and "Valse in E-Flat," by Durand, were rendered.

Accompaniment Praised

Frank Lloyd is one director, at least, who understands the value of appropriate music to the unfolding of a pictured plot. He has written a letter of appreciation to Constantine Bakaleinikoff, composer-director at the Kinema Theater, commending in highest terms the accompaniment arranged and composed by Bakaleinikoff, for "Oliver Twist," and expressing the liveliest gratitude that the same genius is assembling the music for "The Voice From the Minaret" in which Norma Talmadge is to be seen under Mr. Lloyd's direction at the Kinema.

Rimsky-Korsakow's "Hymn to the Sun" is used as the principal theme of the picture, and other excerpts from the same opera ("Coq d'Or") are freely employed in an instrumentation arranged by Bakaleinikoff to suit the possibilities of his fine orchestra.

Bronson Artists

On next Thursday evening, the 8th inst, the Carl Bronson artists will be presented in their third concert-recital of the season in the auditorium of the Gamut Theater. A program has been arranged which will include vocal and instrumental music, songs, dance numbers and scenes from several operas. The concert will be presented under the guidance of Miss Marion Bronson.

Miss Elwell Pleases

Miss Hazel Elwell achieved another success as soprano soloist for the Ellis Club concert on last Monday evening at the Philharmonic Auditorium, and was greeted with genuine approval. Miss Elwell is scoring success in her chosen profession, this being a third re-engagement as soloist for the Ellis Club concerts. Besides possessing a most unusual and lovely voice, Miss Elwell has much personal charm, which adds greatly to the quality of her work.

Oberlin Concert

On Thursday evening, February 22, a musicale was given at the home of Mrs. Alfred Betts, 1401 St. Andrews Place, for the alumni and friends of Oberlin College. The affair was in the nature of a very old tradition at Oberlin where musical receptions are similarly observed each year by the faculty and students. The program for the evening was provided by Miss Catherine Jackson, harpist; Miss Harriett Beckett, violinist, and Mr. Fred L. Bickford.

Repertoire Classes

Artists, teachers and students will be interested to know that Mme. Ragna Linne, the eminent vocal teacher, in response to requests from artists is forming classes in repertoire to be given at her studio room, 422 Music-Art Studio Building. The classes will be conducted similarly to those directed by the old masters of Europe. For those students who need tone work there will be classes in tone production.

Chamber Music Concert

The Los Angeles Chamber Music Society will appear in its tenth concert of the season on Friday evening, March 16, at the Gamut Club. The Philharmonic Quartet, Sylvain Noack, first violin; Henry Svedrofsky, second violin; Emile Ferir, viola, and Ilya Bronson, violoncello, will play the program with the assistance of Blanche Rogers Lott, piano, will render the Quintet in A Major, Opus 81, of Anton Dvorak.

The quartet will play two selections besides the Dvorak number, Quartet, E Minor, Opus 59, No. 2, by Ludwig van Beethoven, and the Moderato and Scherzo from the Quartet, Opus 15, No. 2, by H. Waldo Warner. Mr. Warner is the viola player of the London String Quartet which has been pronounced by musicians the greatest of all string quartets. Mr. Warner's quartet being new to Los Angeles audiences, will prove interesting.

"La Favorita" Comes

There is much of interest to be said about the presentation of "La Favorita" by the De Lara Grand Opera Company on March 22 and 23 at the Gamut Theater.

"La Favorita" was one of the last operas to be written by Donizetti, and he wrote this opera especially for the true bel canto hence the opera is full of beautiful phrases, especially for the mezzo-soprano, baritone and tenor.

Especially beautiful is the aria "Spirito Gentil," for the tenor, and it is one of the most difficult romanzas in the opera world, as it runs to high C sharp. Miguel Laris, of the De Lara Grand Opera Company, is preparing this most difficult role, that of "Fernando," and should make a success of the part, with his fine voice and great ability on the stage.

Vivian Clarke, mezzo-soprano of the De Lara Grand Opera Company, and Earl Meeker, baritone, who is "guest artist" for this production, are both capable artists who will make this opera one of the best ever produced by the De Lara Company. The roles of Leonora, written for the mezzo-soprano, and of the King, for the baritone, are full of beautiful lyric phrases and wonderful harmonies. Forest Bell, basso, sings a most difficult role, the range running from low C to high F, a test for which his fine young voice is very capable, and which will show the beauty and power of his voice to full extent.

The ensemble chorus is rehearsing regularly and in this opera will be much larger and of finer quality than ever before. The chorus numbers are also replete with the beautiful strains and phrases which run through the arias and other parts of the opera.

Costume Programs

Barbara Taylor Kierulff, harpist, is known in Los Angeles as an artiste of much ability, having appeared in public for several years past on programs for clubs, receptions and in recitals. Miss Kierulff has studied with many well-known teachers of the harp, among whom are Harriett A. Shaw, of the New England Conservatory, Mrs. J. M. Jones, at one time harpist to Queen Victoria, and Signor Valenza and Alfred Kastner of Los Angeles.

Among Miss Kierulff's recent engagements are recital programs given at the Ambassador Little Theater, the Wa Wan Club, soloist on musical programs for the University Methodist Church and the Atherton Baptist Church. Oriental costume programs are being planned by Miss Keirulff for several engagements during this month and April.

Music Week Plans

Los Angeles is making elaborate plans for its second Music Week, which will probably take place some time in May. The preliminary plans have been initiated by the Los Angeles Playground Commission with the assistance of Community Service, Inc., through its field representative in music on the Pacific Coast, Alexander Stewart.

The program for this year's Music Week will include several events of a festival character to be given in the Hollywood Bowl, and possibly in the new Los Angeles Coliseum, provided the latter structure, which is to seat 75,000 people, is available by that time. One of the events proposed will be a massed chorus of several thousand voices, in which the various community choruses and choral societies of the communities adjacent to Los Angeles will be invited to participate.

Members of the executive committee for the Los Angeles Music Week, appointed by Frederick G. Leonard, president of the Playground Commission, are Benjamin Pearson, business man and civic leader, who is chairman of the committee; Mrs. J. J. Carter, L. E. Behymer, Mrs. W. A. Mabee, E. P. Tucker, E. P. De Groot, J. A. Lewis, C. B. Raitt and W. R. Guiberson.

Glendale Music Feast

Community music program, to include community singing and musical features of an artistic character, are planned for Glendale Monday evening, the 26th inst., and at Fullerton event, evening. At the Fullerton event, Mrs. Carrie Jacobs Bond, nationally-famous song writer, will be the "guest" artist, assisted by Hollywood talent and Mrs. J. J. Carter, president of the famous Hollywood Community Chorus.

Previous to this program Mrs. Bond and Mrs. Carter will be guests of honor at a luncheon at the beautiful new California Hotel at Fullerton, under the auspices of a group of residents of Fullerton who constitute the Community Service Music Committee of that city.

BODY AS INSTRUMENT

Applying the theory of Jacques Dalcrose that the human body may be used as a musical instrument, Norma Gould, in her school of the dance is training the advanced students to direct the movements of a body of dancers just as a musician would conduct an orchestra. On class nights a group of serious-minded, well-built young women may be seen at the studio moving in circles, files, squares and various patterns, according to the direction of the conductor, who stands in the center of the room.

ACTRESS SEEKS COLORFUL ROLE

Marguerite De La Motte Not Anxious to Star

Prefers Flapper Type of Part in "Famous Mrs. Fair"

Found More Opportunity in It, She Says in Interview

Ask Marguerite De la Motte, who has a leading role in "The Famous Mrs. Fair," showing at Loew's State this week, what she wants to do most, and she will tell you she wants to take a vacation. And she is going to do it, too, at the very first opportunity. Says so herself.

It will be a New York trip. She has never been to New York, and it is one of her great ambitions.

But apply that question (what she wants to do most) to her career, and she is rather doubtful. As a matter of fact, she is willing to take almost any kind of a role, anywhere, under any director. Free-lancing from studio to studio as she is doing keeps her interested in her work, and out of the w. k. rut, as well as valuable pointers on how certain situations may be handled, gleaned from the directors she works with.

DAUGHTERS WONDER

Just now, the young lady is playing one of the "Wandering Daughters" for James Young, out at the United Studios. Marjorie Daw is the other daughter, incidentally. And from the scenes they were shooting one day last week, it may be stated that the daughters certainly wandered. One of the scenes in question was one of those "after the party" affairs, apparently, where a whole mob of flappers and their friends rushed into a room and started playing with some speckled dice. Marguerite seemed to be having a streak of bad luck. She lost her shoes and her stockings. Marjorie had some bad luck, also. She lost everything except the dress she was wearing, and then gamely gambled on that. And lost it. But that's another story.

"If I am ever starred," said Miss De La Motte, in speaking of her role in "The Famous Mrs. Fair," "that is the kind of role I would like to do most."

And she went on to tell the story of the young girl deprived of her mother at the critical age in a girl's life because the older woman felt she was needed at war work, who gets mixed up with the wrong crowd, and finally runs off with a man who promises to marry her but attempts to evade the marriage later..

LIKE DUAL ROLE

"That kind of role," she said when she returned again, "offers so much opportunity. It's almost like a dual part."

But aside from that, the young leading lady, who first attracted serious consideration by her work with Doug Fairbanks in "The Mark of Zorro" and "The Three Musketeers," expressed no definite ambition.

She has one hobby that takes up most of her spare time. That is shooting. Every time she has a day off she takes out the trusty gun, hies herself to the gun club, and pops away at the targets. And she makes good scores.

AN ARTIST AT IT

Cecil Holland, known as one of the best make-up men and character artists in pictures, has been signed by Edwin Carewe to supervise the character make-up of "The Girl of the Golden West." So deft is Holland in the art of make-up that he will appear in this production in at least a dozen small character parts, aside from his role as a principal in the cast. Holland is said to be able to make up for a 16-year-old part, or to appear in an excellent likeness of Abraham Lincoln.

HOLDS RECORD

Fred Esmelton probably holds the record for appearing in foreign films. During a two-year absence from the United States he played leading roles in two pictures made in Australia, one in New Zealand, one in Vienna, one in Rome, one in Southern France and one feature production in London.

GIVES RECITAL AT EBELL SOON

Hulda Dietz

With Calmon Luboviski, violinist, and Mrs. M. Hennion Robinson, pianist, assisting, Hulda Dietz will appear in a song recital at the Ebell Club auditorium next Friday evening.

Miss Dietz is well known in Southern California, having appeared before most of the clubs in this part of the State and at a number of Sunday-evening concerts in Los Angeles and Pasadena hotels.

She was born in Denmark and started her career at the age of 9 as soloist in a child's vested choir in San Francisco. Before she was 20 years of age she held positions as prima donna in New York and with Ferris Hartman in light opera in Oakland.

HARMONY AND JAZZ YOKE UP

Seattle Band Instance of Musicians With Eye to Business

The jazz band known as the Seattle Harmony Kings at the Orpheum Theater this week is no only one of the best in the coun try, but is composed of ten youn fellows who have evolved an en tirely new idea in the managemen and operation of a vaudeville act

The idea of a band composed o young fellows who were friend and who would have just as goo a time through traveling about th country together as does a college glee and banjo club on its annua Christmas and Easter holiday tours, was conceived several years ago by the Neibaur brothers, wh lived in Seattle.

The ordinary band or orchestr is under the direction and subject to the orders of its director or manager. But the Seattle Harmony Kings organized themselve on a different basis. The plan briefly is one of co-operation, and while it is true that at times theatrical companies have been operated on this basis, it is the first time that a musical organization has been so conducted. Each member of the "Kings" has an equal voice in the contracts and the routes which the organization is to play. Each draws from the treasury an equal amount of money each week for spending as he wishes, but the expenses of travel and living are paid out of the common fund.

Then the residue is banked or invested as the consensus of opinion may determine, and so wisely has this been done that the organization is worth today a really considerable sum of money. Twice each week a business meeting is held to discuss plans of investment and methods of generally increasing the band's efficiency and prestige.

JUVENILES WIELD WOMAN'S WEAPON

VAUDEVILLE BABES EXPERT IN RAISING TEARS AT WILL

No onions or glycerine for Jane and Katherine Lee!

The "Baby Grands" of vaudeville, despite the fact that they are only 10 and 7 years of age, have already mastered the difficult art of shedding real tears whenever they feel so inclined.

The famous kiddies, who postponed their European tour to appear at Grauman's Metropolitan Theater this week, have been weeping with consistent daily regularity ever since they left the movies and started out in vaudeville several seasons ago, and it is claimed that they are the only child actresses who are able to make the tear ducts work at will.

The weeping scene is a part of their very effective act which has rated them headline positions over the Keith and other circuits.

OLD PROBLEM IN NEW GUISE

reprieve to save Bob Harron from the noose.

In "Way Down East," he had the ice going over the water fall. In "Two Orphans" the ride if Danton with a troop of cavalry to save Lillian Gish's beautiful head from being snipped off by the guillotine.

In "One Exciting Night," he literally blew in with a hurricane that uprooted trees and mussed up the houses and the landscape.

What is there left for him to do?

He has given them so many of these wild thrills that the public will accept nothing milder in taste from him. Like Mulvaney in the Kipling stories, they have eaten strong army plug so long that they can't taste anything milder.

In each Griffith picture they want something wilder and thriller. They go home disappointed from Griffith pictures that would send them into transports of enthusiasm from any other director.

Of course, there is a definite limit to excitement just as there is a definite limit to new brands of hero.

Both Griffith and Fairbanks are finding the future more and more difficult to peer into.

Many other directors are in the same boat.

As a matter of fact the motion-picture business is becoming a job of the most amazing complexities.

All possible stories, plots, situations and characters have been exhausted long since.

The way is closing for the old-time director and the old-time methods.

There are many who believe that the future of the movies lies in the direction of beauty; in beautiful symbolisms and compositions.

Personally I believe something different. I think the future must be in the hands of directors with more personality: men who leave their finger-prints on every story they touch; men who can tell the same old stories again and again—Kiplings who, with each telling, bring new fascinations to the story.

There are too many artists and actors and good managers among the directors; too few born tellers of tales.

In this regard Marshal Neilan stands alone. Of all directors he is the only one who works from a force that could be fairly called genius, as distinguished from painstaking intelligent effort.

Genius isn't really "an infinite capacity for taking pains." Genius is just doing it without knowing why. Genius is the song of the lark. Genius is the boxing of Jack Johnson, who does not think where to hit, but sees where to hit.

Mr. Neilan's picture, "Minnie," is the work of genius. It is wrong in very many particulars; but it is unforgettable. Once seeing it, you will never lose it from your memories. It is full of anti-climaxes; it is loaded up with a lot of junk that doesn't belong here; it makes fun of its own story; it does a flipflop over one of the most terrific themes ever written for the screen; it comes to the end and then starts again.

But it has the divine spark of genius imprinted in every foot of the film.

It has the quaint flavor, the fascinating whimsical slant that no one else could have given it.

Mickie Neilan is the Mark Twain of motion pictures. And he is just as lazy and as do-less and as illogical and as unreliable.

But the glow of a magic touch lingers about his work.

Griffith and Cecil De Mille and the others might be imitated by others with more or less success.

You might as well try to imitate the pungent smells of Chinatown as to imitate Marshal Neilan.

He need never be disturbed by lack of characters or thrills. His mine is inexhaustible.

Farnum Retains Costumes From All His Plays

A collection worth thousands of dollars to its possessor, but absolutely valueless to a person outside the theatrical profession, is owned by William Farnum.

Stored in a score of trunks at his country home in Sag Harbor, L. I., are all the costumes and weapons of all sorts that he has used in his career on stage and screen. Many of the costumes are merely rags—always were rags, in fact, to fit certain characters he has portrayed. The intrinsic value of this collection is nil and while many people would undoubtedly pronounce it "junk," not so his friends in theatrical life. They know from experience that the most difficult thing to find when needed, is a costume that is merely rags.

From "Les Miserables," one of his earliest screen successes to "Brass Commandments," his latest starring vehicle, he has every costume and prop he has ever used, and is able to fit out most every kind and style of portrayal.

"Brass Commandments" will be seen at Grauman's Million-Dollar Theater next week with a splendid cast supporting Mr. Farnum including Tom Santschi, Wanda Hawley, Claire Adams, Charles Le-Moyne and Lon Poff.

LOUISE GETS WEARY OF SEEING HEARSES

Louise Fazenda would like to forget it. It was bad enough to see her own funeral procession as Bea Sorenson, Swedish maid in "Main Street," but as the comedienne puts it, it is annoying to always be stumbling into the hearse containing one's screen body. The other night when the comedienne paid a business call at the Warner Brothers' studios, the first thing that emerged in the darkness was the outlines of the hearse and immediately she said: "Oh dear!"

The comedienne's next advent in the production is at the skating party where she is the life of the affair but takes cold resulting in her untimely end, with much mourning among those left behind for her blithe spirit. The role of Bea Sorenson has greatly intrigued Miss Fazenda, who is investing it with humor and wistfulness.

Inauguration Month

Commences Tomorrow---Monday---

This page portrays the story of Inauguration Month, which is summed up in almost the first words of the Bullock Ideal---

"Advance---continually, to meet advancing conditions---"

It is a story of Faith in a Vision that gave birth to an Enterprise 16 years ago. Inconspicuous from the standpoint of magnitude; but conspicuous to a degree because of its disregard of the beaten track. An experiment, if you will; but one backed by Purpose to "Build a business that will never know completion."

Armed with faith in the future of Los Angeles and Strong Determination to stand firm to an Ideal set high upon Truth and Sincerity, Bullock's has grown—nurtured by an increasing circle of friends, guided by the same vision.

Inauguration Month has played its part, year after year, in keeping ablaze the fires of Enthusiasm and Purpose. It takes up the theme again tomorrow and sends an invitation broadcast.

Inspiration has been brighter than ever this year for Bullock's to go far and wide to bring back Merchandise, beautiful and good and plentiful to speak the message of the New.

To key up every Thought, every Ambition, every Fibre of this Business to Service of a notable sort;

To present Values in their own good way to make this Inauguration Month a profitable time to shop.

Above all, to revivify the Ideals upon which Bullock's has built its Past and set its Future—Courtesy, Cheerfulness and all kindred things that tend toward the Satisfaction of every Customer.

The usual distribution of Violets will commence at 10 o'clock—

The Bullock Ideal

To build a business that will never know completion but that will advance continually to meet advancing conditions—

To develop stocks and service to a notable degree—

To create a personality that will be known for its strength and friendliness—

To arrange and co-ordinate activities to the end of winning confidence by meriting it—

To strive always to secure the satisfaction of every customer—

The Heavenly Gift of Eternal Youth Is Beautifully Symbolized by Poetry and Sprin

THE VANITY OF HUMAN WISHES

Christopher Morley, Columnist and Philosopher, Writes a Whimsical Tale, Sounding All the Stops from the Sublime to the Ridiculous

BY LILLIAN C. FORD

Poetry and imagination, whimsey and nonsense, a poet's feeling for beauty, a columnist's feeling for humor and a philosopher's longing for truth, a tolerant realization of man's vanities and pretensions, and a clear vision of the ferment which is the life of the spirit—these are some of the divergent qualities that make "Where the Blue Begins" a book as individual as its author and as refreshing as a blast from the Pacific.

It is a book to be read with vocal accompaniment, with chortles and chuckles of glee and whoops of derision and sighs for the vanity of human wishes. It is not in any sense pure nonsense; neither is it pure philosophy nor pure reason nor pure fiction nor pure fact, but a medley of all these and of something more.

There is a thread of story that binds all together and that holds the interest, despite the grotesque element that no one can fail to find and that some will regret.

Mr. Morley follows for a brief period the outer life and the inner struggle of a respectable member of society, one Gissing, who for a chapter "lived alone in a little house in the country, in that woodland suburb region called the Canine Estates. He lived comfortably and throughtfully as bachelors often do."

How his quiet life and his peace of mind were shattered by the comings of Groups and Bunks and Yelpers, three spirited youngsters who wormed their way into his heart and robbed him of his leisure and eventually caused him to sneak out in the silence of the night to make his escape into New York, which seemed quiet in contrast to the turmoil of his home, is told with an understanding of domestic life that no bachelor could hope to achieve.

Mr. Gissing, in his tower; in the aisles of Beagle & Co., as the superb floorwalker that all ladies loved; as the unfrocked priest; and as the stowaway who became the "captain of personnel" and sailed the ship to suit his whims, follow each other at a breathless rate and carry the reader along with no lapse of interest.

With all the nonsense, the exuberance and the absurdity, one gets more of real life and of the real inner struggle of man, who is always longing to reach that place where the blue begins and where it remains blue after one gets there, than in a thousand books painstakingly describing life and missing its essence, as so much of realism does.

FOR SAINTS AND SINNERS

Now Los Angeles, the City of Our Lady, the Queen of the Angels, is to have a "saint's and sinners' corner." This is an evidence of our inclusive growth. Norman C. Holmes is the man who has seized upon the Eugene Field idea to bring a little belated Christmas cheer into the lives of the sorely-beset local book-buyers.

For years many of the "saints" and a few of the "sinners" have been congregating at C. C. Parker's, where delectable bookist fare is always on the table. Dawson's and Stratford & Green also have catered to many a "saint" and, ergo, many a "sinner."

But Mr. Holmes, borrowing a few ideas from Ernest R. Gee and other Eastern book dealers, has decided that, as the "saints and sinners" of Bookdom are as the leaves of grass, they merit a little valet attention. So in the back of his store at 740 South Main street he has partitioned off a room, with ample shelving, which he will dedicate to the Great God Book. Here there will be tables and lounging chairs, so that book lovers may give a little leisure attention to the rarer items.

Moreover, he is now planning to move the balcony treasures from 333 South Main street to his new "saints' and sinners' corner." This will be good news to book-lovers, for during a quarter century of book-dealing here Mr. Holmes has collected a long line of temporarily unregarded firsts and rare editions. He also has had his eyes open, for lo, these many years, for California items, for his father was a pioneer booksellers of the State, and he brought up his sons, both bookdealers—Harold C. Holmes has a store in San Francisco—to consider the main chance, though generations removed.

As a result, Mr. Holmes expects to start his "saints and sinners' corner" with much eclat.

If he doesn't—and we'll bet he does—the other book dealers will, for all of them report fancy consignments on the way. Dawson's, for instance, was a large buyer of duplicates from the Henry E. Huntington library at the recent sale in New York, and Huntington duplicates, as everybody knows, are as good as other people's corn.

"Good books are always salable," said Ernest Dawson yesterday, a view that was re-echoed by other book dealers.

In this connection it is of interest that all the dealers in books, new and second-hand alike, report many buyers and good sales for the holidays and succeeding months. In other words, Los Angeles is a good book mart. It may be a metropolitan condition, but we think otherwise. William May Garland may change his signs at some future date to read: Los Angeles, 10,000,000 books sold in 1925."

THOMAS PAINE AS A HERO

The name of Thomas Paine is so generally associated with his skeptical religious writings that few people realize the effective part played by his pen in the cause of American independence. According to Gamaliel Braford, in an article in the February Harper's Magazine, his writings did more to spur men on to freedom than any perhaps save the Declaration itself. In this connection he says further:

"The consequence of all this was at first naturally an immense admiration and enthusiasm for Thomas Paine, a general applause that might have turned any man's head. He was given the degree of Master of Arts by the University of Pennsylvania. The sober and judicious Franklin spoke of 'Common Sense' as having prodigious effects.' Washington, whose opinions were always moderate and well-weighed, praised 'the sound doctrine and unanswerable reasoning contained in the pamphlet;' and he was so impressed with the trumpet exhortation of the first 'Crisis' that he ordered it generally read to his dispirited army. When Paine returned to England he was almost equally admired there in the more liberal circles. He dined with dukes and visited them. He was lauded and, what was perhaps even more complimentary, he was feared. When he crossed to France, then in the earlier agonies of the Revolution, he was welcomed as a divine messenger. Here was the man who had established liberty in the new world; why could he not do as much in the old? And as a later but overwhelming climax, Napoleon told him 'That a statue of gold ought to be erected to him in every city in the universe; he also assured Paine that he always slept with a copy of 'The Rights of Man' under his pillow, and conjured him to honor him with his counsel and advice."

YOUNG PEOPLE'S SERIES

The publication this month, by Harper & Bros. of "Toby Tyler," by James Otis, in a new popular-priced edition, leads to the announcement that a new series of popular-priced juveniles, ten in number, will be brought out this year by the same publishers. The books in size and appearance resemble an average novel, and have bright colored wrappers.

The volumes to follow, in the probable order of their publication, are: "Mr. Stubb's Brother," also by James Otis, a companion volume to "Toby Tyler," "Adventures of Buffalo Bill," by Col. W. F. Cody, himself; "Diddie, Dumps and Tot," the true story of children on a plantation in the south, by Louise Clarke Pyrnelle; "The Story of Music and Musicians," which gives the origin of musical forms and anecdotes of famous composers, by Lucy C. Lillie; "Flamingo Feather," the tale of the remarkable adventures of a young boy in the unexplored forests of Florida, by Kirk Munroe; "Derrick Sterling," which tells of a boy forced to earn his living as a breaker-boy in a mine, also by Kirk Munroe; "The Talking Leaves," the adventures of an Indian girl and her adopted white sister, by William Osborn Stoddard; "Two Arrows," about an Indian boy who renders his white friends such good service that he is given the advantage of an education, also by William Osborn Stoddard; and "Prince Lazybones," the story of a little boy who, by the aid of elves, through varied experiences, at length cures himself of his fault, by Mrs. W. J. Hays. The retail price of the books will be seventy-five cents each.

VERSE GLEANINGS

YELLOW CLOVER. By Katharine Lee Bates. E. P. Dutton & Co., New York.

A volume of poems which has an unusual interest in that the lyrics contained in it are addressed to Katherine Coman and are in the form of a memorial to this widely-known teacher and writer of books on political and economic history, who was for many years the author's closest friend.

Miss Coman, born in Ohio, came directly after her graduation from the University of Michigan in 1880, to Wellesley College with which for the remaining years of her life she was connected. Coming as instructor in English, she soon went over to the department of history, serving successively as instructor, professor of history and political economy, and, with a break of one year in which she was dean of the college, as professor of economics and sociology. In 1913, because of failing health, she became professor emeritus and died in January, 1915.

Classroom routine and the writing of many books filled a very busy life, frequently relieved by years of travel, the results of which are seen in such looks as "Industrial History of the United States," so valuable a contribution to its subject that the chair established in her honor at Wellesley in 1921, is designated the Katherine Coman professorship of Industrial History. But the book which best expresses her vigorous, adventurous personality and rewards the four years spent in tracing out original materials is her "Economic Beginnings of the Far West. How We Won the Land Beyond the Mississippi," a picturesque narrative of vivid human interest, her epic of the pioneer.

Yet even the fullest record of her acts, her teaching, her books, would give but an imperfect impression of her personality, and noble influence. These poems, commemorating a long and supreme friendship, more or less directly reveal the fine quality of her soul.

"A mountain soul, she shines in crystal air
Above the smokes and clamors of the town.
Her pure, majestic brows serenely wear
The stars for crown."

ANTHOLOGY OF IRISH VERSE. From earliest sources to the present. Edited with an introduction by Padraic Colum. Boni & Liveright, New York.

"I met with Napper Tanday, and he took me by the hand,
"And he said, 'How's poor ould Ireland, and how does she stand?'"

Mr. Colum, who is himself a poet of parts, supplies the answer on her standing in the world of poetry by this anthology, in which he has gathered the best of a long line of Irish poets from the earliest days to the present.

Surveying this rich offering of 354 pages, one is forced to the conclusion that the Irish have always been a singing race, though they have not been doing much in the caroling line lately.

If asked the Irish poem that I liked best, I should unhesitatingly name "The Wearin' o' the Green," by an unknown Gaelic bard. This is perhaps because of long familiarity, both with the poem and with the air to which it is sung. "King Cahal Moir of the Wine-Red Hand," translated by James Clarence Mangan from the original Gaelic, also has a magic all its own, whereas for a rollicking saturnine humor I commend you to "The Night Before Larry Was Stretched," while the literature of denunciation does not boast a more glittering devilish jewel than "Bruadar and Smith and Glinn."

Of the present-day bards, A. E. James Stephens, Colum himself, William A. Byrne, and others too numerous to mention, I feel that A. E. and Byrne have the most assured places, not forgetting Yeats, whose is the master hand in the Irish literary renaissance.

The introduction by Mr. Colum is adequate, enlightening, well-considered; though one may quarrel with his sentence structure as hasty in part.

NEGRO FOLK RHYMES, WISE AND OTHERWISE. With a study. By Thomas W. Talley of Fisk University. The Macmillan Company, New York.

In these United States we are long on slogans, as "We want ours," and Messrs. Mencken and Nathan have done something along the line of assemblying an American credo, but we are short on folk songs. In fact, if we except the cowboy songs and the negro

GROUP OF YOUNGER POETS

BY HAROLD D. CAREW

THE WAGGON AND THE STAR. By Mary Sinton Leitch. B. J. Brimmer Company, Boston.

"The Waggon and the Star" is a remarkable first book of verse, and we greet Mary Sinton Leitch at which we earnestly believe is the beginning of a great career in American literature. Tender sentiment, pathos, delicate charm of femininity, rugged sweetness, imagination—all are here superbly wrought and inspiring.

The tendencies of modern verse have no appeal for her lyric pen. She is content with the old forms which have stood the test of all that is best in the old masters; and no one was ever more sure of one's self than Mrs. Leitch. Every poem is struck on the anvil of Olympus, unerringly chiseled and shaped into perfection by a master craftsman. What less than the seeing eyes of a Rembrandt could behold "The Winter Woods?"

I love the sombre winter woods—the trees
With their clean trunks and boughs that clear and bare
Are etched against the blue, with, here and there,
A nest more silent for the memories
Of birds it holds. I love the calm, the peace,
That broods upon the frozen earth and air.
Summer is wanton, taking thought nor care
For bird or flower, and giving no surcease
Of beauty till the soul is surfeited.
To me the voice of one sweet feathered bard
Who lingers when the rest have taken wing,
One leaf that flames mid others dry and dead,
One winter violet is more reward
Then all the wealth that summer days can bring.

Or a lover of pastoral loveliness crooning an evening song to the melody of spring; or the note of a sailor's chantey, Kiplingesque in its rhythm, entitled "Sailing-Ship Days," which has all the spirit and rollicking dash of the salt air in the last verse:

I'm master of a steamer and a crew of forty men
And I never hear a proper sailor's damn.
I've officers, not mates,
And we've bread-and-butter plates
And "serviettes" with hem and monogram!
But I'd forfeit every button on my uniform to put on Once again the rags and tags of Jack Tar.
And my shiny boots and collars
And my many monthly dollars—
I'd give them all to sight the northern star
'Twixt sagging sails that sway up and down the Milky Way
Or filling, fling defiance to the gale.
I'm a gentleman in steam,
But I'll never cease to dream
I'm again a ragged sailor lad in sail.

There are seventeen sonnets interspersed among the seventy-one poems in the book, and every one of them reveals the tenderness of the woman-heart, the well-rounded expression of one keenly alive to the basic things of life and to the mysticism of immortality. Not in a decade have we seen a collection of poems more full of promise. It is refreshing in this age, when the spirit of "jazz" is blighting even our literature, to find a serious work such as this. Its potent charm will be felt, and we predict for its author a genuine recognition such as is given to few poets.

HEAVENS AND EARTH. By Stephen Vincent Benet. Henry Holt & Co., New York.

Some poets are puffed up by success; others, unmindful of praise except as a spur to enable them to create something better, do not lose their mental balance and go meandering off on wild themes and wilder explorations. Young Mr. Benet's new volume of poems, "Heavens and Earth," shows unmistakable promise in its brilliance and originality and in the range of its theme. His poetic power is that of a youngster groping toward the light. His is an authentic voice singing in the wilderness, but the clear, penetrating quality is heard yet afar off. It is a gypsy voice singing a vagabond note on the mountain top. If he is not yet in the front rank of poets, only time and a high purpose are required to put him there.

But what is leadership, anyway, so long as the man is content to sing? It is not leadership that leads always to the hills of promise. Walt Whitman, with his barbaric yawp, fairly shouted himself into poetry; and as he shouted himself into poetry, so he tried to shout himself into faith and the joy of living. It has been said that man can cut himself off from infinity in art as in life and that he can aim at a low success. There are many inferior singers who have written a lyric far better than Whitman's best, but Whitman would now be forgotten if his art had not a positive excellence. So, too, with young Mr. Benet. The forty-five poems are grouped under five headings, and range from an epic, "Two Visions of Helen," down to short enigmatic stanzas. "Chanson' in Madison Square," "The Etcher," and "Two at the Crossroads" reveal real poetic power, while his humorous sonnets show a lighter side which suggests Dobson—Austin Dobson in spirit and whimsicality. Since Mr. Benet has done so many things well in this little volume, why wish that he had done them better?

QUIET WATERS. By Blanche Shoemaker Wagstaff. Moffat, Yard & Co., New York.

There is a somber intensity in the poems of Blanche Shoemaker Wagstaff; the somber intensity of one who, loving life, feels the beauty of life and the mystery of death. Her themes in the traditional forms and in vers libre are universal in their appeal, but universal only to hearts that understand. Ten years ago, as I remember it, when Mrs. Wagstaff was contributing to Edmund Brown's Poetry Journal, she was one of the first to welcome and encourage the school of imagists. It mattered little to her whether a singer ascended Pegasus over the rose-strewn path that Tennyson and Swinburne trod, or up the rockier way that Whitman and Coventry Patmore climbed. All she asked is that the singing voice be clear.

In "Visitation" she strikes a note of poignant beauty:

"I have been silent,
And my heart has been very lonely,
But always Beauty came,
A golden well in the desert.

KATHERINE MANSFIELD PASSES

Katherine Mansfield, English poet and writer, wife of J. Middleton Murry, former literary editor of the Nation and Athenaeum, died January 9, last, at Fontainebleau, in France, after an illness of several years. As in the case of W. H. Hudson last fall, news of Miss Mansfield's death was not cabled to this country, but came by mail to her American publisher, Alfred A. Knopf, who brought out her two volumes of stories, "Bliss" and "The Garden Party."

Miss Mansfield was only 33 years old. She first started to write about fifteen years ago, and her first published works appeared in 1911 in the New Age, then under the editorship of A. R. Orage. The sketches she contributed to this periodical were gathered the following year and published by Stephen Swift under the title, "In a German Pension," but Miss Mansfield was opposed to their publication in book form on the ground of their immaturity and always regarded "Bliss," which appeared in 1921, as really her first book.

At the time of her marriage to Mr. Murry he was the editor of the Blue Review, and some of her stories appeared in that magazine. Later he became editor of the Athenaeum, and after its amalgamation with the Nation, its literary editor, and Miss Mansfield became one of the best known of its contributors. Her weekly column of literary critics, signed "K. M.," came to have recognized influence and at the same time she contributed occasional short stories.

For the last few years her health had failed and she was forced to leave London and live in Italy, Switzerland and France, where it was hoped that the more southerly climate would prove effective in the affection of the lungs from which she suffered. The losing battle was ended at Fontainebleau on Tuesday, January 9.

Katherine Mansfield's position as a short-story writer, although it rests only on two volumes, is regarded as being as high as that of any English writer. S. F. B. Mais placed her with Galsworthy, Henry James and Kipling among the greatest modern writers of short stories. Her method was generally compared to that of Maupassant or Tchehoff; her pieces were vignettes or sketches rather than short stories in the technical sense; and her cynical feeling, the effect of compression and attenuation, made the affinity with these continetal writers more marked. At the same time she was thoroughly British and distinctively original; her understanding of psychology and her rather sardonic humor were peculiarly English and feminine.

"K. M." was a leading and beloved figure in the English literary world, even after her actual association with it was made impossible, and the host of friends and mourners she has left includes such names as Walter De la Mare, John Galsworthy, Rebecca West, Sylvia Lynd and many more. In a tribute to her in the last issue of the Westminster Gazette, Miss Lynd says: "She was like her books, as interesting and rare, and charming and unaffected and full of surprises as they are. Some people are better than their books; some not half so good. She and what she wrote were perfectly matched — only there was a larger proportion of gentleness in her treatment of people in life than in her treatment of the people whom she created . . .

"She was small and pale and dark, and when she first came into the room her manner was guarded and shy . . . A china figure, a deliberate decoration, with her neat black head, white hands, and white face . . . To efface oneself, to accept life, this was what she desired to do in her work, and this she succeeded in doing.—'All this self-examination, this fastidious probing, this hovering on the brink—it's all wrong. I don't believe a writer can ever do anything worth doing until he has in the profoundest sense accepted life. Then he can face the problem and begin to question it, not before.' In the same letter she said: 'How lovely the earth is. Do you know I had fifteen cinerarias in Italy and they grew against the sea? I hope one will be able to call these things up on one's deathbed.'"

Miss Mansfield had the unique distinction of having her only two books win high recognition in the same manner, in successive years. "Bliss" was selected for the Femina Vie Heureuse prize, awarded for the best English novel of the year, in 1921, and "The Garden Party" for 1922. The latter award was announced only a few weeks before her death.

LITERARY GOSSIP

Doubleday, Page & Co., announced some time ago a contest for illustrators, the subject being Lady Caroline Dester, one of the interesting characters of "The Enchanted April." They now make the announcement that all illustrations will be eligible for entry if they are done in black and white suitable for newspaper reproduction and submitted direct to the publishers. They need not appear first in a newspaper as stated in the original contest conditions. The time limit is extended to March 15.

James Harvey Robinson's "The Mind in the Making" is having the unique experience of becoming a classic within two years of its publication. While it continues on all lists of best sellers, Harvard, the University of Texas, the University of Wisconsin, Columbia University, Teachers' College, N. Y., the University of Illinois, Hunter, Grinnell, Clark, Colver-Stockton colleges are among those who have adopted it is a text-book on the outline of psychology in their classes.

Houghton Mifflin Company have ordered the sixth impression of "The Letters of Franklin K. Lane;" the third of "Under Four Administrations,' by Oscar S. Strauss.

An attractive new series of books of poetry is the "Appleton's Library of Verse." Gathered in this series is a group of interesting volumes by present day poets, including Ruth Comfort Mitchell, Don Marquis, Edith Franklin Wyatt, Joseph C. Lincoln, Grantland Rice, and others. Nine voluems are being issued at this time.

Recent Macmillan publications include the following:

"Love and Other Stories" by Anton Chekhov, the thirteenth and final volume in Mrs. Garnett's series of translations of Chekhov's work.

"The Great Dream," new poems by Marguerite Wilkinson.

"From the Deep of the Sea," a real diary of the adventurous voyage of the whale-ship Diana in 1866, by C. E Smith.

"Human Australasia, a study of life and society, educational and industrial conditions in Australia and New Zealand today, by President Thwing of Western Reserve University.

I. A. Bunin, the Russian writer, whose short-story, "The Gentleman From Sanfrancisco," has just been published by Thomas Selter in a volume containing three other short stories, has long been known abroad as a distinguished Russian writer of the younger school. He was a friend of Chekhov and, with Gorky and Kuprin, wrote a volume of Chekov reminiscences. Of, "The Gentleman from San Francisco," J. Middleton Murray has said: "with it Bunin has earned a place in the literature of the world." It is safe to say that the volume containing this amazing story will survive when the bulky works of more prolific writers will have passed into obscurity.

Vachel Lindsay always carries drawing ink in his fountain pen, thus having to hand the means of expressing himself pictorially. The very interesting drawings which illustrate his new book of verses, "Going to the Sun," initiate the public into this, to them, new phase of Mr. Lindsay's artistic expression. He says that by turning a page of his handwriting upside down one will behold the curleyques and natural pen-strokes which form the basis of his drawing. "If you are at a loss to describe my pen-stroke," declares Mr. Lindsay, "say it is strong in swank, swagger, strut, style, flourish and Tetrazziniesqueness."

Magic, divination and other occult sciences are traced through the late classical, early Christian and medieval periods by Prof. Lynn Thorndike in a new Macmillan book on "The History of Magic and Experimental Science During the First Thirteen Centuries of Our Era."

Prof. Thorndike throws no light on the origin of experimental science, its historical relations with magic and religion, and its status in the Middle Ages, on the history of medicine and the lives of the medieval scientists.

According to the authors of "Sir Douglas Haig's Command," G. A. B. Dewar and Col. J. H. Boraston, Lloyd George, who was an exceptionally clever leader in the "war game" of politics at home, and a brilliant speaker, knew next to nothing about military operations. "Yet he dabbled in them, questioned the generals, British and French, and evidently expected them to be glib in their replies. In Eight Young Poets from Cambridge Campus Weave Patterns from the "Stuff of Life" Into the Fabric of Their Verse

BY J. RUSSELL McCARTHY

EIGHT MORE HARVARD POETS. Edited by S. Foster Damon and Robert Silliman Hillyer. Brentano's. New York.

Anyone who cares to visit mentally with eight quite likeable and individual young men will enjoy reading this book. Here are eight separate points of view, eight different reactions to life. Whether or not all they have written here is poetry, pure and undefiled, may well enough be left for critics with more assurance to decide. At least you may be sure of an hour's pleasure; and many will wish to have the book at hand for further excursions into one or another of these eight poetic worlds.

Perhaps, in opening a book by college men, men who have been delving rather deeply into books, it is natural to look for bookishness. In this volume happily there is very little of bookishness to be found. For the most part these poets have gone to life, and not to the printed word, for inspiration.

The preface, by Dorian Abbott, is well written but uninteresting.

Norman Cabot, whose poems open the volume, is perhaps a little more self-conscious than his confreres, a trifle less sincere. But he has that gift which adds zest even to a dull poem—the gift of the bee, the ability to add a sting. These two stanzas illustrate his method.

RAILROADING

Today I paid two dollars and was hurled
Along an iron road.—The murderous might
Of steel and bellowing water-demons whirled
Swift wheels that bore us out into the light
To traverse the broad bosom of the world
In summer's glad green and glittering after night.

A feast of life it was. For what, indeed,
Is life but motion, motion life; and so,
Such sense of care-free, devil-engendered speed,
Deep drafts of life with no corrupting woe,
A Bacchanalian orgy of all that reed,
Pen, Brush, or sculptural instrument can show?

Grant Code has written a great deal of the stuff of life into his few pages in this volume. "Love in Death" is a fine thing, but too long to quote and not easily broken. "The Black Beast," to the present writer at least, strikes a false note. This seems hardly the name for a man to call the forest, that immemorial haven of his race. There are vivid pictures here, though. Mr. Code's shortest, if not his best, contribution is

People and Their Troubles

THE LAST WORD.

BY ALMA WHITAKER

Paint and Romance

Shaw Desmond, a clever Irishman from England, says that women are blighting romance, blasting love's young dream, with paint and powder. Men, he assures us quite seriously, don't admire painted ladies. How wonderful if he should happen to be right. Really, vanity cases are a dickens of a nuisance. Fussing with our faces is a most exacting task.

I wonder how we ever came to get the idea that men admired cosmetized beauty. I was reading Pepys's diary—jolly old sport, Pepys, very observant, and accepted as quite a faithful historian. He flourished in the days when romance still held its own. And there we learn, with corroborative evidence from the Count de Grammont, that a beautiful young woman, who caused any amount of havoc among the hearts of most discriminating courtly males, finally died of the effects of the elaborate cosmetics she plastered on her alluring face!

Then again we recently had a convention of the modern gentlemen, those altruistic merchants who dedicate their lives to devising new cosmetics to make women beautiful. We rather gathered that every kind of rouge, powder, face cream, lipstick, yea, and even marcel waves, were invented by men for the greater charm of women. Several of these heroic creatures gave out interviews in which they said that the woman who didn't use a lipstick was doomed to pine unloved, that she who failed to cull the charms of rouge to lend that rosy blush so adored by the male of the species, must forever languish outside the pale of romance.

Isn't this business of being a woman confusing? It is so frightfully important that we should be romance-inspiring, that we should occasion the palpitating admiration of men and thus safeguard romance for the world. And, really, I think we are all fully impressed with the responsibility—we would not willingly shirk it. We live but to please.

And heaven knows, we don't like cosmetics. If we could really feel convinced that men would find us more attractive without any, the relief would be immense. It isn't our vanity, but rather our pathetic modesty that is at fault. We are so ready to believe that there is room for improvement.

That, too, is why we are so sympathetically interested in the numerous "beauty" shops that are springing up everywhere for men. In it we see a curious sign of the times. When men were proudly conscious that they needed no beauty devices to improve their charms, we were indeed the inferior sex. But now that they are conceding certain defects, modestly rushing to beauty parlors to correct them—this, indeed, is a tremendous confession of—er—equality.

However, that, of course, is not the question at issue. Mr. Desmond's only concern is female attractiveness. He comfortably assumes that we shall continue to admire and yearn for the admiration of, men, no matter what befalls. If we make the right appeal to men, romance is safe. It doesn't matter a whoop how men appeal to us. And Mr. Desmond thinks we are blighting our chances by alienating male admiration with rouge.

Well, I knew three lovely sisters, whose stern parents never allowed them to use cosmetics of any kind, not even a dab of powder. They live right in this town. They were very lovely when they came here twenty years ago, as witness the dear old family portraits. They are still lovely, in a strictly unimproved style. And they have never had a beau. Never. No man ever waxed romantic about them. And all the eligible men they ever knew went off and fell wildly in love with some dashing cosmetized beauty. And they never flirted. Mr. Desmond is also concerned about flirtatious girls. That, too, blasts romance.

So, of course, these three unique and charming maidens—and everybody concedes them as "charming, dear girls"—should have been snapped up years ago, and have been shining examples of romantic marital happiness ever since. But instead they are required to be "friends of the family," "aunties" to the product of other women's romances, and hostesses, strong in make-up, wear an apologetic, appealing little smile when they ask some man to take one of them in to dinner!

These three unique specimens of paintless womanhood, now, respectively, 50, 48 and 46, have been available in the cause of true and beautiful romance for over a quarter of a century. Friends they had in hundreds—lovers none. One of them heard Mr. Desmond's lecture. And she smiles wistfully. How she wishes he might be right. How she has striven to maintain his ideals for him. She, too, read the published remarks of the cosmetic merchants, and I remember her saying "I am afraid they are right, dear. But it is too late for me to profit by their advice now. To think that romance should have passed me by for a mere lipstick."

And yet, don't you know, Mr. Desmond's remarks rang so true. It is that embarrassing distinction between precept and practice. Theoretically men like sweet, domesticated women, radiant in natural unalloyed charm. But somehow they always run around after the other kind, lavish their romantic other kind lavish their romantic adoration—and incidentally their money—on the other kind. The kind that flirts and paints. This may not be the exquisite unalloyed romance that Mr. Desmond craves for the salvation of the world, but it is the only kind the men will let us have, so long as "pursuit" is their prerogative.

Won't you give your lectures to a few men's organizations, dear Mr. Desmond? Couldn't you put the responsibility up to them for a change? Couldn't you remind them that every nation gets the women it deserves, just as it gets the government it deserves? Couldn't you encourage this fastidious sex of yours to have the courage of its voiced convictions, to exhibit a little of that good taste, that yearning for natural, unalloyed charm which you set forth so convincingly?

We, too, want to save the world for untarnished romance! But men are so dominating, their six ounces more brain are so compelling, we can only go where they lead, cater faithfully, respectfully, to their expressed tastes. Actions speak so much more forcefully than words. Let us see the paintless girl sought and feted (and, really, you know, there are a few left,) let us see the gaudy, painted, flirtatious sirens neglected and forlorn—and watch how soon we shall discard our vanity boxes.

We strive but to please.

Question: Who are the DeMolay Boys, and why did they take that name? A. H. D.

Answer: The Order of DeMolay is a national organization for the sons of Masons and their chums. The boys must be between the ages of 16 and 21. The order is named for Jacques DeMolay, the last Military Grand Master of the Order of Knights Templar, an eminent martyr in Free Masonry, who was put to death in 1314. The order which bears his name now has 850 chapters and a membership of 150,000 boys.

Q.: Which is heavier—dry air or moist air? E. M. R.

A.: Dry air is slightly heavier than ordinary humid—not foggy—air. The number of molecules in a given volume of air and the same volume of water in the form of invisible gas under the same conditions, is the same. When such water molecules are introduced into the dry air a corresponding number of air molecules are displaced. The atomic weights of oxygen and nitrogen, the principal ingredients of air, are greater than the atomic weight of water vapor. Therefore since a light substance replaces a heavier one, the total weight is less. Foggy or smoky air is quite likely to be heavier than dry air.

Q.: What is the length of the groove in a phonograph record? C. P. G.

A.: On the disc of a twelve-inch record of one standard make, the groove is 8160 inches or 680 feet in length.

Q.: Can I change my name without going into the courts? J. J. M.

A.: If you do not care to go into court, you may assume any name you please and ordinary business transactions in the name would be legal. But in doing this there is always the possibility that trouble may result from the adoption of a name without legal recognition in such matters as inheritance.

Q.: How much of the wheat is contained in white flour? C. R. W.

A.: In modern milling over 70 per cent of the wheat is recovered as standard patent flour, about 17 per cent as low-grade flour, about 2 per cent as Red Dog flour, and the remainder as shorts or bran.

Q.: How does the number of women in college compare with the number of men? H. F.

A.: The Bureau of Education says that there are 187,528 women enrolled in colleges in the United States and 334,226 men.

Q.: When was Portland cement first used for building construction? V. R. S.

A.: It was first used in 1756 for a light house in Eddystone, England.

Q.: How can I clean a dirty greasy copper utensil? R. E. T.

A.: The government method is to make a mixture of one part of common nitric acid and one-half part of sulphuric acid in a stone jar, having also ready a pail of fresh water and a box of sawdust. The articles to be treated are dipped into the acid, then removed to the water, and finally rubbed with sawdust. This immediately changes them to a brilliant color. If the copper has become greasy it is first dipped in a strong solution of potash and soda in warm water; this cuts the grease, so that the acid has free power to act.

Q.: Where is the McNeil Island, upon which a Federal prison is located? M. E. L.

A.: The Federal Penitentiary at McNeil's Island is situated across Carr's Inlet from Tacoma, State of Washington.

LETTERS TO "THE TIMES"

Would Renovate Park

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 27.—[To the Editor of The Times:] While efforts are being made to destroy the beautiful birds in Central Park it might be well to call attention to the park itself. The most casual inspection will show anyone that it is an eyesore to the city—littered with rubbish, shabby with dead or dying grass, crowded with hoodlums and overgrown with dead or dying trees. These trees might be said to have survived their usefulness, if they ever had any, which is not the case. There is hardly a specimen of vegetation in the place which is suitable to it, or ever was.

The park in an early day was laid out by the late Judge Silent, who introduced the trees which reminded him of his happy eastern home, but were wholly unsuitable to the place. At the present time they present a ghastly appearance, with leafless, dead and dying limbs and decaying trunks.

One would suppose that the parties mostly interested in promoting the adjoining properties, like the Biltmore Hotel, would have sufficient self-interest to have the park completely renovated and filled with tropical and semitropical vegetation suitable to the place, under the direction of a competent landscape gardener, but no one seems to have interest enough except to destroy the beautiful and nearly harmless birds.

While on this subject it might be well to call attention to the southeast entrance to the park from the street to the sidewalk. The curbing is about eighteen inches high, when it should be even, with a water conduit underneath. It would be interesting to know the horse-power expended each day by the weary women, the feeble old men and scrambling children who climb that small precipice, all of which could be obviated by the expenditure of a few dollars by those who manage the street department. The same is true of hundreds of other street corners in the city.

Are Girls Superfluous?

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 19.—[To the Editor of The Times:] What shall we do with our boys and girls and what education should we give them to prepare and qualify them for the struggle of life which is more ardent than ever, now that the World War is over? After their general (high-school) education, let parents give their children specialized education in accordance with their children's tastes and inclinations. For the boys there will always be work of all kinds and descriptions, but the girls will have to stand alone more so than before. That is, they will have to be self-reliant, as there will not be a sufficient number of men to go around. Years ago one heard nothing but the discussion of the "inequality of sexes." Now the inequality which troubles us is not social but numerical. The diminution in the number of men through the war has brought us face to face with a new problem, the problem of the surplus woman.

When all the marriages are arranged there will be no bachelors, but an enormous number of odd girls left. This condition is very serious. It is natural that men and women should mate and the prospect of facing life alone, no normal being can contemplate without misgiving. A new girl has sprung up who is going to bear bravely on her shoulders the burden of her sex. She will work and work with a will at all kinds of work. She will not set snares or bait traps for any man, and though she may be "surplus," she is not superfluous.

She does not eschew marriage because she "doesn't like it." Oh, no, she likes a home as much as every other girl. She does not prefer to stand alone, but she is able to stand alone, and to this end, let parents give their girls all the education they can; it will help them in every phase of life. It will help them to perform their duties more efficiently and win promotion by quickly becoming adapted to their position, whatever that may be. This knowledge will help them in nearly every difficulty, and the way is made smooth and clear by their innermost certainty of the perfection of their accomplishments.

With the studies in whatever branch of education it may be a new vision and concept is opened and cannot but prove beneficial to the formation of character and ideals.

Cites Irish Situation

PASADENA, Feb. 16.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I noticed in the Los Angeles Times this morning an appeal from the ex-Premier of England for the United States to join that country and bring pressure on France to withdraw from Germany, etc.

When this ex-Premier, who the Hearst papers have been wasting and splashing so much ink about of late, cleans himself and his country of worse than France is doing, it will be time enough to talk of joining England to bring pressure on France.

When the Irish Free State delegates were negotiating with him on the so-called Irish Free State ex-Premier for better terms, his answer was, take that or war of extermination. Germany may have gone back on her promise to France, but Ireland has always tried to fulfill her promise to England, and in return got threats of war of extermination, and has got war to some extent for 700 years.

LINCOLN'S LIFE STORY ON FILMS

Delayed Production of Epic of Great Emancipator Under Way at Last

More than six months behind schedule, the Rockett-Lincoln Film Company of Hollywood has begun actual production of its big Lincoln picture, the working title of which is "The Dramatic Life of Abraham Lincoln."

The company announced in May, 1922, that it would soon begin camera work on the picture, but the task of preparation day by day grew larger, until it assumed such proportions that postponement was inevitable. As more than a year's research had preceded the announcement, the period of preparation for the production may be placed at eighteen months, which is in line with the new method of making motion pictures—get ready before you shoot and save money.

In announcing that Phil Rosen has been intrusted with the direction of its big picture, the Rockett-Lincoln Film Company believe it has made the best possible selection from the field, as this young director is not only a past master of the camera and an expert at dramatic direction, but he is a student Lincolniana, thoroughly informed upon and in sympathy with his subject.

EXPERTS IN CHARGE

Albert Kelley, who needs no introduction to the technical element of the industry, is assisting Mr. Rosen and Robert Kurrle, A.S.C., formerly with Metro and Edwin Carewe productions, is chief cinematographer. Mr. Kelley's work will extend from Hollywood to Washington, D. C., as many historic locations are to be filmed, while Mr. Kurrle will at times be in command of as many as twenty cameras.

Frances Marion's scenario will probably stand as the crowning achievement of her career, for she not only rose to her opportunity in catching the spirit and breadth of the subject, but technically her working script might be used as a text book on scenario construction. Miss Marion's work on the subject will endure as a valuable contribution to the subject.

The big surprise that the Rockett-Lincoln Film Company has had up its sleeve for several months is the identity of the player to enact the part of Abraham Lincoln, the longest individual part ever written into a motion-picture script. George A. Billings, this new Lincoln, was born in Minnesota about forty years ago and during a busy life found time to serve with honors two years in the Philippines, with the famous Dorrington's Scouts, and a longer period in the World War.

PLANS CHANGED

The original plan to film scenes on the site of the historic locations has been modified to the extent that all Kentucky and Indiana sequences will be filmed in California and Nevada, while most of the Illinois sequences, including the New Salem and Black Hawk war episodes, will be shot in California. It was found by the location scouts that environment at most of the historic locations had been modernized to such an extent that only in a few cases was it possible to use them. Some shots like the exteriors of Ford's Theater, the White House and the Capitol at Washington are still available and also a few at New Salem and Springfield, Illinois, at which latter place the [illegible] carried President [illegible] his party to his [illegible] be filmed exactly [illegible] memorable day [illegible]

Rev. Neal Dodd

UNIQUE HOUSES OF WORSHIP

all unless a congregation of eight or ten would qualify as such. Just when it was getting a start, the hall was rented at a larger figure by a motion-picture company for filming purposes and so Dr. Dodd came in direct contact with the motion-picture colony for the first time in trying to get back the little hall for the services.

FOR FILM FOLK

This experience gave him the idea of having a church which was primarily and directly for the folks of the film world. He started a canvass of the officials of the different companies asking for subscriptions for the building of a church. He didn't enlarge on his idea to them however, for as he explained it to me, "it would have sounded so silly to go around explaining that I was starting a motion-picture church, when I didn't know whether they wanted one or not."

That is where Dr. Dodd was wise.

Instead of forcing his idea he circulated among the film world making acquaintances and friends and showing an interest in all he saw. "I did just as the extras do," said he. "I sat for hours in the outside office waiting for a chance to enter the film life. I knew that my idea would succeed for I understood the picture people. I could see the difference in temperament which had made them actors and actresses. And I made allowance for it. We are none of us perfect, and the people in the film world are just as fine and as human and as natural as the rest of us."

EPISCOPAL SERVICE

Instead of asking for a congregation, Dr. Dodd just lets it be known that he is there, and the church is there and the service is there if anyone wishes. They can come or not just as they choose. And they choose! His congregation, however, is not made up only of members of the colony. People come from all parts of the city, from Huntington Park, from Eagle Rock and vicinity.

"I have the simple Episcopal service," Dr. Dodd told me. "I never deviate from it.

"My church is the only place in town where you won't hear the latest books discussed or hear of the last jail break. I do not believe in reviewing the mistakes of the past, for it is of greater value to know how to act in the future."

Dr. Dodd's position is really a unique one in religious work. He is a definite part of the motion-picture life of Hollywood. If an actor or actress is to be married he is sent for. And, providing there has been no divorce, he gladly goes. While I talked with him a great pile of marriage certificates lay on the table. He was practically submerged by them.

HOLLYWOOD'S CHAPLAIN

In sorrow it's the same. Although other plans had been made, the picture people insisted that he preside at the Wallace Reid funeral. Dr. Dodd admired Wally so much, and thinks Mrs. Dorothy Davenport Reid a very plucky, wonderful woman. In fact he used her as an illustration to show the real worth of motion-picture folk. He pointed out that though they may fail in small things, they nearly always ring true in the big moments. "A good many women placed in the same position as Mrs. Reid," he said, "would have left Wallie to fight his fight alone, taking the more comfortable way. But Mrs. Reid was with him every inch of the way, and helped him win."

Like the Beth-El Mission, Our Church of St. Mary of the Angels is growing up. The little white structure is no longer sufficient for the needs of the church. The "church of the Motion Picture People is a success." It is a definite vital part of the life of Hollywood, and of the life of the film world. It has filled a need.

BOHEMIANS IN OUR BUILDING

with her G-string. In a dark corner is the jester—a humpback violin. He laughs in a most sinister manner whenever he is touched. He was injured by a temperamental prima donna, who got in a rage because his master played him while she swore she would leave him.

The violin maker is also an inventor; he has a Hawaiian guitar fashioned on a spindle-legged Louis XVI table—this is his dream of a quick fortune.

Next door to him is the cigarette maker.

He makes cigarettes like Carmen in the first act, but he looks like Rodolph Valentino in his bullfight costume.

We call him "Rudy."

Sometimes as he pauses and looks down into the busy traffic of Broadway, he sees a scene in far-off Armenia.

His eyes are not happy—though he is only 21.

The Turk invades his little village; the great one on the shining white horse flashes his saber, gives a curt order to his soldiers—and Rudy's mother, his father, his brother and sister are marched through the streets—and out a half-mile into the country.

There they pause—and again there is the flash of a saber and a curt order.

The spot where this scene occurs is a hollow between two towering walls of mountains—and in the hollow there is a deep natural well.

So deep is this well that a stone thrown into it drops silently for tow or three seconds before the little echo of its splash is heard in the water.

The Turks made much use of this well during those dread years—1915-16.

No, Rudy's eyes are not happy—though he is only 21.

Then there is the cabinetmaker, our neighbor to the left.

He is an artist; he loves the trees from which comes his fine wood; he likes the smell of the sawdust as it mounts in little piles about him; he is a master workman, with skilled hands—and as he mitres and polishes, many shining bits of philosophy drop with the little squares of wood around him.

He has lived in California for more than thirty years; he did all the fine redwood cabinet work in Jack London's wonderful cabin in "The Valley of the Moon." He has pride in his work and his fine eyes light up with amazing happiness when he talks of his splendid son and daughter—and of his friend of a quarter of a century.

He found this friend in a frontier saloon in the early days—a solitary figure with a week's beard. He was sitting in the darkest corner; his clothes were shabby—and there was the look of the hunted in his eyes.

The cabinetmaker's name is Jim. So Jim walked over to him and thrust $10 into his hand.

The stranger, for such he was then, closed his hand over the ten and said:

"I'll return it to you tomorrow."

They did not exchange names—they merely smiled foolishly as young men do at each other—and that was all.

The next night Jim saw the stranger in the same saloon—and he gave him back his ten.

That was the beginning of an immense fortune and a friendship of a quarter of a century.

And Jim says he could have half the fortune any day he asked for it.

The Bohemians in our building may be queer, but they are human.

YOGI IS NEW RIVAL OF COUE

for athletics, you overtrain. As a result your athletes have bunches of muscles that look like bunches of bananas in some parts of their bodies, while the rest of the body is undeveloped.

"By our system, based on the teachings of the Indian Yogis, which have come down to us from ages before the Christian era, exercise is done entirely by the will. By the system you can exercise every muscle in your body without apparatus of any kind, whether standing, sitting or lying down. And at the same time you are strengthening your will by exercising it.

"We have combined the basic laws of the ancient Yogis with modern physiological science. Some western athletes have learned to control certain of their muscles by will, but they have not worked it out scientifically.

TURN ON WILL

"The system is simply the application of will power to physical development. Its basis is the education of the will. In India it is will above all else that we seek to develop in children. I would like to see the same system here. With the will developed fully, you will have perfect specimens of humanity, physically, mentally and morally.

"M. Coue's formula and theory are based upon a partial understanding of that, and it is a hopeful sign that America has gone over him and his slogan. But theory is based upon the mistaken idea that imagination rather than will is the seat of many human ailments. For in the last analysis imagination is but a servant of the will.

"Do not misunderstand me. I am not a doctor. I do not claim to cure disease, but I do claim that those who follow and practice muscle development through the will can correct disorders in themselves in many cases.

THE HIGH STRAIN

"To have a well-ordered mind, one must have a well-developed body. I have come to the conclusion that Americans, living under the high strain of their business and social life, know very much less about taking proper care of their health than our children in India. For there we teach the children these laws of muscular development through mental control from the time they are 5 years old. Some of our youngsters could teach your athletes something about muscles.

"I realize that in inaugurating instruction in muscle control by will power, I am braving the danger that many persons will jump to the conclusion that I am some kind of acrobat, contortionist or sword swallower."

Judging from the interest shown in his mission in Boston, Yogananda anticipates a great many Americans will adopt the Yogis system. "I am surprised at the interest taken by Greater Boston people," he declared. "Some of the foremost citizens of the Athens of America have become enthusiastic over the system." Among Yogananda's first students for instruction in Boston were Prof. Marshall Perin of Boston University and Mrs. J. E. Chadwick of the Emerson School of Oratory.

TWENTY SECTIONS

The body, explains Yogananda, is divided into twenty sections, starting with the feet and reaching to the neck. Each of these twenty sections represents a muscle which can be flexed by will power. To illustrate, he moved a heavy sofa across the room by a nimble touch of his abdominal muscles.

"The Yogis have a large number of postures which they practice in order to develop their will," he said. "You see by this method the will develops the muscles, and to some extent the muscles develop the will. See!"

He squatted on the floor, and in an instant had his toes curled up in his lap.

"The Yogis sit this way for days at a time," said he. "In our Sat-Sanga schools the young boys are required to sit this way without moving for an hour at a time. It teaches them will power and self-control."

To show how far such teachings may be carried, Yogananda proceeded to curl himself up like a ball, and raise his body on his two hands.

LOST INDIAN ART REVIVED

tungsten was created. Therefore, the mine has been closed for several years. It is to be reopened soon.

THE ARID HILLS

In the arid hills beyond Atolia lay Randsburg and Johannesburg, twin towns, where the atmosphere and color of old-time mine camps still exist in abundance.

Fifty shifts are operating the gold and silver properties around Randsburg, and the camp is the mecca for prospectors who roam the vast area of this little-known part of California. Each month these prospectors bring in strange tales of new mineral discoveries.

Steatite, a substance similar to talc, is one of the newer minerals. It is used in oil refining, in the manufacture of automobile tires, and in numerous other manufactories.

A DESERT BATH

Snow, driven by biting winds, visits this region in winter. In summer, the heat is terrific. And rain seldom falls.

At Randsburg is told the story of a prospector who felt a few drops of rain not long ago.

So he rushed into his tent, poured out a cupful of water from his meager supply, made a lot of soap suds, and lathered himself well from head to foot. On the desert, baths are a rare luxury.

Then the prospector went out of doors to rinse off.

But the storm had passed. So he was obliged to walk forty miles to town to finish the job.

Now Comes Inn of Robin Hood's Day for Fans

Where will the "Robin Hood" craze end that had its inception six months ago when a certain well-known Los Angeles showman put on "Robin Hood in Hollywood"?

That is what the motion-picture colony is asking, for while it began with "Robin Hood" hats and "Robin Hood" ale, it soon developed into the "Robin Hood Reel," a new terpsichorean diversion over which Hollywood became much excited.

The latest product of the nearly half-year run of Douglas Fairbanks in "Robin Hood" at Grauman's Hollywood Egyptian Theater is a plan to reconstruct "Robin's Barn" somewhere in Hollywood and make it into a distinctive old English inn, with typical Cockney bar maids serving soft drinks and with domestic animals parked at respectful distance from diners and dancers. Dr. Charles Edward Langley, art director for Fairbanks, has been asked to submit sketches for such an institution and a syndicate of motion-picture celebrities, it is said, will back the deal.

On Monday "Robin Hood" becomes formally of age, celebrating its twenty-first birthday at Grauman's Hollywood Egyptian Theater, having played there exactly twenty-one weeks, or nearly six months, to practically capacity houses at every performance. The run is soon to end however, despite continued heavy attendance, because of the necessity for the world premiere in the unique suburban playhouse of another big screen spectacle just recently completed, but the name of which Grauman is keeping dark for the present.

WOMEN'S WORK, WOMEN'S CLUBS

BY MYRA NYE

A dramatic little incident occurred at the last Friday Morning Club session which, to the casual comer, may have meant little. To the old-timers and the regular attendants of this club it was full of significance.

Mrs. Andrew S. Lobingier, president of the club, as is her custom, stood well forward on the platform and referred to a little loose-leaf note book as she made her announcements primarily about the new clubhouse to be erected. As she spoke, unnoticed by her, one of the leaves of the book slipped out, and floated toward the footlights of the Morosco Theater where the club, temporarily homeless, holds its meetings.

Academic-looking Prof. MacMinn, who was to speak on "Henry James," who said later he had never heard so much high finance at one time, as the only man present, lost none of his scholarly dignity as he hurried forward and rescued the slip of paper just as it was about to go down in the orchestra pit.

Without a trace of embarrassment as he returned it to her, Mrs. Lobingier finished her announcement and then said:

"Thank you. That is very important. It is necessary to the building of the clubhouse." To the club she said: "I think I'll read it to you. It is a quotation from Lincoln that I keep always before me and read many times a day. Without it I could not have gone through this last big fight."

It was the first time in public Mrs. Lobingier had intimated that she was conscious of any opposition to her as president or as chairman of the building committee.

I do not remember the exact wording, but it was in Abraham Lincoln's usual flawless English and began something like this: It matters not whether I win, but it matters much whether I am right. It matters not what others may think of me, but it matters much whether I am true—

When Mrs. Lobingier finished there were tears in many eyes and a great burst of applause—faint at first—broke in waves all over the theater. It was a spontaneous recognition, I am sure, that Mrs. Lobingier indeed had not cared whether she had personal victory, that she had been true to her trust.

At the previous meeting ten days ago there had been definite and what looked like formidable opposition planned to the passage of a proposed amendment to the by-laws which would enable Mrs. Lobingier and four others on the board to be elected for the third successive term. Arrangement had been made to ask Mrs. Lobingier to step from the chair and allow someone else to preside during the discussion of the amendment so that "she could not prejudice the club in her favor and hypnotize them into thinking she was the whole show."

A resolution was advanced asking for a written ballot. This was lost without a dissenting vote. Then with a unanimous chorus of "ayes" the amendment was passed. Mrs. Lobingier had put the motion with apparent indifference as though it concerned someone else than herself.

When David Allison, architect for the new clubhouse, came on the platform a few moments later he said: "In all my building ventures with organizations or groups of people—men or women—never have I had to do with a board of directors so well-informed, so efficient, so hard-working and constantly on the job and so pleasant to work with as has been the board of your club."

Tuesday at 10 a.m. Mrs. Lobingier will blow a new whistle and a new steam shovel specially made for the occasion will take out the first bite of earth. Then each member of the board will break a shovelful of earth, the Stars and Stripes will be run up the new flagpole to float daily on the lot until the building is finished October 22, as the contract provides.

"Everyone who has paid for the foundation fund," said Mrs. Lobingier, "should be present to see their money at work. We are now spacious in the possession of dirt and I have left only one dear little worry—that is that we will not have enough pretty dishes for our beautiful dining-room.

"Until today this gavel," taking it from the table, "has weighed in my hand and on my mind like a sledge-hammer. From today on it is as light as cork. I know one woman who fried 'hot dogs' in the hot sun for two days last summer for the new building and there are hundreds of women who have sacrificed equally if not so warmly and spectacularly. Yet we were criticised as mercenary, selfish, without a vestige of dignity. Our old clubhouse was said to be a pandemonium when we sold 'hot dogs' and flowers. But those who criticised then did not know how dignified we would be when we signed as I did for you last Tuesday, the note for $350,000 which we know we can easily pay. There will be presented for your consideration in the middle of April an amendment—our favorite indoor sport—to raise the admission fee from $25 to $50."

Successful bidders on all but nine of the contracts which were let last Monday are:

Winter Construction Company, general contract, $303,300; Architects Allison and Allison who receive 6 per cent on all contracts; cast stone work, Farris Brothers; sheet metal work, National Cornice Works; tile roofing to R. G. Blessing; composition roofing to Warren and Bailey; marble and tile work to Joseph Musto Sons-Keenan Co.; hardwood floors to G. W. Kincade; art glass to Los Angeles Art Glass Company; electrical work to Renard-Stary Electrical Company; plumbing to Arthur Hess; hardware to Bennett-Montgomery; elevators to Otis Elevator Company; heating and ventilating to F. J. Donnelly; painting to Heinsbergen Decorating Company and a few minor ones totaling in all over $540,000.

I wish it were possible to give a review of the charming and delightful lecture of Professor MacMinn but space for this week forbids. Perhaps the lovers of Henry James may share with me the pleasure of a brief discussion of his works led by Professor James, lover of lovers, next week.

Ebell Club Program

Charles Upson Clark, international lecturer and educator, will speak at the Ebell club on Monday. His subject is "The Current European Situation." Formerly connected with the faculties of Yale University and of the American Academy in Rome, Mr. Clark served the Italian government during the World War by his lectures on the condition of Italy. He has but recently returned from an extensive foreign tour.

The Hindu Philosopher, Poet, and Author, Dhan Gopal Mukerji, under the auspices of the Ebell club scholarship committee, will give a series of lectures at the Ebell club during March. "The New Spirituality in Old India" and "Ethical Changes in India" are the subjects of his lectures. The dates for which they are scheduled are the 16th and 20th inst. Proceeds of these lectures will be given to the Scholarship Fund.

The Social Science Department, of which Mrs. H. F. Boesche is curator, will hear at the meeting on Wednesday a discussion of "The New Conception of Human Values in Industries" by B. F. Pearson, who is associated with large industrial affairs. Another speaker will be Mrs. L. A. Beebe, California's representative to the recent Women's Industrial Conference in Washington. Her subject will be a report of that conference.

Letter from Obregon

A Spanish section has been formed by the Woman's Club of Hollywood. Mrs. E. F. Bodle, chairman of the study class, gathered around her a very interesting group of real Spanish people, who entertained with mandolin solos and songs, and gave a glimpse into their life and customs. A letter was read from President Obregon of the Mexican Republic in which he says: "I am pleased to see that the more intelligent women of your country are rightly interesting themselves in the conditions that prevail between our two governments and for this reason am equally pleased to answer the questions that you asked. We Mexicans all desire that the relations between Mexico and the United States become normal with the most absolute respect for the sovereignty of both people and it is for that reason that Mexico has removed all the obstacles that might check the progress of our relations.

"I consider that the opportunity for recognition is ever present and its delay is principally harmful to American interests as the capitalists of that country are reluctant to invest until the re-establishment of relations, and this is giving the opportunity to capitalists of the Orient and Europe to get the best investments."

Miss Louise Moisant, Juvenile Hall interpreter, gave a very interesting account of the "Life and Manners" of the Spanish people.

Dr. Oxnam to Speak

Wednesday Morning Club members will conduct their regular business meeting at 11 o'clock the 11th inst. Luncheon will be served at 12 o'clock with Mrs. Bessie Robertson as hostess.

Karola Frick will give a number of vocal selections at the afternoon program accompanied by Mrs. Leon Yankwich, pianist. Rev. G. Bromley Oxnam will speak on "The duty of the American in a Changing World." On this date there will be a food sale with Mrs. J. D. Wall and Mrs. Hector Zahn as co-chairmen.

Wednesday Morning Club indorses the following candidates for the executive board of the Los Angeles District of Federated Women's Clubs: Mrs. Charles Toll, president, Mrs. J. M. Mathews, vice-president, Mrs. W. W. Slayden, recording secretary, Mrs. Daniel J. Baptiste, treasurer and Mrs. Warren Folden, auditor.

Last Wednesday the music section of the club gave a program—a cantata "Garden of Flowers" including choruses, solos and quartets.

Author Speaks at Club

The time limit of the short-story contest of the Southern California Women's Press Club has been set forward to April 1, which is the time limit also of the Mother's Day poem contest. Awards will be made April 24. A short story contest for a prize of $25, given by Miss Nina Maude Richardson, representing the Company of Public Stenographers, was also announced.

The first speaker was introduced by Mrs. Edna Sterrett, program chairman. This was Henry Herbert Knibbs, who has made himself known through such characters as Overland Red and Sundown Slim, and his poetry, the first of which was "Saddlesongs." Mr. Knibbs's subject was "Modern Poetry."

The poetry magazines, instead of fostering poetry, are pernicious. Instead of representing the highest and the best, they represent the commonplace and the provincial, he said.

Mrs. Florence Dobinson interpretated recently published poems by club members. The poems selected were "Perfection," by Ruby Archer Gray, published in Smart Set; "Benediction," by Georgina S. Townsend, published in Saturday Night; "The Rose, the Wind and the Rain," by Alice Whitcraft Forsyth, in Lyric West; "Peace," by Clara Greening Creager; "I Hope That I Remember," by Grace Atherton Dennen, in Lyric West. Neeta Marquis's "Love's Awakening," was read by Miss Alpaugh, a pupil of Mrs. Dobinson.

Ethelean Tyson Gaw's subject was "Song Lyrics: The Writer's Viewpoint." Mrs. Gaw put it up to her husband, Dr. Allison Gaw to explain the technique of lyric-writing, using her songs, "Le Jour d'Amour" and "Song of the Nile Maidens." That the analysis was evolved a year or more after the lyrics were composed made the exposition none the less interesting. These two songs were given by Gladys Hill, with Dr. Gaw, who composed the music, at the piano. Mrs. Gaw's drama, "Pharaoh's Daughter," will be produced in Los Angeles by Margaret Anglin during the coming summer.

Anna Priscilla Risher, Los Angeles composer and teacher of music at Cumnock School, talked from the composer's viewpoint. She stressed the importance of the idea, of rhythm, and of musical, singable words. Three of Miss Risher's compositions were sung by Laura May Lamport; "Sail, White Wings," lyric by Jean Oldfield Potter; "The Song of the Brown Thrush," by Henry Van Dyke, and as an encore, "As In Old Gardens," also by Miss Potter.

After the program, members and their guests visited with the guests of honor, who were Margaret Widdemer, Mrs. Ralph Waldo Trine, Henry Neidlinger, Mme. Hiraibi Vascha, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Clover, Ben Field, Frayne Williams, Miss Sylvia Neil, Sybil Jones, Gloria Raye, Mrs. Alice Riley, Grace Adele Freeby, Mrs. Coey Dunkelberger, Miss Neely Dickson, Mrs. Viroque Baker and Mrs. Henry Henderson. Mrs. Eva Hamilton Young was hostess. Assisting her at the tea table were Mrs. Hugh Harrison and Mrs. Corinne Bartlett Dodge.

Hamilton Club

The monthly meeting of the Hamilton Club Wednesday was most interesting. Mrs. Strong, president, talked on the value of our government seal, in connection with our monetary system.

Mrs. E. C. Wood presented a sketch of the life work of the late Merrill Gates, who was at one time president of Rutgers College. His published writings on political questions were many.

Mrs. E. C. Calvin gave a digest of "Alexander Hamilton's Financial Policy," by F. S. Oliver. Oliver writes of Hamilton that as Secretary of the Treasury he did perceive the great destiny which was in store for this new country, and established a financial system that has never hampered national development. This work has never been undone by succeeding generations, but merely expanded under the pressure of circumstances.

Resolutions Adopted

The executive board of the Los Angeles Parent-Teacher Federation at its regular meeting on January 31, adopted the following as an expression of the ideals and aims of the organization:

"The Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Association, of which the Los Angeles federation is a part, is an educational, 'nonpartisan and nonsectarian' organization, and does not indorse anyone for public office. Any outline of principles, therefore, must conform to this description, but a clear statement in plain language of principles and beliefs common to all of our members, may be of value.

"We believe in the public school system of America for the education of the children as citizens of a self-governing country; a system administered under the law for the benefit of all the children with American teachers and American ideals; a system free from partisan politics, personal influence and petty ambitions.

"We believe that school officials, parents and teachers should give to these children sincere, honest and devoted service, putting aside all strictly personal appeals and selfish demands of any sort, and unhampered by obligations to individuals or organizations either within or without the school system.

"We believe that there are men and women in this city who will serve the schools well under this program and enough voters sincerely devoted to the welfare of the schools and the best interests of the children to elect any man or woman who is known to be unselfishly interested in the schools without the necessity of either public or private promises to individuals or any sort of entangling alliances."

Opera Reading Club

The Opera Reading Club of Hollywood will present Dr. Frank Nagel in recital Monday morning at 10 o'clock in the auditorium of the Hollywood Masonic Temple. Dr. Nagel will give an analysis of the opera "Martha" (Flotow,) assisted by Loro May Lamport, soprano; Lillia Snelling-Farquhar, contralto; Raymond Harmon, tenor, and Leslie Brigham, baritone. The public is invited to attend by paying a small door fee.

Following the program an "Applause Luncheon" will be held in the Assembly Tea Rooms, when some prominent musical person will speak. Music will be provided by Gladyse Burche-Dale, violinist, accompanied by Suzanne Joyce-Spear.

League of American Pen Women

The Los Angeles Branch, League of American Pen Women, will meet on the 6th inst., and on the 20th inst., at 2 p.m. at the Chateau corner Lucas and Shatto streets. Luncheon will be served at 12:30. For reservations telephone 582197 before tomorrow noon.

God-Speed to Mrs. Fitzgerald

Mrs. William A. Fitzgerald, president of the California Federation of Women's Clubs, will be guest of honor at a banquet tomorrow evening (Monday) given by the Anti-Narcotic League at the Broadway Cafe. This affair is arranged to wish Mrs. Fitzgerald God-speed and give her hearty support on the eve of her pilgrimage to Washington to intercede with President Harding for his support in a war to be waged against the narcotic evil. Dr. Rufus B. Von KleinSmid is president of the league and will preside tomorrow. It is anticipated that many of the well-known speakers of the city will be present. All those interested in the work of the organization are invited.

Chapter CU, P.E.O.

Members of the BJ Chapter, P.E.O. at Whittier, were hostess to the sister Chapter CU, at the home of Mrs. George E. Wanberg, 102 South Friends avenue, Whittier, Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. E. A. Albright read excerpts from writings by Helen Hunt Jackson and gave an interesting review of her life and her best-known books. Mrs. Samuel Bristol added to the artistic pleasure of the guests with two vocal solos and two instrumental numbers. Thirty-five ladies of the two chapters were in attendance. Mrs. Wanberg served an attractive collation at the close of the entertainment.

Whittier Woman's Club

Much interest is being manfested in the musical entertainment to be given before the Whittier Woman's Club next Wednesday afternoon by the Music section of the club. This is following out a popular precedent which the club adopted some time ago, whereby each of the sections gives one program before the entire club during the season.

Plans were completed for the entertainment at the regular meeting of the music section Wednesday morning. Miss Elizabeth Lum gave an interesting talk on color music and illustrated her talk with compositions from eminent American musicians.

Chatsworth Women's Club

Mrs. W. E. Silverwood read "Abraham Lincoln," a play by John Drinkwater, before the Woman's Community Club of Chatsworth at a patriotic meeting on February 27.

Miss Cora Hawley, accompanied by Mrs. C. B. Stewart, Jr. sang "A Flag Without a Stain." The program was in charge of Mrs. Czerny Anderson.

Mrs. Jacob Jepsen, Mrs. Lavalle Johnson, Mrs. Veleta Butler and Mrs. F. C. Hagerman were hostesses for the luncheon.

Highland Park Ebell Club

A quintette in A Major by Sol Cohen for piano and four violins was the musical attraction at Highland Park Ebell Club on Tuesday morning. Besides Mr. Cohen, the musicians were Ben Palmer, Melita Swarts and Martha Forsyth, violinists and Lulu Mueller, pianist.

A one-act farce, "The Rebell Club," by Mrs. George F. Cook, was vivaciously produced under the direction of Mrs. R. W. Snell before a large audience. The troubles of a program committee and their rescue into harmony by the husbands produced laughable situations from beginning to end.

The drama section met at 1 p.m. with Mrs. R. W. Snell leader. Mrs. Hazel Bartlett Stevens, well-known war entertainer, read with splendid interpretation, Sir James Barrie's play, "Dear Brutus."

Club Has Fine Program

One of the most enthusiastic ovations of the year was accorded Rabbi Edward Magnin of Los Angeles by the Riverside Womans Club Tuesday afternoon when he had completed his lecture on Bernard Shaw's collection of plays known as "Back to Methusalah." Rabbi Magnin spoke with the sincerity and straightforwardness of one who knew his ground thoroughly and with a tolerance, amazing in one of his faith. The program succeeded the February Home Economics luncheon at which Mrs. Arthur E. Davis, chairman of the department, presided. Mrs. E. M. Gifford was hostess.

An outline of the work and development as well as the needs of the State Department of Education was given by Miss Ethel Richardson, State chairman of the League of Women Voters and assistant State supervisor of elementary schools. During the luncheon hour Miss Vera Best, program chairman of the Pomona Ebell Club, addressed the women. Mrs. Cora Merry, supervisor of music in the Riverside schools, told of the Music Memory contest now in effect in the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades. She made an appeal to the women to assist by making opportunities for the children to hear the selections listed in the contest and by offering prizes.

Mrs. George M. Turner, Riverside bird woman and nature observer, gave an informal and profitable talk on "Bird Mannerisms" before the members of the Wednesday Club Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. R. Stibbens, 415 Orange street. Mrs. Stibbens was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. H. A. Hammond. Following the talk, which was illustrated by mounted bird specimens, sandwiches, bird cookies and coffee were served. Mrs. A. W. King and Mrs. L. B. Lucas presided at the coffee urns.

An artistic as well as an entertaining concert was presented by a group of the most advanced of the voice students of Mrs. Ethel Thayer Hussey and the piano students of Mrs. Minnietta B. Porters at the Riverside Woman's Club Tuesday evening. The pupils of Mrs. Porter were four of her most ambitious girls, who have chosen to make music their life work. Miss Lucille Simcox, also a pupil of Mrs. Porter, distinguished herself in accompanying the vocal artists, which will become her life profession.

Freida Carroll, who has a rich contralto voice of beautiful quality, displayed remarkable progress made since her last appearance in concert. Erema Dornton, who has a coloratura soprano voice, created a marked impression. Gerald Ingersoll, baritone, was enthusiastically received. Miss Nellie Grayson, whose voice is a lyric soprano, added greatly to the charms of the wellrounded program.

All of the singers showed good promise and sang with unusual poise and assurance. The pianists were also much at home. There was an absence of amateurishness in the entire program. Intelligence and feeling were displayed in the interpretations of the difficult numbers. The phrasing and touch were such as to make the program technically notable. The young pianists were: Misses Aline Reynolds, Elenor Foerster, Lois Klipple and Mrs. M. A. Fry.

To Talk at Club

The regular bimonthly dinner of the Business Women's Club Wednesday evening at Paulais will be of unusual interest. Belle McCord Roberts, editor of the Long Beach Telegram, will be the speaker. Special music has been planned.

Interesting Week at Beach

Santa Monica Bay Club is very proud and happy to announce that Mrs. J. B. Lorbeer, well beloved member and former president of that organization, consents to let her name stand as candidate for vice-president of the Los Angeles District at the approaching election. Knowing full well her splendid qualifications for an executive position the Beach Club indorses her candidacy with much enthusiasm and has sent a letter to that effect to all the clubs in the district.

Gertrude Ross is the magnet that will fill the Santa Monica Bay clubhouse with music lovers Monday afternoon, after the monthly luncheon, at which chairmen of departments will supply the program by one-minute reports. Mrs. Ross will be assisted in recital by Annis Stockton Howell, soprano.

Prof. W. H. Head of the Venice Polytechnic High School who has been presenting a series of Ibsen studies before the Drama Section of the Santa Monica Bay Club will give the concluding number, "Peer Gynt," Wednesday at 10:30 a.m.

In 8 Days Feels Like New Woman

Simple Intestinal Antiseptic Does Wonders With Mrs. Hill

"For two years I suffered from backache and tired feeling (due to gas on the stomach.) After taking Adlerika (intestinal antiseptic) EIGHT DAYS, I feel like a new woman. I can't praise it too highly." (Signed) Lizzie M. Hill.

Intestinal Antiseptic.

There is now offered to the public a preparation having the DOUBLE action of an intestinal antiseptic and a COMPLETE system cleanser. This preparation, known as Adlerika, acts as follows:

It tends to eliminate or destroy harmful germs and colon bacilli in the intestinal canal, thus guarding against appendicitis and other diseases having their start here.

It is the most complete system cleanser ever offered to the public, acting on BOTH upper and lower bowel and removing foul matter which poisoned the system for months and which nothing else can dislodge. It brings out all gases, thus immediately relieving pressure on the heart. It is astonishing the great amount of poisonous matter Adlerika draws from the alimentary canal—matter you never thought was in your system. Try it right after a natural movement and notice how much more foul matter it brings out which was poisoning you. In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation, sour stomach, gas on the stomach and sick headache, one spoonful Adlerika ALWAYS brings relief. A longer treatment, however, is necessary in cases of obstinate constipation and long standing stomach trouble, preferably under direction of your physician.

Reports From Physicians.

"I congratulate you on the good effect I had from Adlerika since I prescribed it." (Signed) Dr. L. Langlois.

"I have found nothing in my 38 years' practice to excel Adlerika." (Signed) Dr. James Weaver.

"I use Adlerika in all bowel cases. Some require only one dose." (Signed) Dr. F. M. Prettyman.

"After taking Adlerika feel better than for 20 years. Haven't language to express the AWFUL IMPURITIES eliminated from my system." (Signed) J. E. Puckett.

Adlerika is a constant surprise to people who have used only ordinary bowel and stomach medicines, on account of its rapid, pleasant and COMPLETE action. It is sold by leading druggists everywhere.—(Advertisement.

INTRODUCTIONS

Introducing persons to each other is something everyone has to do occasionally, and one might just as well do it properly. Moreover, this is a very good illustration of the way in which social usage is based on courtesy.

In making casual introductions it is no longer good form to use the word "present." It is too formal for ordinary social relations, which are far more easy and natural than they used to be. Of course, if you are introducing peo- to a truly distinguished man or woman, you "present" them.

As a general rule you merely say "Mrs. Reed, Mrs. Wallace," or "Mrs. Reed, do you know Mrs. Wallace?" or yet "Mrs. Reed, you know Mrs. Wallace, don't you?" Still another form of introduction is "Mrs. Reed, have you met Mrs. Wallace?"

It is usually taken for granted that the person's name you speak first is the one to whom you are presenting the other. However, if you wish to make this more emphatic, pronounce the first name with a slight rising inflection as if you are asking a question, then say the second as if making a flat statement.

If you are introducing a man and a woman—unless the man is a distinguished person—you merely say, "Mrs. Reed, Mr. Wallace." If the man is a personage you may add the "may I present." Unless it be the President, a King or a Cardinal, the man is always presented to the woman—never present a woman to a man.

A young woman is always presented to an older one, and an unmarried lady to a married one unless the former is much older. A young man, too, is always presented to an older one. All this, of course, is based on the chivalry of men to women and on the courtesy of youth to age.

STAND UP!

This same idea of courtesy dicates that men shall rise when a woman enters the room, or is introduced, and remain standing until she is seated. But this does not mean that social usage demands absurdity. If a woman comes into a large room where there are many persons in scattered groups, only the men near rise and wait for her to sit down.

It is good form for a woman to rise and shake hands when another woman is introduced to her, particularly so when the other is older. Men always rise and shake hands when they are introduced to one another, but a woman never rises when she is introduced to a man. And she need not shake hands with him unless she wishes, unless indeed he should extend his hand, when it would be very rude not to accept it. The only other time she is really expected to shake hands with a man is when it so happens that they both have long heard about each other through mutual friends and they are glad to have met. Otherwise, when a man is presented to a woman she merely bows her head slightly and says, "How do you do?" whereas the man bows and says nothing.

There is really no set rule as to when a person should shake hands or how one person should greet another, for one never knows how different persons will affect each other. But when you do shake hands always look into the person's eyes.

When a little girl is introduced to older persons she should curtsy, but unless she is very small for her age this custom is not observed after the age of 8 or 9. After that an act which is a charming gesture in a child becomes an affected mannerism.

PRESIDENTS' CARDINALS

When presenting anyone to the President it is customary to say, "Mr. President, I have the honor to present Mr. Burke of San Francisco." But to the Cardinal one says, "Your Eminence, may I present Mr. Burke?"

When you are presenting your daughter to an older or a distinguished man the form is "Mr. Burke, my daughter Julia" or "This is my daughter Julia." In case she is married, "My daughter, Mrs. Reed."

To another woman you say, "This is my daughter Julia, Mrs. Wallace." But to a young man a mother always introduces her daughter only as "My daughter, Mr. Burke."

Only one phrase is used in acknowledging an introduction, and that is, "How do you do?" To be "pleased" or "delighted" to meet a person happens only in rare cases where one has been looking forward to the meeting and is glad that it has at last been achieved.

NECESSARY INTRODUCTIONS

At a formal dinner or luncheon the dinner partners should always be introduced, and the host must always see that every gentleman either knows or is presented to the lady who is to sit at his right, and if possible to the one who will sit at his left at the table. The same applies to the two gentlemen who are to be seated at the left and right of the hostess. Everyone should always meet the guest of honor.

A small group of people who are to sit together at meals, cards, games, theater, or in fact on any occasion, should be introduced to each other.

In introducing people to one another, names should never be mumbled but neither should one make an effort of the pronunciation. If you speak slowly and distinctly that is all that is necessary, for after all, the persons being introduced should pay strict attention so that they may hear and remember the names.

"Pardon me, but I didn't quite get your name" is bad form a moment after you have been introduced. Although it is not considered good form to repeat a name when it is given, all these rules are elastic, and in cases where you especially wish to remember the name, it is permissible, but always prefix the repetition with "How do you do." Never repeat the name alone as acknowledgment of an introduction.

DON'TS IN INTRODUCTIONS

Don't say, "I'm charmed—or delighted—to meet you."

Don't say, "Let me make you acquainted with."

Don't say, "Meet my friend."

When shaking hands, don't grip the hand so tightly that it will take several minutes for the person to regain the use of it.

But don't take a hand as if it were a wet rag, either.

Don't ask personal questions a moment after you have been introduced.

Never introduce a woman to a man.

(In her next article next Sunday Mrs. Hoyt will discuss "Personal Stationery and Visiting Cards.")

OF INTEREST TO ARTISTS

blue and yellow—with all their variations in subtle and exquisite gradations.

Wasn't it Goethe who said that nature has expended all her color effectiveness and beauty in her flowers—all that is delicate in tint, all that is lurid and bizarre in color splendor? Blenner agrees with Goethe, even though he became a flower painter from necessity rather than deliberate choice. In the hot summer months of the East he found landscape painting, with its long tramps and strenuous lugging of easel, umbrella and canvas, very fatiguing; so, in a moment of inspiration, he turned to the flowers in his garden. How radiantly they have responded to his advances, how gratefully they have added new laurels to his fame as a painter!

Blenner paints flowers as they should be painted, with a confident but impressionistic touch, always careful that the blossom—shall we say its soul?—is not lost and submerged in its petals. He gives them light and air, he gives them backgrounds in perfect harmony with their prevailing hues. They are "cut" flowers, to be sure, but they have been transported with tenderness from sunlit garden to shaded room, and they have responded gloriously to touch of hand and brush—the touch of an artist.

Our artist arranges his bouquets with the decorative idea always in mind, but he places them naturally too, giving them perfect freedom for breadth and expansion. In the over-mantel decoration that he calls "California," and that finished only a few days ago, you will note this careful artistic negligence in arrangement. But indeed, you will find it in every picture from his brush, in every "portrait group" of roses or dahlias.

THE INTERNATIONAL PRINT MAKERS' SHOW

The fourth International Print Makers Exhibition, held under the auspices of the Print Makers Society of California, opened March 1 at Los Angeles Museum with unprecedented eclat, even though great things had been expected of it. What a show it is—how big, how fine, how impressive: It is, I understand, the best print show held anywhere, and I can well believe it. The large gallery is crowded with something like 500 etchings, dry-points and lithographs from all parts of the world, and 500 more could have been hung had there been room for them, for they all arrived.

Is it to be hoped that by next year the expected wings of the Los Angeles Museum will have sprouted and grown, for the print makers need them badly. So do other artists—the painters and the sculptors. But the present show of prints is so large, it holds so much to claim our study, that if it had been doubled we might not have been able to give every entry proper attention.

It may not be amiss, right here, and before I call your attention next week to particular prints, to give you a little information concerning the preliminary processes that are most used in the making of an etching. I glean my information from the clever Print Letter issued every month by the Print Makers Society of California. Here goes:

When an artist decides to make an etching he selects a plate of the size he desires to use. This plate is made either of copper or zinc, and is highly polished on one side. One corner of this plate is gripped in a small hand vise, and it is placed face up over some source of heat until the metal is raised to the correct temperature.

Next he takes a ball of "ground" wrapped up in a piece of silk and rubs it over the plate. The heat causes the ground to melt and run out over the surface. This ground is made up of asphalt, wax and gum mastic, and its purpose is to cover the metal and protect it from the acid which will be used later. When the plate is covered with the melted ground the artist takes a "dabber" (made of silk and looking much like a powder puff,) and patting gently spreads over the plate a thin uniform layer of the ground. This layer is of a light brown color, almost transparent, and it would be very difficult to see the drawn lines, so the operator takes a bunch of wax tapers, lights them and smokes the plate while holding it face down. The smoke is incorporated with the melted ground, forming, when cold, a smooth black surface.

The plate is now ready for drawing the design. This is done by means of sharp steel needles known as etching needles, which vary in size and shape, according to the taste of the man using them. Each line is drawn through the ground, and care is taken that the metal is exposed at each stroke. The drawn lines show white on the dark ground, and the artist must carry in his mind the fact that they will appear black when printed.

All this work requires much care and knowledge, as no corrections can be made except by wiping off the ground and recoating the plate. Some etchers work directly on the plate from nature, while others copy some drawing or sketch made at a previous time. When the work is finally completed the plate is ready for the acid, or, as it is known among etchers, for the "biting." This process will be described on some other occasion.

CHOICE COLLECTION AT METROPOLITAN

A motion-picture house with an art-gallery attachment is a new idea and to Sid Grauman goes the credit for it. Not content with music, "atmosphere" and motion pictures for his patrons, Mr. Grauman decided to add "stills" in a handsome gallery set aside for them in his gorgeous new Metropolitan Theater.

But the stills are not scenes from the cinema productions that may chance to be on the screen. They are paintings from the brushes of some of our best-known American artists, the most of them, of course, Los Angeles men. There are about thirty in all, and they have been loaned to the gallery for a month or so by Earl Stendahl, who carefully selected them from the collection in his gallery at the Ambassador.

We surely cannot complain of the "inhuman dearth" of art in Los Angeles after this. With twenty or more—or less—exhibitions running at one and the same time, and with one of the best of them at the most imposing of the downtown cinema theaters, the most insatiable art lover must heave a sigh of satisfaction. Sounds pretty metropolitan, doesn't it?—and it is quite in keeping that this show should be in the Metropolitan Theater.

This very fine collection will soon make way for another equally good, perhaps, from the gallery of some other picture dealer, perhaps from the studios of the artists

Indestructible Pearl Beads--A Great Sale $3.00 and $5.00

ROBINSON'S Indestructible Pearl Beads are to be featured in an important sale for Monday. In all, there are 1700 strands. Many women will desire three or more strands.

The late edict of fashion calls for very long ropes of pearls, shorter ones and those that are quite short. At fashionable gatherings as many as six strands (if just such pearls as these) may be seen encircling one fair throat.

Strands that are sixty inches long may be had for five dollars—and strands half that length, but graduated, for three dollars. The opportunity is indeed extraordinary.

500 Strands of Robinson's Indestructible Synthetic Pearl Beads, all evenly matched and uniform in size. Beautiful in luster. Medium and small pearls in both tints of cream-pink and cream. $5.00

1200 Strands Robinson's Indestructible Synthetic Graduated Pearl Beads in the same colors. The beads are in different lengths, graduated with precision. Choice of 15, 16, 18, 24 and 30-inah strands, $3.00.

New Handmade Blouses

THE delicacy of hand-drawn work is belied by its durability. Robinson's have just received a collection of Blouses made entirely by hand. This includes even the laces trimming them—the Irish, filet and Valenciennes edgings; all of them are laces made by hand.

These Blouses, so suitable for wear with slip-ons (sweaters of every kind, in fact,) are made of batiste and voile.

There are Peter Pan, V neck and square neck models and those with ruffles down the front.

Some are put together with beading, an element which seems to add further to their femininity.

Prices for the Hand Made Blouses begin at $5.75

THIRD FLOOR

All White Skirts of Silk or Wool

THE white Skirt lends emphasis to the vivid sweater which accompanies it.

As in other articles of outer apparel for spring, fine tucks are frequently used. Knife pleats scarcely a third of an inch wide are seen in many models. Others show the new fluting.

In silk: Moon Glo crepe, bengaline, crepe ondale, velvey, Canton crepe and roshanara in pleated and plain styles. Several have a drawnwork border. Priced beginning at $12.75.

In wool: Soiree eponge, flannel, homespun, striped wool Canton and Bedford cord. The plain skirts in wool are two-piece or wrap-around styles. Those which are pleated are in several designs. Priced beginning at $11.75.

THIRD FLOOR

Silk Sweater Coats, Tailored New, $29.50

THE Spring Sweater turns more and more toward mannish tailoring for its inspiration. Straight, boyish lines and unadorned severity of cut distinguish it.

Robinson's are displaying tailored Silk Sweaters even more than usually mannish in design.

Checked in front, and plain as to back and sleeves, they button in a straight unbroken line from neck to hem. Some are unbelted; others have narrow self-belts which fasten with mother-of-pearl buckles.

In such combinations as navy and tomato, beige and brown, beige and marigold, brown and tomato, gray and Indo blue, and beige and Indo. Priced at $29.50.

THIRD FLOOR

Silk Gauntlets and Long Gloves for Spring

INTENSE reds, blues and dull jades that characterize Russian embroidery are seen in the cuffs of some of the new Silk Gauntlets. Others have a gathered cuff, very deep, and scalloped. The inside of the cuff has silk of a contrasting color, as gray with orange.

A Beige Gauntlet has pleated insets of brown silk and is bordered with a finely fluted ruffle to complete the note of contrast. Long Gloves of platinum gray silk have six-inch triangular insets of silk embroidered in silver and a darker gray. These are only a few of the new models which are just in from a well-known manufacturer.

In the strap-wrist length here are white and all the new shades. $2.25, $2.75 and $4.50. Long Gloves (16-button) with elaborately embroidered tops, $6.00. Long Gloves (16-button) in four-star quality in white, pearl, mode, beige and gray, $[illegible]. The "Jap-Bancock" Millinery of the lustrous straw that is featherlike in weight includes Picture Hats and Medium-sized Hats for various occasions. Individuality characterizes each one.

The straw has a satin finish. The rolls and hollows at the back of the crown show its elasticity.

A dress Poke in the new shade of blue is trimmed with rose-colored foliage and imported iridescent flowers.

Another dress hat of Jap-Bancock is in flamingo red trimmed with gilt-edged ribbon.

Full-blown roses which are very unusual in size and color blendings trim a picture hat in this modish straw which would harmonize with many types of frocks.

Another group is made up of sports hats.

The hats illustrated range in price from $17.50 to $29.50.

Women's Street Frocks for Spring

THE new Frocks send ahead their gentle persuasion that everyone should participate in the yearly festival of color and freshness. Thus spring appears to dawn more quickly upon the horizon.

Some of the printed Silk Frocks are in black on white grounds; others of heavier silks are in darker colors.

Fine pleats make whole frocks of plain silk; are inset on the skirt or form flying panels. Tucks running this way and that in graduated clusters or in scattered intervals are seen in others. Many of the new models have draped folds concentrated at the center front.

Roma crepe, frosted crepe, Canton crepe with an interwoven stripe and many more fabrics fashion these new Street Frocks, which are priced beginning at $65. Incidentally, this is the price of the navy crepe frock in the illustration.

THIRD FLOOR

Straight-Line Capes Fur Collared

THE Easter promenade will feature numbers of these smart garments, from Robinson's.

The fur collar, standing high in the back and falling away at either side in front, is of black, gray or brown caracul, of beige or platinum, fox or moufflon, or of fitch.

Juina, Poiret twill, veldyne and other spring materials are the handsome fabrics.

Some of the Capes fasten at the side with a narrow string sash. Several models have silk bands inside which help to keep the wrap from slipping.

Linings are plain, printed or striped crepe. In the model sketched, the gray crepe lining shows alternate rows of gray and black crepe running crosswise.

Prices begin at $85.00.

THIRD FLOOR

Sports Suits Fastened at the Side

FLARE jackets with the roll lapel and tying carelessly at the side give the spring Sports Suits undeniable smartness.

Skirts in many of the models are in wrap-around style.

Two clasps, and the skirt is donned; an over-the-skirt blouse is slipped on over the head and requires no further adjustment; the jacket is "fastened" by looping one sash end over the other.

Roussilon, twill cords—some with jackets embroidered all over—mixtures, homespuns and basket weaves with a new luster are the fabrics making these tailleurs.

Priced beginning at $65.00.

The model sketched is of buff cube de laine (with its upstanding squares of soft fabric). Priced at $97.50.

Careless Shampooing Spoils the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless,) and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub the Mulsified in. It makes an abundance of rich creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any pharmacy; it is very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.—[Advertisement.

Simple Way to Get Rid of Blackheads

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them. To do this get two ounces of calonite powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are simply a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The calonite powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.

Run-Down Women Face to Face With Old Age!

Blood-Power Builds Nerve-Power, Strength, Endurance, Energy, Girlish Charm! S. S. S. Is Remarkable in Building Blood-Power and Nerve-Power!

She is not 40 in years yet but she is run down, exhausted and that is just what old age is. S. S. S. will build up your blood-power. This gives strength always!

Madam, this truth may give you the "creeps." Shudder as you will, this fact stares you in the face! You cannot down it! If you face the fact, you can add glorious strength to your weakened body. You can add sweeter years to your life, and bring back some of the glorious charm of your girlhood days! But if you refuse to believe it, then no power on earth can help you! When you are exhausted, when you feel like "flopping down" on every seat you come to, that very thing you feel is nothing but early old age. Exhaustion and old age are practically the same thing. Both mean a "wearing out." The number of years you have spent on earth has nothing to do with the way you feel! Remember this, the number of blood-cells you have controls your nerves, your vitality, your health and strength! It is all you have! The answer then is, build up your blood-power! S. S. S. has been used since 1826 as one of the greatest blood-cell builders known! It contains only vegetable medicinal ingredients. It is also a remarkable blood purifier. This is why it has proven such startling results in rheumatic conditions, in stopping pimples, eczema, skin eruptions, in clearing and beautifying the complexion, and in building up thin, worn-out men and women, and in building great nerve power! You are only as strong as your blood! Stronger and more youthful nerves depend on blood-power! Stronger blood shows at once in your face, in the strength of every organ. S. S. S. will give you great energy, strength and more youthful appearance. Stop getting old before your time! S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores, in two sizes. The larger size bottle is the more economical.—[Advertisement.

THE CHURCH AND THE LIBRARY

BY FRANCIS E. CLARK, D.D., LL.D.
President United Society of Christian Endeavor

There are good and sufficient reasons why the church should cooperate with the Public Library, and I believe it would be greatly to the mutual advantage of both were they to take this matter to heart.

My present residence in Boston makes it convenient for me frequently to visit the West End Branch of the Boston Public Library. Here, in a physical way, the library and the church are brought together, for this branch occupies the famous and beautiful old West End Church, built nearly a hundred and twenty years ago, and where for many years the beloved and eloquent Dr. Bartol preached from the high pulpit.

Gradually a different population pervaded this section of the city until it was no longer possible to maintain this old church. But still this grand old landmark retained its site, at the head of an open green that runs down to busy Cambridge street.

If the church had to be given up, there was surely no better use to which it could be put than that of a public library for the benefit of the people of the neighborhood, who would not go to it as a church, but would go to such a storehouse of learning as is here provided for them. The old church has been altered as little as possible. The high pulpit, to be sure, has been taken down, but on the wall behind where it used to stand, are the portraits of the venerable Dr. Bartol and of two of his predecessors. Each one of these men of dignity and scholarship looks down upon the boys and girls and the men and women who throng the floor.

Around the walls the books are stacked, and in the deep galleries which encircle the church are many alcoves to which anyone who desires may have free access.

FOREIGNERS GREAT READER

I frequently drop into the transformed church, not always or altogether to get a book, but to see the people who use it. I see in the crowded reading room which occupies the floor of the church, scarcely a single American face of the old order. All are undoubtedly American in their love for their country, but it is an adopted country for most of them, Jews and Syrians and Italians and Russians largely predominate. One whole section of the library is given over to Russian books, from which people who know no other language perfectly, find their mental stimulus. Thinking I would take home a copy of "Anna Karenina," I took it down one day, only to find that it was printed in the language of its author, and was naturally not usable by me.

People of several other nationalities find books in their own tongues, though the majority of the volumes are in English, which, alone, is understood by most of the children who frequently swarm up the steps of the old church into the transformed audience room.

The head of the children's department of the Boston Public Library tells me that there are no children who visit the main library or any of its thirty-one branches who are more eager for the best books than the children of the Russian Jews. They especially desire books on American history and achievement. They are proud of their country, though perhaps they were born, as their parents surely were, five thousand miles away from America. I regret to say that she also tells me that most of the Yankee children ask for novels, often of the cheapest sort.

GOOD BOOKS THE RULE

Next to the Russian Jews, the children of Scandinavian parentage, and those of Italian, seek for the best books. Thus the Public Library is constantly performing a quiet Americanization which few eyes note or few scribes record.

One of two features of this West End Branch Library always impresses me. One is the quiet, orderly and almost reverent way in which the place is regarded by old and young. Possibly the old associations still seem to hallow it, but I imagine it is the same in all the thirty-one branches, as well as in the mother of them all, the Boston Public Library, which sits in stately grandeur in Copley Square. Every child who enters this library, by the very silence and quiet orderliness of the room, receives a lesson in politeness. All boisterousness must be left at the outer door. I have never attended a Sunday-school session in any church where such quiet reverence for the place was manifested as in this home of books, and yet it is visited mostly by those whom the supercilious blue-bloods would class among the noisy and boisterous denizens of the city.

Most of the children are decently clad. Some, however, are in rags, and their blue noses and cold little fingers, perhaps indicate one reason why in this bitter winter weather they seek such an asylum. But most of them, and their fathers and mothers, tinkers and tailors and candle-stick makers or whatever they may be, sit quietly with a magazine or book in their hands, or swarm around the librarian's desk with their cards, that they may carry their booty home with them.

Most courteously and obliging are the librarians, whose head seems to be a fine-looking colored man, a graduate of Amherst, '93, who probably knows more about books than anyone else in the building.

LIBRARIES GOOD INFLUENCE

I have described this library at some length because I believe that it speaks well for the influence of such an institution in an unpromising section of the city, and because I believe it may indicate how a deserted old church may be transformed into a modern library and become an asset to the church, using the word in a broad sense, and aid it in maintaining decency, self-respect, and reverence for the best things.

But how may the church cooperate with the libraries? By being interested in them and by securing for the shelves worth-while books, and of a good representation of religious books. I suppose that novels will always predominate, and more substantial books will be far less soiled and dogeared than the "best sellers." Still there is a demand in every community for certain books of the best type. There are many who are not satisfied with the modern novels, but these better books are often far beyond the reach of people who would have them.

In this same library which I am describing is the old West Church Paris Library of seventeen hundred volumes, it is stowed away in alcoves by itself, and, it must be said, is very seldom visited. Hannah More was the favorite author in the days when the West Parish gathered together this library, Helon's "Pilgrimage to Jerusalem;" Martineau's "Sickness and Health," Edwards "On the Will," and Dr. Bartol's "Sermons" and many commentaries.

Yet there are many modern books of a religious character which would not be left untouched, year after year. The "Christian's Story Bible," books of missionary adventure, lives of such men as Livingstone and Moffat; Dr. Chamberlain's Stories of India, the stories of such modern missionaries as Jean Kenyon MacKenzie, would find many readers.

TO COUNTERACT JAZZ

Then in most communities, especially rural communities, many Sunday-school teachers and scholars patronize the library. Why not provide the best helps for the Sunday-school? Others for the young people's society—books on wholesome games for church and young people's societies that may do something to counteract the jazz spirit of the age and the craze for indecent dancing? There is a wide variety of such books, and in many communities denominational and other religious papers would be welcomed by a very considerable section of the people who patronize the libraries.

CHURCH SHOULD HELP

But the demand must be made known to the library authorities. A church committee may well commend to the public librarians the best religious books of the day. Where there is a demand manifested for such books, most libraries will be glad to satisfy it. Indeed, I know some libraries that will buy any book which they do not have upon their shelves, if it is asked for, and when a church or any considerable number of the community ask for such books their request will not be ignored. These books, too, should be advertised through the papers. This probably would be out of the question in metropolitan dailies or those of most large cities, but there are many country papers which, if the church and library forces combine, would be glad to advertise the fact that the library contained such and such books of a religious character.

In this and many other ways I believe that a community library may co-operate with the church and the church with the library. The whole atmosphere of a good library is like the one in the old church which I have described, which promotes the spirit of reverence for the best things, of gentleness, and regard for the rights of others. The church cannot have too many auxiliaries of this sort.

POPULAR WITH CRITICS

"Lady Into Fox," David Garnett's fantastic story which Alfred A. Knopf published in February, is achieving considerable success in England, where it has just been published. It has already gone into several editions, and the reviews of it in the London Times, Westminster Gazette and New Statesman, are unusually enthusiastic and are in some cases nearly as long as the book, which is rather short. Incidentally the publication of Mr. Garnett's story by Mr. Knopf will mark the addition of another member of a famous family to the Borzoi list of authors. Mr. Garnett's father is Edward Garnett, well-known critic and author of "Friday Nights," and his mother is Constance Garnett, whose translation of the collected works of Nikolai Gogol Mr. Knopf has announced for publication this spring. To complete the family, "Lady Into Fox" will appear with twelve wood-cut illustrations by R. A. Garnett, the author's wife.

GLEANINGS FROM POETS

rhymes, we have nothing that even approximates the rough-gold of poetry that is the heritage of nearly every Old World nation.

In the present book, Prof. Talley has patiently gathered together and assembled the tag-tag rhymes that were once familiar on the plantations of the South and along the long reaches of the Mississippi and Ohio. Fisk University, which is the center of negro culture in America, has been engaged for years in gathering and preserving these relics of a vanishing past. Prof. Talley has been a leader in this work.

Within the past decade, American music has shown more and more the influence of the negro and the Indian, and perhaps, the only songs that, if any, can be dubbed as indubitably American are those of Stephen Collins Foster. I refer to "My Old Kentucky Home," "Old Folks at Home" and other sweet flutings by this American bard.

We all remember that good old jubilee song:

"Old Satan's jus like a snake in the grass,
 He's a watching for to bite
  you as you pass.
 Shout! Shout! Satan's about.
  Just shut your door, and keep him out."

In fact, the jubilee singers have made us more or less familiar with negro "sprituals." But there is a vast body of Uncle Remus verse that is less familiar. Mr. Talley has gathered a large part of it in this book, and has appended a study of negro folk rhymes that is enlightening.

As for the rhymes themselves, most of them are rollicking, some are pathetic and one or two, as "Promises of Freedom," may be compared favorably, for narrative effectiveness, with anything in Bishop Perry's collection. An interesting feature of the book is the inclusion, for comparative purposes, of some Trinidad, Jamaica, African, Venezuelan and Philippine rhymes of the negroes.

THE LE GALLIENNE BOOK OF ENGLISH VERSE, from the tenth century to the present. Edited with an introduction by Richard Le Gallienne. Boni & Liveright, New York.

Just about the time that some of us thought that England had ceased to be a nest of singing birds, Rupert Brooke, Ralph Hodgson, Richard Middleton and others burst into full-throated song.

Mr. Le Gallienne, himself a poet of no mean note, has shown wisdom in bringing his anthology down to date. There is so much poetry being produced nowadays; there was so much produced in England's yesterday, that we welcome a selection by one who from the "nineties" to date has kept abreast of the poetic flood.

Though much of modern poetry is ephemeral—it has been in all ages, for that matter—though to the present writer the thin, reed-like note is predominate, certain gems of song there are, things by James Elroy Flecker, "A. E.," Brooke, and Katherine Tynan, to mention only a few, whose colorful facets will please many generations to come.

Perhaps even Flecker's prophetic:

"I who am dead a thousand years,
 And wrote this sweet archaic song,
 Send you my words for messengers
 The way I shall not pass along,"

will be realized.

The present anthology is a companion one to Padraic Colum's "anthology of Irish Verse."

SINGERS FROM OLD CAMBRIDGE

Loosen up a dime, yaps!
O, in the Name of God!

R. Cameron Rogers, deft enough with words, is not afraid of such titles as "Threnody," "Written in a Copy of Horace," "Lines" and "Reverie." He has sufficient interest in the ancients to make them interesting to the reader. Here are the first and last stanzas of a

BALLAD OF ERRANT VESPERS

The wind, when comes late afternoon,
Sweeps up from vespers bells the croon
Of shadowed sanctity and soon
Bids it forget its prayer.

All fresh with dew and valley loam,
The truant vesper-call flits home,
But Mary knows 'twould rather roam
Than pray a thousand times.

Royall Snow, whose "Igdrasil" was reviewed not long ago in these pages, has added to his laurels in the pages allotted to him in this volume. In the eight lines below, the reader may get an idea of Mr. Snow's deft handling of an idea:

CROSSROADS

I thought then of Cophetus, the king,
Who by a girl's singing and clear eyes
Was moved to wed his power to her spring,
And so was wise.

And of myself, who saw the gypsies take the road
And wondered what my study gave
To match the carelessness those vagrants showed—
But lacked the wisdom to be brave.

John Brooks Wheelwright writes eloquently, but for the most part his work would be easier to read and more satisfying if printed in paragraphs instead of short lines and stanzas. But it is entertaining as it stands, and "Boston in Summer, With a Confession," and "Holy Saturday" are hereby especially recommended.

IMMIGRANT'S DAY IN COURT

The ninth and one of the most important volumes in the Harper Americanization Studies will be issued this month. It is "Immigrant's Day in Court," by Kate Halliday Claghorn, one of the leaders of the New York School of Social Work. This study follows the immigrant from the port of entry through some of the troubles that call for the intervention of the law, to see how far the administration of the law secures justice for him, what is done by various agencies to adjust him to our laws and legal procedure, and what are his reactions in the way of satisfaction with the country and his friendliness to it. The author of "Immigrant's Day in Court" was assisted in her investigations by prominent members of the bar and a corps of trained social workers.

subordinating the British Army to Nivelle he was really intervening in military plans. He spurred on Nivelle to a headstrong course which ended in disaster. It is quite possible that, had he exercised judgment at that period, and refused to intervene in a plan of operations which he did not comprehend, the two military leaders might have arrived at a much better arrangement."

The Putnams published on February 1 "How to Play Mah Jong," by Jean Bray, which contains all of the information necessary to become proficient in the Chinese game which has recently become so popular.

Prof. Willis Luther Moore, LL.D., Sc.D., whose book, "The New Air World," describing the vagaries of the weather, was published not long ago by Little, Brown & Co., was president of the National Geographic Society for five annual terms. The society's famous magazine was founded under his administration. Few people realize it, but the National Geographic Magazine, which at first seemed to have such a limited appeal, now has nearly 800,000 subscribers.

The first edition of 30,000 of "The Dim Lantern," by Temple Bailey (The Penn Publishing Company) was exhausted in ten days, and there is a second edition of 20,000 now being printed. "The Dim Lantern" is first on the list of best selling books in several of the large cities.

THE FEBRUARY DIAL

Those who are interested in the effect which modern progress and invention are having on our civilization will be anxious to read what Bertrand Russell has to say on these matters in the February Dial. For some years Mr. Russell has been studying the ways of western civilization; and recently his equipment for this study has been enlarged by voyages through Russia and China. Further, being an Englishman by birth, he has had the opportunity of feeling keenly the great modern economic currents in a country where these matters are at their highest point of concentration. In the present Dial Mr. Russell summons all this equipment for a study of educational problems and lays down exactly the breach between what education does accomplish and what it ought to accomplish. As a peculiar parallel to this article come some impressions of our Southwest, written by D. H. Lawrence, the English novelist and poet. Mr. Lawrence has been living on a ranch in New Mexico, and describes in the present article what he finds in America when looking through foreign eyes. He convinces us that the country has a great wealth of color which we, perhaps from becoming too accustomed to it, have failed to appreciate. The range of literary intelligence in this issue of the Dial covers such widely divergent topics as China, Dublin, Spain, Italy and London, with the usual treatment of art movements in our domestic theaters, concert halls and galleries.

THE WORLD AND CABELL

James Branch Cabell, according to the February Bookman's "Literary Spotlight," is one who seeks escape from a world which he cannot face as it is:

"Cabell escapes into his imaginary world more and more as time goes on, as his powers strengthen and as the actual drops from him. When one knows him one gradually comes to realize that the world of his creation, with its creatures sprung from Manuel as from Adam, constitutes the only real world to him. His eyes dull and his eyelids droop when he talks, as he seldom does, of the people and events, of the life wherein he is embodied; but his interest quickens and brightens when he speaks of his mimic world, and of the persons and happenings there. He is Jurgen, and he is Charteris, and, in one form or another and under one name or another, the thread of self-identification can be followed through his work. He believes that he is writing an epos of humanity, a cycle of man, but in reality he is only writing the subjective autobiography of Cabell."

POETS TO GATHER

At a banquet to be held at the Elite, 633 South Flower street, next Friday evening, under the auspices of the Verse Writers' Club of Southern California, will appear a galaxy of well-known poets and writers.

Among those who have accepted invitations as honor guests are Miss Harriet Monroe, editor of Poetry, Chicago; Miss Jessie Rittenhouse, who is to lecture in Los Angeles under the auspices of the Verse Writers' and Gamut Clubs; Margaret Widemer, Bliss Carmen, Gene Stratton-Porter, Carrie Jacobs Bond, James Foley, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Farwell and Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Behymer and Miss [illegible] Marquis.

One of the features of the program will be the reading of short verses by various members of the Verse Writers' Club, and also the reading of Gene Stratton-Porter's poem, "The Fire Bird," by Miss Porter Martin. Music will be furnished by the Jameson Quartet, Miss Gladys Hill, Mrs. Duran and Mr. W. E. Guivelxon. James Foley will briefly address the gathering.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR FEBRUARY

The February St. Nicholas opens with a Lincoln story, "As We Forgive Those," by T. Morris Longstreth. It is a happy beginning for the magazine, in this month of heroes, and the story is an unusually good one.

There are five other short stories in the number, including "Dwarf Hildebrand" by Bernard Marshal, and "The Blue Robin," by Mary E. Wilkins.

Among the articles there are three of timely interest, "The Manhood of Tomorrow," by Joseph B. Ames, a tribute to the Boy Scouts of America on the occasion of the thirteenth birthday of that organization; "The Story of Coal," by Floyd L. Darrow, and "Forestry on Snowshoes," by Ethel C. Brill, a description of the work that is carried on in our national parks and forest reserves during the winter months.

FOR SPORT WRITERS

A dinner and preview are planned for Los Angeles sporting writers next week, when the first Lee Moran comedy adapted from Ring Lardner's "You Know Me Al" baseball stories is given a private showing at the home of Arvid Gillstrom, director of the picture.

BY A GROUP OF YOUNGER POETS

I have been full of sorrow
And heavy pain,
But always Beauty came,
A voice in the darkness.

I have trod the valleys,
Where there was only shadow;
But always Beauty came,
A tip of flame over the mountain."

In variant mood, as one who has known deep sorrow, she cries out of life's experience:

"There are sorrows
Greater than death. . . .
There is grief,
Deeper than the sting of parting.

It is when Life
Is cold,
Like a marble column by the sea,
And Love
Stands silent
As a sepulchre."

But through the rose-tint glass she sees clearly. There is no bitter challenge, for love is her theme, love that lives unendingly. Sorrow and disappointment have not surfeited her with life. She would drink deeper of life's intensities:

"I have known all. . . .
Passion, pain, great shame and sorrow,
And joy to the uttermost.
Yet I am not appeased!
For I would know it all over again,
Fuller, keener, intenser than before—
The pain, the shame and the great sorrow,
Until there would be
No more knowing."

SONGS OF YOUTH. By Mary Dixon Thayer. Alfred A. Knopf, New York.

Free verse is nothing if it isn't experimental. Miss Thayer has defined poetry as "the direct expression of a mood," and says, by way of justifying the definition, that "he who sings sincerely and because he cannot help singing needs to know very few of the fundamental laws of poetry." That is about as sensible as it would be to say that a sculptor does not need to know the fundamentals of his art, or a musician the laws of harmony. "If your song is a true echo of your heart, then it cannot fail to be a great poem," declares Miss Thayer, but I am sorry that I cannot agree with her.

Miss Thayer's songs may be echoes of her heart, but there is not a great poem in her book. Which is one of the ironies with which life is always surprising us. But in many of them Miss Thayer shows rare lyric quality, as in "Yvonne," deep in the philosophy of human values:

"How gay her laughter!
 (Yet a fool knows
Storms lie in sunsets, Thorns in a rose.)

"How sweet her face is!
 (No one can see
Worms that are gnawing
 Roots of a tree.)

"How red her lips are!
 (Could a man guess
Their wine were poison
 For lips to press?)"

I wish that many of the poems which the author has seen fit to include had been omitted, for they are harsh and discordant, and rather detract from the poems of real merit.

But since Miss Thayer has called them songs of youth, perhaps she meant us to take them all—songs of unrestrained, unfettered, exuberant, rebellious youth: the poor along with the good, the good along with the distinctive. There are many fragmentary bits of protean beauty—"Wisdom," "Sea Gulls," and "A Violinist," suggestive of Shelley in its imagery. In "To the Muse" she touches high lyricism:

"God of the Tints and Tones,
 No art can teach!
Power above the thrones
I may not reach!
Glance down out of Infinity
And pity me. . . . And pity me.

"Only a twisted note is flung
To earth as your vast song is sung,
Only a bubble drifts to me
Out of your spangled symphony."

UNDER THE TREES. By Elizabeth Madox Roberts. B. W. Huebsch, New York.

This is a sequence of poems in which the poet employs the images of a child's mind and the language of childhood, but which is not a child's garden of verse. Miss Roberts reveals a fresh and penetrating vision of simple beauty, of frank joy in the scenes of a joyous childhood.

"Under the Trees" reflects the garden of a child's soul in verses which convey, with a haunting suggestion, the effect of the compact, graphic phrases of children. But while this young poet achieves a quality of seeming naturalism, even a certain homeliness, she sounds a true lyric note, sometimes shrill as little ones can be but sweet and beautifully clear.

This book of poems is obviously not written for children or for grown-ups, but is addressed to human minds of all ages. Those who are seeking the unusual rather than the unconventional in modern poetry will pronounce Elizabeth Madox Roberts's work a "find."

This sequence of poems, which B. W. Huebsch has published, was written while Miss Roberts was a student at the University of Chicago. Included in this group were the poems that won the Fisk poetry prize in 1921.

THE INIMITABLE LEACOCK

The new series of burlesques by Stephen Leacock begins in the February number of Harper's Magazine. This first article is called "The Drama As I See It," and starts off with a delicious reminiscence of the melodrama shown in the good old days before "the cinematograph had addled the human brain, and the radio broadcast had disintegrated the human mind." Mr. Leacock says: "Everybody who has reached or passed middle age looks back with affection to that splendid old melodrama 'Cast Up by the Sea.' Perhaps it wasn't called exactly that. It may have been named 'Called Back from the Dead,' or 'Broken Up by the Wind,' or 'Buried Alive in the Snow,' or anything of the sort. In fact, I believe it was played under about forty different names in fifty different forms, but it was always the same good old melodrama of the New England Coast, with the farmhouse and the yellow fields running down to the sea, and the lighthouse right at the end of the farm with the rocks and the sea beyond, looking for trouble." Mr. Leacock then goes on to burlesque a typical melodrama, act by act, concluding with the introduction of a baby, without which, he claims, no melodrama was ever brought to a righteous end.

The Doctor's Advice
by Dr. Lewis Baker

Mrs. B. T. writes: "I suffer much with indigestion, heavy feeling in stomach, bloating, belching, etc."

Answer: For indigestion, dyspepsia and such symptoms as you mention, I advise the use of tablets Tripeptine packed in sealed cartons with full directions. They prove very effective.

"Orrie writes: 'I have been taking salts to purify my blood and cure my skin of itching and pimples, but don't get much benefit. Please prescribe for this.'"

Answer: I advise 3-grain Sulpherb tablets (not sulphur tablets,) composed of sulphur, cream of tartar and vegetable extracts, that remove constipation and purify the system. Take this treatment for several months for best results.

"Patient" writes: "I want your free advice. I seem to have gone all to pieces. I am irritated and annoyed by dizzy moments, fickle appetite, no strength, and life has no pleasures for me any more."

Answer: There are thousands who live too fast and then find themselves in your plight. The nervous force has been deranged. A tonic invigorating medicine called Cadomene tablets will afford aid to Nature by supplying more food-energy and give your system a chance to recuperate, when calm nerves should take the place of shattered nerves.

"Laborer" asks: "I am so affected with painful kidneys that I cannot work regularly. My sleep is disturbed by frequent calls, only to void small amounts and follows burning, smarting pains. Backaches and often have chills and fever, making me real sick for a day."

Answer: A good tonic, soothing and neutralizing medicine for such complaints is Balmwort tablets. Try them and continue a few weeks and I am sure you will write me of your recovery.

Mrs. C. L. G. writes: "I suffer greatly from severe headache and periodic pelvic pain. Can I get relief?"

natives in honor of our arrival—Luau means feast, and feast it was, in all its native glory.

The most important part of the Luau is the pig which is scrubbed with flat stones until he shines. Then a native removes hot stones from a nearby fire with his bare hands and places them inside the pig. They then wrap him in Tai leaves and place him in a hole dug in the ground. Mr. Pig is then carefully covered with earth and left to cook. Poi is another important factor in Luaus—it closely resembles porridge. It is made of Taro root crushed and mixed with water, all done by hand, with the use of flat, heavy stones. Taro is mostly starch, much like our potato, therefore not on the Eat and Grow Thin menu. So I can't tell you how it tastes.

There was a large and mixed crowd at this Luau, but natives and whites were equally joyful. Of course there was Hawaiian music, but when the girls in grass skirts danced, the natives accompanied them by pounding large gourds and chanting weirdly. The native dance is a very graceful one. We seldom see a real hula here in the States. The girls danced beautifully; they would enact a scene in pantomime, then interpret it by dancing. An Hawaiian girl translated for me.

AT THE VOLCANO

We left Honolulu for the volcano which is on the Island of Hawaii shortly after this. Our port was Hilo. We went on a most energetic little boat with a speed of twelve knots—six straight ahead and six up and down. Nevertheless, we arrived in Hilo none the worse for wear.

As in all parts of the different islands of the group, it was raining. But rain in the islands is something different—there it is called "liquid sunshine." It rains and stops, and rains sometimes only in certain portions of a city block, all without the slightest provocation. Even the sun refuses to seek shelter.

Our work around the volcano was both interesting and severe. I believe we have made some of the most difficult scenes ever filmed. We took about two hundred natives up to the pit of the volcano and walked two miles at night over lava fields that are so rough they tear your shoes, and so hot in some places that it burns the soles of your feet.

It was necessary to get the natives into costumes and they couldn't understand English. It was cold on account of the night winds, and there was the never-ceasing rain.

A COSTUME OF SHELLS

I was in a costume of shells. Oh, everything went wrong! But when we saw the scenes on the screen, we felt more than repaid. Mrs. Ivers deserves all the credit in the world for it is she who has put the real spirit of the Islands into our picture, no matter what the trouble or effort.

The volcano cannot be described but I will say your most exaggerated conception would fail to do it justice. It unfolds before you in a color known only to sunsets and roars and splashes in a seeting lake of flames.

The beauty of the islands remains with me always and being away from them as I am now, there seems to be something calling me back. Perhaps it is just a desire to go back and see if it is all real Aloha.

Players' Flight Covers Ages of Dramatic Art

From the highly stylized Shakespearean comedy to ultramodern domestic farce, the Pasadena Community Players wing their flight; for having scored notably in their revival of "Love's Labour's Lost" last week, they will now put on "Wedding Bells" by Salisbury Field. This is the piece that Bert Lytell and Evelyn Vaughan first launched in Los Angeles a decade or so ago and it is still going strong.

If for no other reason, "Wedding Bells" will interest Pasadenans because it is bringing back to the Community Playhouse stage Mrs. Clinton C. Clarke after being away from it for more than a year. She will be seen in the role of Rosalie. William E. Reis, Jr., is to appear opposite Mrs. Clarke, as Reginald Carter.

Included in the cast are a number of Pasadena's best known citizen players. They are Olive Pape, Robert Loofburrow, Litt Ransom, J. E. Hinds, Jr., Howell Tyson, Mrs. S. W. Coon and Gertrude Pettigrew. The settings have been designed by May Nichols and Amy McDermid, assisted by Helena Mackenzie Ragan. Virginia Reis Ricks is serving as chairman of the wardrobe committee.

EXPERT OF CAMERA FILMS EGYPT'S TALE

NEW YORK PORTRAIT MAN MAKES PICTURE OF PHARAOH'S TIME

From photographer of New York's "400" to motion-picture director is a far cry, but this is the journey that was made by William P. S. Earle, well-known producer, who is now making "Tut-ankh-amen," a photospectacle of old Egypt based on incidents which occurred during the reign of the famous ruler of the Nile.

After graduating from Columbia University, Earle dabbled in various of the arts, including painting, sculpture and portraiture. As camera artist to Manhattan society folk he built up a considerable reputation and as the screen art began to come into prominence a few years ago it was only natural that he should attempt to try his hand at active photography.

His first position was with the famous old Vitagraph company in Brooklyn, in the capacity of lighting and camera expert. During his several years' association with that firm he introduced many innovations in the way of lighting and camera mechanics, and claims credit as the first man to put into practice the general use of the now popular type of illumination known as "backlighting." Preparatory work in "Tut-ankh-amen" is rapidly being completed and actual filming of the production will be started by Eagle in a few days.

TONS OF FISH ARE CAUGHT

the racing boat, the net flew into the water and the two combined schools were imprisoned in the mesh stockade.

The great net pulled heavy. Inch by inch it was taken in. Deep under the surface, thirty fathom down it glowed and sparkled as the thousands of fish strained against it.

A GREAT CATCH

Before the circle had closed to a 200-foot diameter, crazed sardines, hundreds of them, were skipping on top of the water, glittering like Fourth of July "nigger-chasers," over the corks and back into the net again.

So prodigous was the haul that nine men could not handle it. Exhausted, they clung to the net, when out of the darkness slid the boat Adams.

Seeing the predicament of the Lucky Strike, the Adams' captain sent out a skiff, then he backed water and stood by.

When their skiff brought an edge of the net to the side of the Adams, that crew began to haul. Fifty feet apart now, eighteen fishermen hauled at this lucky net, lifting it between the boats.

The gray blotch of silver, wide as a street, lay between. Then the top of the school burst into view. There was a sea of struggling fish, whipping the water into foam. The noise of them made shouts from one boat to the other unintelligible. It sounded like a waterfall.

UNLOADING THE NET

Deck lights were now snapped on, illuminating the strange sight. Between the boats swung the pocket of the net, like a hammock, reaching far down into the black depths; for the lights obliterated the beauty of the phosphorescence.

For about an hour the combined crews scooped and dumped, scooped and dumped. There was no question of shares; there was a load for each boat. In glistening oilskins, these sea harvesters dropped the dip nets, heaved, and showered 130 pounds aboard with each plunge into the great body of fish. One man slipped and fell. A load dumped, burying him to the neck in the wriggling mass.

At last the net was emptied. With their decks heaped from net pit to bow, each boat deck was covered four feet deep with fish. It was a thirty-ton haul. The boat limit that night was fifteen tons. So they pulled anchors and started for Pedro Light, friendly fingers of brilliance that beckon to mariners.

IN WITH THE CATCH

At thirty minutes past midnight, the Lucky Strike tied up at the Seacoast Canning Company's elevator in Fish Harbor. Five other boats were in ahead and eight others still out.

Said the man at the throttle of the hoist:

"This plant's capacity is 150 tons. We have been holding the boats down to 12 to 17 tons a night. If this keeps up we will have 200 tons on the cutting tables by morning."

Awakened by the silence—the engine was shut off now for the first time since their start—the sleepy crew poured out of the hatchway and clambered onto the wharf.

From the door of the cannery they saw the busy cutting tables. There, wrapped in oilskins, toiled their wives, daughters, sweethearts. In the inelegant but expressive parlance of Fish Harbor, the Japanese women are "gut-whackers." 4000 of them work in the canneries now.

CLEANING THE FISH

With one deft operation, the head is chopped off and the entrails of the sardine removed with it. The eggs are left in the fish because they are the source of the oil that gives the sardine its savory flavor.

"Sardines are no good in summer. Then they have no eggs," Tomonaga explains.

Everywhere in the cannery are clanking elevators—little buckets on endless chains that glide through wooden troughs.

An elevator takes the fish from the wharf to the washer, onto the cutting tables, up to the dryer and then into the fryer. Out again they are loaded into wire baskets and put in racks to cool.

For fifty minutes the fish run through the dryer, under hot blasts of air. Then they go into the boiling oil of the fryer for ten minutes.

PACKING THE SARDINES

These fish that have been cooked for an hour, when they are cold and "set," are laid into oval tins. All is machine work. As fast as the busy fingers of the girl packers fill the tins they are carried by another elevator into the sealing machine. Lids are sealed on, after the contents are again heated.

"Heated so the cans won't swell and the fish spoil," explains a crew boss.

Most of the fish are packed in tomato sauce. A machine spurts the sauce in the cans as they pass to the sealer, fed from a big vat above.

After they are sealed the cans go to a big boiler, where they remain in hot water for two hours.

"Slow heat, to cook the bone," says the vat tender.

Then the tins are labelled, packed in wooden cases and wheeled into waiting freight cars.

Eventually some perfumed broker, sitting at his mahogany desk in a New York skyscraper, will sell the sardines to a wholesaler. The wholesaler will consign them to a thousand store-keepers. Then Mr. Consumer will lean against the counter, point to the shelf at the can he wants and pay 15 cents for it.

THE CANNERY GIRLS

Hundreds of girls work at packing and labeling. A glance down a battery of machines reveals a row of silk-stockinged legs. The Latin love for finery, that—Mexican girls, mostly. Their maximum pay is 50 cents an hour.

"It's worth it, too, kiddo, to stare sardines in the eye for eight hours running," declares the little one in Pola Negri make-up.

Half the American sardine pack comes from Los Angeles, 40 per cent from Monterey, 10 per cent from San Diego. Monterey used to pack 75 per cent. Sardine canning was an infant industry here then.

That was "in the old days"—1910 and on until war broke out.

The "Alpha," a big, green purse seiner, patrolled the coast then.

People at the beaches would point her out and grin:

"That's the sardine boat," they would say. The "Alpha" was a sort of freak, like wave motors.

It was about twenty years ago when the "Alpha" first went into service in these waters. San Pedro, then, was a port of trifling importance. Few industries were located here. Big ships were aground in the inner harbor at low tide.

Each afternoon the "Alpha" would sail, in sardine season, returning regularly the following morning.

As she entered port, she would toot a glad note with her siren to inform the people of her success. One toot meant one ton of fish. Two toots, two tons, and so on.

San Pedro boys would play hookey from school when there was many toots, because they knew they could earn a pocketful of money down at the cannery—"cleanin' sardines."

The "Alpha" is remodeled now, carrying Deisel engines and modern equipment. She is the mother of the San Pedro fishing fleet.

But now, twelve to fifteen million dollars is invested in the fishing industry at San Pedro, East San Pedro, Wilmington and Long Beach. Last year these canneries packed 150,000 cases of sardines. This year, 500,000 cases, or nearly half the amount of the Alaska salmon output. Besides, there is the increased volume of valuable by-products.

NOTHING IS WASTED

A reduction plant handles the cannery refuse. In a deep pit stands a man with a sharp-pronged rake, clawing at the mountain of refuse that towers over him. He feeds the stuff into a conveyor which dumps it into heated cylinders, where it cooks. The dry meal is blown through pipes into a warehouse, where laborers with shovels put it into bags, and stencil it: "fish meal."

Fish meal is used to fatten beeves, hogs, poultry and has been extensively adopted as a fertilizer for orange groves. It is rich in protein and carbo-hydrate.

Then there is fish oil. It is in demand among soap manufacturers, who use 90 per cent of the output. Ten per cent goes to tanneries, where it is made use of in preparing fine leathers.

"Maybe it doesn't smell exactly like attar of roses," says the man in the reduction works, "but this oil can be deodorized and made into the very finest cooking fat. But nobody would use it if they knew it was made of fish oil. That's the trouble."

ONE-THIRD WASTE

The Bureau of Fisheries of the State Fish and Game Commission plays an important part in fish inspection and regulation of the canneries. It is the bureau's work to see that good fish are not made into waste products alone. For this reason, each cannery sets a running limit. Divided by the number of boats fishing for it, the cannery boss then knows how to set a boat limit.

One ton of sardines make one-third waste, which is converted into seven gallons of oil and a retail $4 worth of meal, this besides twenty cases of fish. Thus the retail value of one ton of sardines is about $130.

And the Japanese fisherman gets $9 a ton for them.

"Ten million dollars worth of food will be harvested from the sea at Los Angeles Harbor this year by Japanese fishermen," one plant owner said. "There are 2000 Japs fishing. Every one of them has a bank account. He never has a chance to spend money because he works all of the time.

"The reason so few Americans make fishermen is because most of us want jobs where we can hear the 5 o'clock whistle blow."

SEA-GOING BERRY PICKERS

"During the war," said J. W. Nicholas of the Seacoast concern. "Fish was high and in demand. "We needed fishermen. So every Japanese who came in and said he wanted to get into the game, we staked him to a boat.

"An outfit cost about $10,000. We lost money on most of them. Every Japanese berry picker in the State thought he could come here and get a boat, so we cut it out. We found that fifty boats, manned by real fishermen, could beat 400 berry pickers. So now we have weeded out all but the fellows who get the fish."

BEAUTY JUDGES BEAUTY

Hundreds of beautiful girls in Bozeman, Mont., are breathlessly awaiting the decision of Claire Windsor, acting as judge in a beauty contest conducted in that city. Miss Windsor has received the photographs and is giving serious consideration to each, even carrying them with her to work — on the set of Marshall Neilan's "The Eternal Three"—and studying them while the big lights are being focused on her. She is employing an artist's technique in finding facial defects, and expects to outStanlaws Penryhn in making her final decision.

OF INTEREST TO ARTISTS

themselves. Meanwhile, don't miss this one.

Here are a few of the pictures that you will like to linger over while waiting for the "feature" to go on, perhaps you will even forget all about the feature: Frank Tenney Johnson's horse and rider seen under moonlight, "The Night Herder;" Robert Vonnoh's subtle Connecticut landscape, "Autumn Afternoon;" John Frost's "Mojave Desert;" Joseph Kleitsch's brilliant portrait study, "Grace!" Jack Wilkinson Smith's superb marine, "Dana's Point!" Hanson Puthu's lovely "Golden Autumn!" Francis McComas's water color, almost futuristic in handling, "Red Rock and Cedars;" William Wendt's fine landscape, "A Gorgeous Spring Day;" Armin Hansen's colorful and mysterious study of fishermen, "Home From the Sea"; Cornelius Botke's decorative scheme, "Golden Pastures;" and so on and so forth.

AN ECHO FROM THE AUSTIN ABSTRACTION

As a dealer in etchings I naturally keep a weather-eye open for publicity, though, of course, as an etcher, I am properly horrified at the press-agent tactics and ambitions of my ignoble dealership.

Imagine my chagrin at the advertising Mr. Austin has gained for the Independents by a little mistake—oh, such a little mistake! Where were my brains? I might just as well have made it myself, whereupon I could have written you a long, three-column letter, telling you just how mistaken you were in the criticism you haven't written yet about the exhibition of etchings by California etchers, which opens Monday at the Cannell & Chaffin galleries, and you would have published it, and all the town would have rushed to see the show, and I should have sold bushels of prints, and all the etchers would have taken both of us out to dinner, and—and—and——

But, alas! it is too late. Charlie pulled the biggest art scoop in the history of Los Angeles, which is tantamount to saying, in the history of the world. The public must be wearing out the sidewalk leading to the fortunate Mr. Austin's door. I see trucks carrying away "improvisations" by the ton; "abstract organizations" being bought—no, acquired is the proper word, and one must be careful of his words in this column these days—by the Police Commission to overcome the regrettable ignorance of our criminals regarding the true nature of "significant form;" mailmen staggering under loads of checks for incredible sums made payable to Charles Austin, with undoubtedly a few straying into the mail box marked S. McDonald Wright.

As for the poor art critic, there is nothing left for him but to pass peacefully on into a "poetically decorative effect of calm and peaceful introspection," which somehow makes me think of a cow contentedly chewing her cud; and really, Mr. Editor, I cannot bear to think of you coming to such an end. Rather had I pictured you with shaggy brow, amid luxuriance of Leonardo whiskers, adding fresh dignity with each new school of art, slain—cruelly cut down in the ripeness of old age by the failure of some abstraction to become an organization.

Then we should get a new critic, and he wouldn't know the ropes, and I could put over my story about the exhibition of California etchers, and all the people in town would come next week to see it, and—and——

Austin's effort was plainly an "improvization," whereas mine would have been an "organization." I wonder—I wonder—which is the greater form of art? —[Arthur H. Millier.

One Word More

Editor Art and Artists: I rejoice in your expounding column and the gusto thereof. Let the good work go on—it is fine for "we 'uns."

Concerning the exhibit of the Independents at the MacDowell Club, one thing is sure. Quite unintentionally, no doubt, the pictures are being judged by the standard of the late, lamented and brilliant Rex Slinkard. The day will come when Los Angeles will erect a suitable memorial to him. Of very few painters can it be said they are of the realm of William Blake, but this truly of Slinkard.

"Poet of the Brush" is right, but words are dull and tame things sometimes when describing original, brilliant and supernatural conceptions—extraneous, yet belonging to poetry by their self-delivery of their lyric qualities, which even the stolid must get a glimpse of. As compared with "Santa Monica Canyon," a picture which is nothing more than ornamental geometry, they are the two poles of the exhibit. The former, a window to new grandeur and more luminous vistas, the latter a key to a whited sepulchre.—[Paul J. Linsley.

Homan Goes South

Cuthbert Homan, for the last four or five years in charge of the art galleries at Cannell & Chaffin's, has been called to San Diego, where he will assume at once the duties of director for the art gallery at Balboa Park.

Mr. Homan has become such a well-known figure in art circles that he will be greatly missed by both artists and art patrons. His knowledge of various forms of art will make him a valuable citizen to San Diego. He is already planning great things for the Balboa Park gallery—and we may be sure that in these plans are one-man shows by artists of Los Angeles.

Exhibition at MacDowell Club

An exhibition of fifty paintings by Charles Partridge Adams of Denver opened last Thursday at the MacDowell Club, Tajo Building, to continue through the month. The pictures include mountain subjects from Colorado and landscapes of Southern California.

Etchings at the Chouinard

Etchings by Molin, one of Sweden's most brilliant artists, will be shown at the Chouinard School of Art, 2606 West Eighth street, this afternoon from 2 to 6. European block prints will also be exhibited.

New Exhibits at Stendahl's

Stendahl announces the opening of two new exhibitions at the Ambassador Hotel. The first consists of paintings by Thomas L. Hunt; the second is etchings by Nel Partridge. Both exhibits close March 15.

HIGH-BROW CHORUS GIRLS

According to a recent survey at the New York Hippodrome, fifty-one schools of college or university rank, seventeen sororities and twelve fraternities are represented in the cast of "Better Times," the present Hippodrome production.

Will sell one or two of the lots at $1100 each and you can pay me one-tenth down, balance easy monthly. There is nothing on the market that can compare with the opportunity. ANY woman earning her livelihood by eight hours of drudgery for a pittance can double and treble her earning by applying her ability and energies in the right direction; that is, by using those abilities to earn her their full worth instead of renting them out to some one else for a pittance.

We are an old-established firm, and we are placing many women in the way of becoming independent by representing our business to the people whom we send them to see for us.

SERVICE

From the purchaser's standpoint the value of a used truck is gauged by the amount of service it will render him. A truck is purely a commercial proposition. It is purchased with the expectation that it will in turn pay for itself. And this is right.

GENERAL MOTORS
Are now selling used trucks that will give satisfactory service every day in every way; trucks that pay for themselves many times over. Remember our policy "The Best for the Least"

CAVE SPRING SCHOOL

Few springs were better known, or more used on this border of civilization, than was the "Cave Spring," that served the pioneers and their children to the second generation. It is scarcely necessary to mention its site on the present Gilham Boulevard, near the crossing of Charlotte street. Here, according to family history recalled by Mrs. Nellie M. Harris, a school was taught by Mr. Piper. This school was in existence about 1840 and the pupils now remembered by Mrs. Harris as attending were her uncles, Washington H., and Joseph Smith Chick and William Mulkey.—[Missouri Valley Historical Society Publication.

With reference to the comment of a recent American visitor that in all London he could find no statue of Charles Dickens, it is interesting to remember that there is a clause in Dickens's will which ran: "I conjure my friends on no account to make me the subject of any monument, memorial, or testimonial whatever. I rest my claims to the remembrance of my country upon my published works, and to the remembrance of my friends upon their experience of me in addition thereto." This, no doubt has long forestalled any suggestion of a statue.

Los Angeles during February established the second highest rec

the twenty-eight-day period there were 4104 permits issued, an aver

every working day of the month.
The highest previous month was in April, 1922, when the Biltmore Ho month there were 3983 permits valued at $12,959,686.

The past February showed an

value of $7,579,798 were issued.
The gain in valuation for the first two months of 1923 exceeded the valuation for the entire month of February last year. Permits to the value of $23,338,327 were issued between January 1 and February of the current year, as compared with a valuation of $15,854,969 for the corresponding period of 1922.

TO HOUSE MANY FAMILIES

In Los Angeles through the build accommodations for 3093 families were provided, or more single dwellings.

Practically the same story comes from every community of impor

LOCAL INNOCENTS ABROAD

Between Sessions of Shovel Board Tourists on Chamber of Commerce Trip Sea Things

BY C. P. HUBBARD
On Board Steamship President Hayes

(Received March 3.) We are now approaching Ponce, Porto Rico, and all are well. After two hot days off the Mexican coast the weather grew cooler and delightful, day and night. Smooth seas continued until meeting the northeast trade winds after leaving the breakwater at Christobal (which by the way, they pronounce with accent on "tow" and "bal" is "bull") into the Caribbean (accent on "rib") Sea.

We reached Balboa at midnight February 6th and everybody went joy riding by moonlight, getting home to the boat all the way from 2 to 6 a.m. The forenoon of February 7th until 11 a.m., everyone shopped and from then on a passenger not wearing a Panama hat didn't belong.

The trip through the canal can't be described. It is in the same class as the Grand Canyon.

Leaving Balboa shortly before noon, it was dark before we got through at Gatun locks. We took on supplies from a lighter in a rough sea inside the breakwater at Christobal.

TAKE ON IRON

Among the supplies was an extra large and strong bedstead of iron for the use of H. M. Haldeman. I may be misinformed but it is rumored that Mr. Haldeman broke down every extra bed on board, averaging one a night. Capt. Ahlin has called for a "survey" to estimate the Haldeman damage to furniture on the boat.

Dr. Burbank from Long Beach don't have time to sit down; there is too much to sea. (see?.) Messrs. Hurst and Sweeney, the oil explorers who are going up into Bolivia, are behaving quite well, considering. In case of a severe storm they will be thrown overboard to calm the waters. Dr. West Hughes is black and blue, in spots, from shovel board, but so far Mr. Wallis has come through this strenuous game unscathed. Mrs. J. Millor Brown, our principal "globe trotter," says that is the most enjoyable trip she ever had.

Curacao is a semi-arid island not far off the north coast of Venezuela. We docked at the principal port, Willemsted, at 5 p.m., February 10th, two days late, and again it was "everybody ashore." There are 380 automobiles on this little island with the usual predominating brand ever present. All the autos I saw were of American make. One-half hour sees all there is to be seen from an auto. The Hotel Washington and the Americano Hotel both served excellent dollar dinners and many passengers took advantage of the opportunity for a change from the excellent ship fare.

The Hayes is the largest boat that has ever entered this harbor, but she went in through the pontoon bridge and turned in the basin without a hitch. We unloaded here 600 tons of box shooks for the oil refinery. Curacao is a trans-shipping port for Venezuela, where shallow water prevents deep-draft vessels from approaching. Oil from Maracaibo is brought here for refining.

There is a regular steamer line between Curacao and New York, an eight-day run, touching at San Juan, P. R. There is also direct communication with the principle European ports.

I met at Curacao two live-wire

Los Angeles Street Lots Change Hands

B. Parker Byron of Charles G. Andrews Company reports the purchase for the account of J. & S. Steinberg of the following properties on South Los Angeles street: Northwest corner of Los Angeles and Fifteenth streets, 49.52 by 145 to alley, vacant, from the Title Insurance and Trust Company; vacant lot on Los Angeles between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets, 47 by 150, from the Title Insurance and Trust Company; southeast corner of Los Angeles and Sixteenth streets, 112 by 108 to alley, improved with four cottages. The sellers were Ezra Willett et al.

The total consideration for the three parcels was approximately $95,000. Mr. Steinberg, according to Mr. Bryon, has an offer to build on the Fifteenth-street corner on the basis of 7 per cent net on a value of $1000 per foot for the land and 12 per cent on the cost of the building. The corner is desired by a furniture company. Mr. Bryon represented all parties to the transaction.

Mr. Bryon also reports the sale to local investors of the southwest corner of Fifteenth and Los Angeles streets, 50 by 145 feet by the Swedish Church for $25,000; the northwest corner of Seventh and Los Angeles streets, 90 by 135 feet, by the Smurr Estate for $70,000, and the southwest corner of Seventeenth and Los Angeles streets, 180 by 130, by [illegible] Smith for $75,000. The purchaser of the latter property, a manufacturing company, plans to improve the lot immediately with a modern brick building, according to Mr. Bryon.

Trust Company Plans to Build in Hollywood

A new $500,000 bank building is to rise in Hollywood within the next few months, it was announced yesterday by the C. E. Toberman Company, prominent real estate firm. The building is to be located on the corner of Hollywood Boulevard and McCadden Place and will be known as the Federal Trust and Savings Bank Building. A building company will be formed to construct the new bank building, it was said.

The site for the building was purchased by Mr. Toberman from Col. A. P. Trust and Charles G. Perry, Col. Trust selling 40 feet along Hollywood Boulevard and Mr. Perry selling a strip 26 feet wide, giving the Toberman company a frontage of 66 feet on Hollywood Boulevard.

It was declared that the new building will be eight stories with a four-story observation tower in which there will be suites of offices and studios. The structure is to be of Class C construction.

The Federal Trust and Savings Bank opened its doors for business in Hollywood several months ago with a capital of $300,000 and a surplus of $60,000. It now has $840,000 on deposit.

Recently Announced Structures Will Cost in Excess of Half-Million Dollars

Several interesting building projects, involving an expenditure of approximately $600,000, were announced yesterday by local architects and builders, and construction work on these buildings is to be started in the near future. Among the more important of these projects will be a large apartment-house to be built at the southwest corner of Bixel and Maryland streets by Frank W. Babcock, local hotel man, who recently purchased this site.

The new apartment-house will be a three-story and basement building, of brick and concrete construction, and will contain forty-eight apartments, with a total of 100 rooms.

Working plans and specifications have been completed by Edward Cray Taylor, architect, and Ellis Wing Taylor, structural engineer. The street frontages and a large open court which faces east will be faced with red ruffled brick and tan rug brick trimmings. The entrance and lobby will be finished in hard wood as will also a spacious ballroom in the basement. All baths will be tile as well as drainboards in the kitchens. The building will be equipped with an automatic elevator, a modern heating and laundry plant and an incinerator.

The general contract has been let to W. F. Riley.

The building, which will be completed in about 120 days, will be lavishly furnished by the owner. The total improvement including the site, building and furniture, will be approximately $200,000.

COLLEGE DORMITORY

The California Christian College is having plans prepared for a new dormitory building to cost $200,000, which will complete a group of three dormitory buildings, two having been already erected. The new building will be equally divided into quarters for men and women and will be connected with the two present buildings.

This building will be part three and four stories. The first story will have kitchen, main dining room 35 by 84, and a faculty dining room. The main floor will have a boys' parlor and a girls' parlor, each 32 by 47. On this floor there will also be seven double dormitory rooms for men and a like number for women.

The second and third floors will each have fourteen double dormitories for men and a like number for women and the fourth floor will have seven double dormitories for men and an equal number for women.

Each room will have hot and cold water and there will be general lavatory rooms upon each floor. The building will be steam heated. The exterior walls will be of tapestry brick, roof, burnt clay tile. The building will be started in the near future so as to be ready for occupancy about the first of the year. Robert H. Orr is the architect.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL

The Board of Education has directed Phillips & Needham, architects, to prepare plans for a new grade school building to be built on its recently acquired site at Avenue 46 and Toland Way. The building will contain nine classrooms of standard size, two open-air classroom porches, or decks, which may be used in pleasant

NEEDS OF YEAR ARE OUTLINED

Nation-Wide Housing Shortage Still Exists, Says Research Bureau

The immense scope of construction requirements for 1923 are revealed in a bulletin sent to the Los Angeles Realty Board by the National Association of Real Estate Boards, quoting from the report of a research association of the copper and brass industry located in New York City.

The report in part states: "In 1922 prices were such as to make further delays in building unnecessary; the acuteness of the housing situation was relieved by the enactment in some large cities of laws favoring builders, and the individual owner found that he could wait no longer. Moreover, money became cheaper, so in this year we get a record expenditure of nearly $5,000,000,000.

"It is evident that the shortage has not yet been overcome. It also would appear that a further deflation may take place. A total construction requirement exists at the present writing of $7,830,000,000. Taking these facts into consideration and assuming that the coming year will be free from strikes and other building disturbances, it seems safe to predict a year even greater than 1922.

"Whether a figure of $6,000,000,000 will actually be realized must, perforce, depend upon conditions which cannot be foreseen, but we feel justified in asserting that the coming year will see the greatest building program the world has ever known."

Chicago Sets Large Record for February

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, March 3.—Building permits issued in this city in February called for a total of $27,712,000 against $18,611,000 in January and $13,493,000 in February, 1922. It will be seen that between the second month of 1922 and the second month of 1923 the amount more than doubled.

F. W. Armstrong of the Landis award committee, following up his recent investigations, has found 1923 vacant apartments in five and one-half square miles of territory, and therefore stands by his original assertion that there will be 7000 extra apartments seeking tenants May 1.

FACT AND COMMENT

"Hold Up This Franchise!" appears in bold black letters at the head of the handbills which the opposition to the extension of the Santa Fe line to the harbor is distributing freely on the main business streets of the city.

Following this commanding phrase is a list of reasons why the franchise should be held up, but the appended list is woefully weak and inadequate. It might carry weight with those unfamiliar with the circumstances, but it fails to carry conviction with people who have followed the Santa Fe franchise controversy, and with those who know what tremendous concessions the railroad has made in order to obtain its right of way to the port.

The first point emphasized is the fact that the City Council is letting the franchise go to the Santa Fe for "a paltry $100." True, but that is not all of it; the amount of money charged for the franchise is only a nominal sum, paid to bind the contract, and exactly the same amount would be charged any other railroad line for a similar privilege. Moreover—perhaps by some oversight—the author of the circular forgot to mention that the city will derive a handsome annual revenue from the gross income of the Santa Fe harbor line, a revenue that will amount to considerably more, over a period of years, than would a straight charge of $100,000 or $200,000 for the franchise.

One answer suffices for the next five arguments of the obstructionists. These arguments, summarized, are as follows: The new line will create dangerous grade crossings on Slauson avenue; it will cost the city millions, later, to remove these crossings; it will result in serious obstruction to street car and automobile traffic crossing Slauson; it will cause many deaths and accifill the city's educational needs for the next decade.

MONROVIA: Again Monrovia has passed the $100,000 mark for building permits, the shortest month just closed showing several thousand dollars above $100,000. Included in the permits taken out during February were twenty-two new houses and nine for business blocks, indicating that Monrovia is growing not only as a city of homes but as a city of rapidly increasing business as well.

BAKERSFIELD.—City Building Inspector T. W. Dupes has submitted to City Manager F. S. Benson a report of the building permits issued in this city for the month of February, which discloses that the total cost of contemplated structures is $348,589. In all, fifty-nine permits were issued during the month by the building inspector. Twenty-nine were for residences amounting in total to $75,170. Sixteen were for alterations and repairs, amounting to $13,405. Eight were for garages, totaling $17,300. One for a church to cost $15,000. One for a lodge for $229,036. One for a store building, $12,000. A service station, $2000. A clay hoist and hopper, $200, and a barn to cost $48, making in all a grand total of $348,589.

An addendum affixed to the report by the building inspector listed twenty electrical permits amounting to $1259. Metal-framed signs, $900 and eighteen plumbing permits totalling $4390.

During the month of February last year sixty-four building permits were issued amounting to a total of $153,581. For February, 1921, the total was $68,310; February, 1920, permits amounting to $218,850 and in 1919 for the same month the total was $16,730.

With the exception of the year 1918, when a decided cessation in building activities manifested itself, there has been a steady increase in the total amounts expended in building each year.

The greatest building month in the city's history was November, 1922, when permits for over half a million dollars in structuar building were issued—$551,233 being the exact sum.

FULLERTON.—February building in Fullerton broke all previous records for the northern end of Orange county, with a grand total of $167,080. This valuation was contained in forty-nine permits, the major portion of which were for residences. The figures for the same month in 1922 were $81,125 and for January, 1923, $125,000.

SANTA BARBARA.—February saw more permits issued than any other month in the history of Santa Barbara, though December, 1922, saw a greater valuation, the valuation for that month going to $945,320. The total for January and February of this year surpasses that of any two months in the city's history.

SANTA ANA — Living accommodations for 184 of the families seeking residence in Santa Ana, are being provided through building permits issued during the past two months, it was revealed today by Building Inspector W. S. Decker. Mr. Decker's figures disclosed that in the two-month period, building permits had been issued for 148 individual residence buildings, one ten-apartment court, two three-flat buildings, one four-flat building and eight double bungalows in January and February.

In addition to these living quarters, permits were also issued for thirty-four business buildings. The total valuation of permits for January was $339,124 for 164 permits, and February total was $345,108 for 142 permits. This is an increase of $239,521 or better than 50 per cent over the first two months of last year. This year is setting a pace that Mr. Decker believes will send Santa Ana building total up near the $6,000,000 mark by the close of the year.

Last year's total was $3,771,000.

FRESNO — February building totals were $428,210. January, however, was the record month when $1,192,187 was the total for the month. A building permit will soon be taken out for a million-dollar building for the Pacific Southwest Trust and Savings Bank, Fresno branch, to be built on the corner of J and Mariposa streets and to be fifteen stories high.

MONROVIA—February building permits of $100,630 eclipsed only by previous month, January 1923, which set a new record for the city with $154,600. Indications are that March will exceed January record by many thousands of dollars. The month just closed saw the beginning of twenty-two residences and seven new business blocks. New business in sight on first day of March is nearly $100,000.

REDLANDS—February building records for Redlands were broken this year when permits for building estimated to cost $155,000 were issued during the month by Inspector M. E. Armstrong. Two buildings, a dormitory, and college of fine arts wing for the university of Redlands will cost $100,000 to be of class A construction. Furnishings for those will bring their total cost to $140,000. During the month permits were issued for fourteen new homes ranging in price from $2500 to $6500 exclusive of lot and furnishings. There were twenty-two permits during the month. Eliminating the two university buildings the total cost is greater than any month of last year.

ANAHEIM: Anaheim completed one-fourth of its $2,000,000 building program planned for 1923 during the first two months of the new year, according to figures compiled today by the office of City Building Inspector Price. With this tremendous increase in construction activity here, persons who are closely watching the remarkable growth of the city declared today that the year's construction valuation probably would reach $3,000,000, exceeding the previous estimate by $1,000,000. Forty-five building permits in February totaled $131,620. Eighty permits in January totaled $350,000, the record month in history and four times greater than January, 1922. The valuation for the two months is nearly $500,000, also a record for the period.

SANTA MONICA: An increase of 49½ per cent in the building permits which have been issued so far this year over the amount of those issued for the first two months of 1922 was shown today when the building permits for the month of February were totaled. So far this year there have been permits issued for the construction of buildings to the extent of $777,910. According to the figures of the building inspector's office, the permits issued during the month of February, 1922, mounted to $221,120. During the last month the permits came to a total of $318,275.

ONTARIO: A new dwelling a day was Ontario's building record for the month of February, just closed, according to announcement of City Building Inspector O. S. Roen. Forty-one building permits issued during the month, twenty-eight of them for residences, represented an expenditure of $92,120, making the total for the first two months of the present year $211,520, a gain over the first two months of 1922, which rolled up a grand total of more than $1,125,000, or $46,650.

With thirty dwelling permits issued during the month of January, the February record makes a total of fifty-eight new residences for Ontario since the first of the year and is looked upon as proof conclusive of the city's rapid growth. The total for the month just closed is by far the greatest for any February in the history of Ontario, that of February, 1922, which was $53,680, being the nearest approach.

ALHAMBRA.—The month of February, with only twenty-two business days, proved to be the greatest month in construction which Alhambra has ever had, a total of $701,550 in building permits having been issued during the period. The previous high month was October, 1922, when the valuation of new buildings totaled $511,450.

Last month 204 individual permits were taken out, of which 140 were for homes. Five business buildings were started, there were twenty-one additions and alterations, twenty-seven garages and eleven real estate offices and billboards. In the month of January the building amounted to $415,635, with 171 single permits.

SAN BERNARDINO.—Building permits issued in San Bernardino during February totalled $174,900, an increase of nearly $65,000 over the corresponding period during 1922, according to statistics announced by Building Inspector Henry F. Wegnori. The records show that seventy-eight permits, most of which were for dwellings, were issued in February. Last year sixty-four permits totalled $110,619. The figures were the greatest ever compiled in the month of February in the history of the city. In five months of 1922 the February total, however, was exceeded, December, 1922, being the largest month of the year, with $224,655.

RIVERSIDE: The building valuation in Riverside for the month of February was $109,335. This was far below the figure attained during January, the showing then being placed at $217,486. Approximately thirty dwellings are under course of construction here as the result of contracts let this month.

In February 1921, total permits reached $37,856, while for the same period in 1920 the figure was $42,972.

HUNTINGTON PARK: The building permits issued in Huntington Park during the month of February, show the record to be broken in the past twenty-three months, the shortest month of the year coming up with a total aggregate valuation of $196,785. There were ninety permits issued during the month, as against seventy-six in January, last, with a total valuation of $188,595. At these figures for the remainder of the year, the total valuation will run up close to $1,000,000 more than last year.

VENTURA: The total of building permits issued in the city of Ventura for February was $93,725 and does not include quite an amount of building that is going on just outside the city limits. The City Clerk's office was open twenty days during the month, and on eighteen days thirty-nine permits were issued.

This is an average of $5000 per day for construction. In February, 1922, permits were issued for only $16,500. However, February, 1923, does not compare with the first month of this year, when permits amounting to $223,050 were issued.

A new ward school, a business block and five garages accounted for that total.

CORONA: The year 1922, from figures secured from City Clerk Mason Terpening, show a 23 per cent increase over that of 1921, while for the first two months of 1923 a remarkable increase is noted over the entire twelve months of 1922. There has already been 34 per cent increase noted for the first two months of this year, and at the present rate this will be increased to 204 per cent at the close of 1923.

San Diego: San Diego's building record for the first two months of 1923 is more than $175,000 ahead of the same period last year, it was announced by the city building department today, when February figures were made public. The total for the two months is $1,205,500. The value of permits for February, 1923, was $673,350, compared with a little more than $500,000 for the corresponding month last year. The former figure constitutes a record for that month of the year.

Total permits during February this year were 403, of which 137 were for residences valued at $353,250. For the same month last year 308 permits were issued, including 123 for residences.

Whittier: During February ninety-six building permits, amounting to $471,521, were issued, the largest record in the history of the city. The largest month in 1922 was August, when the record was $324,750, for sixty permits. Permits for February include high school buildings, residences, apartment-houses, garages.

South Pasadena: February building permits reached a total of $256,000, the highest record in the history of the community. During this period there were forty-two permits issued, of which 35 were for residences. There were sixteen single-family dwellings, averaging $5000 in cost, started during the month, and nineteen flats, averaging $9000 each.

TO CIRCULATE HOME IDEAS

New ideas for home building which have originated in California during the last few months will be circulated to the entire nation through the medium of the sixteenth annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards which will meet in Cleveland, June 27 to 30. The fact that California ideas are to be circulated among the realtors who will attend the meeting is assumed by the announcement of the association which states that the arrangements for a booth have already been made.

All classes of building material used in the construction of both residential and commercial buildings will be on display and prospective home builders seeking education on the construction, furnishing and equipment of buildings will be invited to the exposition.

The leaders in real estate and construction in the United States and Canada will attend the convention and exposition, H. R. Van De Bee, chairman of the attendance committee of the Cleveland Real Estate Board says. More than 7500 are expected and all rooms in Cleveland hotels have been reserved for the convention dates.

Speakers of national prominence will address the convention sessions, at which considerable time will be devoted to discussing the country's building necessities for the next year.

The exposition itself will occupy both floors of Cleveland's new $8,000,000 Public Auditorium, which has a seating capacity of 12,000.

The exposition manager is Tom Convey with a committee of the following real estate leaders: M. G. Gould, W. J. Van Aken, James G. Bingham, Vance Stewart and Claude W. Shimmon.

salesmen from New York, Joaquin Villodas and W. H. Ward. They have been traveling in South American countries many years, and say that the increase in imports from the United States the past two years is remarkable. They estimate that more than half the imports now are from the United States. They also say that German exporters are accepting large orders and failing to fill them, which makes a business condition that is very hard to meet, as the importers are in constant expectation of the German orders being filled and will not give new orders for fear of being overstocked.

They also say that commercial ratings are entirely unreliable and they suggest co-operation through the different commercial chambers to relieve this condition.

CITY'S PROGRESS TOLD TO BUILDING OWNERS

Bond Man Describes Expansion of Business Center and Increase of Real Estate Values

One of the principal speakers at the recent conference of building owners and managers, held in Los Angeles was George R. Martin, vice-president of the Security Company, Los Angeles, and prominent bond man of the city. In his talk Mr. Martin described to building owners, assembled from all parts of the West, the growth of Los Angeles' business center, and of the erection of the great business buildings which now form a part of the city's skyline. Mr. Martin said, in part:

"To the uninitiated Los Angeles is the puzzle city of America. Outside of California the causes of her stupendous growth and prosperity since the war are an unsolved riddle. In California and to those who come within her gates for any length of time, her incomparable success is no riddle and holds no mysteries.

"There is but one answer and it is as old as industrial life in America, namely—cheap power, free labor market, climate, adequate water supply, accessibility to the most basic resources, superior rail and water transportation, and available capital for investment. These in different combinations have been the contributing factors to the population and industrial growth of our Eastern cities but never before have they been so favorably and opportunely assembled to the resulting benefit of one locality as in Los Angeles.

"Steadily, constantly, irresistibly, for one or more or all of these reasons, the tide of population—a population with cash in pocket—is moving, pushing from the most prosperous population and industrial centers of the East and South and Middle West to Southern California, and as steadily, constantly, and irresistibly is the tide of industry pushing in the same direction. Either the Eastern manufacturer must become likewise a Western manufacturer or he must compete in the West in the future with the Western manufacturer.

Increasing freight rates, the insufferable problems of distribution due more particularly to the uncertainties of prompt and efficient transportation, are each accelerating this remarkable shift of industry to the Pacific Coast.

With this brief word of summary of the causes of Los Angeles, development for a background, let us turn to one of the outstanding phases of that development, one in which you as building owners and building managers are more deeply interested—the growth of the city's business area, its office building construction, and how it has been financed.

FIRST BIG BUILDING

"The first four-story building in Los Angeles was the Nadeau Hotel at First and Spring streets and while the central business district continued to move southward it took nearly a century to reach what is now Fourth street.

"In 1900 Seventh street was still in the country and when eight years later, Hamburger's built their huge building on Eighth street covering the block between Broadway and Hill streets, the store was labeled or libeled "Hamburgers' Folly." As late even as 1916 when Robinson's moved from North Broadway to Seventh and Grand, doubting business men still were in evidence and not brave enough to believe the store could possibly succeed in its new location.

"As the new Chamber of Commerce building, to be erected still further south on Twelfth street between Broadway and Hill streets, will be, when completed, the fartherest southern outpost of our present office development, so fifteen years ago and seven years ago, Hamburger's and Robinson's stores were the most southern outposts of our retail mercantile development.

BUSINESS CENTER SHIFTS

"The shift of the principal retail business district from north of Fourth street to the Broadway and Seventh street district within a period of ten years followed by an amazing construction program of office buildings which followed closely in its wake is but the fulfilling of the prophesy which hovers over every American city—that the mercantile stores will move in the direction of the best resident sections.

"Ninety per cent of Los Angeles' high class retail buyers live in Westerly Los Angeles. Probably 90 per cent of the city's wealth is situated in that locality.

"In 1912 when this expansion of the business district was at its height the number of business building permits for the year was sixty-nine. Three years later it dropped to thirteen and in 1918, the war year, a new low point was reached—only nine business buildings being constructed during that year.

Beginning in 1919 a new building program began, fifteen permits being applied for during the year, valued at $3,551,080. In 1920, thirty permits valued at $10,257,105 and in 1921, thirty-two permits valued at $6,591,635 were issued while last year forty-eight permits valued at $14,468,940 were issued. In a decade of time this city constructed 322 business buildings valued at $59,898,288, or an average per year of twenty-nine buildings valued at $5,445,293.

VALUES SHOW GAIN

Some idea of the enhancement in business realty values during this period is reflected in the records in the office of the County Assessor, which place the value of the land and buildings in the business district of Los Angeles in excess of $600,000,000. The valuation of Los Angeles' business district has doubled itself in ten years.

This increase in realty values of downtown business property may be further illustrated with two conspicuous examples. The southwest corner of Seventh and Broadway was bought for $18,000 in 1890—thirty-three years ago. This property with the lot adjoining was recently leased for $125,000 a year or a total for the ninety-nine-year lease of $12,375,000. The block of land bounded on the north by Sixth street, south by Seventh street, running from Broadway to Hill, belonging to St. Vincent College, was sold to a local syndicate for $100,000. Today it is the most valuable block in the entire city and the ground without improvements is worth more than $10,000,000.

Mr. Martin expressed the opinion that the height limit of 150 feet, imposed by ordinance upon buildings, has had the effect of forcing the business district to expand, with resultant benefits to traffic, and has reduced the cost of maintenance and operation of big buildings.

AT SPRING AND FIFTH

"The first fine group of office buildings to be erected in Los Angeles was at the corner of Fifth and Spring streets, the Security Bank Building, the Title Insurance Building, the Alexandria Hotel and the Citizens' National Bank Building. To the east at Fifth and Main, the Rosslyn Hotel was constructed, to the south at Spring and Sixth the Merchants' National Bank Building and the Trust and Savings Bank Building, and to the west at Fifth and Broadway the Metropolitan Building and the Title Guarantee Building. All of these buildings were put up during the years of 1909 to 1915.

"Since the war there has been constructed on Fifth, Sixth, Seventh and Eighth streets such splendid business and office buildings as the Fifth Street Store and the Pacific Mutual Life, the Pacific Finance, the Sun Drug Company, the Pantages, the Junior Orpheum, the Hillstreet Theater, the Loew's State and the Grauman's Metropolitan Theater buildings.

"All the buildings mentioned are on corners. The corners in the enlarged business area were the first to be improved. When the extension of Fifth street has been made through Normal Hill, the southwest corner of Bunker Hill, giving the business district another through street besides Seventh street to Northwest Los Angeles, a number of undesirable buildings between the corners on Seventh, Sixth, Fifth and Fourth streets will be required to give way to more substantial buildings. The Fifth street improvement is expected also to back up the business district to Fourth again and possibly to Third, especially on Broadway and Hill streets. The increasing commercial importance of both Fifth and Sixth streets is being reflected today in increasing rentals for new leases that are being made in this district."

FINANCING METHODS

Mr. Martin then told of the financing and construction of the Biltmore Hotel and the great stadium as Exposition Park, both of which were accomplished through the action of public-spirited business men of the city.

He then told of the growing popularity of the long-term ground lease in lieu of outright purchase of property for big commercial structures, but he pointed out some of the dangers of the former method where the financing of the building is arranged through a bond issue. It is of considerable importance, Mr. Martin said, that buildings covered by long-term bond issues be erected under a corporate form, rather than by individual owners, since if this is done holders are more fully protected, for in case of death of an individual who has incurred the liability of a large bond issue, other liabilities may take precedence over those to the holders of the bonds.

Higher standards of design and construction, greater efficiency in planning and sounder methods of financing were points strongly emphasized by Mr. Martin.

"The modern office building is the chief contribution of this commercial age to architecture, and nowhere in America can finer types of these buildings be found than in Los Angeles. This is true both in point of beauty and point of utility. In a community where the civic consciousness, due largely to the constant influx of new people, is not yet robust and coherent, you members of the local branch of your association can be congratulated on the way you have assumed your responsibilities and have directed your building operations, which are of architectural credit to this city.

"Los Angeles doubtless will be the fourth, it shall likely be the third largest city in America. A greater civic consciousness would make of it the most beautiful city in America. May your spirit of city planning and city building, your spirit of enterprise, reach the very soul of this community and, during the next few years, there will be added to our fine group of office buildings and hotels, and our library and our coliseum, now in the building, a new auditorium, a new city hall, a new city jail, a museum of art and a solution for our rapid-transit problems. May we grow big not only in numbers, but mentally, culturally and spiritually as well."

TEN HOUSES FOR TRACT

Roy Shay has started construction on ten houses to be built on McAdoo Hill in Urban Heights, the property of the Huntington Land Company, formerly known as the Wallace Ranch, and which is now being subdivided by Robert Urban. The cost of the structures will vary between $5000 and $8500 each. The sales of property in the subdivision since the opening represents a total of more than $1,250,000, according to the subdivider.

TO START ANAHEIM BUILDING

Business Structure Will be Under Way Within Two Weeks; Others Planned

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ANAHEIM, March 3.—Work will be started within the next two weeks on a new business building which is to be erected at the northwest corner of Helena and West Center streets by L. E. Shaw of Los Angeles, it was announced here today. The building will cost approximately $60,000 and will be a two-story brick structure with 100 feet frontage on Center street and a fifty-foot frontage on Helena street. Frank Benchley of Fullerton is the architect.

The first floor is to be designed for store purposes, and it was stated that Sam Seelig, well-known grocer, has secured a ten-year lease on one of the five stores which will be located in hte new building. The second floor will be divided into ten apartments.

According to plans which are now being made, additional business buildings will be erected within a short time at a cost of several thousand dollars. Plans are also being made for the construction of a large bungalow court, which will provide for twelve apartments.

In spite of the phenomenal home building program which is being carried on here, the home shortage is more acute than ever before, it is stated. Approximately two homes a day have been built here during the last two months, and it is indicated that this program will be continued throughout the year.

Builders' Questions Answered

By Southern California Chapter, Associated General Contractors of America

[With the view of rendering assistance to prospective builders and for the purpose of giving sound advice on problems arising in connection with building projects The Times has instituted this department, which will be conducted as a weekly feature. All questions should be sent to the Real Estate and Building Department, Los Angeles Times.]

Question (a:) We spent many thousands of dollars making our home beautiful and about a year ago a party built a shack across the street without even a wall in front. The place is not as good as our chicken pen. How did he get by? Don't the restrictions call for a cement wall and what can be done? (b) Another building is being erected with only light timbers for the foundation. Does not the inspection require concrete or brick walls under the house?

Answer (a:) If your lot is in the same tract or subdivision as the one across the street, you have only to look at your deed to learn what the restrictions are on the other lot. It is not likely that you are within a fire district which would prevent erection of such a building as you describe. In this case only the restrictions written in the deed for the lot will apply to it. We believe there is no city building ordinance in effect on your street and it is unusual for a restriction to call for a cement wall. (b) The city building ordinance provides as follows: "Foundations are not required for one-story buildings or for one and one-half and two-story barns, sheds and outbuildings where the second floor is to be used for storage only, but such buildings shall have a mudsill of redwood or western red cedar which must be at least 2x6 or 3x4-inch cross section.

Q.: Shall I require a bond from the contractor I have selected to build my home? I am satisfied of his ability and honesty, so hesitate to add the cost of the bond to the job.

A.: It is always considered good business to have the contractor under bond. You might be mistaken in your judgment of his integrity, under unforeseen circumstances or he might, through no fault of his own, be unable to properly complete his part of the contract.

Q.: I am having a store building erected and the contractor is making exorbitant charges for extra work due to changes and additions to the original plans. He threatens to sue for the amounts he claims. What are my rights in this case?

A.: It is impossible to say which is right without a full knowledge of the conditions under which the extra work was undertaken.

It is not at all unusual for the owner to think he is being robbed for extras on a building job. The fact is that the contractor must charge a higher rate for changes than for the same work if it had appeared in the original plans to cover the lost time and added expense of such changes.

Most contractors for that reason would be glad to know that they need never again bother with an extra on any of their work. The remedy is evidently to know what you want before calling for bids and make your changes only on paper. A little more care and study of the plans will permit all changes being made by the architect and avoid unprofitable and unsatisfactory adjustment of prices for later corrections.

Your architect should be able to pass on the fairness of the extra charges and he should have agreed on them before the work was done. If your contractor is a responsible business man and is confident he can convince a court of the fairness of his claims, we would advise that you make a careful investigation and determine if you may not be in the wrong yourself.

MANY NEW BUILDINGS PLANNED

Ontario Churches to Erect Fine Edifices; Business Properties Sold

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

Of the forty-one permits issued during the past month, only one, that to Pearson & Pearson for the new Studebaker garage at A street and Cherry avenue, at a cost of $11,500, exceeded four figures. Most of the dwelling permits called for expenditures ranging from $2000 to $5000.

With plans for many new structures now in the making, including a new edifice for the First Christian Church and one for St. George's Catholic Church, several business and industrial buildings, indications are that the completed year's total will exceed a million and a half dollars.

An important deal in real estate which forecasts further expansion of the city's business district is that reported today in which George C. Stanley, who recently sold his business building in the 400-block on North Euclid avenue for $32,000 has bought from Daniel A. Stine a building site with a frontage of 96 feet on B street and 80 feet frontage on Laurel avenue.

This property adjoins the new Campbell block on West B street and Mr. Stanley announces that he is now preparing plans for the erection in the immediate future of a two-story reinforced concrete structure. The ground floor will be occupied by four store rooms, which are reported already rented to a grocery concern, a meat market and a variety store.

A business change of interest announced last week was that in which Hugh H. Frankish sold the Men's Store, clothing and furnishings, at 200 South Euclid avenue, to Arthur A. Jackson of Glendale, who will take possession tomorrow.

READ THEIR STATEMENTS

We'd like to turn you loose among these twelve owners at Etiwanda. They would give you actual facts concerning this property in a more convincing manner than anything we could say in pages of advertising.

These men are building their fortunes at Etiwanda—they KNOW what they are talking about.

ALL ROADS LEAD TO ETIWANDA

Before buying at Etiwanda these men went up and down the State—investigated thoroughly every vineyard district in California.
And then, without hesitation, they decided upon Etiwanda.

Because: Etiwanda Vineyards are mature, producing vineyards, that pay dividends from the start! No lean years for them, waiting for their vines to begin bearing. All this preliminary expense was borne by the original owners. The vines are in full bearing now.

NON-IRRIGATED GRAPES BRING HIGH PRICES

Production costs, too, are at a minimum, for there are no costly irrigation systems to install and maintain. The high average rainfall of 20.97 inches annually over a period of 39 years eliminates the necessity of artificial irrigation.
Because Nature takes care of the irrigation, the roots of the vines penetrate deep into the subsoil, securing their supply of lime and phosphates which produce the peerless non-irrigated grape, with its high sugar-content, luscious flavor and ability to withstand transcontinental shipment in prime condition. That is why they are always in demand in the Eastern market, and command the highest prices there.

Only $400 Per Acre
For FULL-BEARING Vineyards

This is a remarkable price for full bearing vineyards in this famous district, where there never has been a crop failure—and where grapes have been produced for over a century. At $400 per acre, our terms are $100 down, balance in three years.
You will have to act quickly to get in on this property. Here is an opportunity to make yourself independent for life. Fill out the attached coupon and mail to us TODAY!

SALES METHODS ARE DISCUSSED

Realtors Tell of Requisites of Salesmanship

Personality, Courage, Industry Important Factors

Home Building, Financing Subject of Next Talk

"Requisites of Salesmen" was the subject of the lecture by L. J. Haddock of the educational committee of the Los Angeles Realty Board, given at the last meeting of the class in general real estate instruction at the University of Southern California. S. M. Cooper, another member of the committee, presided at the lecture and led the discussion.

"The first requisite of a salesman is to analyze himself with a view to eliminating the negative qualities and substituting therefor the positive," said Mr. Haddock. "The driving force of all business today is salesmanship and the salesman is the main factor in this process. Man is truly made in the image of God, and he owes it to himself and society to develop to the utmost degree all the divine attributes within himself. Man is God's masterpiece, and was made to be successful. The reason so many people receive little is because they demand little. The first requisite, therefore, is 'Man, know thyself.'

"The salesman must have a pleasing personality, but it is not only necessary to be pleasing. He must have power. 'Knowledge is power,' and in proportion as a man gains knowledge of himself and with the proposition with which he is identified, the greater is his power over others.

"'Right thinking' is an essential requisite of the salesman. In addition to being clean in physical and external appearance, he must be clean inwardly—clean mentally, morally and physically. Right thinking consists of eliminating fear thoughts through the process of substitution. That is, substituting courage thoughts and positive thoughts for the negative in each instance.

"The old formula 'K-I-S-T' still applies. The first stands for knowledge of self and the process. The second is for industry which means to be everlastingly at it. The third is for system, which means organized, intelligent effort, rather than lost motion, and the last letter is for tact, that indefinable something that enables a person to always say and do the right thing at the right time."

The next lecture in this course will be given by Charles B. Hopper, first vice-president of the Los Angeles Realty Board tomorrow night at the Realty Board Building on South Spring street, with Hervey M. Porter, chairman of the educational committee, as the presiding officer. Mr. Hopper's subject will be "How to Finance and Build Homes."

TO ERECT FIVE NEW BUILDINGS

weather, offices for principal, teachers' and emergency rest rooms, kindergarten, locker rooms and indoor play spaces or lunch rooms, together with the usual other smaller rooms and equipment.

A cheerful kindergarten room is provided adjacent to the main entrance porch, giving quick exit without disturbing other classroom units. Proper architectural emphasis has been given to the rear of the building because this will be the more often viewed elevation from York Boulevard.

Future extensions call for one-story wings designed to follow the contour of the ground and to have closed corridors somewhat after the mission type of building. Either of these wings may be used for evening entertainments or community meetings without disturbing the balance of the building.

Brick walls of red and buff texture, relieved with dark headers set in natural cement mortar and the whole embellished by the use of artificial stone window and door trim, will form the exterior finish. Economy has been carefully considered in the selection of all materials of construction and the architects, Phillips & Needham, estimate the cost to come within the appropriation of $82,000.

STORES AND APARTMENTS

Architects Allen & Hillier have just completed preliminary plans for an attractive apartment and store building to be erected at the southwest corner of Ninth and Hoover streets by Trattner & Harrison, local investors.

As designed, the building will be three stories in height, with full basement. The upper floors will contain fifty single and double apartments, while the first floor will have ten stores. The building, which will have a frontage of 135 feet on both streets, will be of class C construction, and will cost about $165,000.

Work is to be started as soon as the working drawings can be finished by the architects, and about three months will be required for the erection and completion of the structure.

An eight-room residence, designed in English style architecture is to be erected in Wilshire Crest for Bernard Hayes, Esq.

The exterior will be finished in half-timber and plaster on wire lath. It will have a shake roof and brick chimneys. There will be two tiled bathrooms, and a unit furnace system.

In the rear of the home is to be a large garden. The plans are being drafted by Staunton, Weber & Spaulding, local architects.

NEW APARTMENT HOUSE

W. L. Miller has been granted the contract to erect an apartment house on the northwest corner of Ocean View avenue and Coronado street for Doctor John H. Gayle. The structure will house fifty rooms and twenty-four apartments. It wil cost in the neighborhood of $52,500.

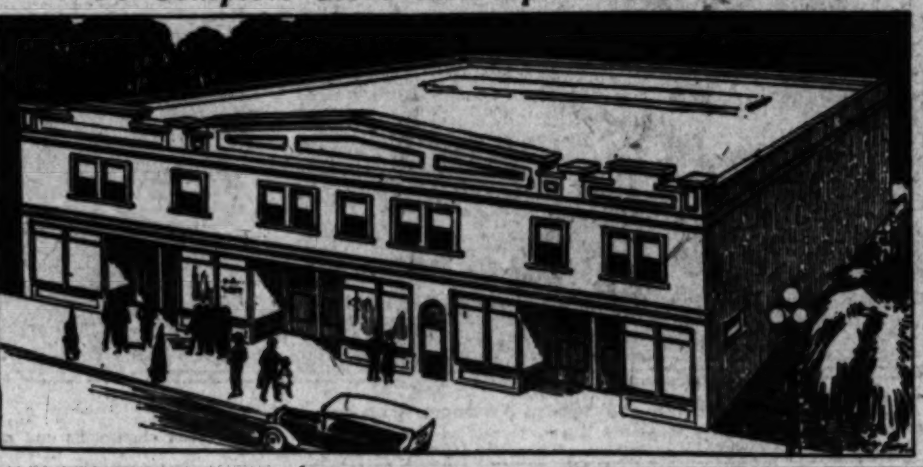
A reproduction of Coso Hot Springs, Inyo county, may be seen at 544 South Hill street. The storeroom at this place has been leased by F. J. Sanders, manager of the springs for five years.

START TWO-STORY BUSINESS BLOCK

To Complete Store and Apartment in Month



CONSTRUCTION started last week on a five-store, twelve-flat stucco and cement building on Central avenue, between Sixty-seventh street and Sixty-eighth street, in Goodyear Park. A. Mittelman, local furniture dealer, is the owner. Following completion of this building, Mr. Mittelman announces he will start a second store building fronting Central avenue, in this district.

The building now under way is 80x100 feet. It is to be ready for occupancy within thirty days. It is the first two-story store building to be built in Goodyear Park.

This tract was placed on the market October 1 and since that time, according to the DeWitt-Blair Realty Company, $2,700,000 worth of homesites and business sites have been sold.

FACT AND COMMENT

dents; it will turn Slauson avenue into another Alameda street.

A Serious Flaw

All of these arguments might be sound were it not for the fact that one of the chief concessions made by the Santa Fe was the elimination of daylight switching on Slauson avenue. This means that, with the line extended to the harbor, there will be considerably less rail traffic on Slauson than there is at the present time. The Santa Fe line to the harbor will be a new one; it will have to develop its own business, in competition with the railroads already serving the harbor, and there is little likelihood that the railroad will run enough trains to the harbor to seriously disrupt traffic. And the argument that Slauson avenue is likely to be converted into another Alameda street is absurd on the face of it, for with daylight switching eliminated, and with few harbor trains running either day or night, the Alameda-street argument falls flat.

"The shame and pity of it is the whole thing is so absolutely unnecessary—as the Santa Fe can and should get to the harbor by a direct north and south route. There is no need for it to zigzag its transcontinental freight five miles west on Slauson avenue and then five miles back again down at the harbor," says the final paragraph of this illuminating circular.

Certainly it could, in fact, it could route its harbor line any number of ways, for that matter, but such a routing as is suggested by the author or authors of the circular would involve an expenditure on the part of the railroad of about $18,000,000. Is there any reason for penalizing the Santa Fe so heavily when it can use the Slauson-avenue line, already constructed, with so little inconvenience and danger to the public?

If those who are so actively opposing the project would give a little disinterested thought to the proposition they would voluntarily withdraw the petitions now begging on the public streets for signatures. If they continue their present policy, and force the unnecessary expense of an election upon the public, it is safe to say that they will receive the rebuke that they deserve at the polls.

The Southland Prospers

Los Angeles has made a flying start toward a new record building year, and other communities of the Southland, not to be outdone by the bigger city, are coming forward with records of their own which are no less astonishing, and no less indicative of the tremendous forward strides which are being taken by all of Southern California.

In many of the communities of Southern California a new high point for building activity was reached during February; there were few instances where February fell lower than second highest month. This condition is the more remarkable when it is considered that normally building activity does not get into full swing until the early summer months, even in this section of the country, where winter weather is not a serious deterrent to construction work.

According to reliable estimates, Southern California established a building record of a quarter of a billion during 1922, and early estimates this year gave this flourishing territory a rocrd for 1923 equal to or greater than that of last year. It would seem from present indications that the 1922 record is to be exceeded by a very liberal margin indeed, unless the unforeseen happens, and 1923 will go down in the annals of building history as one of the best of all years.

New Building at Fresno to House Doctors

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

FRESNO, March 3.—Construction of a two-story and basement building for physicians at the northwest corner of Van Ness avenue and Calaveras street, to cost about $125,000, will start as soon as plans can be prepared, Dr. George H. Sciaroni, owner of the property, has announced. The site is now occupied by a two-story residence.

Offices of the owner and an emergency hospital will occupy the first floor of the building. The second floor will be leased to physicians for offices and the basement will be specially equipped for the needs of medical practitioners.

The exterior will be in the modernized Spanish style, with a colored tile roof. The general design will minimize the hospital appearance and emphasize the office features of the building.

Realty Business Continues Without Cessation

Will Open Sewer Bids on Sewer in Two Weeks

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ALHAMBRA, March 3. — On the first day of March, 15 building permits were issued here with a valuation of $56,950. These included a $12,000 store building at Main and Fremont streets to be erected by the owner, P. M. Julius. It will have six floors.

Several houses have been started in the Emery Park tract, which are being built for ex-service men under the State Farm and Home Purchase Act. It is expected that more than thirty in all will be erected, as warrants have already been issued for the purchases.

SALES REPORTED

Real estate activity has been marked in all sections of the city during the past week, the publicity campaign now being carried on by the Alhambra Club showing its effects in interest in all forms of property. McKeever & Kiler report the sale of the southwest corner of Main and Curtis streets, owned by George W. Bourne, to Thomas C. Gould, City Attorney of Alhambra. The lot has a frontage of 61 feet on Main and a depth of 150 feet, and included a residence. A business building will probably be erected on the property in the near future.

Another sale has been announced by the same firm covering the vacant lot north of the new Weber Building at Garfield and Main streets. The property was owned by F. Max Teter, and was sold to Christian F. Hartke of Los Angeles, who intends to erect a modern store and office building. The consideration was $10,000. The lot has a fifty-foot frontage and a depth of ninety feet. The Rohmer Building at 15-17 West Main street, consisting of three stores, was sold this week by the owner, H. H. Rohmer, to an Alhambra investor.

ANNOUNCE NEW FIRM

A new firm entering the local real estate field is McIntosh & Samter. F. J. McIntosh was formerly secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and later was associated with Glidden & Pomeroy, realtors. Mr. Samter is from Hollywood. This firm reports the sale of the one-story store building at 1404-6 West Main street to a Los Angeles investor, Charles Goetz. The property was owned by Thomas Naylor.

Bids for the construction of the new trunk line sewers will be opened the 19th inst., it was declared at the last meeting of the City Commission. Plans for the system have already been formally approved by the State Board of Health and by the city officials and no time will be lost in starting the actual work.

In the past twenty-one years they have handled in Los Angeles and vicinity a number of real estate subdivisions. During the past few months they have sold over $4,000,000 worth of lots in eight tracts along Wilshire Boulevard. They conduct eight branch offices in the western part of Los Angeles.

Ordinance to Hold Building Up Discarded

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BAKERSFIELD, March 3.—The City Council of Bakersfield has rejected a proposal to pass an emergency ordinance to prohibit the erection of buildings in residential districts undesirable to the dwellers in the vicinity.

City Attorney E. F. Brittan framed such an ordinance after a delegation of West Nineteenth-street residents called upon the Council for action against the construction of a store building in the "exclusive" home district. When it was found that the proposed building was to cost in the neighborhood of $20,000 and that it would conform to the general tone of the surrounding structures, the objections were withdrawn and the proposed ordinance was relegated to the city incinerator.

Hancock Park comprises the only remaining residential district in the city reserved exclusively for homes of the highest type.

That this fact is appreciated by families of refinement, is evidenced in the homes which they have erected as well as in the property which they have purchased.

The limited area embraced by Hancock Park has created a noteworthy demand from those who desire the ideal location for a permanent homesite.

RECORD DEAL FOR VAN NUYS

Hitchcock Sale Sets New High Price for District

Homes, Business Buildings Going Up Rapidly

Boulevard Lighting System to Be Rehabilitated

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VAN NUYS, March 3.—The sale this week of a ten-acre walnut ranch on Valerior street, the Lucien Hitchcock place, to Ralph R. Russell, formerly an Imperial Valley merchant, for $25,000 sets a new high mark for Van Nuys realty.

The Hitchcock place is improved with a fine residence and other modern buildings and will be occupied by the new owner as a home. The Hitchcocks will move to Pasadena. The ranch is one of the most desirable places and, although in the city limits, is regarded as farm property.

Van Nuys realty dealers all report unusual activity in their line and a growing scarcity of residence and building lots in the townsite proper. As a matter of fact, business lots are at a premium while residence lots on desirable streets are almost impossible to secure. Prices have jumped amazingly within the last few months. It is also noticeable that a large majority of the sales made are not for speculation but for building purposes and never in the history of Van Nuys has there been such building activity as at present.

HOMES IN NEW TRACT

Already plans are being made for building a number of homes in the new West Van Nuys addition, and it is believed that the growth of the town in that direction will be rapid.

The contract has been let for the new Nordvold block in the business district, with a frontage of 100 feet on Sherman Way. The first floor, which will have four store rooms, has already been leased while the eight offices and suites on the second floor front are practically all under lease. The remainder of the building will be made into apartments.

Reports from the church organ factory of the Robert Morton Company here are to the effect that it has orders booked for its production for six months ahead.

Prior to the war Van Nuys, or rather the San Fernando Valley boulevards in the Van Nuys district, were noted for their ornamental lights and brilliant lighting along the way for miles. With the war-time restrictions on fuel the lighting system, save in the town, was abandoned and has not been in use since. Now, however, residents all along North, West, East and South Sherman Way and Ventura Boulevard are moving to have the system rehabilitated, and petitions are being prepared to call for the re-establishing of assessment districts to pay for the

LAGUNA BEACH TO HAVE NEW BUILDING

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LAGUNA BEACH, March 3.—Work is about to be started on the bank building to be erected, opposite the postoffice by the Yoch Company. N. E. West, manager of the Yoch Company, has let the contract to R. C. McMillan, Santa Ana contractor.

The plans for the building were drawn by Los Angeles architects, Hunt & Burns. Sumner Hunt will personally supervise the execution of his plans and specifications.

The building will have three units besides the bank and the estimated cost will be between $18,000 and $20,000. This is the first construction of brick and reinforced concrete to be built in Laguna. The exterior is to be plaster and stucco.

NEW BOARDS JOIN STATE ASSOCIATION

Latest to join the ranks of the boards of realtors, include the Ontario-Upland, Compton, Long Beach, Sacramento, and the Richmond and Contra Costa real estate boards. They have changed their name to "Board of Realtors" because every member of the board is a realtor—that is, he is a member of a board that is affiliated with the California Real Estate Association, and the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

The Contra Costa Real Estate Board was formed at Martinez in June, 1921 by Vice-pres. C. A. Ricks, of the California Real Estate Association. The Richmond Real Estate Board was organized in November. Now the two boards have combined as one county unit, to be known as the Contra Costa Board of Realtors.

Vice-pres. Ricks plans to form a county board of realtors in Solano county, and will also visit the towns of Manteca and Tracy with a view to organizing the realty brokers.

HIGHWAY UNIT IS FINISHED

Six-Mile Stretch Between Los Angeles and San Diego Opened to Public

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ESCONDIDO, March 3.—Completed at a total cost of $239,000 the Poway-Miramar unit of the inland highway between San Diego and Los Angeles, via Escondido and Riverside, comprising six miles of paving, was opened to public travel today, the occasion being celebrated at the Dragamon grove of live oaks, at the foot of the north grade of Poway Mountain, under the auspices of the Escondido Chamber of Commerce, with representatives present from many of the commercial organizations of Los Angeles, Riverside and San Diego counties.

Stress was laid upon the fact that provision has been made in the recently voted bond issue for the paving of most of the remaining twenty-one miles of the inland highway to a connection with the Riverside county system of paved roads, eight miles north of Fallbrook, at an estimated cost, including the bridge over the San Luis Rey River, of $720,000.

The installation of the six miles of paving has been accomplished at an expenditure of $239,470, of which $150,000 is being raised by direct taxation. The width of the paving is eighteen feet, depth five inches; width of paving through saddle of mountain, twenty-four feet; depth of cut, thirty-five feet; maximum grade, south side, 5 per cent; north side, 6 per cent.

Of the remaining twenty-one miles to be paved three miles are between Escondido and Lake Hodges Station, ten between Buena and Bonsall and eight between Fallbrook and the Riverside county line.

FIRST UNIT OF LARGE TRACT NEARLY SOLD

Property to the value of more than $400,000 has been sold in Cahuenga Park since the Ventura Boulevard tract was first opened three months ago, according to the subdividers. The owners of Cahuenga Park are preparing to open a second unit in a very short time.

The first unit of Cahuenga Park is about one-fifth of the entire tract of 1100 acres, according to C. C. Albright, of Bundy & Albright, owners of the tract. It is expected that selling operations will last for at least two years.

Work on improvements is progressing rapidly. Several of the streets are nearing completion, and water is already at the tract. Gas and electricity will soon be available.

RANCHO SANTA FE AN UNUSUAL UNDERTAKING

New Colonization Project Embodies Combination of Material and Aesthetic Attractions

Have you ever thought how delightful it would be to live in a community where there was not one jarring note of architecture or landscape, where there was no apparent bad taste, where there was no poverty or dirt or squalor; where, on the other hand; new surprises of beauty and charm confronted one at every turn, where the restfulness of an exclusive suburb prevailed within easy reach of urban entertainments and where, most important of all, every citizen was not only prosperous, but assured against failure?

Have you ever, in short, repeated Omar Khayyam's yearning to wreck the sorry scheme of things entire and then remold it nearer to the heart's desire, and sighed at the thought that it was impossible?

Well, that dream is coming true at Rancho Santa Fe, in one of the most beautiful valleys in Southern California. There a magic town with still more magical purlieus is being raised from the ground, not by the wand of a genie, but through the vision of a genius. It is a place which at sight will thrill the heart of the artist or the poet—or the real estate speculator. But the latter is absolutely barred under the unique plan under which this seemingly perfect project is being worked out. For no man can buy land there as a speculation—it must be improved and developed at once. No man can buy there unless he has ample means for developing his property after he gets it. No man who buys property there will be permitted to improve it in any way which is not in harmony with the beautiful picture the whole valley presents, and every man who acquires holdings there must develop them along lines which virtually underwrite his success and make failure as impossible as the application of banking principles to a farming and fruit-raising enterprise under ideal conditions can make it.

OPENS MARCH 1

Rancho Santa Fe is, in fact, different from any other colonization or development undertaking ever seen in California. It is a mingling of sentiment and business and the result of twelve years of pondering by officials of the Santa Fe railway. They finally decided to create there a community which would be, first of all, a place of success and prosperity for its inhabitants, but also would serve as a monument to the vision and courage of California's youth; a place which would not merely have a Spanish arch here and a Spanish balcony there, wedged in between other structures either garishly conflicting or utterly mongrel in architecture, but would be so perfectly Spanish in every slightest detail that artists and students and beauty-lovers from far and near would be drawn to it by the perfect harmony of line and color in a setting in which every rippling road and winding path seems leading and calling to beauty and romance. And that is the dream which is nearing fulfillment so rapidly that the hotel, La Mirada, was opened to the public the 1st inst.

Twelve years ago the Santa Fe railroad acquired Rancho San Dieguito, 100 miles south of Los Angeles, twenty-five miles north of San Diego and five miles from the lovely seaside resort of Del Mar. The rancho was an immense old Spanish land grant on which the original adobe ranch buildings, with walls three feet thick, still stand in the shelter of pepper trees as big as ancient elms. It was redolent with history and radiant with beauty, but the railroad company first assigned it the prosaic task of producing railroad ties. Great groves of eucalyptus trees were set out, and now crown a hundred hills with graceful beauty, while their tonic fragrance is swept through the valley by winds from mountains and sea. But long before the trees were grown the company learned that other woods would be better for ties, and sought other uses for the beautiful rancho. A year ago it sent L. G. Sinnard, of San Francisco, once head of colonization work for the Southern Pacific and also known for his work at Los Molinos, Sacramento Valley, and for laying out the Atascadero project to the rancho, And when Sinnard saw it he began to plan for a community organized on a more perfect plan than had ever before been achieved.

THE BANKING PLAN

Mr. Sinnard was a student of colonization projects. He knew every mistake made in them. The chief one, he decided, was selling to people incapable of properly developing their purchases. The next was in letting anybody in, which produced uncongenial and inharmonious neighborhoods. The third was letting people make mistakes with their property—do things which invited failure. So he worked for a plan to virtually underwrite success. He didn't want one man to come in, stay a year or two and then be forced to sell. He wanted every colonist to prosper so and become so fond of his surroundings that he would remain there as a permanent source of business for the railroad.

The first step was to analyze the soil and subsoil. The next to map every foot of arable and nonarable land and indicate what crops could be grown on each tract to assure success. The next was to put restrictions in effect as never before had been tried in California—that no man could buy unless he also had funds for proper development in accordance with the soil tests and investigations of the company; that no one could buy without developing at once and that all buildings erected must have the approval of the company's architect. In some choice locations nothing less than $10,000 or $15,000 homes can be built, and nothing less than a $3000 residence anywhere in the valley. The theory is that while the great organization backing the project is willing enough to give long terms to buyers, it must act just as a bank lending them money. It knows the valley is as frostless as any in Southern California, it knows what the soil can do, it knows that men with sufficient capital working in co-operation with the staff of agricultural and horticultural experts it will provide out and also to increasing volume vegetables, especially tables, for the And since the latter, speculation, is its has the right to inhabitants as will tiful valley of and beauty.

GREATEST YEAR IS EXPECTATION

Huntington Park Will Have New Building Record

Several Churches Planning to Erect Homes

Business Blocks Will Also be Started Soon

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

HUNTINGTON PARK, March 3.—The present year promises to surpass anything in the way of building operations that has ever been experienced in one year in Huntington Park, and it is predicted that by the end of the year, the total valuation in building permits will be at least $1,000,000 in excess of the record made during 1922.

Although the building permits and valuations are running ahead of last year, by thousands of dollars, it is known that several large permits are to be taken out within the next few months.

Recently the Elks lodge announced that it would begin the erection, during the spring, of a new clubhouse, the contract having already been let at figures around [illegible]. The Southern California Telephone Company recently purchased three lots in this city with the announcement that during the year it would begin the erection of an exchange building which will take care of the business in this section.

The S. H. Kress company some time ago purchased a prominent site on which the Huntington Park Hospital is at present located, and the announcement has been made that it will erect either a two or three-story building at this corner within the year, while it is reported that the owner of the [illegible] building will also erect a building.

The First Baptist Church congregation expects to break ground on Easter Sunday for the foundation of the first unit of the new church building which it is said, will involve an expenditure of approximately [illegible] when all the units are completed. The Jack Riley [illegible] is another new structure that will be erected during the present year. Work is to begin, it is understood, within the next few weeks.

The Masons are also contemplating the erection of a new temple during the present year, which will show an expenditure of thousands of dollars.

St. Clement's Episcopal Church has just started moving the present church building to their new location at Saturn and Ruby street, and as soon as the bluilding is located on the ground, construction on first unit of the new parish hall will be started. It is also expected that the St. Luke's Lutheran congregation will begin work of the erection of a church home during the present year, as they have recently purchased a lot on which to erect the building.

Dr. J. H. Turner, owner of the Huntington Park Hospital, has started the erection of new additions to the buildings at Malabar and Irvington, and later will remove the buildings on the present location to that point. When this work is completed, the hospital buildings will make this one of the largest institutions of the kind to be found in all Southern California, as well as one of the most modern.

Members of the St. Mathias Catholic Church are contemplating the erection of a school building on their church property, which, it is understood, will contain four rooms when completed. It is said the work on this will be started after the Eastren season. The Ringo Building is another new structure that will be erected during the coming summer, this building to be a two-story business block on South Pacific Boulevard.

William Todd, contractor, has started the erection of his own building at 525 South Pacific Boulevard. The new building, which will be a business block, will be of brick, two stories high. The first floor will contain two modern storerooms, and the second floor will be arranged for four apartments. The building will occupy a lot which in dimensions will be 38 by 65 feet. It is expected to have the new structure completed by June 1.

To Approve Thirtieth Map of Maywood Soon

The map of the thirtieth subdivision of Maywood property will be accepted for record within a few days, according to R. E. Chadwick, sales manager for Maywood properties. This new offering will include about 600 business and residence lots.

It will be just across the street from the subdivision now being closed out, and will be ready for sale soon.

Notwithstanding the fact that sales of Maywood property have been phenomenal, February has been a banner month, according to Mr. Chadwick.

"We have contracted for our month's quota of homes and have closed business on our books in excess of $200,000," he said.

TO BE ONE OF FINEST IN COUNTRY

New Pasadena Church to Cost About $700,000 Now Under Construction

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, March 3.—Few churches in the country will surpass the new First Methodist Church of Pasadena, now under construction, in size or beauty. Built in the Gothic style of manufactured stone, it will cost approximately $700,000 and will seat 2000 in the main auditorium. An ideal site was chosen for the edifice, with a frontage of 158 feet on East Colorado street and a depth of 450 feet on Oakland avenue.

In addition to the main auditorium, other departments will include a chapel seating 400, an administration building, a Sunday-school assembly room seating 100, a dining-room, a large kitchen, primary, intermediate and senior rooms, and a mothers' room. The cloister garden, an open court 49 by 103 feet, will be surrounded by covered arcades connecting the different departments of the Sunday-school.

The building, which is three stories high, will be surmounted by a tall Gothic steeple and will have beautiful stained-glass windows. The interior of the building will be finished in dark oak. Thomas B. Parker is the architect in charge of the construction.

The First Methodist Church is one of the oldest in the city, growing from a congregation of eleven members in 1875 to its present membership of 2500. The old church, still in use, is located at East Colorado street and Marengo avenue. Rev. Merle N. Smith is the pastor.

HULL AS A WOOL MARKET

Hull has been rapidly gaining prominence as a wool port, according to Consul John H. Grout. Its imports of wool have risen from 17,374,200 pounds in 1920 to 217,147,900 in 1922. The Hull wool sheds now accommodate 234,000 bales. Hull's proximity to Midland manufacturers, as well as its railway facilities for delivery are quite an advantage in its favor. Auction sales, attended by both domestic and foreign buyers, are being held here regularly.

TO SUBDIVIDE HEWES RANCH

Large Acreage Near Orange Will be Marketed

Property Held by Family for Over Forty Years

Tracts to Share in Irrigation and Water Companies

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ORANGE, March 3.—Marking the passing of another "landed estate" of pioneer California and the division into small ranches and homesites individually owned, of a tract of valuable land purchased in 1881 and developed since that time into highly productive citrus orchards, the David Hewes ranch, situated three miles east of Orange and five miles northeast of Santa Ana, is now being subdivided.

Announcement of this ranch subdivision, the largest in Orange county's history, has created a great deal of interest. The ranch is situated in the foothill district, in the heart of the great Valencia orange and lemon belt of Orange county.

The sale is being conducted by D. Eyman Huff, well-known citrus man and vice-president and general manager of the David Hewes Realty Corporation, which he organized and which took control of the property two years ago. For six years previous to that time Mr. Huff had been manager of the estate for the heirs, taking the post following the death of the late David Hewes, who purchased the tract as a sheep ranch forty-two years ago and developed it into one of the beauty spots of the territory as well as one of its most productive ranches.

There are 675 acres in the ranch, nearly all set to producing Valencia orange and lemon trees. Shares in a double water supply and in the ranch's private packing-house accompany each acre of land sold, according to Mr. Huff, who declares the selling prices are such that either for speculation or as homesites the parcels offer very attractive features.

OWNER TO RETIRE

The subdivision was decided upon by the board of directors following out the recommendation of Mr. Huff, principal stockholder in the company, who has felt for some time that community interests made division of the large holding into a number of individual home sites advisable, and who feels that the time has now arrived when this ultimate parceling of the tract could be advantageously consummated to the advantage of all concerned. A factor also undoubtedly was Mr. Huff's desire for a rest after twenty-five years of arduous work and painstaking effort in the citrus business, during the last eight years of which he finished the development which David Hewes had so well carried on up to the time of his death.

Mr. Huff himself has selected and will retain a portion of the ranch as his home, and a total of fifty or sixty parcels will result from the subdivision, providing home places amid the fine groves for as many families. New county roads are being opened throughout the property to provide easy means of access to all tracts.

Shares of stock in the Santa Ana Valley Irrigation Company and the David Hewes Mutual Water Company accompany each tract of land sold, also shares in the David Hewes Citrus Association, whose packing-house on the tract is capable of packing the crop from 1000 acres of full-bearing trees.

Provision has been made for caring for tracts purchased by nonresidents until such time as they may want to build and make their homes upon the ranch, it is announced, and this feature will undoubtedly be taken advantage of by those who purchase for speculation. A tract office is being maintained at the ranch office east of Orange.

NEW HOMES IN TRACT

Several houses have been started on Grimes's Orchard Acres, some of them now almost completed. The homes now under construction range in cost from $3500 to $7500. A fine home on one of the Ventura Boulevard lots has been started by I. H. White of Blackfoot, Idaho. Work on the improvements is progressing rapidly. The street grading work in the tract will soon be finished, and water, gas, electricity and curbs will be installed in a short time, according to owners of the property.

First Memorial Tree Along Highway Planted by Former Governor Sproul

The interest of the women of Southern California in the Mulholland Skyline Drive as well as the interest of the people of Hollywood was shown last week when former Gov. William C. Sproul of Pennsylvania, a good roads advocate planted the first memorial tree at the intersection of Benedict Canyon Road and the Mulholland Skyline Drive.

The Woman's Club of Hollywood was represented by Mrs. Alfred L. Bartlett and by Mrs. Harry G. Bentham, one of the vice-presidents of the organization.

Mrs. Bartlett made an address at the luncheon, held at the Hollywood Country Club preceding the tree-planting ceremonies. Led off by a talk by Dr. R. B. Von KleinSmid, president of the University of Southern California, the speakers devoted themselves to reminiscences about the recent past of Southern California. Zest was given to the subject by an address by Col. H. C. Haskins, a Grand Army veteran, who is vice-president of the Pennsylvania State Society and who has lived in Southern California for over thirty years. Mrs. Bartlett devoted her address to the Hollywood of twelve or fifteen years ago.

The tree planted by Gov. Sproul will be carefully tended and protected by a fence and placarded by a bronze tablet. Other trees as well as mementoes will be placed along the eighteen miles of mountain highway.

CLUB GETS DEEDS FOR HOUSE SITE

La Habra Women Sell Lots to Secure Funds for New Building and Site

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LA HABRA, March 3. — The Woman's Club of La Habra yesterday received the deeds to the plot of ground to be used as a club site and park. This was the gift of J. H. Walker and E. C. Beck, owners of the La Habra Park Square, a tract of forty-three lots, of which the Woman's Club had the sales management. The lots have all been sold and several high-class residences have been built or are in course of construction.

The value to the club of this gift with the commissions received amounts to $12,000. Plans and specifications are being prepared for a $20,000 clubhouse, which the club will erect this coming year. The site is located north of the town on what was the C. Clements walnut orchard. The park has several handsome trees, which will be used in the beautifying of the clubhouse location.

Another realty project launched here this week includes the forty acres on the south side of the valley for subdivision into town lots. The acreage is the west half of the Maud Kellerman ranch, and was purchased by G. W. Fickel of Whittier from Jacob Stein of Fullerton, who recently bought the property from Mrs. Kellerman. The property is just south of the town and will be the most distant ranch to be subdivided. It lies between Hiatt and Cypress streets, on the south side of Ocean avenue. Twenty acres will be opened at once.

Grover McClain, who recently arrived here from Bombay, India, has purchased the Banning Siemen citrus ranch, located on the corner of the State highway and Fullerton road. The purchase price for five acres was $20,000.

TO ERECT SCHOOL AT ALHAMBRA

Local Architects Preparing Plans for Grammar School to be Built Soon

Architects Allison & Allison have been commissioned by the Board of Education of Alhambra to proceed with working plans for a grade school building to be located on Marengo avenue, north of Alhambra Road, to cost approximately $75,000.

Work is progressing rapidly on the plans for this building, which will be of masonry construction, with tile roof. It will contain the following rooms: An auditorium, to seat 375 students; seven classrooms, a kindergarten circle room, a library, principal's office, and teachers' rest rooms. The building is of the U-shape plan, so designed as to give the maximum flexibility in the building of additions.

The Board of Education of the Alhambra city schools is composed of L. D. White, president; Thomas A. Berkebile, vice-president; E. L. Farmer, Nellie A. Goudge and Mrs. J. B. Scullin. Charles Emory Barber is superintendent of schools, and George L. Yelland is secretary of the Board of Education.

PLAN FOUR-STORY HOTEL

Plans are nearing completion for a four-story hotel building to be erected at 825 West Eleventh street, for Melville Dozier. It will contain 100 rooms, each with private bath, and a large lobby. The cost is estimated as being $125,000. Eldredge and Jewell are the architects.

NEW BUILDINGS FOR ORANGE

Two Business Blocks Now Being Erected; Others Given Tentative Consideration

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

ORANGE, March 3.—Two business structures, under construction here are rapidly nearing completion, while at least two other similar projects in the business section are under tentative consideration.

Work on the business building being erected on South Glassell street by J. P. Boring, pioneer [illegible], has reached a point where the structure will soon be completed and ready for occupancy by a [illegible] chain store. The [illegible] Company has taken a long-time lease on the structure, according to Boring, who is fitting the building especially for the firm's use.

Two doors away, W. H. Ethridge, [illegible] Lindsay, Oklahoma, business man is constructing a two-story brick business structure which will be occupied by an electric concern. The upper story will probably be given to apartments. The structure will have a cream white pressed brick front.

Mr. Ethridge who came here last March is elated with local business prospects, declaring they are in sharp contrast with business conditions in Oklahoma, where he engaged in the dry goods business. "The condition seems to be general in Southern California," he declared, "everywhere there seems to be marked evidence of prosperity and development."

Among the construction projects which are under tentative consideration is the erection of a two-story brick building on downtown property recently purchased by Dr. William Thompson. The property is a part of the large holdings of Mrs. C. B. Bradshaw, who has lived here for many years. It is located at the corner of North Glassell street and Maple avenue, with 111-foot frontage on the former street, one of the principal thoroughfares in this city.

Dr. Thompson is understood to be considering erecting a modern business building, providing several storerooms and flats.

Mr. Byfield is staying at the Hotel Huntington. He is an annual visitor to the city.

Yucaipa Ranch to be Sold by Present Owner

The famous Neeland-Bise Ranch in the Yucaipa Valley is to be sold, according to an announcement made yesterday by the Norman Investment Company, agents for the property. The ranch, highly developed, is planted to apple, pear and peach orchards, practically all of which are ten years old. Last year the ranch yielded a greater crop of deciduous fruit per tree than any other ranch in the valley. The fruit is handled and marketed by a growers' association similar in organization and methods to the citrus organizations of the Coast.

The Neeland-Bise ranch is the largest, and one of the oldest ranches in the Yucaipa Valley. It embraces a total of 406 acres and was developed ten years ago by J. M. Neeland, who at one time owned one-third of the valley acreage. A great portion of Mr. Neeland's holdings were taken over by the Yucaipa Land and Water Company at the time of that company's organization. He retained some property, however, notably the ranch which is now offered for sale, and it has been one of the show places of the valley for a number of years.

EDUCATION IN REALTY DESCRIBED

Prof. Stonier Contributes Article to National Real Estate Journal

"Training Men to be Efficient Realtors" is the subject of the leading article in a recent issue of the National Real Estate Journal, and the author is Dr. H. J. Stonier of the University of Southern California. The magazine has a nationwide circulation.

Dr. Stonier said in describing the beginnings of the local real estate educational work: "We felt that there was a need in Los Angeles for three things in the real estate business; first, better trained men as realtors; second, deeper understanding of the economic principles involved in the real estate business; and, third, wider education of the rank and file of people on real estate practices.

"We explained to the board of directors of the Los Angeles Realty Board that the college of commerce could not do the work entirely by itself. We could supply the academic atmosphere necessary to hold up the educational standards of the courses. We could supply the instructor. We could recommend supplementary material for the class, but we could not give it the practical angle so necessary for a course of this character, and it was at this point that we requested the Realty Board of Los Angeles to tie into the educational program."

After telling of the rapid growth of the classes and the enlargement of the curriculum to three courses, he said in speaking of the future: "Next year we will add additional courses to our real estate section. One will be in real estate economics, for we feel that the real estate division will not be complete unless the realtor has a proper understanding of the basic factors of our economic system."

GREAT PROGRESS IS BEING MADE

Many Miles of Roadway Built at Arrowhead Lake

Complete Village, With Hotel, Being Erected

Early Norman Architecture Used Throughout

BY ERIC LAVAAL

I visited Lake Arrowhead last week-end. I was impressed with the beauty of the lake, the forests, and the mountains, but I was amazed by the development work which has been accomplished at the lake by the Lake Arrowhead Corporation.

The last time that I had been at Lake Arrowhead—it was then known as Little Bear Lake—there was little or nothing there. Last week I found the nucleus of a city.

The lake is accessible by three highways, the City Canyon road, the Waterman Canyon road, and the Hesperia, or desert, road. The latter is open to traffic the year around. The two former are impassable during the winter months because of the heavy snowfall.

The Hesperia Road is a toll road, built and operated by the Lake Arrowhead Corporation. It branches from the paved boulevard connecting San Bernardino and Barstow, near Hesperia on the Mohave desert. A few miles beyond Hesperia it climbs abruptly into the high country and terminates on the north shore of Arrowhead Lake. The eighteen miles of the Hesperia highway constructed by the Lake Arrowhead Corporation cost in excess of $100,000. The toll to be paid by persons passing over the road will be determined by the United States government.

An automobile road, known as the Lake's Edge Drive, encircling the entire lake, has been constructed by the corporation, and from it branches a system of shorter roads leading to each private estate near the lake.

MILES OF ROADS BUILT

In all, approximately 100 miles of roadway have been constructed in the development of Lake Arrowhead.

A complete sewer system has been installed. The main sewer follows the level of the lake, and subsidiary systems branch from it to all lots and buildings.

A complete village is being constructed on the south shore of the lake. Many of the buildings are completed, some are now in process of construction, others exist only on blueprints and plans.

There will be a cafeteria capable of accommodating 1000 persons per day, a tronsportation building, a garage and machine shop, architects' offices, construction company's offices, hardware and plumbing shops, sport goods stores, a tea room and restaurant, and art shop, a drug store, a bathhouse and plunge, a livery barn for saddle horses, a barber shop and billiard hall, a market which will be open throughout the entire year, and a dancing pavilion of sufficient size to accommodate 300 couples.

Alington Lodge, a $500,000 hostelry, is being built near the village by A. H. Richmond of Santa Barbara. The building is now completely under roof, and will probably be completed by the first of next August. It will contain eighty-five guest rooms. The lobby is to be seventy-five feet in length, thirty-two feet in heigth, and forty-five feet from the floor to the peak of the gabled ceiling. Mr. Richmond spent several weeks in the East having specially designed period furniture made for the lodge.

BIG AUTO CAMP

Fleming Grove, also situated on the south shore, is a public bungalow camp. Near it an automobile camp capable of accommodating 1000 persons has been constructed and now stands ready for next summer's tourist trade. One camping there will have at his service an electric system, hot and cold running water, and ready cut firewood.

Private homes are being erected on both the south and the north shores. Many of them are homes which would do justice to the most exclusive residential districts of a great city. Officials of the Lake Arrowhead Corporation predict that by next fall more than fifty private residences will be completed. They even go farther—they predict that in a few years 10,000 prsons will be living on the shores of Lake Arrowhead.

A clubhouse has been built for the owners of north shore estates. It has in connection with it at present several tennis courts and soon will have a golf course.

NORMAN ARCHITECTURE

The majority of the buildings at the lake are designed in the Norman style of architecture. Swazey & McAfee, the architects, chose that style of architecture because it seemed to them to be expressive of the spirit of the out of doors. The buildings are high gabled-peaked roofed affairs that are very distinctive, indeed, yet they do not force themselves on one's attention. They blend perfectly with the forest background.

The forest background is to be retained always, for the timber is not sold with the land. It will become the property of the Mutual Service Corporation, an organization consisting of all of the property owners at Lake Arrowhead. Anyone wishing to cut down a tree must first gain the consent of every member of the Mutual Service Corporation. The same ruling applies to every public utility at the lake.

There are a number of building projects planned for the near future by the Lake Arrowhead Corporation, but their announcement is temporarily withheld. All in all, it is a tremendous development program. It has progressed with great rapidity and yet bears the stamp of permanence.

FRENCH LUMBER MARKET

A cable from Commercial Attache Chester Lloyd Jones, Paris, February 9, advises that, owing to the drop in the rate of exchange French lumber importers are buying practically nothing in the United States. The demand for North European lumber has also fallen off for the same reason. Importers are greatly embarrassed in covering themselves against future deliveries. The deliveries of lumber from German have also fallen off whereas shipments from Riga are carried on to some extent.

ART COMMISSION REVIEWS PLANS

Plans for construction work valued at $244,375 were review by the Municipal Art Commission during Februray, according to a report prepared by J. J. Backus, the body's secretary. Eight sets of plans representing $147,375 were approved while two sets were rejected. Of the total for the month $142,000 represented new municipal buildings. During January the commission reviewed 106 sets of plans, 102 being approved and four disapproved.

RANCHO SANTA FE IS UNUSUAL

and horticultural opportunities of the valley had captivated him. He knew that, with such backing, he could lay out a community in which every window looked out on beauty and inspiration and every orchardist or rancher could be confident of a competence from his own acres.

He walked over every acre of the land, a man in a trance seeing visions and transferring them to paper. Then he put big forces of men to work, under experts who could catch and carry out his ideas. Richard Requa was engaged as architect, working from sketches he had made during studies in Spain. John Byers of Los Angeles was engaged to organize a force of adobe makers from Mexico to make material for the civic center and school group and hotel. Every other detail was similarly taken up.

That was nearly a year ago. Here are some of the results accomplished:

RESULTS ACCOMPLISHED

Fifty-six miles of hard roads have been constructed, every one planned for the preservation and enhancement of natural beauty. They are all roads which lead and lure, full of sudden surprises and thrilling perspectives. Running through countless thousands of beautiful trees, they often have been made to swerve to save a single tree or holly shrub. And yet they are as serviceable as straight-line roads could be.

An irrigation system which is the last word in scientific and economical distribution has been laid out. This will be in charge of experts, who are expected to advise with all its patrons for best results.

A perfect Spanish village, lovelier than any village in Spain by reason of the entire absence of anything not artistic, has been constructed to house shops, garages and similar necessary community buildings.

A hotel which is a perfect combination of ancient beauty and modern comfort is ready to receive guests.

A practical demonstration of money-making possibilities has been made, winter vegetables being shipped in carload lots in December and January and bringing high prices in the East.

A permanent staff of experts, including such men as A. R. Sprague, noted horticulturist and president and manager of the California Fruit Exchange, Sacramento, from 1900 to 1907, has been organized.

The practicability of profitably raising Valencia oranges, lemons, apricots, English walnuts, peaches, pears, prunes, grapes and olives, as well as peas, potatoes and both summer and winter vegetables of nearly all sorts, has been shown.

NOT ALL FOR FARMERS

Yet it is not all a place for orchardists and farmers. It is anticipated that the sheer beauty of the place will bring many people to build chateaus on the beautiful wooded hills overlooking the valley, from which the valley is a panorama of surpassing loveliness. And think of that valley when it is a maze of blending colors and picturesque homes, acres of blooming orchards against backgrounds of purple mountains, vivid green fields through which inviting tan roads glide away to lavender-tinted heights and canyons. It seems inevitable that soon true "castles of Spain" will arise on these inspiring hills to look down on the perfect Spanish village and such scenes of Andalusian tranquillity.

LEASES REPORTED IN NEW BRAUN BUILDING

Considerable space has been leased to local industrial and light manufacturing concerns in the new F. W. Braun Building, recently completed at the northeast corner of Pico and Main streets, according to W. H. Rees & Co., agents for the property.

The Los Angeles Board of Education has taken over one and a half floors of the building, or approximately 40,000 square feet. Other leases are reported as follows: To Z. G. South, dealer in ladies' neckwear, 2500 square feet; the Mayers Company, advertising, 2500 square feet for 5 years; the Angelus Printing Company, 5000 square feet for ten years; the House of Ralston, printers, 3000 square feet, for 5 years; Direct Mail Press, printers, 1500 square feet, for 5 years; the California Growers' Association, 5000 square feet for 5 years; the House of Bianco, manufacturers of corsets, 2500 square feet for 5 years. The drug store at the southeast corner of the building has been taken under a ten-year lease by the Southland Drug Company, and the adjoining store room, fronting on Main street has been leased for 5 years to Citron, dealer in men's furnishings.

FRUITS FROM SOUTH AFRICA

South African growers last year exported 290,000 boxes of oranges. About [illegible]0,000 packages of naartjes were shipped during the season, while [illegible]0,000 boxes of grapefruit arrived in England from South Africa, the American Trade Commissioner in South Africa informs the Department of Commerce. The quantity of oranges actually shipped was considerably smaller than was anticipated at the commencement of the season, although the cool chamber accommodation on the mail steamers was superior to the 1921 facilities. About 230,000 boxes of oranges were shipped from South Africa in 1921.

Tract 6202, south of Melrose avenue and west of Crescent Heights Boulevard, was approved on condition that five additional feet be dedicated for an alley extending back of business lots. Tract 6170, the Girard subdivision, was approved on condition that ten-foot walks be extended through a part of the property and that provision be made for a boulevard along the foothills in the property. Tract 6102, northeast of Bundy street and southeast of Colorado avenue, was approved on condition that the lot arrangement be changed.

Reconsideration was given the tract located at Talmadge avenue and Tracy street and tract 6265. The changes requested by the owners of the former subdivision were granted but those petitioned for the latter were rejected.

Redlands Averaging Six to Ten Homes Weekly; New Tracts Being Opened

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, March 3.—Starting new homes at the rate of six to ten each week in February indicates that the home building program of Redlands for the year is to be the greatest in the history of the city. During the past two weeks two new subdivisions in the city have been opened, the building of houses on them started, and a total of about fifteen new homes have been put under way in that time.

February shows a total of about $60,000 as the estimated cost for new homes alone, in Redlands, a total of more than twenty and an average of six for each week of the month. They range in cost from $3000 to $6000 with most of them about $6000.

G. Huizing, well known contractor, is opening the two new subdivisions. One is on Buena Vista street south of Cypress avenue and the other on Buena Vista street north of cypress avenue. He has contracts for six houses, costing more than $500 each, in the ones south of the avenue and has already contracts for three homes in the one north.

Curbs and gutters, sidewalks and ornamental lights will be put in at once and this work all done within two months time. Buena Vista street will then be opened clear through from Citrus avenue to Clifton with the exception of one piece between Fern and Cypress, and it is expected that the street will soon be opened through there.

Among the new homes just started are those for H. L. Huxtable, H. S. Hollery, Henry Jenkins, Dike & Logie, Davis Donald and Dr. Hayes.

Plans for a big apartment house are also under way, with one sixteen to twenty apartments. A San Diego man has offered to furnish the house and take a long lease and it is understood that plans are being drawn for a Redlands capitalist for a house that will cost from $75,000 to $100,000.

Another new subdivison has just been opened by W. K. Stoddard. This is on Fern avenue and Roosevelt Road just south of the high school. There are to be twenty-four lots in the property and Mr. Stoddard has completed arrangements for the installation of curbs, gutters and ornamenti lights.

REPORTS BIG SALES

Property sales in Cahuenga Park have totalled more than $300,000 since the tract was placed on the market, according to Thomas C. Bundy, subdivider of the tract, which is located at the junction of Sherman Way and Ventura Boulevard, in the San Fernando Valley. The first unit has been practically sold out, according to Mr. Bundy.

NEW PRESS STRUCTURE

A two-story factory building is to be erected on the northwest corner of Ninth and San Pedro streets for the Wayside Press. The building, which will contain about 50,000 square feet of floor space, will be of Class-A, reinforced-concrete construction, and will represent the investment of approximately $75,000.

Benmar Hills
BURBANK
The City Beautiful

Where a Model City Will Grow Up Around Your Home

Southern California has many attractive subdivisions in which to make your home.

But she has only one BENMAR HILLS—only one enterprise destined to be more than a subdivision—more than a suburb—a beautifully located, perfectly planned, model American city!

The nucleus is the present thriving city of Burbank, city of assured greatness. Far-sighted men have easily perceived that Burkank must expand, with swift, gigantic steps. And they have made provision so that, when that expansion has reached a population of 100,000 people, there will have been developed an attractive, healthful, well balanced city, complete in every essential.

This superb purpose will be carried out at BENMAR HILLS, a property of approximately 3000 acres, which, taking the western part of the present City of Burbank, sweeps from the San Fernando Boulevard up the slopes to the summits of the green Verdugo Hills.

Unsurpassed in its scenic beauty, in its climate, in its natural advantage, BENMAR HILLS fills every requirement of its mighty purpose—a purpose already officially recognized by the City of Burbank.

The city has built its new $250,000 high school on a Benmar Hills site—it has chosen another location there for a new grammar school. Deeds have also been accepted by the city's officials to a 20-acre site for a Model Civic Center—to parks, athletic grounds and public auto park—and they have also sanctioned the completely planned system of boulevards and parked streets prepared for BENMAR HILLS. "The City Beautiful" will have clubs, churches, schools—every public institution necessary to its welfare.

And Your Home in the Midst of It All

Calculate the value of property in a city like that, as compared with the low price at which you can buy it now. Better still, picture yourself a resident of that community, in full enjoyment of advantages without parallel in any other city in the land.

From either standpoint you owe it to yourself to see Benmar Hills at once. Drive out San Fernando Boulevard to the western part of Burbank.

ARIZONA MEANS MUCH TO CITY

Ninety Per Cent of Outside Sales Come Here

Make Effort to Locate Huge Refinery on Coast

State Now Leads in Amount of Copper Mined

Southern California's close affiliation with Arizona's commercial development can be summed up in one terse statement—90 per cent of Arizona's production for outside consumption finds a market through Los Angeles, the direct rail outlet, with the exception of copper production, which local Chamber of Commerce heads are even now preparing to care for by the establishment of one or more large refining plants in Los Angeles. At present Arizona is shipping copper to refining establishments on the Atlantic seaboard at a greater overhead than would be possible owing to the short haul to seaboard were these shipments made to Los Angeles refineries.

LEADS IN COPPER

Arizona leads the world in copper produtcion, and at this particular moment, with copper staging a splendid comeback, the big mines all over Arizona are opening up again with full shifts. With a gain in percentage of population during the past decade greater than any other State in the Union, and with an assessed property valuation increase of 125 per cent per year for ten consecutive years, Arizona is no longer considered only from a scenic and health standpoint, but it is also receiving the careful consideration of financiers who visualize development years before its fruition.

Power is the crying need of this sister State. Despite the fact that four months out of the year the Roosevelt dam provides energy for several huge power companies, eight months out of the year these companies with present facilities are unable to supply enough power to operate many projects that are in course of construction and contemplated. A vague idea of the amount of power consumed in the State of Arizona can be had from the fact that two mines alone pay out annually for power over $400,000. In the miles of underground workings of the mines substations for lighting and energy are necessary. Refrigeration, Arizona's greatest problem, draws on a vast supply of electric power. Nearly all of the perishable foodstuffs from the coast of Lower Califrnia gulf regions is trans-shipped through Nogales, where it is iced for shipment to Los Angeles in several large plants.

FIRMS ORGANIZING

That Arizona is alive to the growth pending is best to be estimated by the preparations under way to take care of a quadrupled demand for power, feverish activity in building, and the re-financing of several of Arizona's most important industrial enterprises. As the natural outlet of the bulk of this commerce the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce is bending every effort to take care of the business on this end, by the establishment of a copper refinery in this city.

Industrially Arizona seems destined to play an important part in the commerical activity of Los Angeles, in just that ratio that Los Angeles is prepared to render service.

Fifty Acres of Hellman Ranch Near Richgrove to Be Set Out This Spring

RICHGROVE, March 2.—James Piepgrass, superintendent for the Fra Ranch, which is owned by Marco H. Hellman and associates, is preparing to plant fifty acres to grapes. Of this twenty acres will be Emperors, twenty muscats and ten Thompsons. Fruit trees of bearing age make up 100 acres of the ranch, including ninety acres in oranges and ten acres in black mission and white adriatic figs.

To irrigate the new development, a second pumping plant has been installed, which delivers fifty-five inches of water. The new well is down about 570 feet with a lift of 225 feet. The first pumping plant installed on the property, located a quarter of a mile from No. 2, delivers about twenty-seven inches of water, an air compressor also being used.

Mr. Hellman and associates have further plans for the development of the ranch, which is located a short distance from Richgrove, where marketing facilities are now afforded for citrus fruits.

A large crew of men are at work on the Scheel ranch, northwest of town. This property has been dry-farmed for many years, but it is now being developed as vineyard and orchard property under direction of Herman Eulert, foreman. He is assisted by Messrs. Auer and Bauman of Indiana.

Vines, apricots and figs will be planted. The supply of nursery stock on apricots and cling peaches is said to already be exhausted as plantings in these two varieties of deciduous fruits will be very heavy this season. Figs are also coming steadily to the front.

ST. VINCENT'S HOSPITAL

Architect John C. Austin is preparing new plans for the hospital buildings to be erected at Sunset and Beaudry avenue for the St. Vincent Hospital Association. Under the new plans, the buildings will have a capacity nearly twice as great as was originally planned. The cost of the buildings and the ground is in the neighborhood of $1,250,000.

Figueroa-street Structure

Stanton, Reed & Hibbard, architects and builders, have the contract to erect a one-story brick automobile building for H. E. Field. The building will have a frontage of 135 feet by 155 feet, and will be built at a cost of $45,000. It is to be located on Figueroa street near Sixteenth street.

THE CITY OF GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY

by
E. A. BRININSTOOL

The big Southern California boom of 1887, when people were fairly intoxicated with the real estate game, saw phenomenal increases of land values at Monrovia—at that time practically a stretch of sagebrush and greasewood, as the town had its inception through Mr. Monroe, who went there in 1885, and after clearing away the brush proceeded to build himself a home.

One year later things were stirring in the little settlement. It was in May, 1886, that Monroe started the land boom by placing the first lots on the market. They were offered at from $100 to $150 each, his low price was made to encourage outsiders to come and locate on these lots on condition that substantial and permanent improvements would be made.

The Monroe lots were thrown on the market at a much lower price than surrounding property was being offered, but the founder of the town considered that there was "method in his madness" by such procedure. Prices immediately went skyrocketing. In 1887 a lot that had been purchased the year before for $150 was receiving bids of $8000 and two other lots were being held by their owner at the staggering price of $10,000.

FORTUNES IN REALTY

When the people had really thrown judgment to the winds, there was no holding them back. A lot that had been bought for $5400 was sold five months later at an increase of $7100, or $12,500. Another that had been purchased for $3500 in thirteen months brought its owner $13,500. Marvelous tales are told of those wild days in Monrovia, when everybody had the real estate fever. One man bought a lot for $1300 and three weeks later disposed of it for $4000, and one enterprising Monrovialte who gave up $5500 for a lot and was laughed at for so doing, turned the tables on his tormenters ten days later by selling it for $16,000. Acreage which went begging in '85 at $300, was easily disposed of for $3000 two years later.

When the boom "busted," however, Monrovia, unlike dozens of boom towns which had been made "on paper," did not re[illegible] as a habitation of the jackrabbit and horned toad. While its progress was slow, it held its own, and today is one of the prettiest and most enterprising little cities in Southern California.

TEN COUNTRIES BUY BULK OF IMPLEMENTS

Ten countries, in 1922, absorbed 85 percent of the total exports of agricultural implements of the United States, says George B. Bell, Chief of the Agricultural Implements Division of the Department of Commerce. Approximately one-third of the total went to Canada; another third went to Argentina and France; while the other seven countries, which were included in the leading ten, took one-sixth, leaving the remaining one-sixth to be distributed among nearly one hundred countries.

The countries to which this 85 per cent of the total implement exports was shipped are as follows: Canada, $9,440,034; Argentina, $5,860,845; France, $3,918,377; Mexico:, $1,781,979; Australia, $1,298,704; United Kingdom, $1,115,816; British South Africa, $697,271; Cuba, $410,443; Spain, $396,587; and Brazil, $394,843. The first three countries occupy the same relative positions as they did in 1921. Canada also occupied first place in 1920, with France second and Argentina third, while in 1919 France held first place, followed by Canada and Argentina in that order.

Another conduit will be placed underground from Saturn and Santa Fe, east for some distance, as soon as the present work is finished. GREEK ORANGE CROP

Reliable returns covering the 1922-23 Greek citrus crop show an increased production of 10 per cent as compared with 1921 returns, says Consul Stiles, Patras, in a report just received by the Department of Commerce. No damage is reported either from fly or frost, and the quantity is reported as exceptionally fine. According to Vice-Consul Corafa, Athens, the following is the production for 1922: Oranges, 152,000,000 pieces; mandarines, 63,000,000 pieces; lemons, 49,000,000 pieces.

GERMAN FIBER RESEARCH

The Kaiser Wilhelm Institute for the Advancement of Science has recently added to the scheme of its activities an "Institut fur Faserstoffchemie" (textile fiber chemistry.) which will devote its energies to investigating the possibilities for producing in Germany textile fibers suitable for use in cloth manufacture, says Consul E. Verne Richardson, Berlin, in a report to the Commerce Department.

COTTON GOODS SALES GROW

Philippines Best Oriental Market for Goods Made From Southern Product

Foreign sales of American cotton goods in 1922 showed a healthy increase in business over 1921 and gave further evidence that American goods going into foreign countries during the war period were of sufficient merit to establish a permanent demand for them, says Gaspar G. Isaacs of the Textile Division of the Department of Commerce.

During the year, 587,760,888 square yards of cotton cloth, valued at $85,332,912 were shipped to foreign markets, as compared with 551,512,942 square yards valued at $71,573,875 in 1921. Our progress in the export field is further substantiated by comparing the past year's shipments with the pre-war period, 1913, exports of cotton cloth being only 464,677,352 yards valued at $32,257,482.

Throughout the year the demand for converted goods has been active and there also have been substantial purchases of gray goods. Bleached, printed, yarn and piece dyed goods record the most conspicuous gains. As compared with 1921 foreign consumers approximately increased their takings of bleached goods by 16,000,000 square yards; printed cloth by 23,000,000; piece dyed by 18,000,000; and yarn dyed by 17,000,000 square yards.

With the continued revival of business South American countries are again becoming important markets for American merchants. General opinion among exporters is that there will be a further expansion in our 1923 shipments.

The Philippines proved to be our best market in the Far East, and future success in this market is assured. The outstanding feature of Philippine buying was the increase of 21,000,000 square yards of bleached goods, while all other cloths contributed their share. In China the demand continued for certain types or brands of American cloth, but the close of the year saw little recovery by the United States of the business it enjoyed a few years ago. Great Britain and Japan, the principal competitors, increased their sales, during the year, but the pre-war volume of trade has not been regained.

The outlook in India for American cotton goods is better and certain bleached cloths are in favorable demand. Although movements against foreign goods retain considerable impetus Great Britain's shipments to India show an increase of more than 200,000,000 square yards as compared with 1921. Prospects for the future in British South Africa are promising. Although the tariff favors English goods, an increasing number of inquiries for lines of American cotton goods are being received of late.

REALTOR BACK FROM FLORIDA

Eastern Conditions Good, Says W. I. Hollingsworth

Inveseors, Look With Favor on Business Property

Mortgage Money Plentiful and Rates Are Easier

Mr. and Mrs. Hollingsworth have just returned from a six weeks' visit in Florida and the East where Mr. Hollingsworth attended the semiannual meeting of the board of directors of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, which convened at Jacksonville, Fla., January 17 to 20. Mr. Hollingsworth reports that the meeting was of more than usual interest, on account of the National Association having changed the date of beginning tenure of office from the beginning of the fiscal year in July to the calendar year commencing in January.

At this meeting Mr. Louis F. Eppich of Denver was installed as president. A number of Los Angeles men were appointed on committees: Frank Ryan on the committee of ethics; W. Ross Campbell on the committee of business properties, and Herman Janss on the committee of farm lands. Other business incidental to the benefit of the association was enacted. There were present at the Jacksonville meeting about 500 representatives from the different realty boards throughout the United States.

After the close of the meeting Mr. and Mrs. Hollingsworth visited St. Augustine, Palm Beach, and Miami, ata all of which resorts large numbers of guests were being entertained.

The east coast of Florida, Mr. Hollingsworth said, will always be popular, and a great resort, on account of its temperate climate and its close proximity to the large centers of population in the East.

Mr. Hollingsworth, while in New York, had occasion to visit a number of the banks and life insurance companies, and found that all of these institutions look with far greater favor on making mortgage loans than heretofore during the last several years, their experience having taught them that no other security offers the same stability.

Real estate dealers and agents throughout the East report a very strong demand for business property. A great many merchants, including chain-store companies, are purchasing their own locations, and the conservative investor is convinced that business property investments not only bring good returns, but offer an opportunity for enhancement in values, which is impossible through many other classes of investment.

Mr. Hollingsworth attended the annual dinner of the New York Real Estate Board, at which there were 1600 present. One of the most interesting topics discussed was that of traffic congestion in the business districts.

New York is preparing to spend a great many millions in widening streets and building thoroughfares to take care of its traffic. The one-way street is becoming more and more recognized as one of the greatest reliefs throughout all the cities in the United States. A representative of the Traffic Commission was present at the dinner, and advocated the widening of Sixth avenue to 300 feet, from Fifty-ninth street (Central Park) to the Battery; also the building of parking stations under the streets.

As previously reported in The Times, while in Washington, Mr. and Mrs. Hollingsworth were recipients of a number of entertainments, among which they were guests at Uncle Joe Cannon's dinner, at which he celebrated his fiftieth anniversary as a member of Congress, also his departure from Washington.

Mr. Hollingsworth, together with Maj. Lineberger, were invited to the White House to discuss the hospitalization problems of the Veterans' Bureau pertaining to Southern California.

Mr. Hollingsworth also had the pleasure of a conference with Secretary of Commerce Herbert B. Hoover and Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall while in Washington.

Never before have the traveling and investing public looked with such favor on Southern California as they do at the present time, Mr. Hollinsworth said, for Southern California is more than ever a mecca in the minds of the rest of the United States.

BUSINESS IS STILL QUIET INCALCUTTA

Improvement in Demand for Foreign-Made Goods Has Not Been Marked

Taken as a whole business in Calcutta is quiet, says Trade Commissioner C. C. Batchelder in a report to the Department of Commerce. The demand for the main export stables of hides, skins and tea is fairly satisfactory, while the market for both raw and manufactured jute is firm. Little improvement is noted in the market for imported manufactured goods, and merchants are growing impatient over the general trade inactivity. Trade in cheap German goods is increasing but there are few arrivals of new goods and old stocks are changing little. The demand from the interior is disappointing and collections are difficult. The removal on Jan. 1, 1923, of the embargo on coal exports tends to steady the prices of coal mine shares; the price of tea plantation shares is firmer; the high price of jute has advanced jute mill stocks, but there is little interest in other industrial and miscellaneous stocks.

Indian buyers of piece goods are delaying purchases in expectation of lower price and in many cases warehouse stucks are selling for less than the cost of replacement from Great Britain. Shippers are making generous concessions. One British firm is reported as having disposed of the merchandise shipped to Calcutta at 50 to 60 per cent below invoice price and having also waived all interest in the goods. Since this is also true in other lines, the situation may prove an encouraging factor in an otherwise lifeless market and result in increased buying of old stocks at prevailing prices.

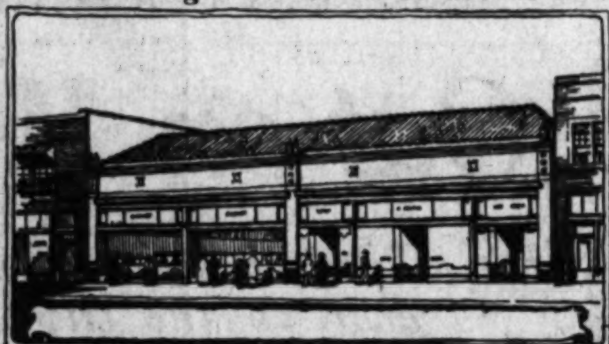
During 1920-21 when the sharp fall in merchandise prices was accompanied by a drop in the value of silver, European and Indian importers were generally unable to pay their drafts on presentation because consignees refused to accept goods ordered. Now reputable concerns are meeting their obligations, but some difficulty is still experienced in making collections from certain buyers inclined to refuse payment of drafts, often apparently to secure extra time and allowances, on the ground that goods were not according to specifications. As it is estimated that scarcely one draft in six is paid upon presentation, American firms should exercise caution in shipping to concerns not properly accredited.

SETTING OUT LARGE ACREAGE TO GRAPES

The Fontana Farms Company put gangs in the field late last week to plant out 2000 acres of grapes in addition to those planted and sold last year. Over a million cuttings, it is said, will be used in this year's planting.

These cuttings have been buried or heeled in for the last month. They are planted by crews of eighteen planters, who place the vines at intervals of nine and one-half feet apart at points indicated by a 640-foot wire stretched across the field. A bar is driven into the ground to a depth of fourteen inches, the cutting inserted in the hole thus made and the ground tamped around it.

Building New Store Structure



Architect's Drawing of Glendale Block

Construction work is now in progress on the market building which is being erected at 229 South Brand Boulevard by Roy L. Kent and associates. Half of the structure will be occupied by a market, while the remainder will be divided into three stores.

LARGE SUM ALLOCATED

Edison Company to Spend Million in Development at Monrovia; Shell Company Expanding

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

MONROVIA, March 3.—That other big corporations are recognizing Monrovia's position as the gem city of the foothill district is indicated by the fact that the Southern California Edison Company this week issued a statement announcing that $1,000,000 will be allocated to the use of the Monrovia district out of the budget estimates for 1923.

Of this sum $870,000 will be spent in the high Sierras and upon transmission lines, and $156,000 will be spent here. Manager Fred Schwartz of the Monrovia district declares his company long ago recognized the fact that Monrovia would some day form the nucleus around which other towns and cities would group themselves. The Southern Counties Gas Company is following a course almost paralleling in policy that of the Edison Company in making Monrovia its district headquarters and center for an ever-widening territory.

Included in recent additions to business buildings here are the service station and oil depot for the Shell Company. The depot is now under construction at Canyon and Chestnut streets, on the Southern Pacific, and the service station at Huntington Drive and Myrtle avenue.

The distributing depot will be one of the most completely appointed for Southern California, and will be the center of distribution for a territory of 100,000 population, and including Pasadena, Alhambra, Sierra Madre, Arcadia, El Monte, Covina, Azusa, Glendora, Puente, Baldwin Park and San Dimas. W. J. Owens, district manager for the Shell Company, declared that Monrovia is recognized as the logical center for this end of the San Gabriel Valley.

FIRMS TO OCCUPY NEW QUARTERS HERE

HAIRDRESSING COLLEGE WILL MOVE TO BROADWAY STORE FROM MERCANTILE

With the conclusion of negotiations for a lease on the property at 733 South Broadway, it was announced that the McDonald Hairdressing College would move from its present location in Mercantile Place to the former address. The lease on the Broadway property was secured for the college by L. M. Roberts and R. W. Puffer, representing the W. Ross Campbell Company, local realty firm.

The college is said to be the oldest organization of the kind in Los Angeles. When it is located in the new quarters provisions will be added for masculine trade.

The Campbell Company has secured a lease for the Pacific Coast Adjustment Bureau on the second floor loft at 360 South Los Angeles street. L. M. Ford handled the negotiations. The lessors were the Federal Water Heater Company.

The lessee will utilize the newly leased premises for storage purposes, their offices being located in the Hollingsworth Building. They represent "board companies" as insurance adjusters, in the Southern California and New Mexico field through the local office, of which George L. Mangson is manager. The headquarters of this firm is in San Francisco, while offices are maintained in nine western cities, including Seattle, Portland and Phoenix.

BUILDING ON HOPE FOR WHEEL COMPANY

The Murray-Gerber Company, realtors, is erecting a one-story building, 54 by 155 feet, at 1795 South Hope street to be occupied, under a long-term lease, by the Wire Wheel Corporation of America, distributors of several types of wire wheels. The building when completed will house the office and service department of the company.

The property on which the building is being erected was also sold by the Murray-Gerber Company to Joe Toplitzky, et al, from whom the lease was taken.

The Wire Wheel Corporation expects to move to its new quarters about March 1, 1923.

The Murray-Gerber Company also announce a five-year lease, through T. R. Tousley of the sales and leasing department, of approximately 3000 square feet of floor space on the fourth floor of the Realty Board Building at 631 South Spring street to the California Real Estate Exchange for the University of Southern California. The lease involves a rental of approximately $15,000.

The Murray-Gerber Company also announce a four-year lease, through A. R. Miller of the sales and leasing department to William Edgar Graham on the storeroom at 915 South Figueroa street.

BANKER WILL BE SPEAKER

J. M. Elliott to Address Local Realty Board at Luncheon on Tuesday

J. M. Elliott, chairman of the board of directors of the First National Bank, spoke before the Los Angeles Realty Board twenty years ago at a meeting held in the Westminster Hotel, and next Tuesday he will address the regular fortnightly luncheon of the local realtors on "Then and Now," at the Clark Hotel.

The Los Angeles Realty Board was organized in May of 1903, with Byron Erkenbrecher as president, Leonard Merrill first vice-president, W. I. Hollingsworth second vice-president, Robert A. Rowan third vice-president, George N. Black treasurer and Herbert Burdett secretary: On the governing committee were Edward D. Silent, William May Garland, F. W. Flint, Jr.; G. W. Conway, G. M. Giffin, John D. Foster, Byron Erkenbrecher, George N. Black and D. T. Althouse. In those days the regular meetings of the board were held on the second and fourth Thursdays of each month during the luncheon hour. The organization was incorporated June 9, 1903.

C. G. Milham, executive secretary of the All-Year Club, will speak to the realtors on the results of the work of that organization in the upbuilding of realty values in Southern California.

The association membership drive progress and plans will be described by W. H. Daum, chairman of the committee in charge of the campaign, to add to the list of associate members of the realty organization.

Announce New Universal City Tract Opening

Hollywood today formally acquires a new suburban residence district with the official preopening festivities of Universal City Park, a new tract diagonally across Lankershim Boulevard from Universal City, which enjoys the reputation of being the largest studio in the world, and represents the greatest financial investment of any one producer in the industry.

Universal City Park has lots fronting on Lankershim Boulevard for 1000 feet.

There are approximately eighty lots in the tract, the majority of them being 50 feet by 135, while there are a few larger ones for home-seekers desiring specially spacious homesites.

According to officers of the Guaranty Building and Loan Company, whose Hollywood offices are handling the new subdivision, the land is covered with fifteen feet of soil. Every lot has peach and apricot trees.

WAREHOUSE LEASED TO RUBBER COMANY

The Mohawk Rubber Company, Inc., has secured a long term lease on the new brick building which has just been completed at 1320-1324 Santa Fe avenue.

The building, designed to meet with the requirements of this company, has warehouse space of approximately 8000 square feet, with spur track facilities.

The property is owned by the Phillips Bixby Corporation. Both parties in the transaction were represented by George H. Webb Co. and Frank H. Cole.

SANTA ANA PROGRESSES FROM VILLAGE TO CITY

Metropolis of Orange County Grows From Small Hamlet to Thriving City During Past Few Years

BY WAYNE GOBLE,
"Los Angeles Times" Correspondent

When you find a spot in the Southland's favored clime where the soil brings forth abundant riches the year round, where an underground reservoir supplies vast quantities of [illegible], where roads cross and travel is constantly increasing—an accessible place where industries thrive, business prospers and where living is a pleasure—there you will find the site of a great city.

It is only natural, therefore, that the forward-looking residents of Santa Ana—which has all these [illegible]—should vision Santa Ana as a great city of the future, and each, in his own way, start to help to bring this result about.

Blessed richly by nature, Santa Ana has slowly and gradually emerged from the village class to the status of a town, and is now, in the year 1923, undergoing another metamorphosis, for she is now becoming a city. Her growth has in the past been slow, but her progress is founded on the rock of sound agricultural production, so it has been sure; and now, partly through increased farm production, partly through new industrial activity, and partly from sheer momentum, this city is hitting a stride that is excelled by but few others, even in fast-growing Southern California where new towns spring up almost overnight.

BUILDING ON INCREASE

When in 1918, for the first time in history, Santa Ana passed the $1,000,000 mark in the year's building operations, some of the old-timers shook their heads and feared the "boom" might fail, but the following year the total jumped to $2,000,000 and maintained the same gait in 1920, despite the drop in building costs. Then last year the total of building permits practically doubled again, when the total reached $3,750,000, and 1923 has started off with prospects that the year's total may reach $6,000,000. The increased building has been so necessary, so profitable, and the new structures, regardless of their nature, have been so swiftly occupied that today there are few skeptics left, and the great mass of Santa Ana citizens is holding a confident vision of a greater city, and its members are individually and collectively, with every assurance of success, helping to bring about what their minds have pictured.

Today Santa Ana has a population close to the 30-000 mark, as compared with 16,000 when the 1920 census was taken. It is a city of happy homes, splendid schools, thriving business, and the home of several industrial plants which are gradually building up a sizable pay roll. It is a city of good churches, clean streets, handsome buildings and beautiful drives. It is striving to live up to the standard of "The City Four-Square," where men's physical, mental, spiritual and social needs are met, and admirably succeeding.

AGRICULTURE PRIME FACTOR

But however great Santa Ana may become as a manufactering center and as a delightful spot for tourists to reside, one must not forget that in the beginning this was purely an agricultural community, and due credit must be given those splendid men and women who "settled" here in the early days and by developing systems of irrigation and cultivation laid the foundation for the great city that is to be. Mother Nature has been kind to Santa Ana, and on every side are well-tilled groves of oranges, walnuts, lemons and miscellaneous fruits, and broad acres of beans, sugar beets and all manner of farm crops, all helping to swell the total of riches and bringing into the Santa Ana community millions of dollars yearly. To this production Santa Ana owes many of her industrial plants, including a dozen fruit-packing houses, three large walnut-packing plants, bean-cleaning establishments, apricot-drying plants and two large fruit and vegetable canning plants, as well as a large seed house and several nurseries. Happy employment for thousands of people is supplied through these industrials where products of the soil are prepared for market.

After agriculture and agricultural industries came other industries, and a growing population made an opening for a wholesale-grocery company, which has grown until it has large branches in three larger cities. There followed a wholesale cigar, tobacco and candy firm, ice plants, feed mills, laundries, cement pipe and steel well pipe manufacturies, machine shops, iron works, a large creamery and ice-cream plant, soda-pop works, automobile-body works, water well pump factory, spotlight and automobile parts and accessories factories, collarpad factory, and a plant where many thousands of vegetable crates and wooden toys are turned out each year.

CITY GROWS GREATER

One by one these industries have come into being, have passed the critical stage and are now established institutions reaching out for more business and greater laurels. And as they grow a means of support is provided for additional families, and day by day each small industry is helping to swell Santa Ana's population, which is growing greater every day.

After industry came a desire to harvest part of the "tourist crop," and St. Ann's Inn came into being as a tourist hotel through the co-operative efforts of more than 100 citizens, and is becoming a popular stopping place for eastern visitors, as well as a social rendezvous for clubs, banquets and dancing functions. Splendid apartment-houses also help to provide homes for new arrivals and those not yet located in homes of their own, and now another new commercial hotel is nearing completion.

A growing population appealed to business men looking for locations, and new firm names have begun to appear pretty rapidly about the city. This filled up all available storerooms and created a growing demand for more, so that business building has begun to keep pace with residence construction, and modern new fronts are replacing the old all up and down Fourth street, while new business districts are springing up on the main thoroughfares entering the city. Fourth street probably will remain the principal business thoroughfare, but business has learned that everything can't be on this one street, and Fifth, Third, Main, Bush, Sycamore and Broadway have been making rapid strides, which indicates a broadening of the business district in every direction from Fourth and Main, where formerly every business felt it must locate.

MORE HOMES BUILDING

Business and industry and agriculture, combining to demand the activities of an ever-increasing number of workers, made new homesites necessary, and as a result nearly two dozen new subdivisions have been placed on the market this last year, and others are now being made ready for sale. As soon as the lots are sold, which isn't very long, new homes begin to rise, and beautiful homes by the score are to be found newly completed or nearly finished in groves or on land which a year ago produced a fine crop of barley.

Thus Santa Ana has found the magic cycle of growth and prosperity—more people, more business—more business, more industry, more people—more subdivisions, more homes, more stores, more churches, more schools, more everything—and then each helps to bring more people.

With the South Coast beaches a half hour distant, the foothills but a short drive, and close to Los Angeles's many advantages, Santa Ana is favorably situated for business and pleasure, and it is on the crossroads between Los Angeles and San Diego and the inland valleys and the beaches, and this fact helps to swell her volume of business. Newport Harbor is right at our door and is some day destined to become a shipping point of importance and a site for industrials which require the water haul. Even as things stand today, Santa Ana is sure of a more rapid growth than ever before from every indication that keen observers have been able to discern, but some day not very far distant rail and water are going to meet at Newport Harbor, and then there will come a development of Santa Ana now undreamed of, for Santa Ana cannot help but become a great city when the many advantages of a commercial and pleasure harbor are added to the wealth which is already here.

The prediction has been made that somewhere between Los Angeles, and San Diego a great city would grow, and with the many advantages already enjoyed and such rosy prospects for the future, local residents by the thousands are holding to the firm conviction that this great city will be Santa Ana, now familiarly known as the home of Judge Cox, the former residence, for ten days, of Bebe Daniels, and the popular "Gretna Green" of Southern California.

ORANGE IS VALENCIA QUEEN

Abundance of Valuable Crops and Many Industries Bring Growth

BY V. D. JOHNSON,
Secretary Orange Community Chamber of Commerce

Situated just thirty-one miles southeast of Los Angeles and on the main line of the Santa Fe Railroad leading to San Diego is the charming home-city of Orange lying in the center of the rich Valencia district of Orange county. The wealth of the community has been built largely upon the citrus products and its wonderfully fertile soil. If the high values of land are any indication of the permanent and progressive development of a community—then the future of Orange rests upon a sound basis, for the owners of Valencia orange groves look you calmly in the eye and price their ranches at from $3000 to $6000 per acre, and when your face expresses its astonishment, they proceed to prove their faith by the purchase of another high-priced grove for a maturing son or daughter.

…… … ..

The practicability of the Valencia orange and the reason for the apparently high price of land wherever the Valencia is grown, is that this wonderful orange enjoys a monopoly as to season of distribution. Few fruits on earth have the keeping qualifications of the Valencia—certainly no other orange has them. It is an orange that can be picked and eaten in March or April, or can be left hanging on the tree until December to be marketed. The Valencia tree is its own storehouse, and from June until December the California Valencia has the eastern market to itself.

ORANGE A HOME CITY

Orange is pre-eminently a home city—made so by its equable climate, its proximity to Los Angeles, its short distance of fifteen miles to the beaches, its splendid schools, its harmonious and progressive churches and the high quality of its citizenship. The fact that 90 per cent of its people own their homes makes for community interest and civic progress. During the past five years there has been a noticeable increase in the value of the homes built and each new subdivision brings the erection of thoroughly modern up-to-date residences.

While the absolute lack of any so-called waste land, coupled with the high values of the citrus groves, has a tendency to keep down the development of industries requiring a considerable amount of land. Orange is not without certain industrial plants that go to make for the prosperity of the community.

CALIFORNIA WIRE COMPANY

A little more than a year ago the California Wire Company was established in Orange with local men furnishing the capital. This institution manufactures weather-proof, insulated copper wire for electrical purposes and is the only concern of the kind west of the Chicago district. To say that this new industry is meeting with success would be to put it very mildly. The demand for its product has far exceeded the expectation of its owners and already an addition to the plant—larger than the original building—has been found necessary, so that the building and machinery now in use are twice the size of the original plant.

The company uses many tons of twine annually in the manufacture of its weather-proof fabric, and finding it too expensive to buy the twine, decided to erect a cordage factory of its own. This has been done and today this additional building stands ready for the machinery, which is in course of shipment. Cotton will be bought in the bale, thus furnishing a local output of importance for our California cotton.

Headed by N. T. Edwards, president of the local Chamber of Commerce, and recently appointed member of the State Highway Commission, a corporation has been formed for the purpose of erecting an ice plant for the city of Orange. The capital stock of $50,000 was all paid in and now the buildings are completed and it is expected that the plant will be in operation in time for the summer's demand.

ORANGE BELT REFINERY

Within the past month another corporation, composed of local people, has been organized with $50,000 capital stock—the purpose of the corporation being the refining of oil. A site has been secured nearby, a building will be erected and machinery installed at once. The company expects to be ready for operation by May 1, with a total capacity of 200,000 gallons of gasoline per month. Subsidiary stations for handling this gasoline will be erected.

The California Fig-nut Company, manufacturing a cereal and also the California Fig-nut agar, a laxative health food, is numbered among the progressive institutions of Orange. The products of this company are shipped to all parts of the world.

CITRUS PACKING HOUSES

Naturally with the amount of oranges and lemons grown in this vicinity, there came the need of packing houses for handling the

INDUSTRIAL GROWTH MAY NECESSITATE NEW CANAL

Pacific Rocky Mountain Territory Development to Require More Facilities in Future

What is the relation of the industries of Southern California to the proposed second canal to connect the Atlantic and Pacific oceans? Would a second canal be beneficial to the Southwest and what effect would it have on the development of the Pacific Rocky Mountain territory?

These are questions which have been widely considered locally since the inception of the current discussion of the second canal, and concerning which, at best, there is little uniformity of opinion.

There seems, however, to be a general realization that Southern California, along with the remainder of the West, will some day require a second waterway of the kind that is being considered. With the rapid development that is now taking place, along the Pacific Coast, local industrial leaders point out, that the estimates on the time which the Panama Canal will be able to meet the demand of inter-Atlantic-Pacific shipping may be overestimated. The greatest load that the canal has ever carried is reported to have been between 35 and 40 per cent of its maximum capacity.

RECENT GAINS LARGE

Recent reports on the volume of shipping handled indicate that the shipping of January, 1923, was 50 per cent more than that of January, 1922. Considering the rapid development in the Southwest, it seems certain that some additional canal facilities will be necessary within the next few years. Because of the apparent superiority of the route through Nicaragua it is considered that this is more desirable than double-locking the present canal or bringing it to sea level. In a recent report it was stated that five days would be cut from the New York-Los Angeles time by the construction of the proposed waterway.

Whether or not it will require ten years to construct the Nicaragua Canal, as it did the Panama Canal, is a debatable point, but estimates which have been published thus far give a much shorter period. The government took possession of the Panama district on May 4, 1904, and the canal was opened on Aug. 15, 1914. According to a memorandum which has been prepared by F. P. Gregson, secretary of the Associated Jobbers of Los Angeles, the official cost of the canal up to the end of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921, was $368,543,271.95. For the first eight years of operation, 1914 to 1921, the total expenditure, according to the memorandum, was $45,986,067.03; the total revenue for the period being $46,466,791.98. Thus the profit for this period was $480,724.95. In five of the eight years the revenue from the canal has exceeded the cost of maintenance. There has been an annual progressive increase in the total revenue; in 1914 it was $14,618.68; in 1921 this figure had reached $12,040,116.70. A corresponding increase has been shown by the amount of tonnage handled. In 1915, 4,888,454 cargo tons passed through the canal; during last year 10,884,910 cargo tons were handled. This figure was only exceeded by the tonnage of 1921, which has 11,599,214. The total tonnage for the period between 1915 and 1922 was 61,848,406.

TO PAY FOR WORK

The plans for the construction of the second canal specify that the cost of the project will be defrayed by the profit derived from the Panama Canal. It is apparent that it will be no small time before the present canal will show sufficient profit to finance the second undertaking. There has been no indication that tolls through the canal will be increased from the $1.20 per net vessel ton of 100 cubic feet. In fact, there has been much consideration given to legislative measures providing for the removal of tolls from American ships in coastwise service. During the fiscal year of 1921 the coastwise traffic for American vessels was 11.83 per cent of all traffic. In 1922 the figure for coastwise traffic increased to 25 per cent.

It has been pointed out locally that the low rate of tolls existing at present has brought the smaller Pacific Coast industries into competition with those of the East. In some cases because the bulk of production of eastern factories is consumed in an adjacent market eastern firms have been able to undersell western firms in the Pacific Rocky Mountain Coast territory. Elimination of tolls on coastwise trade, it is said, would not only subsidize the shipping companies, but it would also subsidize eastern firms in competing in markets built up and controlled at present by western firms. In this fashion it is pointed out that industries of the East would be able to keep up to marginal production through a practice which might be termed "dumping."

On the other hand, it is maintained that Southern California and Pacific Coast industries because of the numerous advantages possessed will be able to compete favorably with eastern firms despite such practices. These practices, local industrial leaders have said, are expected to force local industries to more efficient methods which in time will eliminate eastern competition and which will bring the West into competition with the East in eastern markets. The absence of labor difficulties and many other advantages has not only brought the western plants into competition with those of the East in western markets, but it has also created a widespread desire on the part of eastern manufacturers to locate in Southern California.

RAILROADS COMPETING

The competition which the Panama Canal has created has not been confined to industries alone, the railroads have begun to feel the competition of the Panama Canal shippers. But a few weeks ago one road issued a statement "declaring war" on canal rates. Many reductions have been made in the rates on a number of commodities shipped either to the Coast or to points west of the Rocky Mountains.

While it might seem that these rates would be beneficial to western industries, in part at least they are reported to be detrimental. Rates on most of these commodities which may be shipped westward at reduced figures have not been cut when they are shipped eastward. This means that it makes it possible for the eastern manufacturer to invade the field west of the Rockies that has for a number of years been held almost exclusively by western firms.

If canal tolls are removed from American ships in coastwise service it is possible that a rate war between the steamship and rail lines may be precipitated. This, local manufacturers say, would in no way benefit local industries and would in a measure handicap the railroads.

IMPROVEMENTS ESSENTIAL

Rail communication between the East and West is necessary for many shipments in which the time element is a factor. A rate war or a handicap on the railroads would prevent essential rail improvements. In a recent report sent from Washington, D. C., regarding the Nicaragua Canal, it was stated that the railroads have reached capacity in freight shipments to the Pacific Coast. At least, this seems to be largely true under present facilities. Rail improvements are unquestionably essential, but they cannot be brought about if the competition to the railroads reduces profits to a margin which will not merit them.

MUST CONSIDER ALL ANGLES

As the Pacific-Rocky Mountain territory develops additional rail communication with Coast cities and the East will be necessary. This same development will necessitate canal facilities, but this development must come in a way so as not to work to the detriment of Pacific Coast industries and the factors component of their progress. It would seem that the canal tolls question, if not given proper consideration, might seriously handicap the expanding industries of the southwest. But the advantages which these enterprises possess in many respects insure the industrial development of the Southwest, though it may needlessly be retarded.

TO OPEN MINERAL SPRINGS

Corporation Formed to Develop Properties at Santa Barbara

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA BARBARA, March 3.—A medicinal mineral springs property, consisting of a group of six springs, among the hills of the mesa, three miles from Santa Barbara, are to be developed by a $250,000 corporation composed of R. F. Pinkham, C. W. Foy and George Kennedy.

It is estimated that a flow of 5000 gallons daily can be obtained from the springs without extensive tunneling or shaft work. A small bottling plant has already been established, and Mr. Pinkham has been supplying the Santa Barbara trade for some years. The water from the springs keeps indefinitely bottled, without sterilization, and at the end of twenty years bottled water shows no sediment, it is said. The solution of the various minerals include potassium sulphate, 38.55 grains per gallon; sodium sulphate, 662.34; bromin, lithium chloride, .23; sodium chloride, 45.42; magnesium chloride, 35.40; calcium chloride, 108.03; iodin, sodium carbonite, 3.65; sodium borate, .23; magnesium sulphate, 50.40; calcium sulphate, 32.64; calcium phosphate, 1.97; iron carbonate, 1.02; calcium carbopate, 1.61; magnesium carbonate, 90.03; silica, .87.

In connection with the enterprise the incorporators also expect to build a hotel for spring visitors on top of a knoll, 450 feet above sea level, and overlooking the springs.

COTTON MILLS IN INDIA

The report of the Bombay Mill Owners Association, published December, 1922, shows that the number of mills in India increased from 253 in 1920, to 257 with 6,870,804 spindles, 123,783 looms, employing 332,179 operatives, and consuming 2,120,230 bales (392 pounds each) of cotton in 1921. These are mostly located in Bombay and Ahmedabad, but there is a tendency to locate new mills in smaller provincial centers. Five new mills were in course of construction, Trade Commissioner C. C. Batchelder, Calcutta, reports to the Department of Commerce.

THERE is an air of distinction—a note of individuality to the cement or stucco home that is finished with Bay State Brick and Cement Coating. For Bay State changes the drab-colored cement or stucco to a wonderfully rich white, or one of many charming and original tints.

As it beautifies, Bay State also waterproofs. It seeps into every pore and seals a home from dampness. The hardest rain cannot beat through a coating of Bay State. Write for samples and booklet No. 5

BUILDING STEEL PLANT IN CITY

Oil Derricks to be Built in City fr First oTime

Site no Harbor Buolevard Covers Thirteen Acres

Plans Announced for Large Downey Factory Addition

Construction work on the first building of a group which are being erected by the Emsco Steel Products Company on a thirteen-acre site at a cost of approximately $500,000, is rapidly nearing completion, according to E. M. Smith, president of the firm. The new plant represents an undertaking on the part of the company which brings to Los Angeles a new list of products, the principal of which will be steel oil derricks. The plans for the new plant include the installation of machinery which will make it possible for the manufacture of a wide variety of steel products, including structural steel, steel band and bull wheels.

This first building is 100 by 200 feet, built of structural iron, with metal sash and corrugated iron siding. This cost of the first unit of the plant is approximately $65,000, exclusive of the machinery with which it will be equipped. A similar structure will be built adjoining the first as soon as it is completed.

The plans for the new plant include the ultimate erection of at least five units in addition to an office building. Machinery to be installed in the building will represent an investment of approximately $400,000. A large part of this equipment is now in transit, and will be in place by April 1, the date that operations are to be commenced.

HAVE LARGE SITE

The site of the improvements is is at the southwest corner of Harbor Boulevard and Seventieth street. The property owned by the steel products company has a frontage of 1000 feet on the main highway to the harbor district. The property was recently purchased by the Emsco firm, a railroad side track is now being placed on the property.

Material to be used in making the firm's products include 100 tons of steel, which are now being shipped here.

The firm of which the Emsco company is a branch was established here in 1911 by E. M. Smith. At that time the buildings and equipment of the company covered two lots in the East Side industrial district. This plant alone since that time has increased until it now covers forty lots. There is more than four times the space is the present Clarence-street plant than in the original building. In addition to this plant the firm owns and controls Downey asbestos factory, to which an addition is to be erected in the near future. Besides the local factories, the firm has recently established a plant at Houston for the manufacture of corrugated steel pipe.

VARIETY OF PRODUCTS

This is one of the products of the company, the manufacture of which was commenced recently. The pipe is used in oil wells to prevent "sanding up," which is common in the near-by and Texas oil fields. This product is said to be one of the best of its kind on the market. The patent for it is held by the local firm.

When the firm was first established here by E. M. Smith production was confined to the manufacture of mechanical rubber products. Since that time the production of corrugated steel pipe, asbestos and a number of other rubber products has been undertaken. The Harbor Boulevard addition marks another development of the firm.

Walter Smith and J. S. Smith are associated with E. M. Smith in the several plants. Both are brothers of the founders of the local enterprises.

DATA INDICATE CITY'S GROWTH

New Industries, Increased Postal and Banking Business is Proof

Thirty--nine new industries, with products ranging from stucco to dresses and from marmalade to paint, commenced operation in Los Angeles during the month of January, according to figures prepared by the Chamber of Commerce. Ten firms which have already located plants here reported plans for factory additions during the month while many others purchased sites for prospective structures. These figures along with the $3,383,349 increase over January 1922 in building permits valuation, the $115,516 increase in postal business and the $134,943,632 increase in bank clearings emphasize the fact that Los Angeles is growing.

SOUTH AMERICAN EXPORTS

Decrease Reported During Last Year, but O for Future Now Unusually Bright

United States exports to South America in 1922 were $223,816,781—nearly $50,000,000 less than the figure of for 1921, but far above the $124,539,909 total for the fiscal June 30, 1914, according to figures compiled by the Commerce. Officials of the department state that the 1922 was due to the continued business depression that throughout the continent until late in the year.

The fact that our sales to South America were approximately $100,000,000 more during this severe crisis than they were in 1913-14 is evident of the extent to which American goods have become intrenched in the South American markets. The low point seems to have been reached in every country except Peru, and the restocking of many depleted lines will probably have the effect of regaining for the United States the ground lost last year.

The distribution of American exports to the various countries of South America is shown in the following table. It will be seen that the heaviest losses were sustained in Argentina, Brazil while gains were 1922 exports to Ecuador.

GERMANY NOW OPEN TO SUGAR INDUSTRY

LOSS OF PLANTS DURING WAR PAVES WAY FOR IMPORTATIONS

Through the loss of territory in East and West Prussia, by which Poland gained twenty-six raw-sugar factories, the burden of supplying most of the raw sugar of the country has been thrown on central Germany, thus bringing about a concentrative movement among the raw-sugar interests of that section, says Assistant Trade Commissioner Q. S. Payne, in a report to the Department of Commerce. Recently thirty-three raw-sugar factories were incorporated into the Union of Central German Raw Sugar Factories.

The stockholders of this union, who are for the most part sugar-beet growers, in order to insure an outlet for their raw sugar, absorbed the Halle sugar refinery into the union. This combination endangered the raw-material supply of the Rositz refinery, one of the largest in Germany, and as a result it has also come into the union. The refining of sugar in central Germany is therefore entirely in the hands of the union, which has attained a position of such power in the market as to be able to influence the supply of raw-material and the prices of the refined products.

Imported sugar and its are not subject to price any way. The amount of ported, is controlled and is to the industries requiring further manufacture. Such dustries must demonstrate the cessity for importation before import license is issued. The port of sugar is limited to the portionate amount of ported. There is practically general exportation of and only those concerns which port sugar for further may export equal to their

FUTURE WEALTH WELL INSURED

Intensive Cultivation Will Provide Room for Host

Advent of Industries to Make State Food Center

Markets to be Scattered to Earth's Four Corners

BY WILLIS OWEN

[Additional information and data regarding the industrial future of Los Angeles are contained in the following article prepared by Willis Owen, eminent industrial specialist, for The Times. In previous article Mr. Owen has written of other observations which he made while on a trip to the East. Among the noteworthy predictions made by Mr. Owen is that this city will be a second Chicago industrially.—Ed.]

Sixty-five million dollars is a large sum for Los Angeles to have paid for food in 1922, from material, much of which it produced in the raw, or should have produced. But before going fully into this matter I want to answer a New York reader of The Times, who asks me to explain how it is possible for 40,000,000 people to live in comfort and luxury in California.

California's area is twice as great as that of Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, New Hampshire, Maine, Massachusetts, Ohio, Rhode Island and Vermont—twice as great, mind you—and yet these nine States support 30,000,000 people. Because of their wealth some of these people live in luxury, but do any of them really live in comfort? The winter and summer exodus to California does not indicate it.

Authentic records show that men are raising families in comfort and have a healthy bank balance on ten acres of intensively cultivated California land. Can the East do this? Can it grow six crops of alfalfa a year? It cannot. Germany is about the size of California and yet it supports nearly 72,000,000 people. In the proof of my statement that 40,000,000 people can live in comfort and luxury in California lies the explanation of why Los Angeles seems destined to become the great food market of the world, hence the financial, industrial and numerical center of the world.

MILLIONS OF FARMS

George T. Edwards, editor "The Coast Banker," speaking before the Commercial Board of Los Angeles on "The Development of Our Back Country," said "There are only about 10,000,000 acres of land in California under cultivation while nearly ten times that acreage waits only the intelligent labor of our citizens to become fruitful. Much of this land can be developed for stock raising and other purposes without irrigation. The people of Los Angeles in the future will be independent of the eastern meat market."

California's large tracts of lands are rapidly being divided into one, five and ten-acre home-farms in which intensive scientific, diversified farming is replacing the old methods and the slogan "A few animals on every farm" is one that is being heeded for it is only a question of time when the owners of these small units will be called upon to furnish the meat and other fod supply of the country.

SMALL FARMS BEST

Charles Weeks, who is broadcasting the idea "One-acre and independence," writes: "We have proven beyond a doubt that the intensive little farm is far more successful today than the large farm, giving not only better financial returns but better environment for the highest development of man. I am writing a book on the possibilities of one acre, which I am sure you will be interested in.

It is my opinion that the southern part of California will be the scene of one of the densest populations in the world as the western course of civilization is filling its fertile valleys very fast."

FOURTH IN CATTLE RAISING

We seldom think of cattle raising in connection with California and yet it stands fourth in the money value of its production, amounting to nearly $100,000,000 in 1922 and standing first in quality and food value.

California grows only about one-tenth the ham and bacon is consumes and yet it raises the finest hogs in the world; a wonderful opportunity for the enterprising man or woman to grow the 90 per cent and a fortune. The Allied Industries will afford an adequate market for this product and soon our exports will amount to millions of dollars per annum.

Superior oil, climate, food, water, cleanliness, cheerful surroundings and scientific care and breeding find an instant response in quality, quantity and profits; that is how the finer sheep, hogs, cattle and food fowls are produced. They respond to better things just as humans do—and California is essentially a land of better things.

Surely $65,000,000 is a large sum for Los Angeles to have paid in 1922 for ham, bacon, canned meats and similar food articles mostly produced in Chicago, and for jams, jellies, marmalades, pickled onions, pickled walnuts, canned chicken and other foods imported from Canada, England, New Zealand, Australia and Scotland.

PRODUCE RAW MATERIALS

In many instances we produced the raw material from which these foods were manufactured, paid freight two ways, duty and four profits before we bought and consumed them.

We grow the finest figs in the world—why should we import a pound or a jar from anywhere? Soon we will supply half the world with canned and preserved figs. Florida is supplying San Francisco with canned grape fruit—soon we will change this industrial absurdity.

It is almost unbelievable the amount of money that can be made from one acre of ground devoted to raising chickens, ducks, geese or turkeys under some intensive system. Plenty of energy, enterprise, study and the sticking quality is about all the capital this industry requires.

EXPORT TO ALL WORLD

In a short period of time we will be exporting all these things as finished products to the markets of the world. Don't misunderstand me—we are now exporting millions of dollars worth, annually, of canned and dried fruits, vegetables, butter, eggs and similar products.

From the inquiries that are being received it is evident that the Sunday Times is being read throughout the world. Because I wrote that this county paid more than $30,000,000 for shoes I don't want the readers to think that we have no industries or factories in Los Angeles. We have an amazing and rapidly growing lot of them, increasing at the rate of two for each working day.

The Times, editorially, expresses the belief that we have nearly 5000 factories and industries and that their 1922 output was more than $1,000,000,000, and I agree with this opinion.

Right here let me ask how many of you know that this city manufactured 10,000 car loads of furniture last year, worth nearly $40,000,000? According to Marius de Brabant, assistant general freight agent of the Union Pacific in this city, we shipped this furniture "to the very gates of the big furniture manufacturing centers of the Middle West."

With the advent of the Allied Industries into Los Angeles there may logically be established here three extensive tanneries of the modern type each of which will make a special kind of leather. The local leather and shoe industry presents a unique situation which I will treat of in another article.

ORANGE QUEEN OF VALENCIAS

fruit. Thus it is that there are located in Orange and the trading community tributory to this place, thirteen packing houses. Very recently the Central Lemon Growers Association of Villa Park, purchased three acres within the city limits and will build a $60,000 plant here with a 300-car capacity. This, with the Villa Park plant, will enable the Association to handle approximately 700 cars of lemons each season.

Last year the voters of the Orangle Union High School district voted bonds in the sum of $160,000 for additions to the school. This money has been spent; first, in the erection of a magnificent building, in which there has been found space for a community auditorium seating 1400 and in which is being installed a $15,000 pipe organ. There was also purchased a ten-acre tract immediately adjoining the school campus for athletic development of the pupils.

An increase in the attendance of the grade school made necessary during the year the erection of a $60,000 building in the eastern part of the city.

PLAN BUSINESS STRUCTURES

Recently erected in course of erection or planned are the new $30,000 building for the Orange County Fruit Exchange, a storeroom adjacent to this building and the J. P. Boring block on South Glassell, 128 feet on North Glassell, heretofore residence property, has been purchased by a local woman, who has planned a two-story business structure thereon.

Taking the development of the community over a five-year period, will give some idea of the constant and substantial growth of Orange. For instance, building permits in 1917 were $146,000; in 1922, $924,000. In 1917 there were eighty-eight residences and four business houses erected; in 1922 there were 133 residences and sixteen business houses built, with fifty-nine residences remodeled. In 1917, there were 1221 gas consumers in the city, and in 1922, 1936, a gain of 715 resident and business consumers over this five-year period. In 1917, there were 1141 houses using water and in 1922, 1830, a gain of 689. In 1917, the Postoffice receipts were $14,378; in 1922, they were $26,225, a gain of nearly $12,000 in the five-year period.

Taking the above figures and basing the estimate upon the census of 1920, City Clerk W. A. White states that the conservative estimate of the population of Orange at the present time is about 7500 and there is an additional 5000 within the trading territory immediately adjacent to the city. The assessed valuation for Orange in 1917 was $2,685,299; in 1923, it will easily be $6,000,000, with a bonded debt of only $173,500. It is figured that the present tax rate of $1.65 will be lowered slightly, this year, by reason of the increased valuation.

Finally, the future of Orange has been bound up irrevocably with all of Southern California and this can but mean the constant growth of the city and the increased value of its properties. The 1,260,000 boxes of oranges produced annually in the Orange district, bring in more than $5,000,000; 275,000 boxes of lemons return $810,000, while the 1,352,000 pounds of walnuts add $340,000 to the above sum, thus giving a total annual orchard production in the Orange district of more than $6,000,000, not including deciduous fruits.

An active Chamber of Commerce of nearly 600 members is busy telling the world about Orange, "The Valencia Queen."

FREIGHTS REDUCED

American sales of flour in the Dutch East Indies have fallen to near the vanishing point, compared to the tremendous imports of flour from Australia, says a report from Consul Parker W. Buhrman, Sorabaya, just received by the Department of Commerce. The explanation given by the consul is the high freight rates from this country—more than double the Australian rate. Another reason is that apparently the best American grades are no longer sent to those markets. The Australian rate used to about equal the American rate, and has evidently been reduced for competitive reasons.

CUBAN TEXTILE IMPORTS

Imports of textiles into Cuba in 1921 amounted to $42,674,342, of which the principal items are: Cotton manufactures, plain fabrics, 13,266,095 pounds, $15,175,400; twilled fabrics, 3,066,425 pounds, $4,176,669; knit goods, 1,379,271 pounds, $3,196,224; ready-made clothing, 1,576,709 pounds, $3,235,287; other cotton manufactures, $4,252,096; bags for sugar, 56,208,668 pounds, $5,919,727; other manufactures of vegetable fibers, $2,648,804; wool manufactures, $2,483,029; silk and manufactures of, $4,100,798.

INDUSTRIAL CONDITIONS IN BRIEF

Increased Production in This Country Brings Advances in Prices; Ruhr Holds Foreign Interest

FROM THE DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE

Domestic Conditions: Early figures on January business conditions, received by the Department of Commerce, show great activity in the iron and steel industry. Pig iron production at 3,229,604 tons was the largest since October, 1920. Steel ingot production, 3,717,071 tons, was the largest since March, 1920. Unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation, 6,910,776 tons, were the largest since February, 1921. Shipments of locomotives were the largest since January, 1921, and unfilled orders were the highest since 1919. Large increases occurred in new flotations of capital and in new incorporations during January, but business failures again increased. However, there has been a notable decline in failures in the past two weeks.

The week ending February 10 witnessed a considerable advance in prices of stocks and bonds, and the Federal reserve ratio at 77 per cent was the highest in several months. Wholesale prices in general continue to advance, led by iron and steel. The retail price index of food rose in the week ending the 10th inst, after a steady decline since the middle of September. Sales of mail order houses and chain stores show large buying with good-sized increases over January, 1921.

Figures received by the Department of Commerce, during the week ending February 19, continue to show very large productive activity for January. Cotton consumption amounted to 610,375 bales, the third largest in our history. The production of zinc was the highest since March, 1920, and the output of bituminous coal the highest, with one exception, since December, 1920. Continued activity in building construction is indicated by the new high records in unfilled orders and production of flooring and the high seasonal movement of building contracts, lumber production, cement output and sales of fabricated structural steel. The demand for buildings and for railroad equipment continues strong and has given an impetus to the industries supplying the material for these needs.

The large car loadings and seasonally high retail sales, as well as the general depletion of manufacturers' stocks, indicate that the goods produced are quickly passing into consumption. Wholesale prices have continued to rise during February and retail food prices also have risen. Business failures have declined considerably and those of the week ending February 19 were the smallest since the end of October. Prices of securities and of sterling exchange advanced, while the Federal reserve ratio declined from 77 per cent to 75.3 per cent.

Foreign Conditions: Developments in the Ruhr region are the outstanding factor in the economic situation of France. France exchange has fluctuated considerably and the business outlook has become so disturbed that engagements for forward months are taken with great reluctance. Prices are rising in almost all important lines. Activity in iron and steel, the branches most affected, have been cut down by inability to secure coke. Falling off is marked in the leather, cotton and woolen industries. Unoccupied Germany has not yet been seriously affected by the Ruhr occupation, though the condition in certain industries is unfavorable, owing to an insufficiency of coal and coke. The cost of living continues to increase rapidly.

The note circulation, private discounts, and the floating debt almost doubled during January, and the latest budget estimate places the total deficit for the first quarter of 1922 at over a half billion marks. Prices and wages are advancing, and unemployment is giving increasing concern. Japan's imports exceeded exports in January by 54,000,000 yen in value. Total imports were 149,000,000, and exports 95,000,000 yen, the latter a decrease of 63,000,000 yen from December, but an increase of 12,000,000 yen over January, 1921. Prices of commodities are rising rapidly in Rumania. Industry continues depressed in Austria. Unemployment in the Vienna district increased from 90,000 at the end of December to 101,000 at the end of January.

The general Belgian situation presents some characteristics of a boom period, but a general lack of confidence in the future is evident. Lack of fuel is seriously hampering the metal industries. The financial situation of the government in Spain is improving steadily, but the industrial situation is not satisfactory, the slight improvement in the mining industry being more than counterbalanced by the troubles of the textile trades which are hurt by British competition and shortage of power. The general industrial and commercial stagnation in Denmark is being prolonged by several unfavorable circumstances among which is the adverse trade balance. Basic economic conditions remain undisturbed in Sweden by strikes in the wood, pulp, lumber and iron industries and among the stevedores of Goteborg. The money market continues quiet but firm in Japan, where unemployment and the cost of living are rising slightly. Amalgamation of small weak banks is expected to strengthen the financial situation. Imports continue to exceed exports. The settlement of the long drawn-out strike, at the Newcastle Steel Works, in Australia, has accelerated economic progress there. The wheat estimate is reduced to 93,000,000 bushels. Wool arrivals to January 31 are 1,475,000 bales. Business generally is good. Conditions are improving also in New Zealand. Slightly greater activity is reported from Manila though importers seem reluctant to place orders of any great importance.

EXPORTS OF RAW SILK

The most striking change in Italian exports to the United States during the first half of 1922, detailed statistics of which have just been received from Commercial Attache H. C. MacLean of the Department of Commerce, appears in shipments of raw silk and silk waste, which fell from a total of 1261 metric tons in January-June, 1921, to only 324 metric tons in 1922 (metrican ton, 2204.6 pounds.) While raw silk is normally the most important item among Italy's exports to the United States, sales depend to a very large extent on the condition of the oriental market.

MEXICO MAKES FARM PROGRESS

Water From Storage System for Irrigation

Large Stockyards to be Built in Mexico City Soon

Enrollment of Agricultural School Increases

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MONTEREY (Mex.) March 3.—Several commissions of engineers have been appointed by the Department of Public Works of the Mexican government to make surveys and estimates of water storage dams and irrigation systems that are to be constructed in different parts of the country. The largest of these development projects is in the State of San Luis Potosi. The dam will be situated at El Mesquite and its construction is already under way. It is stated that the dam at El Mesquite will cost approximately $1,500,000 and will form a storage reservoir sufficient to irrigate 2,500,000 acres. In respect to area to be reclaimed, it is said to be the largest irrigation project in the world. The inland lake formed by the dam will also be the largest artificial body of water on the continent, according to engineers.

Another commission of engineers is in the State of Sonora doing preliminary work for a system of canals by which the water of the Sonora River will be used in irrigating nearly 1,500,000 acres of agricultural land. During the rainy season, the Sonora River carries a large volume of water, but in the winter is practically dry. It has been found that in some sections it follows an underground course.

PROVIDES WATER STORAGE

The plans which the engineers expect to carry out include the construction of a system of dams in order to store the water in the rainy season and a system of canals for its distribution on a large area of land which, at the present time, is not under cultivation.

Another commission is working in the northern section of Sonora for the purpose of surveying the land and to make plans for extensive irrigation in the Guaymas Valley.

The fourth commission is now directing the building of an immense dam in the upper section of the Yaqui River. It will afford a water supply for irrigating about 400,000 acres of valley land.

PLAN BIG STOCKYARDS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 24.—The Mexican Packing Company, which controls the meat and packing industry in this city, has announced his intention to construct a stockyards in the vicinity of Mexico City which will be among the largest in the world. The great stockyards of the Argentine Republic will be used as a model, although the company plans to make the one here larger and more modern than that of the South American country.

The projected plant will be a model of efficiency and cleanliness. Before being killed the animal will be closely examined to see that it has no disease, while the killing process is so devised that there will be very little bleeding and the cercass of the animal will not touch the ground. The animal will then be washed, sewed in a canvas and placed in the refrigerator, no human hands touching it during the entire process.

The company also plans to construct large ranches for the raising of cattle within a short distance of the city of Mexico. The lands have been examined and pronounced ideal for the grazing of cattle.

The system to be used is similar to that in vogue in the ranches of the United States. The cattle will be carefully selected and kept on the lands for a space of 110 days, so that when ready to be killed they will be in the best possible condition.

Contracts have been signed by the company with many of the largest cattle raisers in the country to provide large numbers of select cattle, many of which have already begun to arrive.

SCHOOL OVERCROWDED

The School of Agriculture of this city finds itself in difficulties due to an overcrowding of the school. Nearly 600 pupils have applied for admission, while officials of the school claim that there is room for only 400.

The hope of the authorities of the institution at present is that many of those who have applied for admission will not present themselves for the matriculation. An appeal has also been sent to the Secretary of Agriculture that the school be increased in order to take care of the excess number.

OUR TRADE MARKS ARE GIVEN PRIORITY

The adherence of Germany to the Madrid Trade Mark Convention on Dec. 1, 1922, and the consequent acceptance of approximately 29,000 international marks for registration without preliminary examination, was a cause of concern to the owners of American trade marks registered in Germany, owing to the possibility of conflict between the international and the German registrations.

Since the United States is not a member of the Madrid Convention, the position of American marks in respect to priority over international trade marks has been definitely established by the German Patent Office, the tariff division of the Department of Commerce explains. In case of conflict, any American trade mark, registered in Germany previous to Dec. 1, 1922, holds priority over any trade mark included in the list accepted under the terms of the Madrid convention.

Before an American trade mark, for which application was made after Dec. 1, 1922, can be registered in Germany, the Berne list must be examined, and if no conflicting trade mark is found, the American registration will be granted. In the contrary case registration will be denied the American mark.

MEXICAN TARIFFS

The text of the Mexican decree increasing the duties on automobile and truck tires, has now been received by the Department of Commerce. It shows that the duties on rubber tires for all vehicles have been increased. The new classification places all tires under the same items as those for trucks and automobiles.

STIPPLED BRICK

Bringing Out Color

THERE is as much difference in the colorings in brick as there is in the lustre of carbon. The diamond scintillates — the lump of coal is dead.

Skillful burnings in the kiln frequently produce beautiful colorings, the effect of which is not brought out to perfection on account of the finish of the brick's surface.

Stippled Brick has a delicately roughened surface, soft in appearance and brings out to the best advantages the various rich glowing colors of the brick, at the same time preserving a correct dignity, and at the same time where this type of treatment is demanded, creating an effect of artistic beauty that cannot be surpassed by any other facing medium known.

Analysis No. 1. Where a warehouse should be built.

Where Commodities Entering Storage—

Can be received conveniently, quickly, and cheaply with the least possible handling. That is the first important factor in selecting a warehouse site. It is necessary, therefore, that (A) spur tracks from the warehouse door connect with every railroad in the City; (B) that highways, free of traffic congestion, and offering as short a haul as possible, connect with the Harbour.

Where Commodities Leaving Storage

Can be delivered quickly and at a minimum expense. That requires (A) a short haul to the downtown district and direct boulevard connections to that district and to surrounding communities in both of which delivery occurs and (B) a sufficient number of highways to protect trucks from long traffic delays and expedite their movement. (C) Clear highways and free access to L. C. L. stations of rail carriers.

Study chart above. You will note that

Southwest Industrial Gateway Terminal

(Bounded by Central, South Park, Slauson and Florence Avenues)

Offers (1) easy access to all Harbour Boulevards, either existing or in contemplation;

(2) a network of streets leading to downtown district, and all Southern California.

(3) spur tracks connecting with all railroads and L. C. L. stations.

(4) street cars for employees.

(5) cheap municipal power, and

(6) water—abundant municipal and pump supply.

(7) sewerage.

(8) natural gas.

(9) fuel oil where required.

(10) unexcelled fire and police protection.

INDUSTRIES FOR PASADENA SOON

Eastern Capitalist Depicts Suburb as Factory City

Population to be Greatly Increased by Change

Natural Beauty Would Not be Injured by Plants

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, March 3.—Factories with a total number of 20,000 employees or more and a resultant population of over 100,000 in Pasadena within the near future is the vision of V. W. Bayless, retired banker and lumber king of Minneapolis who is spending the winter at the Crown Hotel.

"The numerous advantages offered in Pasadena for industrial purposes cannot longer be ignored," said Mr. Bayless on interview. "The time is come when Pasadena must forget its smugness and self-complacency as an immaculate residential city and take its place among the great manufacturing centers of the Southwest."

Mr. Bayless added that the factories need not destroy the beauty of the city, predicting that they will be handsome structures surrounded by broad lawns, trees and flower gardens. City regulations, he said, will provide against smoke and unsightly debris.

FREIGHT CENTER AT PARK

Among manufacturing facilities offered to Pasadena, as cited by Mr. Bayless, is potential hydro-electric power in the district sufficient to run the factories of the entire State. He predicted that Lamanda Park, a suburb on the east of the city, would become a great freighting center.

"Pasadena will have factories manufacturing boots, shoes, cotton goods, clothing, watches, jewelry and similar commodities," said Mr. Bayless. "Power, fuel, transportation and housing facilities for the laborers are only waiting to be used."

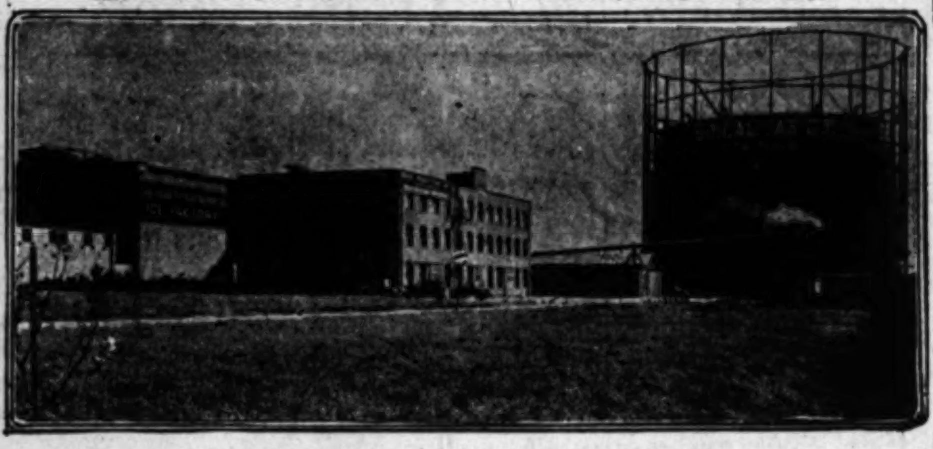
Undesirables and labor agitators will never find a foothold in Pasadena because of ideal living conditions for the workers, according to Mr. Bayless. He said that there is no comparison with industrial conditions here and those in the East.

IDEAL FOR WORKERS

"Working people who live in hovels, in four-smelling tenements and amid the degrading influences of the great industrial centers of the East cannot be expected to be either efficient or loyal," he said. "Their environment breeds discontent and they fall easy prey to the insidious influence of labor agitators. Strikes result inevitably. With ideal climatic and housing conditions such discontent could never find roots in Southern California. The workers will live in pretty little bungalows, each with its own lawn and garden. They will be a clean-bodied, clean-minded, wholesome folk who would be a credit to any community. The fear that factories in Pasadena would bring an undesirable element is entirely unfounded."

Mr. Bayless, who has large real estate interests in Pasadena, watched Minneapolis grow from a town of 25,000 to its present prestige as an industrial and commercial metropolis. He has studied community building in many parts of the country, and has been actively associated with numerous constructive enterprises. He hopes soon to make his permanent home in Pasadena.

Announce Industrial Subdivision for Southwest



A Part of the Western-Avenue Industrial Center

Fifty-four acres located at the southwest corner of Western and Slauson avenues were opened last Sunday. Eleven firms already have sites adjoining the property that is to be sold. Blue & Mason, industrial specialists, and Hugh Evans, agents for the property, announce that half of the business lots fronting on Western avenue have been sold.

MANILA MARKET REPORTED QUIET

There are no heavy overstocks of piece goods in Manila, Trade Commissioner John A. Fowler cables the Commerce Department, but importers are hesitating to place new business on account of the opinion among the Chinese that the market will break in June or July. There is small purchase from local stocks for immediate needs.

Window glass movement is slow compared with former months. There are no overstocks and prices are well maintained. Late rains have affected the sale of plants and oils. White lead movement is normal. It is reported that English zinc and paste paint are giving strong competition. Red lead movement is slow on account of structural backwardness. The cement market is reported steady, with increasing supplies from Europe. America is not in the market.

Sugar mill returns are well up to expectations. It is believed that planting will be about the same as last year, one estimate giving a probable increase of 20 per cent because of improved prices. This, however, should be taken with reservations. Of the area already planted, it is estimated that from 10 to 20 per cent has been replanted on account of the late rains.

January prices for hemp fluctuated very little. Large shipments of medium grades to the United States for binder twine continue. Reports from the provinces indicate that 1923 will show increased production over last year. Unofficial but reliable trade figures show receipts in Manila and Cebu from January 1 to February 12 of 135,000 bales; shipments amounting to 151,000, against 114,000 last year; and stocks of 139,000 bales, against 269,000 last year.

There is small seasonal demand for rice threshers with tractors and plows. Otherwise there is no activity in tractors, although active sale of parts continues. The Foster alcohol process is expected to stimulate the use of tractors and trucks on sugar estates. Medium priced and cheap passenger cars are in demand, which is limited to actual needs.

CONDITIONS IN CHINA ARE IMPROVED NOW

The situation in the Ruhr Valley offers the opportunities to American business interests in China and the Far East generally, says Trade Commissioner L. W. Hoyt in a cable to the Department of Commerce. The first indication of this is the 10 per cent rise in the price of American indigo. The Chinese New Year settlements were satisfactory and a greatly increased trade is expected in spite of the unchanged political situation. Stocks of goods are low in all lines even including cotton piece goods.

The price of cotton is 22½ cents gold per pound now. Yarn prices have advanced slightly which is a very healthy sign. The price of Douglas fir has increased, now selling around $38 ex-yard. The steel market is reported to be strong. The present stocks of tin are very low due to the labor shortage and the brisk demand at the latter part of last year. The laborers discharged during the dull market have found other employment and at present there is a shortage of labor in this industry. Exports of slab tin for 1921 were 8907 short tons and a small quantity of ore. No increased output is expected until spring.

Extensive Improvements Planned by Two Churches at Visalia

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VISALIA, March 3.—Work on a new social hall and meeting-room for the First Presbyterian Church is under way. The women's auxiliary adopted plans which were approved by the trustees. These plans call for the complete finishing up in a modern and attractive way of the large basement under the church, with installation of a complete kitchen and pantry and furnishings of the hall. The ladies, with Mrs. Morley Maddox as president, have assumed financial responsibility for this improvement, which will provide for present needs of the church. A large addition is to be erected in the future in which to house the entire religious educational program.

Plans for complete reconstruction of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, including the addition of four new classrooms and a kitchen, are so nearly completed that work is expected to be under way within the next two weeks. This improvement will cost between $5000 and $6000, according to Rev. Douglas T. Reed, pastor.

The additional building will adjoin the present edifice on the east, running to the property lines. A new roof will be put on the building, the interior will be redecorated, new windows will be installed and the entire exterior will be stuccoed.

COTTON CLOTH EXPORTS

Shipments of cotton cloths from the United States in 1922 to noncontiguous territories were 643,305 square yards valued at $145,230 to Alaska; 7,407,364 square yards valued at $1,446,964 to Hawaii, and 35,145,815 square yards valued at $5,857,369 to Porto Rico, sales to the last-named territory comprising 11,561,498 square yards of unbleached cloth, 6,321,815 square yards of bleached, 4,595,521 square yards of printed, 9,565,104 square yards of piece dyed and 3,101,706 square yards of yarn or stock dyed cloths.

ARGENTINA HAS MANY OPENINGS

Securities of Southern Land Said to be Sound

Markets of Nation Present Great Opportunity

Writer Says Country is Anglo-Saxon in Character

BY C. E. WOODSIDE

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)

BUENOS AIRES, March 3.—In order to understand financial conditions in the Argentine Republic it is necessary to understand the common method of financing, and also the conditions which have necessitated these methods. Throughout the United States and especially in California, it is the custom for each school district to issue bonds for the construction of school-houses. The total school debt of the districts in the United States would amount to a very large sum, but these bonds are the obligation of the district and not a general obligation of the State or county in which the district is located.

In the Argentine, however, the school district has no credit. The laws organizing the school district do not even make it possible for the district to issue bonds. For this reason the money has to come from the province (which corresponds to our state) and all of the money invested in school buildings within the province comes either from general taxes or from money borrowed by the province.

ISSUE SOON PAID OUT

Just at this time the Province of Santa Fe has authorized a loan equivalent to $8,000,000 in American money, the proceeds to be used entirely in the construction of school buildings within the province, and these bonds, together with interest will be paid off in eighteen years, under a system which is universal, both in the cities, provinces and in the nation.

If all the elements of strength which are back of the school bonds above mentioned were fully appreciated in the United States, these bonds would sell very quickly and at a high price, and as the merit and strength of these securities become known in the United States it is reasonable to expect that there will be a substantial demand for them.

TO DEVELOP RAPIDLY

For some years to come the Argentine Republic is sure to develop very rapidly and is going to need large sums of money in this development. It will need great quantities of machinery and other manufactured products which the American manufacturer will be glad to sell, but the exports of the Argentine will not be sufficient to pay for the imports, and this difference will have to be made up by borrowing money. The investment wealth of the United States is now so great that it is seeking the world markets for an outlet and the fundamental conditions and actual merit of the securities in the Argentine are better than those offered in any other country in the world.

While the Spanish language is the official language of this country, yet there is a larger percentage of Anglo-Saxon people in the Argentine Republic than in any other country in the world with the exception of Great Britain and the United States. In a recent article in the leading financial publication of the country, the author takes the position that America, Argentine and Great Britain are the three Anglo Saxon nations, and there should be a strong community of interest between them.

SHOULD LEARN METHOD

Should one visit the leading pleasure resorts of this country, he would have difficulty in knowing whether he was in the United States or in the Argentine; it only remains for the investors of the United States to become acquainted with the strength and resources of the Argentine Republic, and for the people of the Argentine Republic to become acquainted with the American methods of doing business, in order to bring about a strong financial and mutually advantageous relation between the peoples.

TULARE BUSINESS FIRMS SELL INTERESTS

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TULARE, March 3. — W. R. Foreman, for some time manager of Tanner's Music Shoppe in this city, and later of the new store in Fresno, has completed a deal by which he becomes sole owner of the local establishment. Mr. Tanner has moved his home and business to Fresno to better attend to interests there and Mr. Foreman will concentrate on Tulare trade.

J. H. Shirk & Son, proprietors of Shirk's ice cream and dairy plant at Inyo and L streets, recently sold their interests in the plant to G. H. Neilsen of Bakersfield, who has been associated with the Kern County Creamery Company for some period, and who is experienced in the manufacture of ice cream and other dairy products. C. G. McFarland has taken over the delivery department. Mr. Shirk and son will remain in the city for a time.

FRENCH TEXTILE INDUSTRY

Conditions in the French cotton textile industry are poor, according to a report to the Commerce Department from Commercial Attache Chester Lloyd Jones, Paris. The high price of cotton is hindering the sale of manufactured products and the decline in value of the franc has temporarily disorganized the purchase of raw cotton. Spiners profess no particular alarm as they claim to have stocks of cotton sufficient for several months.

Business in woolen textiles has fallen off and future conditions are unsettled. Manufacturers have wool yarn stocks for three months ahead, and enough old orders for ordinary woolen goods until May. Higher prices are demanded on new orders and buyers are holding off fearing the effects of further exchange fluctuations.

The raw silk market became active the latter part of January and finally, after much speculation, manufacturers were forced to place orders for raw materials. The looms are still active, but a reduced output is feared for the future. The outlook for manufactured products is not bright, sales having fallen off, and business generally being difficult and unremunerative.

There is a good demand for Russian flax, but buying is hindered by the rise in pound sterling. Little home-grown flax is offered. Spinners are buying carefully, and covering themselves by manufacturing on order. Sales of yarn and cloth are only relatively satisfactory.

FIRM BUYS NEW PLANT

To take care of its growth in business pending the completion of its large plant, Ko Fan, Inc., has purchased the plant of the Orange Crush Bottling Company at 1135-41 South San Julian street. This plant will be used in addition to their establishment at 464-464½ East Third street. Both parties were represented by Ned B. Johnson of the W. A. Heitman Company.

WINDSOR SQUARE DISTRICT'S MOST BEAUTIFUL HOME. MOORISH VILLA ON NEARLY HALF AN ACRE. WONDERFUL PATIO, WHICH IS A VERITABLE MINIATURE PARK. FOUNTAIN, FLOWERS, PALMS, ETC.
Iron doors lead to especially designed room which serves as reception-room to one of the most beautiful living rooms imaginable. It has French decorations and colors of cheer. The mantel is most artistic, and, like the walls, is hand painted. The work of a master. The reception-room, living-room and dining-room all open by French doors to the patio. The main master's bedroom is of unusual size, is exquisitely decorated and has in connection large dressing-room and bath. There is a pantry convenient kitchen, maid's room and bath to complete the first floor.

A very acceptable stairway leads to two unusual bedrooms, both of which command beautiful mountain views. One has attractive fireplace and dressing-room. The bath is in keeping with the other selective appointments. Garage for two cars.

We can unreservedly say that this is a property without comparison in the whole of Wilshire. The price is well below the market for this exceptional style of home.
Open for inspection daily.

New 2-story; 4 Bedrooms.

This is not "Spanish" or "Jazz." It's New Jersey. I built houses like this last year in Newark's suburbs and sold them $5000 higher. Construction is the best; 2x8 and 2x10 floor beams; brick veneer on 1st story, ship-lap on 2nd; a chimney and mantel that are different (and more expensive;) J. L. Mott Co. plumbing fixtures; porch floor done in warm red tile; and many other interesting features that I hope will appeal to you.

This is my first Los Angeles job; it is a good job, but I don't want to keep it, hence the low price. House will be shown by appointment with my agents,

AN ARCHITECT AND A BUILDER

Put their heads together. They planned and worked. When the last workman had taken his tools and departed they looked upon their finished product—a monument to any architect—to any builder.

On beautiful Hill Drive, in Eagle Rock, is their finished task. A lovely 5-room bungalow of the Spanish Renaissance type.

Picture in your mind the setting; nestling at the very base of the foothills, enjoying a view of beautiful Eagle Rock Valley, is this Spanish home with its red tiled roof, weather-tinted shutters, walled patio and artistic arcade.

Let us approach the house from Hill Drive, past the walled patio, through the massive doorway and into the living-room. Here we find a rare treat, room with cathedral ceiling, Tiffany stippled walls over-stenciled in pastel oils; formal fireplace, hand-wrought fixtures and indirect copper lights.

Let us step down the dining-room, which is below the level of the living-room, medium-sized room with charred beam ceiling. An arcade surrounds this room on two sides. Into the kitchen with its tile sink and cozy breakfast nook. Now back into the hall, a bedroom at either end, with ample closet space and an abundance of light. The bathroom with a two-colored tile floor and sunken tub is another pleasant surprise. The garage accommodates two cars.

In all of Southern California there is no duplicate. A treat to see, a prize to possess. The price is right, the terms are easy.

ROSCOE A CITY SOON.

All Los Angeles county towns, without exception, are making good.

ROSCOE starts with a better location and more tributary population than most L. A. county towns, and its progress will therefore be greater and faster than its sister towns.

Little short of marvelous is the progress recorded since we wrote the first ad on ROSCOE only a brief time since.

Drive out now and see the stores, the factories, the homes, the ranches with evidence of newness.

Reflect that this is only a starter; that ROSCOE must and will duplicate the performance of Glendale and Burbank on the same artery of commerce, San Fernando Road.

Ask yourself if you can find investment that will so surely profit you as the ground floor purchase at original plat prices in Roscoe; acres, residence lots or business lots; many have already bought; you will have plenty of good company; we will welcome you.

Bus every thirty minutes from Union Station, Fifth and Los Angeles sts., direct to our tract office at Roscoe, or

A TRIP TO THE TROPICS.

March 12th, 1923, a large party of men are leaving Los Angeles to visit the properties of the AMERICAN PANAMA DEVELOPMENT COMPANY, in the Province of Chiriqui, Republic of Panama. Several of the party have invested their money with this company, others are going with a view of investing, but wishing to inspect the property first. As a pleasure trip it will be delightful, even for those who have previously seen the Canal.

You spend two days in New Orleans, about thirty-six hours in Havana, Cuba. Then you cross the Isthmus on the Panama Railroad, which parallels the Panama Canal all the way. The Canal is one thing alone that all true Americans should see, for it will surely make you proud that you are a native of a country that can accomplish such things when others have failed. Then you will visit the city of Colon, on the Atlantic side, and the city of Panama, on the Pacific side. Both of these cities dating back to the 16th century, buildings still standing and in every-day use that are almost three centuries old.

The accommodations on this trip will be first-class. A chartered Pullman from Los Angeles to New Orleans, staterooms on the United Fruit steamers from New Orleans to Colon, Panama, a chartered steamer from Panama City to our plantation. On the plantation you will have good comfortable quarters, the best of eats and for those who like sports all kinds of hunting and fishing.

The trip will take 30 days and every minute will be enjoyed. At least a week will be spent on our plantation and we know that every day will be thoroughly enjoyed by every one. The cost of the trip is nominal. Full particulars can be obtained by calling the Secretary of the Company at Pico 4420 for an appointment or by calling at the Company's General Offices, Suite 900 Chapman Bldg.

REMEMBER that this is an opportunity that will not come to you often.

DRIVEWAYS IN MIDDLE WEST ARE UNPLEASANT

[illegible], Freezing Temperatures and Thaws Wreck Highways; Rail Congestion Helps Coast

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

DETROIT, March 3.—While bad weather and a shortage [illegible] has been causing the automotive industry a certain amount of annoyance, it failed to curtail operations and [illegible] every plant entered the month of March at capacity [illegible]. This winter has played havoc with the idea that [illegible] were pleasant occupation, as far as the Middle [illegible] was concerned. Heavy snowfall, followed by alternate [illegible] of freezing temperatures and thaws, with a rainstorm [illegible] for variety sake, placed the highways in an atrocious [illegible] practically the entire month of February, and made [illegible] delivery a precarious pursuit, but it failed to halt it.

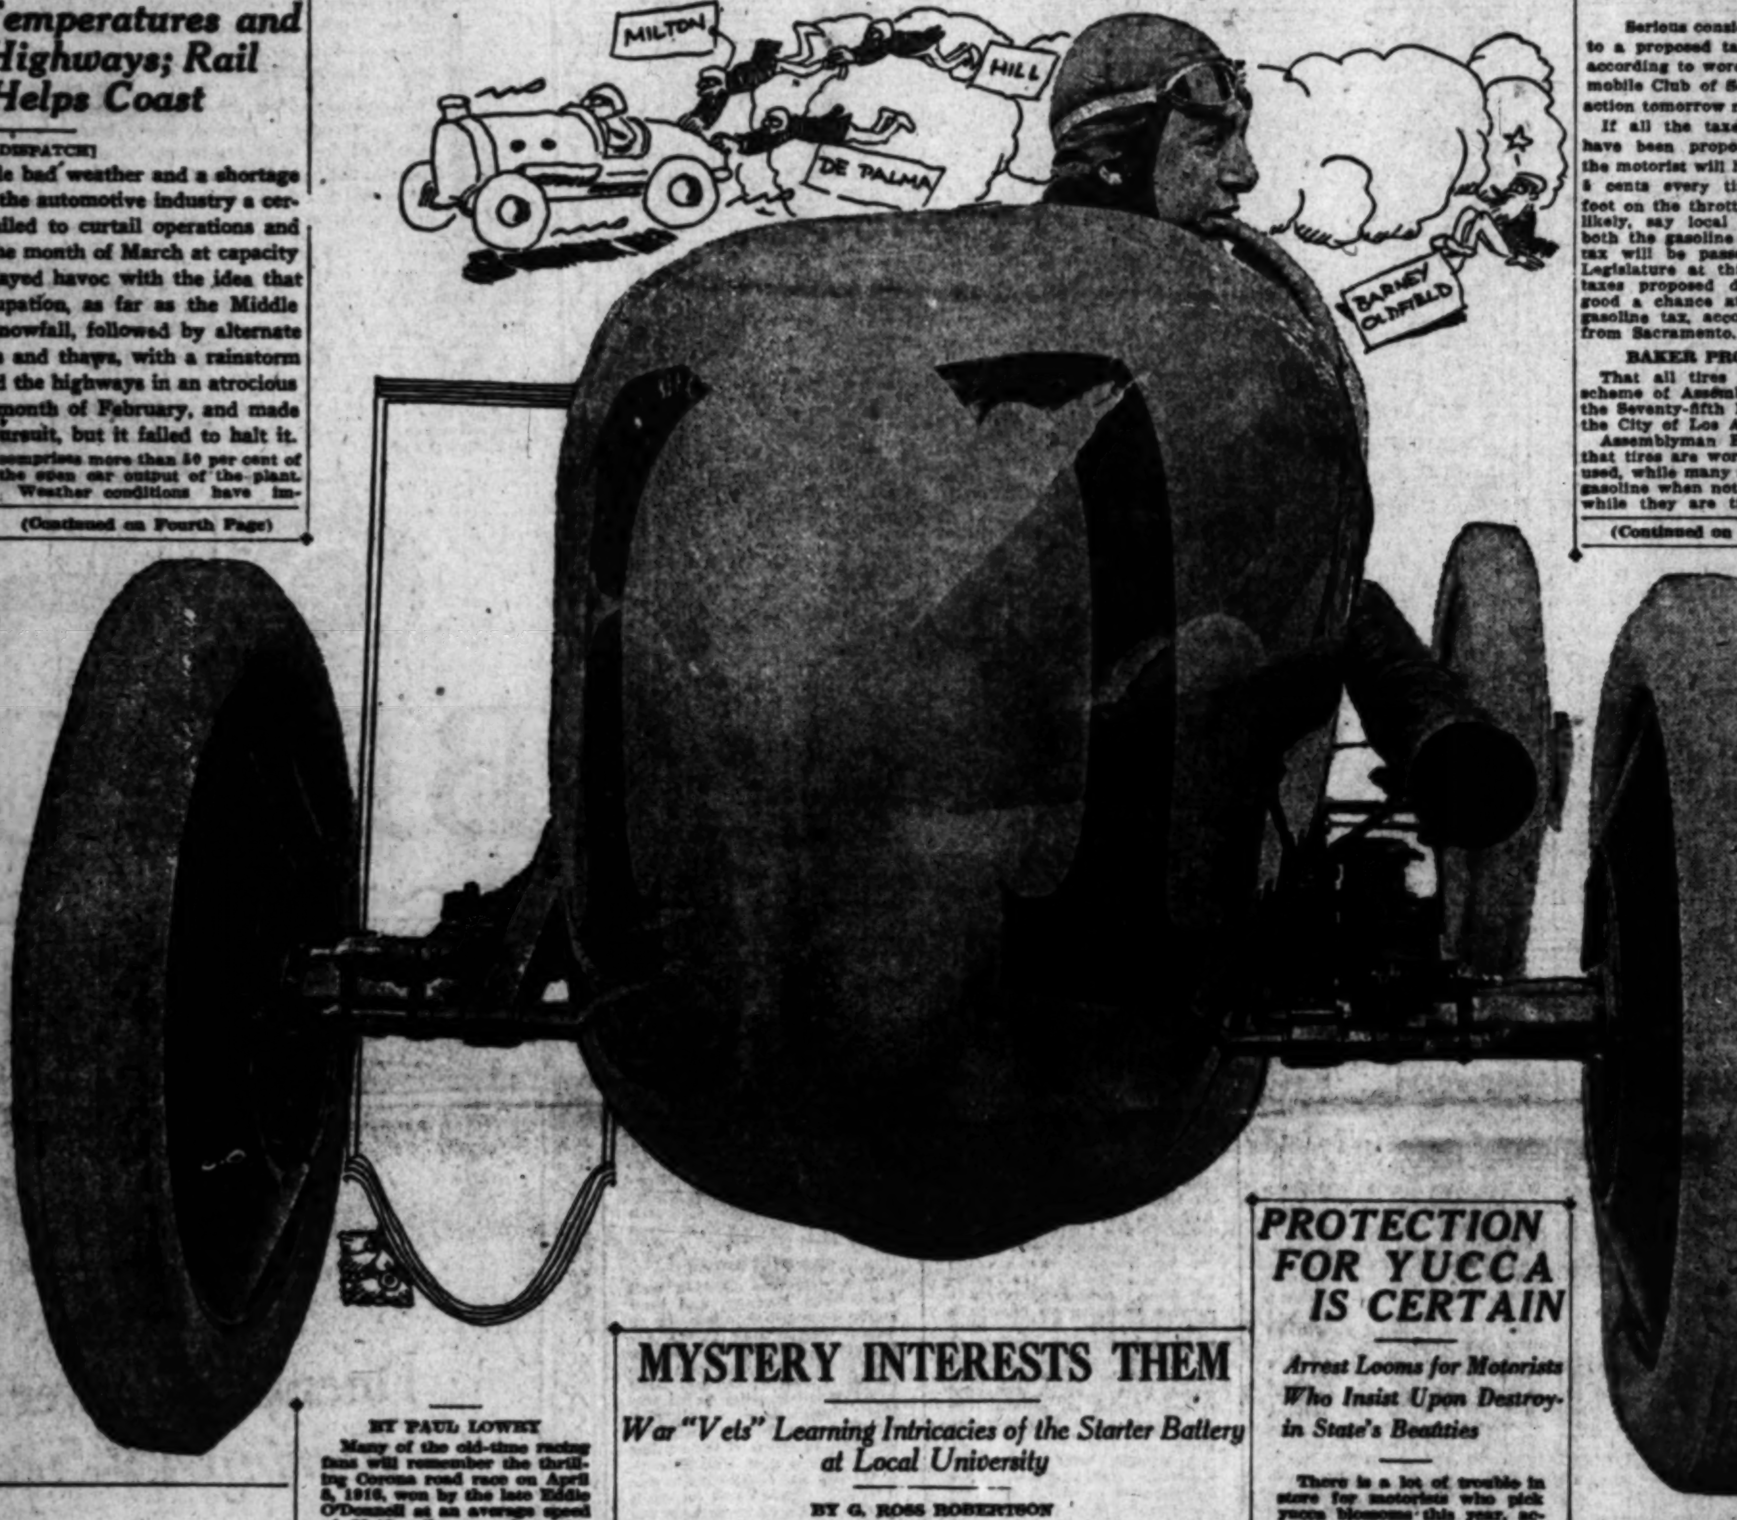
HERE'S WHAT RACE PILOTS SEE OF JIMMY MURPHY

Comet of the Speedway Flashed Into Prominence on Local Track in 1920



BY PAUL LOWRY

Many of the old-time racing fans will remember the thrilling Corona road race on April 8, 1916, won by the late Eddie O'Donnell at an average speed of 79.16 miles per hour for 276.8 miles. The tragic fate met by Bob Burman will help to place the event.

Probably none but the contestants themselves remember who rode with O'Donnell that day. Eddie's mechanic was a frail, slight Irish youth. They called him a "mick," but he only smiled ingenuously beneath a thick layer of soot and dirt. He answered to the name of Jimmy Murphy, but nobody paid any attention to him then.

HIS DEBUT

The Corona road race was Jimmy Murphy's introduction to big-time racing. He had fooled around with some minor road races itching for a chance to land a seat beside a real driver. His chance came with O'Donnell, and he made good from the start.

For a speedway champion of such prominence—a driver who has continued to push the world's records higher and higher — the general public and even his closest friends—know little of Jimmy's early history.

One thing is certain, and that is Jimmy Murphy's amazing career of triumphs on the Los Angeles Speedway. Since the mile and a quarter pine saucer was erected at Beverly Hills in 1920 there have been eight major races held there. Six of these were 250-mile affairs. In three of them Murphy finished first, and each time broke the existing world record. In the two series of sprint races he figured prominently.

Born in San Francisco twenty-eight years ago, Jimmy Murphy has lived in the Southland since the earthquake in 1906. His uncle is Judge O'Donnell of Vernon, and it is with his uncle and aunt that Jimmy Murphy has made his home for seventeen years.

WITH TOM MILTON

Jimmy rode with Eddie O'Donnell in 1916 until the latter broke his arm on the Kansas City track. Then he began swinging the loop with Dave Lewis and others, including a brief career with the redoubtable Tommy Milton, the 1921 speedway champion.

Murphy's first chance to drive came in September, 1919, when Duesenberg provided him with a mount. Jimmy had been riding with various members of the Duesenberg team and was given opportunities to learn the driving game.

MYSTERY INTERESTS THEM

War "Vets" Learning Intricacies of the Starter Battery at Local University

BY G. ROSS ROBERTSON
University of California (Southern Branch)

Chemically speaking, the greatest mystery in an automobile is its starter battery. The average driver of experience has a fairly good idea of the kind of work needed to repair his brakes, motor, differential or what-not—but the battery keeps its own secrets. Wherefore, it is generally abused and generally gets into trouble.

In all probability no device has ever baffled the inventive genius of Thomas A. Edison more than the storage battery. Edison's nickel battery, the result of years of work, has found a limited usefulness, but not in the automobile-starter field. In chemical principle the storage cell is exactly what it was forty years ago—a jar containing dilute sulphuric acid, containing lead plates packed with spongy lead and lead oxides. Nothing else save a few mechanical contrivances. It is heavy, unwieldy; wastes much electrical energy; is prone to crack and let out its noxious fluid; provokingly slow to charge, and in general a nuisance.

MANY HAVE FAILED

One thing it will do, however: it will deliver a tremendous flow of energy for a few seconds on the demand of the starting motor. Edison's nickel battery, the dry battery and all the various contraptions of the past decade have failed on this vital point. Yet, it is just this sudden emergency power that leads the battery and its owner into trouble.

The rapid appearance of millions of electric starting outfits in the last few years has created a demand for repair experts far beyond the supply. Naturally, the legitimate skilled men have found their ranks invaded by a class of untrained, incompetent people who operate certain service stations and pose as experts. The results of their mishandling of batteries has often wrongly discredited the battery trade in the public eye. For,

EXCITED OVER BRIDGE

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, March 3.—Local desert road enthusiasts are interested extremely in the plan which has again been advanced of planking the Santa Fe bridge over the Colorado River at Parker so that automobiles may pass over it. The Arizona Legislature is now considering a bill to provide $5000 for this purpose and Southern California road enthusiasts are hopeful that it will go through.

The project was first launched a number of months ago and at that time the Santa Fe consent to such action was secured and the railroad agreed to install safety devices. San Bernardino county will aid in the project and many of the twons along the National Old Trails highway are ready to give aid.

The State Highway Commission has pledged itself to do as much work on the National Old Trails road from Needles as possible, and when it is paved and in good shape it will feed more people into Southern California and Los Angeles than any other road, unless it be the Ocean-to-Ocean highway.

MEXICAN DUTY STICKS

BY JACK STARR-HUNT
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MEXICO CITY, March 3.—Automobile importers, dealers and users have complained to Secretary of the Treasury Adolfo de la Huerta over the heavy duties placed on automobile tires of a peso a kilo bruto for solid tires and two pesos a kilo bruto for pneumatic tires.

The government's stand in the matter is that although it is aware that the small and almost bankrupt factories in Mexico are unable to produce in quality or in quantity sufficient for the demand, it intends to give them a chance to develop and will keep the duty on for eight months. Then, if within that time the Mexican factories seem to be inadequate the duty will be removed.

It is altogether probable that this will appear long before the expiration of the eight months and the duty will not stay that long. The stocks of tires in Mexico are very small, and when the imported tires are gone the users will be loath to buy the local tires because of their very poor quality. The matter will then again be presented to the government and it is expected that some action will be taken to remove the duty and permit the importation of foreign tires.

PROTECTION FOR YUCCA IS CERTAIN

Arrest Looms for Motorists Who Insist Upon Destroyin State's Beauties

There is a lot of trouble in store for motorists who pick yucca blossoms this year, according to a warning just issued by the Automobile Club of Southern California.

According to Los Angeles county forestry department officials the yuccas are just coming into bloom on the hills of the southern part of the State and will be more wonderful this year than ever before and just because they are going to be more wonderful the authorities are going to be more strict in arresting motorists who pick them.

Every auto party which is found by forestry officials in Los Angeles county carrying a yucca bloom in the car will be arrested without question at once, according to S. J. Flintham of the Forestry Department. Other counties in the southern part of the State are at this time considering ordinances making the picking of yucca blooms a misdemeanor.

In Los Angeles county there is a law prohibiting the cutting of yucca stalks in the hills. It is pointed out that the huge yucca blooms when picked wilt and fade within a very short space of time and are useless for decorative purposes. This fact has, however, not deterred motorists from picking the flowers in the past, but now the long arm of the law is going to reach out and do a little deterring on its own account, says the Auto Club.

The yucca is a very vital factor in making the State attractive to eastern visitors and club officials declare that every loyal resident of California will co-operate with the authorities in preserving the yucca in its native state and protecting one of the beauties of the West.

LIBERTY PROPERTY GOES ON THE BLOCK

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DETROIT, March 3. — April 9 has been set as the date for the sale of the property and the good will of the Liberty Motor Car Company. The order for the sale was signed this week by Judge Charles C. Simons, in the Federal court. The sale will be conducted by William S. Sayers, Jr., master of chancery for the Federal court, from the steps of the company's office building. The Federal court specifies that the minimum acceptable bid is $1,175,000. The successful bidder must deposit a certified check for $10,000 on acceptance of the bid. Buildings and real estate of the company, both in Detroit and in Milwaukee, machinery and the company's good will are to be included in the sale.

AUTO TAXES ON TAPIS

Five Cents a Push on the Throttle if Legislators Pass All the Bills Proposed

Serious consideration is being given at this time by State legislators to a proposed tax on all tires purchased by motorists in California, according to word received here by the legal department of the Automobile Club of Southern California. The Legislature will reconvene for action tomorrow morning.

If all the taxes on autos that have been proposed are adopted the motorist will have to pay about 5 cents every time he puts his foot on the throttle. But it is not likely, say local authorities, that both the gasoline tax and the tire tax will be passed by the State Legislature at this session. Other taxes proposed do not stand as good a chance at present as the gasoline tax, according to reports from Sacramento.

BAKER PROPOSED IT

That all tires be taxed is the scheme of Assemblyman Baker of the Seventy-fifth District, which is the City of Los Angeles.

Assemblyman Baker points out that tires are worn out only when used, while many automobiles burn gasoline when not moving; that is, while they are tied up in traffic

Tire Factories Increase Their Output Rapidly

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

AKRON (O.) March 3.—The rubber industry here is running along as predicted with every factory increasing production as rapidly as the men for the plants can be obtained.

Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company has gone to 30,000 tires a day, as compared with peak of 33,000; Miller Rubber has gone to 8500 while all plants are now making in the neighborhood of 110,000 tires a day in the city.

All the larger rubber companies have followed the Goodyear lead in the matter of offering 10 per cent bonus, which is tantamount to a 10 per cent increase in wages, while the entire wage situation is undergoing an upward adjustment in other plants and industries.

Miller Rubber Company during the week announced sales for the last year at $36,187,000 as compared with 1921 sales of $30,387,-436. Net profits have not as yet been announced, but at the middle of the year the company reported net profits of $1,820,000 on approximately $12,000,000 worth of sales.

While prices were reduced during the second half, Miller business increased during the last six months so that the period will show at least the same profits as the first half.

The company wrote off more than $4,500,000 worth of inventory and other losses during the two preceding years, and therefore entered the past year with everything at rock bottom.

TRIPLE FACILITIES OF RICKENBACKER

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DETROIT, March 3.—Production line at the Rickenbacker plant has been extended into the new addition just completed. With the added factory facilities, production was increased on March 1 to a figure enabling the makers to build three times as many cars in 1923 as in the opening year of production. March marked the beginning the fifteenth month of production at the Rickenbacker factory. Each month the organization has enlarged.

Marvelous Changes in Transcontinental Highway

NEARS TENTH ANNIVERSARY

Lincoln Highway About to Have Birthday

Over $47,000,000 Invested in Ten Years

Decade Brings Huge Gain in Motor Travel

BY A. F. BEMENT,
Vice-President the Lincoln Highway Association
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DETROIT, March 3. — If the six or eight intrepid souls who undertook to cross the American continent in a motor car in 1913 join the caravan of 15,000 or 20,000 cars in 1923 will flow east and west along the Linclon way betwa enthe two coasts, they can best appreciate the marvelous changes of ten years.

The fact is the whole history of American road building on anything like a national scale is comprised within the past decade. When the Lincoln Highway in its larger sense as a great main line for a national highway-transportation system was nothing more than an idea, a hope, in 1913, many ridiculed the visionaries who foresaw the expenditure of so vast a sum as $20,000,000 on the road between New York and San Francisco within a period of even twenty years.

VAST IMPROVEMENT

In the nine years ending with the advent of 1923, over $47,000,000 had been expended on the improvement of the Lincoln Highway—enough at an average of $20,000 per mile to construct 2350 miles of the route or more than two-thirds of it. The fact is, more than two-thirds of it has been built, if by "built" is meant the completion and opening of a road satisfactory for the traffic of the present.

Each year since the inauguration of the work of the Lincoln Highway Association has seen the construction of between 7 and 10 per cent of the total distance and has witnessed the extension of adequate maintenance over a longer and longer mileage of the completed work. The eleven States traversed by the Lincoln way built 235 miles of the route with the aid of the Federal government in 1922, this work costing in total $4,678,041.71, or an average of practically $20,000 per mile. Maintenance on the Lincoln way during 1922 cost $1,368,126.39, so that the total amount expended on the betterment of the route last year was $6,046,168, an amount slightly less than the average of the past five years.

WHEN FINISHED?

At the recent annual meeting of the board of directors of the Lincoln Highway Association, it was estimated that by the end of this year, taking into consideration the existing contracts, over $50,000,000 will have been expended on the improvement of the Lincoln Highway. It was further estimated that at least $20,000,000 more, i.e., an amount equivalent to that it was assumed ten years ago would complete the route, will necessarily be invested in additional improvement to open up a road satisfactory for the traffic across each State.

From these estimates it is evident that bringing "the nation's main street" to a satisfactory status of improvement will require a total expenditure of some $70,000,000. At the rate of $5,000,000 or $6,000,000 a year, a sum less than the average expenditures of the past five years, the first completion of the route can be foreseen about the end of 1925. Of course, the route will be in splendid condition for the greater part of the distance long before that. It would be open in its entirety, without the possibility of any real difficulties, for the heavy traffic of 1923, were it not for the stubborn refusal of one State to complete a short and important link. As it is, the coming season's traffic will have to take its chances as usual on the short Utah Desert stretch.

FROM MECHANIC TO RACE DRIVER

was the goal when the Irish speed king began practicing for his first race. Jimmy was pretty cocky over his opportunity. "I felt I could drive better than anyone else," says Jimmy, "and I opened her wide one afternoon in practice. When I woke up in the hospital I decided there probably was something I hadn't learned about racing. I managed to get into a race at Cincinnati the next month, but burned a connecting rod."

NOBODY ALARMED

The rest of 1919 sailed by without the world sitting up to take notice of the exploits of Jimmy Murphy.

But with the advent of 1920 things changed. The brand new speedway at Beverly Hills was thrown open and an unknown, a "dark horse" of the darkest hue, won the big 250-mile event in world record time for the 300-cubic-inch cars of 103.06 miles per hour.

Even at that early date Jimmy Murphy had learned to drive the groove. From sixth place in the twenty-fifth lap he moved up by degrees to the head of the procession. While the leaders were worrying one another by passing and repassing Jimmy Murphy was driving his own race. At the half-way post he was in second place and with twenty-five laps to go he was in the lead, where he stayed to the finish.

From the opening race at Beverly Hills to the present date Murphy had engaged in a flock of races and finished in the money in all except one. The exception was at Kansas City when his car was wrecked last year.

His next appearance at Beverly found Jimmy in fourth place. That was the Thanksgiving race of 1920 in which Chevrolet, Jolls and O'Donnell were killed in a mixup on the east turn. This was the first appearance of the 183-cubic inch cars. The late Roscoe Sarles won at an average speed of 103.2 miles per hour, which fell .4 miles per hour shy of breaking Jimmy's record set with a 300-inch car.

WINS A HEAT

The Los Angeles speedway management varied the opening program of the 1921 season with a series of sprint races, Ralph De Palma copping the final heat of fifty miles in 107.3 miles per hour. Murphy won a heat, time 103.8 miles per hour, and finished fourth in the final heat.

The lure of the Grand Prix took the Irish speed king abroad the following summer and he copped the leading honors at an average speed of 78 miles per hour. Folks began to get acuainted with Jimmy Murphy then. No Yankee had ever won the Grand Prix before, and Jimmy's feat was considered remarkable. The winner never received his medal for winning this race, the French refusing to permit gold to be taken out of the country. The officials offered Jimmy an imitation gold facsimile, but he wouldn't have it.

The Grand Prix winner reached home in time to finish fourth to Eddie Hearne in the Thanksgiving race at Beverly, Eddie winning at the rate of 109.7 miles per hour.

Rain postponed the first race of 1922, scheduled for Washington's Birthday at Beverly and the event was not held until March 5. Tommy Milton had won the speedway championship for 1921 and started the 1922 season, where he left off by winning the opening battle at a speed of 110.8 miles per hour. Jimmy Murphy was second, stopping to change a tire and giving Milton, who made no stops, a chance to pick up a couple of laps lead. This was the famous race in which Pete Bordino, the wild Italian, broke all records for the consumption of tires in one race.

A month later the local speedway held some more sprint races, in which calculating Tommy Milton and Jimmy Murphy used their heads and contrived to win most of the money. There were four heats, and according to the rules a driver winning a heat had to drop out and wait for the final. There were four place prizes in each heat.

Bordino started out with a wild burst of speed and copped the first heat. That put him on the shelf. Tommy Milton finished third in one heat, won another and captured the final for a total of $4500 in prize money. Murphy had one second, one-third, a first and a second in the final heat to his credit and won $3850. Bordino, who was too ambitious in the first heat, placed fourth in the final spasm and received $1750 for his efforts.

SIX VICTORIES

The year was starting well for Jimmy Murphy, and soon reports began coming in of victories at Fresno, Cotati, Indianapolis, Uniontown, Tacoma, and then came the final race of the season at Beverly Hills last December, when in his yellow flyer Jimmy Murphy startled the world with the astounding speed of 114.6 miles per hour—a new world's record. His 115 65-100 miles per hour last Sunday will be fresh in the minds of thousands for a long time to come.

It's a far cry back to that Corona road race of 1916, when twelve drivers lined up at the post—Waterman, Pullen, Oldfield, Hughes, Burman, Cooper, Gandy, Teel, Durant, Tetzlaff, Thomas and O'Donnell—but one of those old-timers, Earle Cooper, deserves a lot of credit for the real battle he gave Murphy last Sunday. He had no small part in forcing the champion to break his own world record in order to win. But the mechanic of 1916 was equal to the task, and today he perches on the top rung of the ladder of fame—one of the coolest, shrewdest, cleanest boys in the racing game.

AUTO TAXES TO BE CONSIDERED

or halting at street intersections. He says it is obviously unfair to pay tax on gasoline that is not actually used to propel the vehicle.

On the other hand, it is pointed out by those favoring the tire tax that motor car tires, both hard rubber and pneumatic, are worn out only when the car is running, unless it be in the case of a spare tire which is known to deteriorate while on the tire rack if it is not used. But the tire tax promoters say that there are very few auto owners who have not sense enough to use their spare tires alternately in order to keep them in good shape.

If any auto owners have any ideas on the subject of getting tires taxed every time one is purchased they are invited to drop a line giving their views on the subject to the legal department of the Auto Club so that organization can keep a finger on the pulse of the motoring public in regard to the ever-pressing tax question in California.

Local motorists have expressed themselves to the Auto Club at some length recently to the effect that they most devoutly hope that both the gasoline and tire tax will not be adopted and in some cases have stated their preference in the matter. But not enough statements have been received to indicate just what the general sentiment is on the subject. Both bills in regard to such taxes have been introduced for the purpose of raising funds for use in California to improve motoring conditions.

Now is the time, it is pointed out, when auto owners should begin to express themselves definitely on the matter, and not sit around letting [illegible] complaint [illegible] they have been soaked with a Dempsey wallop for a goal on the tax business, say the motoring authorities.

Thousands Want to Come to Angel City

CAPTIVATES THE TOURIST

Local Ford Dealer Swamped With Requests

Hundreds from East Want to Motor to California

A Neat Load to Carry Over Cahuenga Pass

Twelve passengers were loaded into and on a Dort six last week and given a ride over Cahuenga Pass in high gear, attaining the summit at a rate of twenty-four miles per hour after a standing start from the bottom, it was reported. The stunt was pulled to prove that the six-cylinder car has power to burn.

Seven hundred and twenty answers to the announcement from Harold W. Nerney, Ford and Lincoln agent, Vermont and Fifty-second street, that he would give away a book on touring, is the net result to date. The story appeared in the automobile section of The Times three weeks ago and personally, postal cards and 720 letters have flooded the business office of the genial Ford agent. Many more are being received daily.

"[illegible] right between the eyes," said Nerney yesterday. "Had no idea The Times was read in [illegible] and Timbucktoo. That's about the size of the thing, because we have received and are still receiving answers from one end of the earth to the other. Expect to hear from Africa before we are through."

One of the many letters reads: "Kindly send one of your Ford booklets entitled 'Ford or Pullman' to my brother, Melvin Mason, 1214 [illegible] avenue, Wichita, Kan. We are planning to drive across the continent. Your book, according to The Times, will help greatly. [illegible] stamp."

HUNDREDS OF 'EM

This letter was signed by Lee Mason, and is only one of hundreds. Requests were received from Vancouver, B. C., from San Antonio, Tex., a number from New York, one from Portland, Me., and several more from the Southern States. In every letter the writer states that he or she saw the article in The Times and plans to tour the United States in a Ford.

From the hundreds of letters received indications are that this year will be the heaviest as far as touring is concerned of any yet recorded. The fact that the winter in the East has been light and the roads so good, means a stimulus to touring never before given.

One gentleman writes from Fawn Grove, York county, Pennsylvania. He states that he is planning to tour across the United States in a Ford, not from necessity, but from choice. He asks Mr. Nerney to send him the booklet and says there is more interest in Penn State this year in touring than ever before.

"Everybody wants to see Los Angeles," he says. "That's why I want your book. Hope it tells me how to get to the Angel City, which certainly must be a [illegible]."

[illegible] INTEREST THEM

In sending the Ford booklet Mr. Nerney states that he was induced to get out the booklet because of the articles published in the automobile section of The Times concerning "Adventuring American Trails With Lizzie." These have attracted so much attention and so many requests have been made of Ford agents for information concerning the roads that Nerney decided to send out this booklet.

This week he received over 200 requests and he expects many more. He says he will continue to mail the booklet free of charge to anybody who asks for it. He is compiling a chart and list of those who are intending to make the trip from Coast to Coast.

Mr. Nerney wishes to state that he has no desire to make anything from any tourist. He urges each Ford owner to consult the nearest Ford agent. He says he expects to benefit because of the many transcontinental Fords being used and in no other way. He is pleased that it has been possible to demonstrate that hundreds are making the transcontinental trip in a Ford from choice rather than from necessity.

OVER CAHUENGA WITH TWELVE

From a standing start at the first turn at the foot of Cahuenga Pass to the summit of the grade with twelve people is what the new Dort six did in 'high' gear a few days ago.

"Cahuenga Pass is a test of the pulling power of a car in high gear with only a normal load," says Charles E. Baker, director of sales for the Mission Motor Company, "and for a strictly stock, privately owned car to climb the grade with more than a double load with gears in high is a super test.

"George Gardner drove the car and with the speedometer showing 24 miles an hour at the foot of the grade, he piloted the Dort in and out through the heavy traffic going both ways, feeling his way from behind slow going trucks, and the speedometer dropped back to 22 miles an hour when a rough spot in the road ruined his traction for a second, but the Dort picked up speed again in spite of the twelve passengers it carried and at the summit the speedometer registered 24 miles an hour.

The Dort we used was a privately owned car and was driven out to Cahuenga Pass with not so much special work on it as the tuning of the carburetor. I was confident that the Dort could take twelve people over the pass, but some of the men in our organization were not so optimistic, so we decided to try it."

MYSTERY EGGS VETERANS ON

be it known, battery work is not as simple as the description of the battery sounds. It is distinctly a skilled trade, but its work is concealed, and a shoddy job is not always apparent, even to an intelligent customer.

To help meet the service situation the Federal government is doing an interesting piece of work at the Southern Branch of the University of California, on Vermont avenue. Here a number of partly disabled veterans of the World War, are solving the puzzles of the storage battery under the vigorous management of Mr. Louis Wojtkowski, battery expert. Only those "Federal" men are admitted who meet the standards of preliminary study set by Mr. James W. Marsh, the university motor expert.

We asked Mr. Wojtkowski how long the "course" took the men. We found that there isn't any time limit. The instructor is not particularly interested in units of credit, semester grades and other decorations of academic life. His men must learn batteries, and when they do—not before—then he can talk about recommendation and a commercial job.

One of the first tricks the "Fed" must learn is lead burning. One man had to practice the simpler moves of this art for several months before he was allowed to learn the rest of his trade. But the result of this training has been good for the battery business, and is reflecting credit on the re-education service of the government.

Mr. Wojkowski was asked: "How can you tell whether a commercial battery service man is a real expert or not?" His rejoinder throws some light on the problems of the everyday motorist:

"What tools does he use when you order your battery tested? If he uses only a syringe hydrometer, and on the basis of that instrument alone reports that your battery is O.K.—then he either doesn't know his business or isn't giving you service."

The point of this is apparent from a view of the chemical action of the starter battery. The fluid in the new, charged battery is supplied with just enough sulphuric acid to raise its specific gravity to 1.280. When the motorist steps on the starter, this acid veritably leaps for the plates and is rapidly absorbed by them in the process of turning out electrical energy. If such starts are frequent, with no opportunity for recharging by long drives, the battery fluid simply becomes weak and of low gravity from loss of the heavy acid. The hydrometer now falls to 1.250 or 1.200: or in serious cases, 1.100. The novice naturally comes to trust the hydrometer as a sure test of his battery.

The motorist in question now seeks recharging service, and may happen to patronize an ignorant or unprincipled service mechanic. This person shirks the duty of real recharging, and simply slips in enough extra sulphuric acid to raise the specific gravity to 1.280.

But if the customer patronizes an honest expert the next time, the game will be exposed. The new mechanic brings out two instruments; the old faithful hydrometer, and a voltmeter. We can deceive a hydrometer with sulphuric acid, but we cannot fool a voltmeter at the same time. If a battery cell will not deliver 2.2 volts when the hydrometer says 1.280, something is wrong. In the case cited the injurious excess of sulphuric acid is removed at once.

"When you see a sign—'Your Battery Recharged in thirty Minutes,'" continued Wojtkowski, "keep away from the place! It's another sign that the expert is missing. Fast charging overheats, buckles, and eventually destroys the battery plates. Eight hours of quiet, slow charging is the slow minimum time."

The rare metal cadmium has found a novel application in the battery business, and incidentally offers a good means of identifying a real battery expert.

"What is a cadmium electrode?"

"How it is used?"

"What do you find out by using it?"

These pointed questions, asked casually by an intelligent motorist will often expose an undesirable service station. But your real expert can tell you the answers:

Neither a hydrometer nor a voltmeter is able to tell which plates of a battery are out of order—positive or negative. But a rod of cadmium, immersed in the cell and touched to a voltmeter will give an immediate record of the condition of either positive or negative plate, depending on which plate is connected to the meter.

The positive and negative plates, while both are on a lead framework, are of different chemical composition, and each may have its own individual troubles, all hidden under sealing wax and rubber. But the incompetent battery hand doesn't consider this point. Perhaps he will tell a customer that one of his three cells is "down" or "low"—meaning that the plates are sulphated by heavy discharge; but he doesn't find out whether the positive or negative or both are responsible for the trouble.

The cadmium test is comparatively simple after all. When properly connected to a voltmeter, the cadmium electrode will record 2.4 volts with the positive pole, and "minus" 0.2 volts on the negative.

These figures are markedly reduced when disorders arise in the battery plates, and give the honest trained expert a quick warning which he can pass on to his customer. In the case of the untrained mechanic the customer solves the difficulty next month by buying a new battery.

Not all battery troubles are on the customer's side. The legitimate service trade has a grievance all its own. There are customers who occupy the time of highly-paid men week after week in a routine of distilled water and hydrometer service—all of which is expected to be done free of charge, although it is costing the battery firm perhaps twenty cents for every one of those free tests. No wonder that the service man, after watching a battery gradually sink under the constant abuse it is receiving, finally bids the customer consign the battery to the junk heap and sells him a new one!

Many intelligent drivers, who are very careful of brake bands, gear teeth and other critical wearing parts, do not realize what abuse of a battery really means.

When the battery is operating the starter, it is delivering from 180 to 350 amperes current. This terrific flow of energy, which is twenty to thirty times the proper discharge rate under ordinary conditions, doesn't all go ito the motor. Much of it is busy heating the lead plates in the battery itself. If the careless motorist allows this to go on for more than five seconds at a time, the sudden heat will warp the plates and push the masses of spongy lead material clear off the plates and down to the bottom of the cell.

Every time the motor is electrically started, the generator must be driven for a long period to restore the damage, i. e., to chemically throw off the sulphuric acid which has been absorbed. This takes from twenty minutes to two hours' driving—the latter in the case of a slow start on a cold morning.

Many city drivers start and stop so frequently that they cannot meet this program of long driving. If the car is a Ford, with a convenient crank, one may postpone the evil day for his battery materially by hand-priming on cold mornings. This is neither dangerous nor laborious, as no actual start is performed with the hand cranking. Four turns by hand—with switch off, carburetor open one-fourth turn and choke wire pulled out—will leave the motor in condition to go on the slightest touch of the starter. If the valves are not leaking, the oil on the piston ring will often hold compression so well that a driver may get away by merely turning the ignition switch onto the battery. This saves the battery at a time when its power is at its lowest ebb.

NOT SO COMMON

Another abuse, less common, is the overcharging of a battery by a driver who is continually making long drives with very few starts.

The charging generator has the duty of forcing back the sulphuric acid from the discharged or sulphated plates. If the charging current continues after all the acid is back in solution, some other chemical action must take place. Idleness is impossible. In this case the generator busies itself in converting the water of the cell into hydrogen and oxygen gases. All of this is done rather inefficiently, speaking from a technical standpoint, and not only is the cell overheated by the waste energy, but the useless gases bubble, blow out around the plates and promote their mechanical disintegration. Shortly the level of the cell fluid drops, due to exhaustion of water, and the plates are damaged by exposure to air.

The careful operator is wary of impurities in his battery. The use of common water instead of distilled water introduces trouble from several causes. Common salt, or sodium chloride, always a constituent of common waters, is the deadly enemy of the storage cell. It is likely that many a German submarine had to rise to the surface and to its doom because of the salt in the sea water which leaked into its storage cells. The lead peroxide of the plates immediately converts salt into chlorine gas, to the destruction of both battery and crew.

A Caveman's Car for Women Drivers

Big-Six Sales Double Twice in February

BIG-SIX

There were more than four times as many Studebaker Big-Six models sold last month as were delivered in February of 1922.

The Reason—It is a good car for the money and gives as fine performance as money can buy. One might buy more weight but no finer workmanship and materials.

Women drivers are attracted by its beauty, its innate refinement and are gratifyingly surprised at the lightness of its handling.

Business men pick it for their toughest jobs. Motion-picture companies demand Studebaker Big-Six cars for strenuous location work. Police flying squadrons depend on them for work where speed must be combined with stamina. The Sheriff's office trust to them for their longest, hardest runs. Arizona stage drivers are unanimous in their preference.

And yet with all of this abuse they give steady, satisfying performance at a remarkably low cost.

They are great cars making great records of performance and deserving of the great increase in demand.

A WELL BUILT CAR

When a man is considering the buying of a car we believe he thinks first whether or not he is really justified in owning a car at all (if he doesn't think of this, he ought to.)

If he is the average man, the sum he can afford to invest may be so limited that he wonders whether or not he can buy a really worth while car for that amount. Then he considers how he's going to tell a worth while car when he sees one. He remembers that first cost is not the last and that it is going to cost something to run his car after he gets it. How much do different kinds of cars cost to run?

It is a cinch for him to go out and find a car he likes the looks of, but who is going to help him decide those other more serious questions? Here is where the Elcar Co. can be helpful.

Take Your Physician With You When You Buy a Car

Show him the Rickenbacker air cleaner that removes dust, grit and foreign matter from the carburetor intake . . . somewhat similar to the function of the minute hairs in the human nostrils. Let him explain the importance of these human "air cleaners" to your "performance" . . . then you can know the value of the air cleaner to motor performance. And he will appreciate two flywheels . . . the reason Rickenbacker 6 has a "heart" that does not pound . . . and a differential brake equalizer that takes the guesswork out of brake adjustments. Take your physician with you to see "Series B" . . . he'll buy one, too.

"Mileage Basis" Plan

Have you learned about Oakland's new "Mileage Basis" Plan for 1923?

How this Plan provides a new, definite and logical way to gauge motor car value; how trouble-free miles are now made the standard of measurement?

Think what it means to have main crankshaft bearings and connecting rod bearings function properly for at least 40,000 miles without attention, to have valves which will run perfectly for 15,000 miles without grinding, to have a 15,000 mile guarantee against "oil pumping", to get 20 to 25 miles on a gallon of fuel and 15,000 to 25,000 miles on tires!

These actual mileage figures are offered as a definite proof of the high quality built into the Oakland Six. They are dependable and conservative figures—figures based on accurate knowledge, such as you would expect from Oakland—a permanent division of General Motors.

Before you buy a car, at any price, you should examine the 1923 Oakland Six—the car which has made possible this most remarkable "Mileage Basis" Plan.

USED CARS

The word "overhaul" has a very specific meaning in our business. Applied to a Used Car, we define it as follows: "To replace or repair every part necessary to put the car in good running order." And that is not simply a definition. It is a creed.

Remember: A used car is only as good as the firm with which you deal

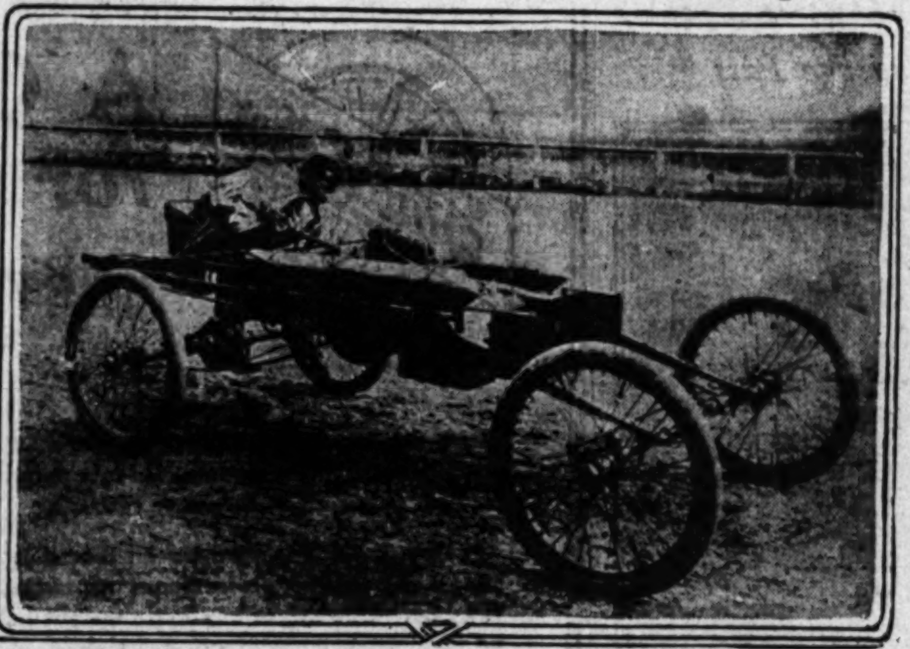
A Four-Legged Centipede? No, It's a Racing Car



This is the famous Oldsmobile Pirate, which made racing history back in 1903 by doing five miles in six and one-half minutes on a straightaway. The Jimmy Murphy at the tiller is unknown.

YEARS BRING CHANGES

It is natural, perhaps, that many of us take for granted the many advantages we enjoy today as the result of the wonderful inventions of the past hundred years. The telephone and telegraph are a part of our daily existence. The wonders of electricity are an old story. Even the wireless and the airplane have lost their novelty. And the automobile—! Just try to imagine what modern life would be like without it.

Yet only twenty-six years ago, in 1896 to be exact, the "horseless carriage" was exhibited as a curiosity in Barnum & Bailey's circus. It cost 10 cents for admission to see it perform on a little circular track. In 1895, a race started in Chicago was followed by reporters in horse-drawn vehicles, which had to stop at times to allow the "racing cars" to remain in the lead. In 1899, a venturesome driver was arrested for driving in Central Park, New York City.

In March, 1903, the Oldsmobile Pirate, shown above, a famous racing car of those days, established the world's straightaway record by making five miles in six and a half minutes. That same year saw the first motor car to travel a straight mile on Ormond Beach in less than a minute.

Within twenty years from that time there has grown an industry which has produced a total of approximately 2,300,000 cars in the year just ended. Registration figures for 1922 show a total of 11,500,000 motor vehicles, in round numbers, now in use, from which the revenue in license fees and taxes alone exceeds $125,000,000. The wildest flight of imagination could hardly encompass such a tremendous development, yet it all has happened within the memory of a single generation.

DRIVEWAYS ARE BIT UNPLEASANT

proved greatly the past week and the drive away will be to deliver cars that have been stored on account of freight congestion.

Preliminary figures for the White Motor Company for 1922 show gross sales of more than $7,000,000 and net earnings after all charges except dividends of more than $2,700,000. The uninterrupted dividend policy of the company was continued throughout the year and after disbursements of $2,000,000 8 per cent were made for this purpose, balance of about $1,700,000 remains for the year 1922 to be carried to the surplus account.

Moon Motor Car Company returned a net income of $773,241 for the year 1922 against $77,575 in 1921. The company's annual report discloses the 1922 income was equivalent to $5.01 a share on 154,213 shares of no par value, compared to 50 cents a share the preceding year. Sufficient orders are on hand to warrant the indication that the volume of business for 1923 will eclipse last year's extraordinary showing, company officials state.

Both sales and production during February were the largest for any February in Cadillac history, according to Jay W. Dunivan, manager of distribution of the Cadillac Motor Car Company.

"The demand from dealers and distributors is not limited to any one section," states Mr. Dunivan, "but is so general that it shows a substantial and permanent gain. In the East deliveries have been hampered by storms, but orders are coming in faster than ever before at this season of the year.

"Our predictions at the close of 1922 that 1923 would prove the best year in Cadillac history have been more than borne out by actual results for the first two months of the year."

General Sales Manager E. T. Strong of the Buick Motor Company is impressed with the improvement of business conditions in the South.

"I have never seen more enthusiasm or more action at any gathering of dealers anywhere than in the Buick meeting during the Atlanta show," said Mr. Strong. "The South will, I believe, take its old imposing proportion of automobile production in 1923. Not only will replacement business be of great volume, but many first buyers are being disclosed."

J. T. Trumble, who for years has been an outstanding figure in the engineering field of the automobile world, has been appointed experimental engineer of the Olds Motor Works, according to A. B. C. Hardy, president and general manager. Mr. Trumble was formerly connected with the Olds Motor Works in 1899, when that company was one of the very few in existence. He later joined the Buick organization, rising to the post of experimental engineer. In 1912 he was made chief engineer of the Chevrolet Motor Company, where he remained for three years, later becoming chief engineer of the Stephens Motor Company of Freeport, Ill.

At Lansing, Mr. Trumble will be in complete charge of the experimental department of the Olds Motor Works.

The healthy condition of the motor industry is reflected by a comparison of the production and sales of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company for the first two months of this year with 1922, according to Harry M. Jewett, president.

In January and February of this year the sales were 350 per cent greater than the first two months of the previous year. The production plans planned in the expectation of the best possible market conditions for similar periods was only 261 per cent greater, Mr. Jewett says.

As head of one of the ten automobile concerns in the United States which hold the position of manufacturing 90 per cent of the automobiles built in the United States, Mr. Jewett believes that the figures of the Paige company are representative of conditions in general in the industry.

"We thought the first eight months' sales of the Jewett car in 1922 were marvelous—25,000. Is it not possible to believe that 50,000 will be sold in the twelve months of 1923?" he asks.

Officials of the Department of Commerce have set March 9 as the date for a conference with leaders of the automotive industry who have been approaching the department on the subject of broadening the scope of the work being done by the government on behalf of the industry.

Better co-ordination of standardization activities, wider use of existing principles of simplication and greater support of Secretary Hoover's plans to aid American business will be discussed at the meeting.

Many Experts There But H. Stutz Absent

With celebrities and experts from all walks of life among the thousands who crowded the Beverly Hills Speedway last Sunday and saw one of the greatest automobile speed battles ever staged, one presence was greatly missed by those who have followed the gasoline sport since its inception.

This presence was that of Harry C. Stutz, now builder of the H.C.S. line of passenger cars, but in the days before he retired from racing one of the most notable figures the game has ever produced. Indeed, it is due to Harry C. Stutz alone that America is a dominant figure in racing today, for before he came forth with his first speed car European drivers and European cars were sweeping all before them.

Stutz burst into the racing game and made good in a single day. With but a limited bank roll behind him, and inspired only by patriotism and a desire to repel the "invaders" at Indianapolis, the now noted manufacturer drew on his phenomenal mechanical skill to turn out a speed car that could not only move fast, but would have the stamina to keep on moving, regardless of how fast the pace.

Stutz and his cars won championships galore, in many big events finishing one, two three, and completely outclassing their competitors. Earl Cooper won his way to fame as a pilot for Harry C. Stutz; "Cliff" Durant, now the leader of American racing, won his first big speed battles at the wheel of one of Harry C. Stutz' mechanical creations; Gil Anderson, Barney Oldfield and a host of others were driving Stutz cars when at the zenith of their fame, and when he finally retired from racing Harry C. Stutz was hailed as the greatest manufacturer of racing cars in the world.

"Harry C. Stutz will probably never re-enter the racing game," said Norman E. Moses, manager of the Los Angeles branch of the H. C. S.-Pacific Company, distributors of H. C. S. cars in this section. "He did his work at a time when the genius and daring of an American manufacturer was needed to retain for this country the mechanical supremacy of the world. That deed accomplished, he devoted these same talents to the manufacture of the H. C. S. car, which today carry the Stutz ideal of workmanship and worth onto every highway in the country."

STEARNS SALES INCREASE

The sale of Stearns Knight cars in Southern California has increased 900 per cent in February over the corresponding month last year and more than 100 per cent over January of this year, according to Lynn C. Buxton.

Six-Cylinder Stutzes Are on Way Here

Rumor has it that the new Stutz six-cylinder models will leave the factory in Indianapolis in a few days tagged for Los Angeles, and T. C. Whitcomb, general manager of the Stutz-Los Angeles Company, is as happy as a boy over his first pair of long pants.

"Patience has its reward," says Whitcomb, "and I think we are deserving of a substantial reward for our patience in waiting for the long looked-for Stutz sixes.

"We have been advised that a complete line of these new cars has been shipped to us, and if freight is forwarded in its usual manner, these cars will reach here about the middle of March."

It is a revelation to hear what Peerless owners say about the car. Their opinions might be summed up in the statement that it excels in every major feature of fine car performance.

HEALTHY GROWTH IN THREE YEARS

Bob Mason

The Two Bobs

Robert S. Weaver and Robert J. Mason, president and vice-president, respectively, of the Weaver-Mason-Thomson Company, auto refinishers.

The complete reorganization of the automobile refinishing and painting concern which has been operating for the past year under the firm name of Weaver-Mason-Thomson, Inc., has just been announced by J. F. Thomson, treasurer and general manager of the firm. The reorganization includes an incease in the capital stock from the original $50,000 to $50,000 preferred and $100,000 common stock and a change of the name to Weaver-Mason Thomson Company.

Robert S. "Bob" Weaver, president of the Southern Pacific Branch of the Amateur Athletic Union and former president of the national body, is president of the firm which he has headed from its organization in a small way nearly three years ago.

Robert J. Mason, formerly was with the Dayton Electrical Laboratory Company, manufacturers of Delco products and has been very active in the automotive field, while J. F. Thomson, treasurer and general manager, was assistant treasurer of the Willys-Overland Company of Toledo during 1917-1918 which position he retained on coming west to assume the duties of treasurer of the Willys-Overland Pacific Company. Mr. Thompson was later named manager of the Los Angeles branch of the Overland Company from which position he resigned to become associated with Weaver and Mason in the auto painting and refinishing business.

The big building occupied by the firm on West Washington street covers a floor space of approximately 40,000 square feet and has a capacity of from 400 to 500 cars per month. One of the largest nickel plating plants on the Coast is a unit of the big plant, which not only is used for automotive work but for general plating as well.

Barney Oldfield Claims a Record for Long Tours

Barney Oldfield declares he has just concluded a transcontinental trip in his Marmon speedster, which brings his total up to a record closely rivaling that of the old ocean steamship captain who boasted that he had crossed the "big drink" 300 times in a steamer and once in a rowboat.

With attendance at the Beverly race last Sunday as his objective, the famous Barney breezed into Los Angeles on Sunday morning just as the milk men were unhitching their horses. The end of the journey marked Oldfield's thirty-sixth round trip between the Pacific Coast and Lake Michigan and New York.

"I believe that I enjoy long-distance touring more than any other motorist in the world," said Barney during Sunday's race. "I tour solely for pleasure, and it is a great source of enjoyment for me to be able to greet old friends along the line. I am confident that no one except possibly a professional car tester has covered more miles than I have during the past few years. I began touring in 1902, my first year of automobile racing, and expect to continue to hit the road until I get too old to be granted a driver's license.

"While I am glad to note the progress in many sections of the country toward the construction of concrete roads, I still enjoy the stretches of country, gravel and even desert sand 'boulevards' encountered frequently." Barney will spend a few weeks in Los Angeles completing plans for the erection of his $500,000 die-cutting machine factory.

WORLD RECORD: SIX MILES ON VACUUM TANK

Here's one that almost beats the story about the car than ran on its reputation.

M. L. Rowley, 843 South Olive street, has just returned from a transcontinental jaunt in a Chandler chummy roadster purchased from the W. P. Herbert Company, local Chandler and Cleveland distributors.

During the trip he got into some terrible roads in the vicinity of Kansas or Missouri, he said. The ruts were so deep that he caught his gas tank and jerked it off. The bumping and scraping of the gears drowned the noise so he didn't know it.

He drove six miles before he ran out of gasoline in the vacuum tank and was forced to alight and investigate, when he discovered the place where the gas tank had been.

Rowley sais he is ready to verify this if anyone questions the veracity of his statement. He says the Chandler chummy made the trip both ways in admirable fashion. He left here November 22 and arrived at Chicago December 5. He left Chicago February 5, with the thermometer showing 5 deg. below zero and arrived home February 19, really a twelve-day run, for he took a four-day stopover on the way back.

He reports a good short-cut road from Phoenix, Ariz., to Fort Scott, Kan., cutting off El Paso, and leading through Roswell, N. M. over easy grades that saves eighty miles extra driving.

A Tire That Has Traveled Far

Here is a Quaker cord said to have been driven 33,463 miles on tough, rough roads. Al Monroe, distributor for the Quaker, points to the sidewalls and says many motorists would obtain greater mileage if they would exercise more care and not ruin their sidewalls by scraping them on the curbings.

Here's a good one

THE other day an auto owner phoned us to come after his car and lubricate it. We called at his garage, and as he happened to be there we asked him what kind of oil he was using in his crank-case. He told us. Then we noticed a five-gallon can of high-grade oil on a shelf. We asked him what he used that for, and he said for his little electric motor.

"For the love of holy jiminy crickets!" we exclaimed. "My dear man, where are your brains? Stop and think. Here you are using oil in that $200 motor that costs two and a half times as much as the oil you are using in your $4200 automobile!"

Now we get that car every 500 miles, and the job has gotten us 20 others. Bring your car to McBryde. We put the right oil and grease into every place it should go, and tighten the car thoroughly.

The Owner's Viewpoint

"My NASH FOUR is running more smoothly today than it ever did. It is a year and a half old and has been driven 13,000 miles over all sorts and conditions of roads, and in all weathers.

"The valves have never been ground, nor the bearings taken up. The transmission and differential are operating quietly and efficiently and the original spark plugs are still in use. The plugs were removed twice since the car was purchased, merely for inspection, and showed practically no carbon present.

"No mechanical adjustments or repairs of any kind have been made save the adjustment of two valve tappets. Although 75% of the driving has been done in city traffic, the gasoline mileage has averaged from 18 to 23 miles per gallon, depending upon weather conditions.

"It is a comfortable riding 'bus,' has a quick pickup and plenty of power. Besides, it looks like a 'big car.'"

NATIONAL AUTOMOBILE SHOW

Exhibitors at the NATIONAL AUTOMOBILE SHOW finally recognized that people DO want to see the CHASSIS

This year, at the National Automobile Shows in New York and Chicago, more stripped chassis were shown than ever before, and these displays were constantly surrounded by crowds of intensely interested people, eager to learn what actually lay beneath the paint and upholstery of the different makes shown.

The Buick Motor Company believes that the day of motor car merchandising through vague, indefinite generalities is past. Buick sales policy has always been "Show the Chassis"

The Buick has a number of exclusive features that are too important to your motoring comfort for you not to know about. The famous Buick Valve-in-Head motor; the Buick Velvet Disc Clutch; the Buick transmission, so easy to shift that you can change gears with just one-finger on the gear shift lever; the Buick torsion drive, NOT THROUGH THE SPRINGS the Buick ball-bearing full-floating rear axle, should be carefully examined in detail by every prospective purchaser of an automobile. It will then be seen why Buick Sales policy has always been "Show the Chassis".

NOTE
For those interested in statistics it is an interesting fact that a compilation of Sales for Jan. 1923 shows that the Buick totals excepting two low priced four cylinder makes, led in Los Angeles City, Los Angeles County and the entire State of California.

Cadillac Executive Speaks to Local Dealers

Lynn McNaughton, vice-president and general sales manager of the Cadillac Motor Car Company, was a visitor in Los Angeles last week and was the guest of honor Thursday evening at a dinner held at the Athletic Club.

In his talk to the Southern Cadillac dealers, McNaughton told of the growth of the industry, of the great production of the Cadillac plant last year, and of the prospects and plans for the coming year.

In honor of the factory executive Los Angeles has dedicated March as McNaughton month and will endeavor to break all Cadillac sales records for Los Angeles and Southern California.

Don Lee congratulated the gathering on the wonderful record made in 1922 and he also extended to Sales Manager J. E. Clark congratulations on his February record. Last month was the banner retail month for the Los Angeles house, more Cadillacs having been sold than during any previous month.

In his talk to the dealers Sales Manager McNaughton compared the motor car industry and its allied industries with other great industries and also went into the sales situation.

"The basic industries of raw material are, of course, one of the indices by which general business conditions may be predicted," said McNaughton. "In fact, it is from steel manufacturers of Pittsburg, Youngstown, Cleveland and Chicago that we may estimate what the automobile will do next year. Unprecedented orders have been reported by these industrial concerns for steel and iron for automobile manufacture. These orders for raw material indicate that automobile manufacturers expect next year to be one of the greatest in the history of the industry."

EVERYBODY HAPPY AT HERBERT PLANT

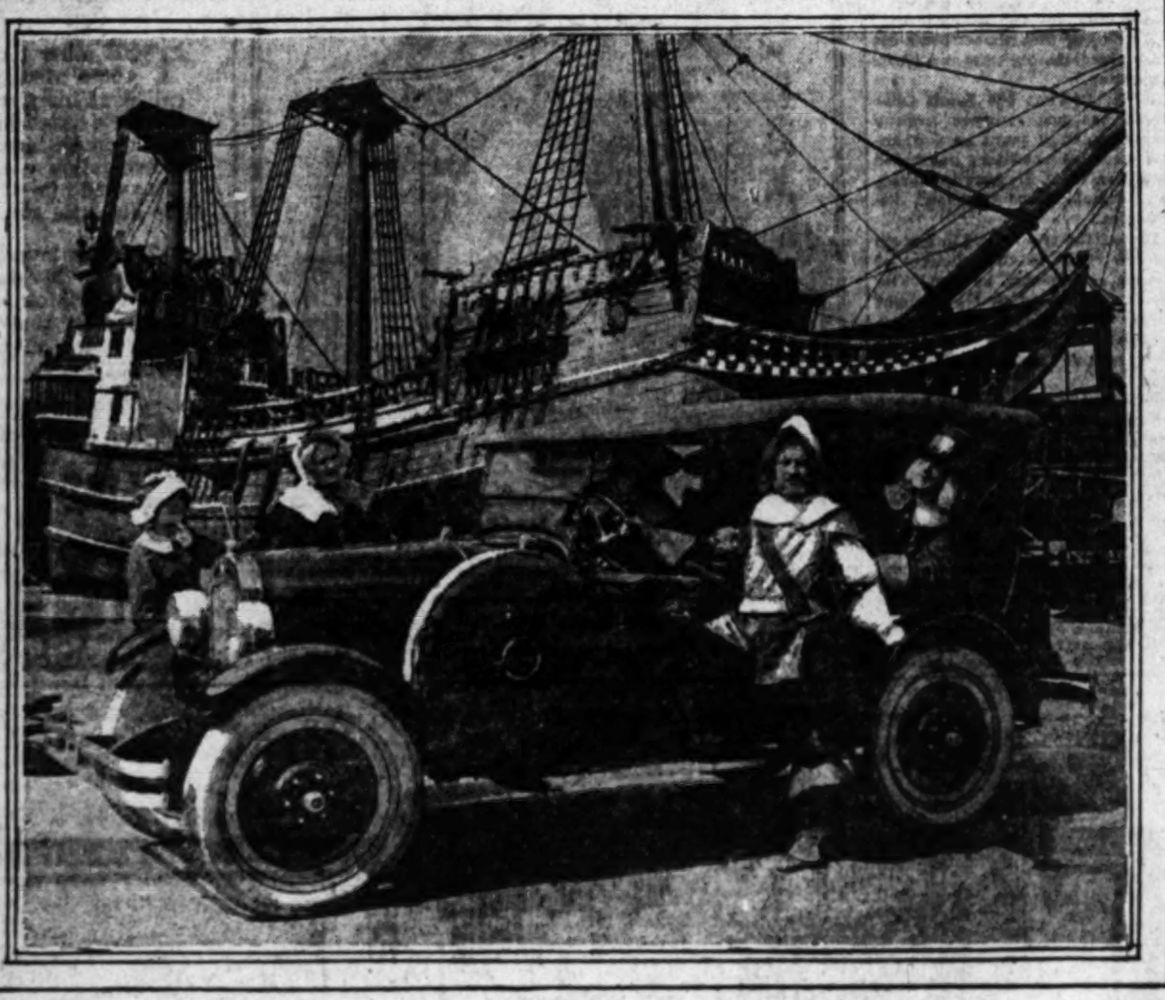
FEBRUARY SALES TICKLE ALL THE CLEVELAND AND CHANDLER GANG

An optimism born of opulence pervades the bustling establishment of the W. P. Herbert Company, Chandler and Cleveland distributors, this week.

The old epigram, "Nothing succeeds like success," is very noticeably exemplified in this organization, especially since the fine new 1923 models started an entirely new fusillade of fireworks, and unprecedented buying campaign on the part of the local motor-car connoisseurs.

February sales for both Chandler and Cleveland cars show in a very concrete way just what people think of these two creations, says Don P. Smith, general manager.

The Pilgrims of 1620 Ride in a 1923 "Horseless Carriage"



View of the good ship "Mayflower" and some of the "Pilgrim Fathers" and their families about to start on location from the Charles Ray studio in a Maxwell sport touring car from Union Motors, Inc. Frederick Warren is the gentleman attired in the Miles Standish suit of armor.

Classic Story of Olden Days Being Filmed

The movement toward the classics by motion-picture producers has been of quite recent inauguration. "Robin Hood," "When Knighthood Was in Flower," "The Three Musketeers," and one or two other films have been given receptions most gratifying to their producers and have shown that the public is keenly interested in the stories and characters portrayed, largely because of the historic "touch" in the stories upon which the scenarios have been based. The work of the research department in unearthing documents, makeup of costumes used in the period pictured and in the faithful reproduction upon the film of the original characters and scenes is, in each case, a task of almost superhuman proportions and yet scenes are never passed by director or producer unless he is certain the portrayal will be true to life as it was.

The ambitious picturization of "The Courtship of Miles Standish," the inimitable romance of the Pilgrim Fathers, by Charles Ray which was only recently completed at the Ray studios, is a film which, it is expected, will have an especially strong appeal to the American public because of its connection with American history as the birthplace of the republic, although antedating the Declaration of Independence by more than a century and a quarter.

A Maxwell sport touring car was used in transporting members of the company from one location to another and a series of interesting photographs were taken in which members of the troupe, in true seventeenth century costumes, were taken at the "seashore' 'almost alongside the exact reproduction of the Mayflower, the ship which brought the persecuted Pilgrims from England to their new home near Cape Cod on the Massachusetts coast. The span of more than 300 years is thus intimately connected and Sales Manager Conan A. Doyle of Unions Motors, Inc., distributors for the Maxwell, has a most interesting array of pictures to adorn the walls of his office.

Dave Rasky is Late Benedict on Local Row

There is a new benedict of local Auto Row.

Max Shiffner, manager of the Commercial Tire Company, distributors for Hendrie tires, let slip the information yesterday that his "left bower," Dave Rasky, "went and got married" March 1.

The benedict being "somewhere" on a honeymoon, he could not be located for an interview, but the firm's "other bower," Hank Gowdy, corroborated Mr. Shiffner's information, and it was definitely established as fact.

The new "Mrs. Rasky, it is learned, was formerly Miss Sallie Robinson, daughter of Mrs. H. Robinson of 829 West Fifty-sixth street, the family coming to Los Angeles from New York City. It is accepted as a significant fact that both Mrs. Rasky and her husband originally hailed from London, Eng.

"Dave" has traveled extensively in all parts of the world, and, although according to his own report he has settled down in Los Angeles to spend "the rest of his days," he is still traveling. For the past year he has been associated with the Commercial Tire Company in the capacity of traveling sales manager.

PROUD OF WINDSHIELD ON LEXINGTON COACH

Hitting the middle ground between the old-time, clumsy, heavy studded and weighty closed car and the newer cramped and flimsy creation, that is too prone to turn a flip at the slightest provocation, builders of the famous Ansted motored Lexington Minute Man Six point to their newest number, the Lexington Royal Coach as the epitome of modern motor car safety and comfort.

W. F. Seel of the Lexington-Los Angeles Company, local Lexington distributors indicates as an outstanding feature of this new design the Royal Coach safety windshield. Instead of having the heavy supports that obstruct the view of the driver and have more than once been the cause of an accident due to the pilot's inability to see another car approaching, the Lexington windshield frame is cast of strong metal that provides ample support without hindering full vision.

SPEED WAGON CHASSES ARE IN MUCH DEMAND

Two more refrigerator cars mounted on Reo speed wagon chasses will soon be put into service by the Globe Ice Cream Company. The Globe has had to make frequent additions to its fleet of carriers to take care of a rapidly increasing business. It is stated that they have attained a high position among the leaders among the ice cream manufacturers in the few months since they started in business.

ENGAGES BOTH SHAFTS

The Cadillac transmission lock positively and simultaneously engages both shifter shafts and locks them against movement in either direction. Locking the shifter shafts is obviously more secure than locking simply the control lever. The Cadillac construction is patented.

AN ANCIENT CAR

The real beginning of the Cadillac Motor Car Company can be traced back to 1895, when a manufacturer of high-grade machinery in Detroit opened his doors and continued operations until his concern was absorbed by the Cadillac 1905.

PHOENIX (Ariz.) March 3.—Official figures show that Arizona last year invested nearly $4,000,000 in the purchase of 4858 new motor cars.

REO ARMORED BODIES IN USE BY THE BANKS

Armored bank cars are in vogue in many eastern cities for carrying money and valuable securities. These armored bodies are mounted on Reo speed wagon chasses and are used as a protection against pay-roll bandits.

With double steel walls and a number of port holes the Reo becomes a veritable fort in case of attack. Even the glass is of a kind that will not shatter if hit by bullets.

So far none of the guards that accompany the Reo armored cars have been attacked as the bandits seem to consider such an attack hopeless of success.

DODGE BROTHERS
TOURING CAR

As Spring days approach, the demand for Dodge Brothers Touring Car mounts swiftly.

Dodge Brothers one problem, at present, is not how many Touring Cars they can sell, but how many they can build.

Never was public approval of Dodge Brothers product more obvious, and never was it more richly deserved.

Improvements, rarely spoken of but constantly being made, have brought the car to a state of perfection which can only be described as remarkable, even for Dodge Brothers.

Every part which takes a major strain is built of chrome vanadium steel.
Many more pieces of alloy steel are used in vital parts than normal wear requires.

ADVENTURING AMERICAN TRAILS WITH "LIZZIE"

A Montana River

[illegible] Custer, Mont.

[illegible] with the National Highway at Terry, so [illegible] the capital of a [illegible] came to a wayside [illegible] grove of big trees just beside the Powder River, and here we rested for some hours while we enjoyed a delicious fish fry from a cottage near, and regaled ourselves with the coldest drinking water we had found since we left Minnesota.

This Saturday afternoon was a veritable picnic, and even the New Yorkers thawed under the Montana warmth and became really jolly companions.

It was a good thing that we rested while we could, for we didn't get much thereafter until we reached Mile City. Soon after we crossed the Powder we dropped into the valley of the Yellowstone River, but we didn't stay there very long, for the trail persisted in playing hide and seek up one bluff and down another for miles along that stream. The hills were almost impassable, they were so long and so steep. That's the main difference between North Dakota and Montana. In North Dakota they have ten hills to every mile and over in Montana they use ten miles on every hill. Elizabeth's temperature was boiling and Bobbie Marmon's was awfully feverish most of the afternoon. I can't understand why Montana ever put that trail along those cliffs, when they could have made it in the valley below. The surveyor who laid it out must have been cross-eyed, and he put it where he was looking instead of looking where he was putting it.

FINE TOURIST CAMP

It was certainly a delight, after all our troubles, to pull into the lovely tourist camp at Mile City that Saturday evening, and after we had pitched our tent beneath a group of fine old box elders and cottonwoods with which the grounds are amply shaded, we hastened to revel in the hot showers provided for our comfort. Mile City was one of the prettiest towns we passed through in all of Montana. Its streets were so clean and its business blocks well built, and its residential districts homelike and inviting. Its tourist camp is ideal and furnished with modern electric kitchens, laundry room and pleasant rest rooms. It was certainly a fine advertisement for the city and thoroughly enjoyed by the strangers who were its guests.

Sunday morning I was chatting with a near-by camper who was the wife of a preacher from a certain well-known city in Iowa. I remarked that I'd be willing to crack the Ten Commandments slightly if I could find some water with some fish in it. She chuckled and said, "I guess I'll have to tell you a good one on my husband. He is a good man all right, but he'll fall for fish when nothing else will faze him. He and some of the boys caught a bunch yesterday, and this morning he decided that we wouldn't break the Sabbath by traveling, so we are spending the day here. A while ago the boys came to our camp and said, 'Dominie, come go fishing with us. They are biting like the devil. We just caught a five-pound bass.' And do you know, he grabbed his rod and an old hat, and didn't even say 'good bye,' and I haven't seen him since. But I'd give $10 if one of his deacons back home could stroll along that river and catch him at it." We both enjoyed a hearty laugh and I said, "Well, don't let a little thing like that worry you."

We left Mile City down the valley past Fort Keogh—quite an extensive military preserve, and passed through Rosebud, Forsythe and several other little towns. The trail followed valleys and was fine.

EVERYBODY CUSSED 'ER

We followed the valley of the Yellowstone still toward Billings, and it was filled now with beautiful farms all under irrigation. At the outer rim of the valley were peculiar cliffs cut by erosion into fantastic and weird shapes. We spent the night at Custer about thirty-five miles north of the Custer battlefield. This little town has no tourist camp so we sojourned with three other cars in a vacant lot. A little store had the sign, "Dew-drop Inn" over it, so we did. We asked for water, but they told us that they only gave water to those who bought their ice cream. We asked for ice cream and were told they were out of it. So I made bold to suggest that they change their sign to "Do-Without-Within" and left.

STREAM LINES OF STAR MAKE A HIT

California is in a class by itself when it comes to the types of motor cars that meet its fancy, according to J. E. Cox, associate manager of Walter M. Brown Motors, Inc., Star distributuors and he backs up his claim with the fact that Star cars equipped with California tops are making a tremendous hit in this territory.

"We had an exclusive type of California top built onto a Star touring car as an experiment," says Cox, "and it was sold before we had time to get it polished up and placed in our show room.

"The lines of the Star are streamed and yet they are fully rounded so that graceful proportions can be established in the top. We have also incorporated several features in our tops and make them distinctive. They are of the semisalamanca type with either one or two plate-glass panels to a side, making them semi-inclosed."

RUN 40,000 MILES

Careful tabulation of Oakland 6-44 cars in use shows that they average better than 40,000 miles before the main bearings need attention," says H. E. Franklin, manager for the California Oakland Motor Company.

INSTALLS INFORMATION CAR

The unique honor of being the first bank in the world to install a Motorists' Information Department has fallen upon a local institution.

To the weary traveler bouncing across the sand wastes of Arizona, California Bank has brought a visible manifestation of its interest in their arrival at Los Angeles.

The car is operated on the main traveled roads that bring tourists and homeseekers to Southern California. On the first trip, made in the latter part of January, a series of events typical of all pioneering efforts gave the bank's representative a taste of what he may expect on following excursions.

Gates M. Fowler, the driver, was a pioneer in Arizona in early days and is well known over the southwest. His knowledge of the country through which he travels, his acquaintance with conditions, and his cheerful personality have gained fame for his "wagon."

In speaking of his journey he said, "The trip to Blythe, Phoenix, Tucson, Ajo and Yuma was a distinct success.

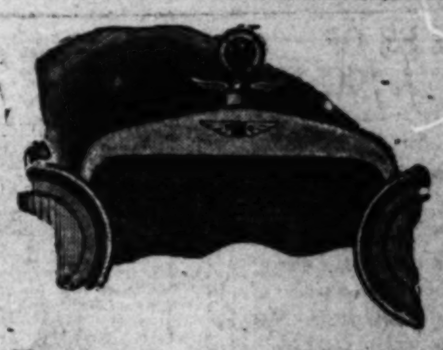
"The garage men want reading matter and maps to hand out to the travelers, and since papers are few on the desert, people read everything they get hold of, especially if it is about California. The roads are good most of the way—some bad stretches, and a few exceedingly bad spots, but by going slow there is no occasion for trouble."

Tommy Milton Buys Himself a New Sedan

Tommy Milton, split-second speed shark, who always gives the boys up in front plenty of competition whenever he tunes up for one of those time-wrecking whirligigs behind the wheel of his gas-fed thoroughbred, has pulled a new one.

He has all of the boys along the row more or less nonplussed. He walked into the expansive Ford emporium maintained here by T. Benjamin Fahy since 1916, the other day, and took unto himself one of the new four-door Ford sedans.

"Nothing more practical in the world," says Fahy. "Milton just smiles and says it is a good car and he needs it in his business. That ought to be enough indorsement for anybody though, when a man like Milton, who knows gas engines inside out and backwards, and has tested the best for stamina and actual life and death dependability picks Mr. Ford's latest closed-car creation, ther is nothing to be added."



The new and very powerful Six and Four cylinder cars by Harry C. Stutz won the admiration of every motor car expert at the New York show.

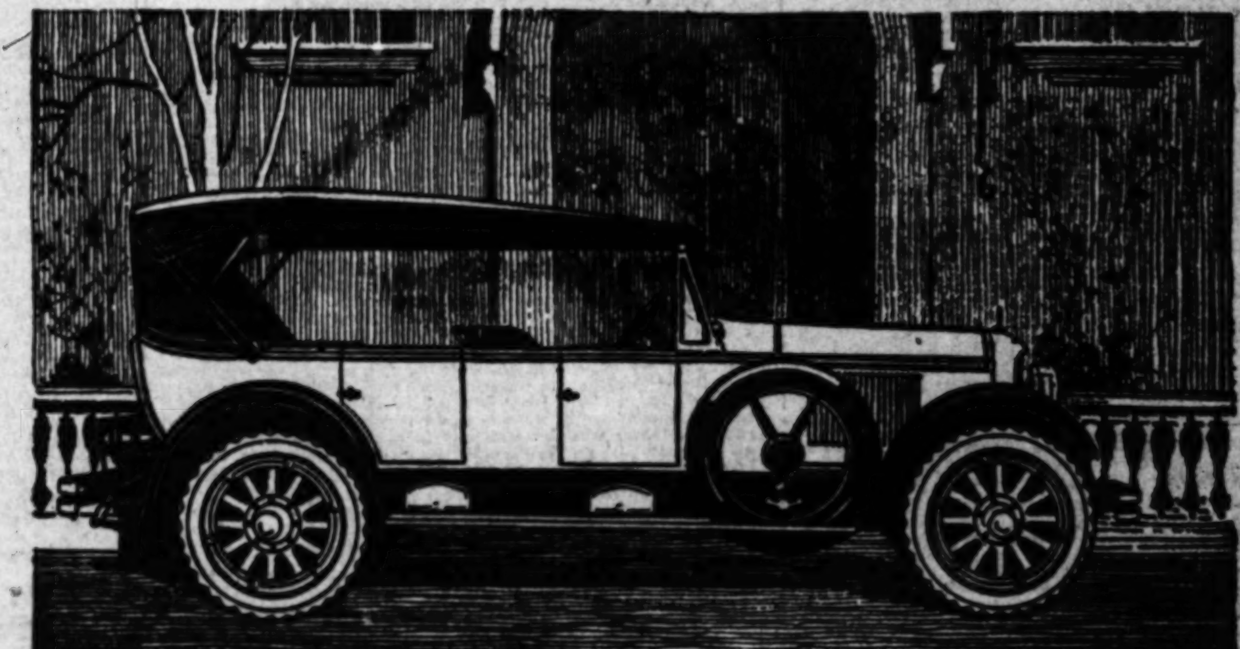
THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CAR IN AMERICA



Our Ideal Paige-Your Ideal Car

IF your ideal car is one of dignified beauty, the newly refined lines of the Paige will charm you. If your ideal of beauty means also richness of detail and substantial construction, the new Paige bodies will satisfy you.

For Paige Ideal bodies are now doubly braced, extra stout. Double strips of patent leather keep metal from touching metal or wood. This idea from Europe insures a forever silent body.

The richness of the new Paige bodies is sensed by hand and eye. Not a piece of imitation leather in the open cars. Superbly loomed velours in the enclosed types. All instruments beneath a single glass panel in a walnut dash. Walnut steering wheel—adjustable to driver's convenience.

Undoubtedly your ideal car is a Paige in performance. Like its predecessor, this Paige 6-70 will prove America's unchallenged champion in speed, hill-climbing and acceleration. Likewise our Ideal Paige goes beyond even your ideals in easy handling.

The new clutch, with six springs instead of one and a light-weight driven member, gives smooth, easy engagement. The new transmission gives finger-touch gear shifting with a bare 3-inch movement. And it is almost as quiet in first and second speeds as in high.

A new degree of endurance—of long life at reduced upkeep—has been given the Ideal Paige by scores of chassis improvements. The finest practicable workmanship by precision tools and gauges, is standard throughout. A new automatic take-up for the chain driven auxiliary shafts does away with need for adjustment.

Since 1909 the same officers, directors and engineers have been working together on the development of the Ideal Paige. Each year has brought it closer. Now it is achieved. And the success of the Paige-built Jewett has so increased the volume and reduced the overhead of the great Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company that this Ideal Paige is still a car of reasonable price.

Paige now definitely takes its place as one of America's finest cars. A Six of course—because the Six is the ideal type motor for balanced smoothness, flexibility, long life and care-free simplicity. This Ideal Paige is here—ready to charm you—to satisfy you with its comfort—and thrill you with its performance. Don't fail to see it for yourself.

Standard equipment of all Paige Models includes: 6 cord tires, tubes, rims. Spares mounted on each side with lock and tire cover. Motometer. Double bar spring bumpers front and rear. Luggage carrier. Combination tail and stop light. Automatic windshield wiper. Aluminum kick plates. Gasoline gauge on dash. Eight day Waltham clock. Electric cigar lighter. Green glass sunshade. Rear view mirror. Snubbers front and rear. Power tire pump.

REO
SPEED WAGON

Peerless Service

There is never a Blue Monday at the Peerless Laundry.

Four hundred employees go about their work with a cheerful spirit that is reflected in the good will of 20,000 patrons.

They take pride in the peerless position of their laundry. Manager L. F. Caswell is looked upon, in the laundry business, as a leader who demands the best and is content with nothing less.

He knows that his patrons must have sure, prompt service. For that purpose, forty-eight men line up their REO Speed Wagons every day, and make several trips delivering the bundles of fresh, clean linens.

Manager Caswell uses nothing but REO Speed Wagons in his delivery service. He has gone on record at laundrymen's conventions that there is no other type of motor transportation that will equal the satisfactory, economical transportation that REO Speed Wagons give.

GABRIEL SNUBBER BUSINESS BOOMS

COMPANY HAS GROWN FROM SMALL TO BIG PRODUCER IN TWELVE YEARS

An interesting review of the remarkable development in the manufacture of Gabriel snubbers is given by J. Henderson of the Pacific Automotive Service, local distributors. After six years' experience in the manufacture of various shock-preventing devices, in 1911 the Gabriel Manufacturing Company began the production of Gabriel snubbers, devoting 1800 square feet of floor space to this part of their business. This has been gradually increased until now 80,000 square feet are required for snubber production exclusively.

This increase in space has been necessitated by a production increase from nothing a dozen years ago to 800 snubbers a day this year. There have been three additions to the factory in the last three years.

The present great nation-wide and international demand for Gabriel snubbers is handled through a large and very efficiently organized distributing system. This includes fifty-five district distributors in the United States and six in Canada. Under these sixty-one distributors are 2160 subagents operating sales and service stations throughout the country.

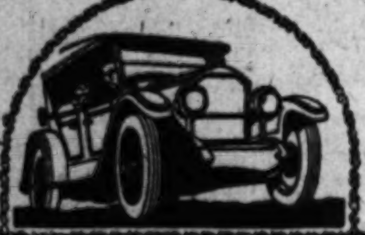
The success of Gabriel snubbers and their popularity is indicated by the fact that there are over 4,000,000 snubbers in use today. Seventy-one makes of cars either carry snubbers as standard equipment or have the frames drilled for them. In fact the automobile factories themselves require for standard equipment approximately 58 per cent of the yearly output of Gabriel snubbers. The European business also includes several manufacturers who use Gabriel snubbers as standard equipment.

C. H. Foster, president of the company which manufactures the Gabriel snubbers, will arrive in Los Angeles this morning to spend several weeks. He plans to combine business with pleasure and already has several rounds on the golf links in his program book.

LEVER LOCKS BEING DISTRIBUTED HERE

Lever locks which created considerable interest at the New York auto show are now being distributed in Los Angeles by the Banta Company. Temporary sales offices have been opened on the mezzanine floor of the Alexandria Hotel where free demonstrations are being held daily.

The "lever lock" is applied to any standard rim and becomes an integral part thereof by a slight hand pressure. This device will lock or unlock any rim instantly. It is claimed by the manufacturer that the lever lock will allow any tire change to be made in one minute.



STEARNS

Sales of Stearns-Knight Motor Cars in Southern California for February 1923 increased 900% over February 1922 and 100% over January of 1923.

The Trouble Shooter

TELLS YOU
what's wrong

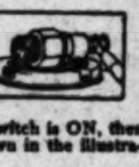
By E. H. SCOTT

This is the third of a series of specially prepared and illustrated articles showing the ordinary automobile driver how to locate any engine trouble

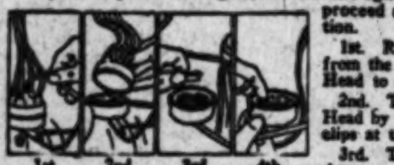
When the Engine Will Not Start

Ignition Troubles

1. Take a Spark Plug out of a cylinder, then open up the gap to TWICE the distance of the present gap. Now attach the wire to the Plug terminal again, then lay it on top of the cylinder in such a position, that when you turn the engine over, you can see the Plug Points. Make sure that the terminal with the wire attached DOES NOT touch the cylinder. Now turn the engine over smartly a few times while watching the points of the plug then—



If NO spark appears at the points of the Plug, or a spark only now and again, see that the Ignition Switch is ON, then proceed as shown in the illustration.



1st. Remove the wire leading from the centre of the Distributor Head to the Coil.

2nd. Take off the Distributor Head by unsnapping the two small clips at the side.

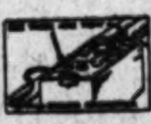
3rd. Take off the Distributor Arm.

4. Make quite sure the Breaker Points are together. If they are open, turn the engine over by hand crank until you see the points CLOSE, then hold the end of the wire you removed from the Distributor Head about ½" away from any metal part. Now with the point of the finger, open and close points while watching the end of the wire.

If NO SPARK appears at end of wire each time you open points, see A.
If a spark APPEARS each time you open points, see B.

A

1. Turn on the lights and observe their appearance. If they are DULL then examine the Battery connections. If connections are all right, have Battery re-charged. If, however, the lights are BRIGHT then—



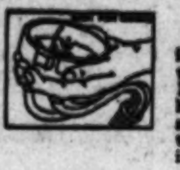
2. Trace wire from Battery to Ignition Switch. See particularly that the connections at the back of the Switch are TIGHT, and that the wire has not rubbed through its covering or insulation at any point. If it is all right then—

3. Trace wire leading from the Ignition Switch to the Coil, making sure that it has not rubbed through at any point. If it looks all right then—

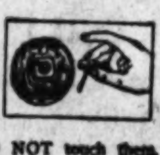
4. Examine the connections and wires leading from the Coil to the Contact Breaker and Distributor, to see that they are all connected and are TIGHT. If above are all SEEMINGLY correct then—

5. Test to see if either the Ignition Switch or the wires leading to the Battery are not internally defective. To do this, take a piece of insulated wire about 8 feet long, and connect one end to the terminal on the Battery which has attached to it the wire that leads to the Ignition Switch, and connect the other end of the wire to the terminal on the Coil which has attached to it the wire that leads through to the Switch. NOW test to see if there is a spark. If there IS, and the engine now starts, have the Ignition Switch and wiring examined by an expert Ignition man. If, however, there is STILL no spark, see B.

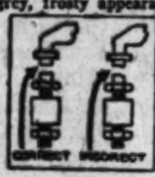
B



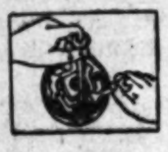
1. Examine the Distributor Head to see that it is not wet or damp, and look carefully to see that there are no cracks or burnt hair like lines in it. If there are, fit a new Head. If the Distributor has flat metal segments, see that they are clean and bright. Use a little fine sand paper on the track if the segments are pitted or black looking. If, however, the Distributor is all right then—



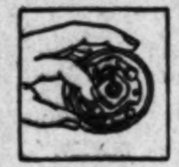
2. Examine the Distributor Arm to see that it is not cracked where it fits in the shaft, and that the Contact has spring enough to make connection with the Carbon Contact in the centre of the Distributor Head. If it is all right then—



3. Examine the Breaker Points. If they have a grey, frosty appearance, and come together squarely when points are CLOSED, DO NOT touch them. If the points are black looking and badly pitted, they will require dressing up. As they are generally made from tungsten metal which is too hard to file, they must be dressed up on an oil stone. The contact faces must be EXACTLY parallel. It is a delicate operation and it is better for the average man to have this job done by an expert Ignition man. Now—



4. Test the Gap between the points to see that it is correct. Consult the Instruction Book you got with car, if possible, to see what the EXACT gap should be. It varies a trifle, but is generally just about the thickness of an ordinary business card. Turn the engine over until the Cam on the Distributor shaft holds the points open at their WIDEST GAP. To adjust, loosen the lock nut on the FIXED contact screw, then by turning the screw in or out, get the correct gap. After adjusting the gap, tighten the lock nut, then check the gap again to see that its is correct AFTER THE LOCK NUT IS TIGHTENED UP. Now—



5. With the Breaker points in the CLOSED position, test the tension of the spring on the movable Arm with the point of the finger, seeing that it is not loose, broken or rusted, and is strong enough to snap the points into FIRM contact. If it appears to be sluggish in action, and the Arm fits into a fibre bushing, it may have swollen, making the shaft too tight to move freely. Very often with this trouble, the points stay open ALL the time. If, however, the Arm works quite freely then—

6. If when testing the Ignition by opening and closing the Breaker Points, you notice a very BRIGHT spark at the Breaker Points, but a VERY THIN spark or no spark at all at the end of the wire you are holding near metal part, your Condensor has broken down and will require expert attention. In any case, if after examining and adjusting as shown, there is still no difference in the Ignition, have it gone over by an expert Ignition man, as the fault is an internal one requiring his skill to remedy

NEXT WEEK—"WHAT TO DO WHEN THE ENGINE SLOWS UP AND STOPS"

SAN BERNARDINO FOR MACKS

San Bernardino county is vying with Orange county in popularity for Mack trucks. Over in "San Berdue" trucks get hard service, as a great deal of hauling is done in mountainous region.

In the city of San Bernardino there is a considerable percentage of the population that depends for its transportation on the Fifth-street bus. The motive power for this equipment is a Mack chassis. During two years this bus traveled 135,000 miles. According to the owners the bearings have never been touched, and the original wrist pins as well as other parts of the engine still are in service, although the vehicle covers daily about 150 miles.

Road building and maintenance in the county depend largely on a 5-ton Mack truck which has been driven approximately 40,000 miles in two years. This truck is owned by the county of San Bernardino and sent to all parts of the county. Last summer the roads in the Bear Valley country were oiled by material this truck hauled when equipped with a tank body. On long trips a trailer is frequently used and despite the hard service to which the truck has been subjected it has been free from repairs of any consequence.

Hundreds of San Bernardino residents are supplied with ice by the San Bernardino Ice Company which uses three Mack trucks in the distribution. The upkeep cost on the oldest of these, which has been driven about 50,000 miles, has been less than thirty dollars, according to the owners.

A number of summer residents in the mountains have built their cabins from lumber hauled in on Eddie Greable's Mack. Motorists of the vicinity who prefer a certain brand of gasoline obtain it because it is hauled from Los Angeles on a Mack Bulldog owned by Geo. Gaffney. This truck also has been in service for more than two years, making regular trips back and forth to Los Angeles without at any time being out of commission. Large quantities of farm produce also are Mack transported so that the utility of this type of vehicle is well recognized throughout the vicinity.

DIAMOND STARS SELECT BUICKS

Eastern baseball players, like their brothers on the Coast, take to Buick cars like ducks to water, according to H. W. Tuttle of the Howard Automobile Company. He has sales information from the factory that shows the popularity of the Buick line among the diamond fraternity.

Walter Pipp, the hard-hitting first-baseman of the Yanks, is the fourth member of his team to buy a Buick. Pitcher Sam Jones, Third-Baseman Joe Dugan and Shortstop Everett Scott are the three other American League champions to buy Buicks this year.

STEPHENS HEAD VISITS OUR CITY

R. W. Lea,
Vice-president and general manager of the Stephens Motor Car Company.

R. W. Lea, vice-president and general manager of the Stephens Motor Car Company, of Moline, Ill., is in Los Angeles, as the guest of O. R. Fuller, president of the White Auto Company, distributors in this territory of Stephens six motor cars.

Mr. Lea is making a tour of the country to get in personal touch with his distributors and dealers, and he reports that the new Stephens lines are making an instant hit everywhere they are shown.

He attributes this enthusiastic reception of this popular line, already famous for economy, to the new policy of the company which offers the public a revolutionary set of values at a hitherto unbelievable low level of prices.

Mr. Lea called attention to the intensified closed car construction program of his company. He said they had been watching closed car demand surge ahead and this year prepared for it with a complete line of the finest closed cars buildable. The Stephens five-passenger touring sedan is the one they are concentrating on as the most popular all-around car for the average family, he said.

California's balmy days were enthusiastically praised by Mr. Lea, who reported a sub-zero thermometer in his home territory.

their Big Six Studebaker is one of the ties that binds the Turpin family closer. Mrs. Turpin she is the best driver because Ben never has h's eyes straight on the road. 'Nuff said.

No Discord in Ranks of the Turpin Family seems to make little difference Turpin whether it is making cross-eyed fun for the motion- fans, chasing a golf ball the links or discussing the philosophy of marriage. He is an expert at all three sciences.

Mrs. Turpin agrees with Ben that he is a fine golf player, but says he ought to be doing Hamelt instead of comedy. They both agree that there is no such thing as single blessedness and claim that married happiness depends largely on whether you have a motor car of a satisfactory make Both are golf enthusiasts. The winner gets the driver's seat in the sedan until the next one betters the score of the other. Driving the car is the prize. Sometimes when the lady of the house wants something like a new hat, or a fur or any of those little things dear to the feminine heart she lets Ben drive when it is her turn. Ben is just as generous when he wants a favorite dish prepared for dinner.

As the car will go in only one direction at a time and to only one place and as both of them love to drive it and ride around the car puts them in each other's company a great deal. That is why they say that single blessedness is not in it with married happiness.

The only real important difference they have at home is as to which is the more expert driver. Ben claims that he gets more power out of the big-six Studebaker on a hill, but his wife says that it has more power than it needs and that Ben has nothing to brag about. She insists that Ben never keeps his eyes straight ahead on the road and that she does, which makes her the better driver of the two.

Some day they are going down to the Studebaker store and ask Paul Hoffman to watch each of them drive and decide who is the more proficient. If they do they will probably own a car apiece.

Bankruptcy Is Holding Back Arizona Work

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) March 3.—Road work all over Arizona is being held up by what has been described as the "bankruptcy" of the State Highway Department. A force of 2200 men has been scattered, after determination by the Attorney-General that funds cannot be switched from one road account to another till there has been receipt of national road moneys.

On the basis of this decision, it is probable that highway construction will be materially slowed down hereafter, as sections of road can be built only when cash happens to be in the particular account affected, this while very large sums are resting in other accounts.

The principal work on hand at the beginning of this year was construction of the central highway from Phoenix to the Grand Canyon via Wickenburg, Congress Junction, Prescott, Ash Fork and Maine. The sections through Maricopa and Yavapai county may be constructed in part by county appropriations, but the larger part had been placed in the hands of the State Engineer.

There now is little prospect for completion of the Phoenix-Prescott section this year. Connection by highway between these two cities now is very bad. A strong association centering around Mayer and Humboldt, is endeavoring to put the old Black Canyon road in decent shape and has secured assurances of support from the two counties affected.

ROAD IS BLOCKED

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ASH FORK (Ariz.) March 3.—Complaint has been made that the old Ash Fork - Grand Canyon stage road, which has been in use fro over thirty years, has been fenced across at several points by leasing stockmen. A local resident cut the wires when he was blocked in trying to reach his ranch, but was discharged when taken before a Williams court.

Chevrolet Used in Canada for Traffic Guide

When the Provincial Government of New Brunswick, Canada, decided to adopt the universal rule of the road, "turn to the right," the change was so radical and such a great departure from left-hand driving that motion-picture films had to be made to illustrate the change as it would affect driving.

For six weeks before the new ruling was in effect five films were circulated throughout the province. A Chevrolet passenger car was used in the demonstration film.

Although it might seem an almost inconsequential change to keep road traffic on the right side of the highways instead of the left, all who have had experience in sections where road rules are the reverse of American practices agree that habit is strong enough to cause great confusion.

Hence the special educational campaign assigned to Chevrolet in New Brunswick. It was chiefly concerned with clearing away confusion apt to arise at intersections.

ROOSEVELT'S "FOLLY"

Secretary Long Amended a Diary Entry of Spanish War Days

A historic entry appears in the diary of John D. Long, Secretary of the Navy in the McKinley administration, under date of April 25, 1898. War with Spain had been declared. Extracts from the diary are edited for the Atlantic Monthly by Lawrence Shaw Mayo. On the above date Secretary Long wrote:

My assistant secretary, Roosevelt, has determined upon resigning, in order to go into the Army and take part in the war. He has been of great use; a man of unbounded energy and force, and thoroughly honest—which is the main thing.

He has lost his head to this unutterable folly of deserting the post where he is of the most service and running off to ride a horse, and, probably, brush mosquitoes from his neck on the Florida sands. And yet how absurd all this will sound, if by some turn of fortune he should accomplish some great thing and strike a very high mark.

At some later date Mr. Long wrote at the bottom of this page:

P. S.—Roosevelt was right, and we, his friends, were al wrong. His going into the Army led straight to the Presidency.

WAX FROM INSECTS

Deposited on Trees and Gathered in Its Season

White wax, one of the most important exports of the Province of Szechwan, in China, is chiefly found in the districts of Kiating, Chiewei and Ipin, and along the Yangtze River in the vicinity of these places. It is a substance deposited on trees by insects known as wax insects. Once a year—in March—they are collected from the regions on the border of Yunnan by the wax-worm raisers, and are placed on pollarded trees, either ash or privet, which are mostly grown in Kiating and neighboring districts.

Speed is essential in the removal of these insects, or they would hatch out before they get to the wax districts, and would thus be wasted. Therefore, the coolies generally travel in relays so as to reach the destination in time for the hatching. When the moulting period is over, the worms begin to deposit the wax on the leaves of the trees. This process continues up to the end of August, when the wax is collected. After dissolving in boiling water, it is usually molded into cakes of various sizes and shapes.—[Exchange.

EMBRACED BY MONKEY

A horrible experience befell a letter carrier's wife of Babylon, N. Y., when a monkey dropped on her shoulders from a tree and embraced her. She was riding in her surrey through a lonely stretch of road, between Babylon and Lindenhurst when something dropped as if from the sky and landed on the seat beside her. When hairy arms encircled her neck she screamed and an unidentified rabbit hunter appeared on the scene and shot the monkey. The dead monkey was brought back to Babylon, where the woman will have it stuffed as a memento of her unusual experience. The monkey is believed to have escaped from a ship off the coast near Babylon.—[Exchange.

FOOLISH

Tobe was talking about Mose, who made a good cotton crop and spent the entire proceeds for a grand piano.

"That was foolish," commented a bystander.

"You kin bet it was foolish," declared Tobe. "He ordered dat piano without taking any measurements. When it came they couldn't get it in the cabin door."

A Simple Method

"How did you manage to escape from the footpad unharmed and without being robbed?"

"When he pointed his pistol at me and demanded my money or my life I stepped forward and took him by the button hole and said, 'I have just heard a dandy! Once there was an Irishman named Pat who met another Irishman named Mike, and said to him——" The bandit uttered a screech and fled like a scared roebuck."—[Kansas City Star.

OPEN ROAD IS CALLING MANY

Big Touring Season Is in Prospect

Early Requests for Road Information

National Parks the Magnet for Many

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

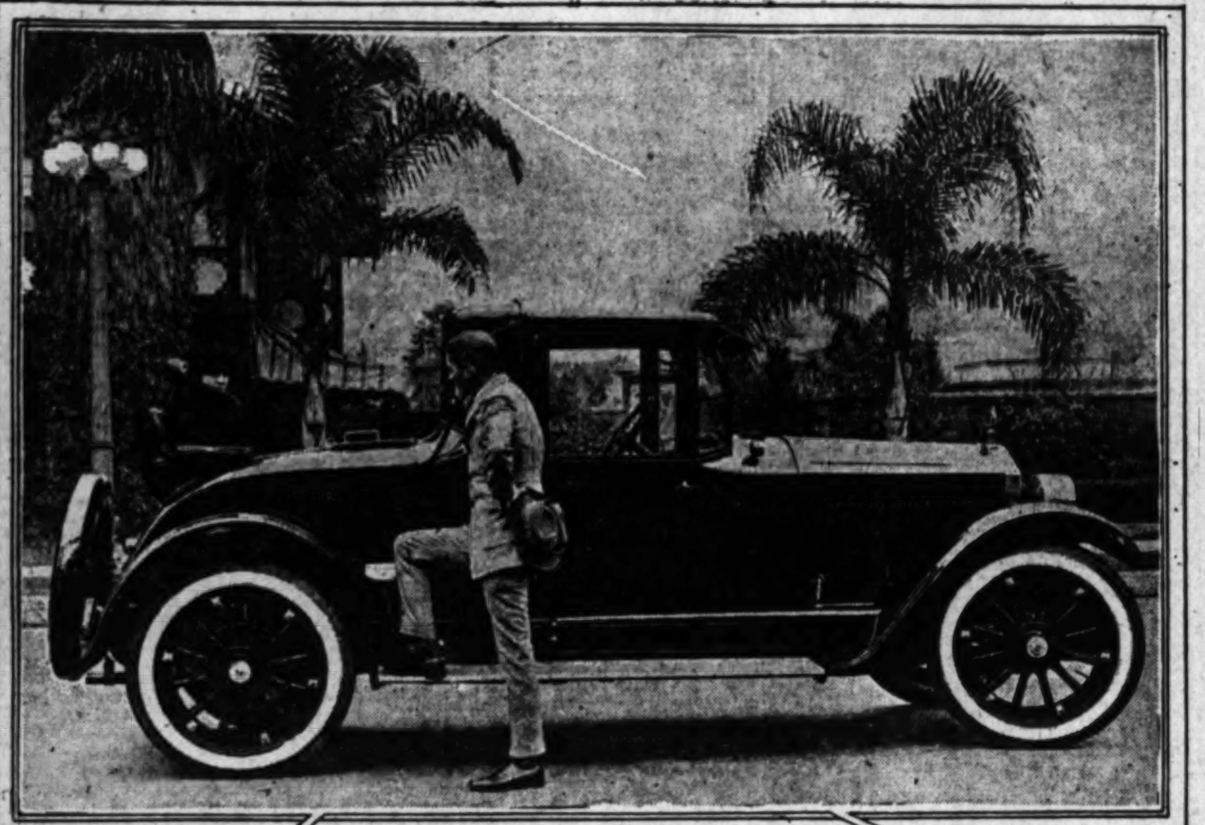
WASHINGTON (D. C.) March 3.—Numerous requests for road information, even this far in advance of spring, emphasize the fact that motorists of the United States are eagerly looking forward to the biggest touring season yet known. Just as the trend of travel has been to the South for several months, so it will now turn toward the West and North, according to information from the National Motorists' Association.

The national parks of the country, which were visited by 1,200,000 persons in 1922, probably two-thirds of which were motorists, are expected to be the magnet which will draw hundreds of thousands of tourists this year.

Equal interest also, so far as extended trips are concerned, is expected to be shown in the New England States and Canada. Special touring information, both local and long-distance, and 1923 strip maps, each covering the routing for a different trip, will be available for distribution through the N.M.A. and affiliated clubs. These strip maps are of such shape and size as to permit the driver of a car to hold them conveniently in the hand while at the wheel or they may be slipped easily into a coat pocket.

Still another feature of keen interest to motorists everywhere in this country has to do with the steps taken to do away with the impossible situation which has existed between the State of Maryland and the District of Columbia as to reciprocity. The removal of this barrier now seems assured under legislation to be enacted before March 4, and effective Jan. 1, 1924, following action in approval thereof by the Governor of Maryland. The national capital division of the N.M.A. was a leader in paving the way for this legislation, through the crystallization of the sentiment back of it in the District and in Maryland. Fortunately the Automobile Club of Maryland, which embraces the State, is affiliated with the N.M.A. and this therefore made it possible the more easily to bring the conflicting interests together.

Quite an Innovation in Touring Roadster Design



The Stearns-Knight has developed a new idea in roadster-body design in the convertible rear seat, which is big enough for two. Miss Marjorie Morris is taking her first lesson in the use of the new feature. How'd you like to be along?

STEARNS SURPRISE IS NOVEL DESIGN

CONVERTIBLE ROADSTER TO PROVIDE ROOM FOR TWO MORE PASSENGERS

The Stearns Knight sprang a surprise last week in an entirely original body on its six-cylinder chassis and this time it is the convertible touring roadster, which has just been received by Lynn C. Buxton and delivered to the purchaser who chanced to see the car as it was being washed subsequent to its long trip across the country.

"It is the Stearns policy to develop original body designs in keeping with the wonderful six-cylinder car that the factory is now building," says Lynn G. Buxton, Southern California distributor. "When I was East I saw this convertible roadster in process of finishing and I was instantly struck with its unusual attractiveness and put in an order for an early shipment. That I anticipated the approval with which it would be met, is evidenced by the fact that the car was sold even before we had an opportunity to display it on our showroom floor.

"This convertible roadster is distinctly foreign in all its appearances and marks a new note in roadster design. The top is of the semipermanent type, which a fabric back that is collapsible when fair weather permits of the joy of motoring with the top down, yet the windshield and forward hood protect the eyes from the sun and wind. Nickeled bows set off the top on each side. The deck opens outward and provides a roomy compartment for luggage or a big comfortable seat for two additional passengers can be brought into use. So ingeniously is this devised that every comfort of the usual tonneau is offered."

DEATH VALLEY STORY TRAVELS MANY MILES

The exploits of the exploring Buick motorists who invaded Death Valley last December have gone far afield, according to H. W. Tuttle of the Howard Automobile Company, distributors of Buicks in Los Angeles and surrounding territory. Countless reams of publicity have been devoted to the nerve-wracking adventures of the hardy travelers and their sturdy car.

OAKLAND SHIPS MANY CARS EAST

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DETPOIT, March 3.—A trainload of Oakland motor cars left the plant this week. It consisted of thirty-six cars and was the second shipment of its kind sent to the Boston distributor. Four trainloads of Oakland cars have been shipped to New York City since December 1, two since the beginning of the year Drive aways of cars have been made to points as far east as Pittsburg, and as far west as Chicago, despite the terrible conditions of the roads this winter. The Oakland Motor Car Company owns a train comprising twenty railroad cars especially to ship motor cars, and has found this equipment invaluable this winter.

MAXWELL SHIPS BY TRAINLOADS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DETROIT, March 3. — Maxwell Motors Corporation is literally shipping cars by the trainload — an unusual situation for a motor manufacturer to find himself in in the dead of the winter. Starting with the New York show, orders from eastern territory were received which were indicative of a strong continued demand for the Maxwell product in that section. One of these orders called for nearly $1,00,000 worth of cars, or five trainloads. Shipments were started in January and will continue through March.

ANOTHER GERMAN PRODIGY

Germany has another memory prodigy in a 21-year-old girl, who has mastered the art of brain control over muscle most completely. She sings a German song, writes an English sentence with her right hand, and a French sentence with her left hand at the same time. Also writes a sentence in one language backward, and another in a different language in the regular way. She can calculate with one hand and write dictation backward with the other. She can also begin a sentence at both ends and complete it in the middle, using both hands. She does several other things which really seem beyond the limit of credulity.—[Scientific American.

Tut's Wheels Reveal An Up to Date Plan

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, March 3.—The sensational find of a number of richly ornamented, gold-tired chariot wheels in the tomb of King Tut-Ankh-Amen at Luxor, Egypt, has sharply revived scientific interest in the origin and development of wheels of modern type.

Expert scrutiny reveals remarkably up-to-date design and construction in the wheels that carried Egypt's pharaohs in battle and procession 3500 years ago, states one of the country's foremost authorities, C. C. Carlton, secretary of Motor Wheel Corporation, Lansing, Mich.

"The hub, spoke and rim construction of the wheels used by King Tut-Ankh-Amen show surprising grace of outline, combined with extraordinary strength. Built for the violent exigencies of warfare, they had to be extremely light, for speed, as well as tremendously strong, to withstand the shock of collision and maneuvering over rough terrain.

"Notable also is the excessive length of the hubs and their narrow diameter, perhaps calculated to reduce friction and to enable the holding of proper alignment."

In the bronze used for spindles and bearings the Egyptians possessed a bearing metal that modern metallurgy has never been able to duplicate. The unique process that gave this metal its marvelous hardness and wearing quality ranks with the lost arts, perhaps never to be rediscovered.

Equally as amazing as the structural soundness of the wheels unearthed at Luxor is the richness of their ornamentation. Imagine the wealth of a dynasty that enabled the use of solid gold for tires.

Lexingtons in Hill-Climbing Feat at Okoia

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CONNERSVILLE (Ind.) March 3.—Word has just been received by the Lexington Motor Company here that two of its stock models again demonstrated their superiority at the annual hill climbing contest of the Wanganui Motorcycle Club at Okoia, New Zealand, a few days ago.

Although Lexington was not the favorite, one of its entries driven by Burns led the entire list of entries over the line, making the nine-tenths of a mile, with an average grade of about one in six, in 1 minute and 38 seconds. Another Lexington, driven by Mangham, finished third, crossing just 4-5 of a second behind the leader.

Only a view of the climb could give an accurate idea of the difficulties encountered. In this short distance of less than a mile there are nine sharp turns and a mistake in judgment or a skid would plunge the unfortunate car and driver over a great embankment.

There was considerable skidding at these turns and several of the eight entries came perilously near the bank. Newspapers, commenting on the race, marked the unerring performance of the two Lexington entries.

In the privately owned car class, Lexington also carried off second honors. There had been no opportunity to tune up the cars for this race, but B. Smith, in his six-cylinder Minute Man Six, which had seen lots of hard service, made the climb in 1:45 3-5, which is regarded as a splendid record.

COMPRESSION IS THE BEST BRAKE

Driving an automobile down a steep hill requires driving skill, a thorough acquaintanceship with the peculiarities and capabilities of the car being driven, and the exercise of considerable native judgment by the driver, according to D. Gerard Cheesman, manager of the H. J. Wurzburger Company, local Kissel distributors, who claims that it requires greater skill and experience to drive down a hill than it does to drive up one.

Cressman claims that the engine acts as a natural brake when the throttle is closed and that if the motorist simply closes his throttle and leaves his clutch engaged when descending a hill his car will be much more easily controlled and a considerable saving in wear on the brake lining will be effected.

MISUNDERSTANDING CHOKER CONTROL WILL FOUL SPARK PLUGS DAILY

We have discussed the tuning-up process when the control lever is in full choke position. It is equally important that the choker valve be inspected in its off position. As a rule a stop is provided for the valve lever so that it cannot be pulled or turned beyond full opening. See that butterfly valve is wide open, any slight angle will cause restriction of air, thus reducing power and speed, and rendering the carburetor more difficult and often impossible to adjust. This is usually the cause of irregular operation of motor and wasting fuel, fouling of spark plugs and apparent oil pumping action of pistons.

In the case of dash and controls that connect with levers to needle valves or spray nozzles, follow your instruction book closely on these. See that lever hits the stop in the full off position and that all connections are securely locked.

GET ACQUAINTED

The most important thing in connection with chokers or dash controls is to learn the off and on positions. In some cases a stop in each direction indicates full off and on location. This usually applies to the "push and pull" type. However, in the case of the levers that rotate with rich and lean graduations, the pointer usually goes beyond the "lean" mark for full off position, before the stop is reached and in the other direction beyond the "rich" mark, before it hits the other stop. You can readily see the danger of being misguided by these marks in the event that choker control is not adjusted to register with the "rich" and "lean" marks.

I have seen cases of spark plugs fouling daily, because the pointer did not register properly with the marks. The owner was operating his car with the lever at the lean mark, when it required approximately another one-fourth turn to reach the stop in the off position. Likewise he found extreme cold starting hard, because the choker was not full on with the pointer at the "rich" mark. Therefore, when purchasing a new car, always form an acquaintance with the characteristics of the controls on that particular make of car.

PUBLIC SETS PRICE ON USED MOTOR CARS

THAT'S WHAT MAN IN CHARGE OF DODGE USED BUGGY SALES SAYS

Contrary to the prevailing opinion that prices of used cars are set arbitrarily by the firms who sell them, G. L. McLeod, manager of the used car department of the Albertson Motor Company, Dodge Brothers dealers, explains that the public in general set used car prices.

"What people want they get and strange as it may seem they get it pretty close to their own price eventually," says McLeod.

"It all goes back to that bewhiskered old law of supply and demand. Oversupply decreases demand and causes prices to fall. When that condition exists in the automotive world men who make a business of selling new cars and to whom the used car is only a secondary feature or a means to an end, are bound by that public appraisal. We don't want used cars, they say, and so used car values just naturally have to drop.

"On the other hand when something happens to limit the supply of new cars, and a large number of people can't get them, or at least can't get them as quickly as they want them, then they turn to the used car as the next best thing and the quickest way to get reasonably dependable transportation relief. Then used cars are in demand, the dealer can get more for them, and as a result can some times offer a bit more for them on a trade-in."

Rickenbacker Factory Adds to Facilities

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DETROIT, March 3.—A cheer of applause went up at the Rickenbacker Motor Company's plant this week when the doors of the archway joining the new building to the old plant were opened and the production line extended into the new portion of the rapidly expanding factory.

With the added factory facilities, it was said, production would be increased by March 1 to a figure enabling the manufacturers to build three times as many cars in 1923 as in the opening year of production.

March will mark the beginning of the fifteenth month of production at the Rickenbacker factory. Each month the organization has enlarged.

With the cold Michigan winds blowing and the mercury dropping to uncomfortable levels the Rickenbacker builders are warm and comfortable in their model factory. Heat is blown through overhead tubes to every part of the factory.

The snow is, however, hampering incoming materials. Rickenbacker company trucks bearing materials from the northland were snowbound at Holly, Mich., for three days in great drifts.

SOME MOTORISTS TREAT THEIR MOTORCARS LIKE LAWN MOWERS

It is said that some motorists are under the impression that any old lubricant is good enough for a gasoline engine. They wouldn't put an inferior lubricant into the motor that drives their phonograph or into their wife's sewing machine, but they are profoundly indifferent as to what goes into the crank case of their far more expensive automobile.

D. R. McBryde, of the McBryde Lubricating Service here, says that scarcely a day passes in the routine of conducting his business that he does not receive fresh evidence of the general prevalence of this indifference among the motoring public.

"Not long ago," he says, "I received a phone call from a man who asked that I come after his car and lubricate it. I went to his garage after the car myself. While there I asked him what kind of oil he was using in the crank case of his car. He told me. Then I happened to notice a five gallon can of very fine motor oil on the shelf. I asked him what he used it for. He pointed to an electric motor there in his garage.

"Well I was flabbergasted. My professional ire being aroused, I proceeded to tell him rather frankly what I thought of his judgment. The oil he was using in his gasoline engine cost two and a half times as much as the oil he used for his automobile. The gasoline engine cost him perhaps $200 while his automobile cost over $4000. The inconsistency of his choice of lubricants had never occurred to him."

MILLION STEEL ANALYSES

Evidence of the extreme care which the successful automobile manufacturer must employ in all the various processes of his car's construction, that it may not fail in its mission of service, is no more forcibly exemplified than in the metallurgical departments in almost any one of half a dozen or so of the great factories.

As long as thirteen years ago, for example, the Peerless Motor Car Company, of Cleveland, began to attract the attention of the entire industrial world with its exhaustive research in the selection and choice of materials entering into the make-up of its products, according to Stanley W. Smith, of Stanley W. Smith, Inc., Peerless distributors for Southern California.

It was at this time that Peerless first organized a definite and distinct department for its metallurgical development. Since then, Peerless has filed statistics on its own steel tests alone to the number of more than 1,100,000.

One of the first things done after the formation of the new department was to gather together all the best known steels of England, France, Russia, Germany, Austria, Holland, Belgium and the United States. These were exhaustively analyzed and subjected to almost innumerable tests to determine their adaptability for automobile requirements.

It took the company five years of intensive research and testing work to analyze and test the better grade of steels on the market at that time, according to Smith. Since then every other steel subsequently developed has had the same careful analysis.

BUICK IS SHOUTING ABOUT IT

Completion of Millionth Motor is Cause for Much Celebration at Factory

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

FLINT (Mich.) March 3.—Accomplishing something that no other manufacturer with the exception of Ford has done, the Buick Motor Company is awaiting with considerable elation the completion of its 1,000,000th motor.

Rejoicing at the Buick plant indicates that the millionth completed car is but a few days distant—and building a million automobiles is no insignificant achievement.

It does not detract in the least from the marvelous accomplishment of Ford to say, as is being freely said in automobile circles, that the Buick record is in many respects just as wonderful. For years Ford has been standardizing on quantity production of a single chassis and but five body models, while Buick has built a diverse line. At present, for instance, the Buick models include fifteen passenger cars and a truck.

So the Buick folks are proud, and justly so. Out at the North Flint plant there are expressions of mutual admiration and rejoicing among the men who have co-operated in achieving the mark now being celebrated.

The millionth Buick motor, just produced, and the millionth Buick car, soon to make its advent, arrive in the twentieth anniversary year of Buick. The Buick company was organized in 1903, and its production in that year was just sixteen automobiles. Today it is building more than 16,000 cars each month in its American plants alone.

AUBURN BROUGHAMS ARE NOW ON SHOW

The new Auburn broughams—the latest addition to the Auburn closed car line—have arrived at the display rooms of the W. J. Burt Motor Car Company, Auburn distributors, Pico and Hope streets, and during the past week have attracted considerable attention.

In speaking of the Auburn brougham, Mr. Burt said, "All the beauty, dignity and character for which Auburn cars have been noted are present most emphatically in this brougham. The car makes an extraordinary impression on all those who see it. For so low and compact a body, it is exceptionally spacious—allowing ample leg and head room."

STRAIGHTEN OUT THE ROAD KINKS

Redlands Making It Easier for Motorists

Entrances and Exits to be Made Plainer

Pavement Planned for the Principal Streets

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

REDLANDS, March 3.—Redlands is slowly but surely straightening out the motor-road entrances and exits to the city, so that the driver unacquainted with the city will have no trouble in finding his way in and out soon.

There have been but two bad places for some time. One of these was the Yucaipa and Ocean-to-Ocean highway. Now the road will be made easy to find because of the extension of Beacon street through the orange grove to connect with Roosevelt, making a broad and unmistakable highway with only one turn.

State street, the main business street of the city, having no western outlet, has caused some trouble. Plans are to make a broad turn at the Elks' Club and sign this in such a way that motorists can travel a half block and be on Citrus avenue, which leads into Brookside avenue and then out of the city and over the best-known highway.

These roads are all to be paved and put in the best kind of condition so that people who come in and out of Redlands will find the roads inside the city just as good as those of the county.

CRISPIN IS NAMED SERVICE MANAGER

CLIPPINGER AND KINCAID FORTIFIED WITH VETERAN AUTOMOBILE MAN

A. E. Crispin, veteran automobile service man, has been named manager of the service department for Clippinger-Kincaid, Inc., local Chevrolet dealers, it is announced.

Appointment of Crispin, who is well recognized as a specialist in up-to-date Chevrolet service, is looked upon as one of the most important first steps in the successful reorganization of the firm's service-department. Under the direction of "Chris," as he is familiarly known in local automotive circles, the new campaign of complete 24-hour service, already outlined by Manager H. W. Curtis, is now under way.

Working with Crispin is a highly trained corps of men, under the immediate leadership of Charles Nelson, another well-known service man and for five years connected with factories of the General Motors Corporation. As outlined by these specialists the service plan is being put on a systematic basis of factory-like efficiency. The various steps in the process of servicing a car are divided among various men, each of whom is especially fitted for his particular task.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

BY JAMES W. MARSH

Question: I am a constant reader of The Times and have frequently found good suggestions for the automobile owner in the Question and Answers column. Will you be so kind as to tell me how to make a Ford start easily? Sometimes my car starts easily and sometimes it has to be cranked for a long time, what is the cause of such a condition?

J. M. J., Lindsay.

Answer: To make a Ford start easily your engine should be clean, free from carbon, valves properly ground, pistons rings and cylinders in good order, crank case properly supplied with medium thin oil and the ignition system in first-class order. With other parts in good order check up the ignition system as follows: Remove and wash the commutator in gasoline; if the roller or race is worn replace with new parts; it does not pay to attempt to repair either of these. The commutator should be oiled daily with thin oil. Be sure that the wires which run from the coils to the posts on the commutator are clean and covered with insulation. If the insulation is broken or worn through at any point discard it and put on new. There is no other one thing about a Ford so dangerous as broken insulation; it is the cause of nearly all kicking which so often results in broken arms. Inspect the magneto contact plug to which the wire is fastened which runs to the coil box. To remove it remove three screws which hold it down. Clean it and be sure that contact with the coils is perfect. Remove and clean, test and adjust the spark plugs. Take them apart to clean and test. The points should not be more than .031 of an inch apart. This is very important because the engine will start hard if the plugs are set too wide and will not run well if too close. To adjust the coils an ammeter should be used and the adjustment made so that a strong 5-16 inch spark is produced when about one ampere flows through them. If the secondary spark is thin and wiry and there is a bright hot spark between the vibrator points, it is an indication of defective condenser. In this case there is nothing to do but to install a new coil unit or use a master-vibrator. The master-vibrator is a valuable accessory and will pay for itself. Be sure that the secondary wires from the coils to the spark plugs do not touch each other or any part of the engine. They should be at least an inch from each other to prevent leakage. With these things all attended to, with the carburetor clean and set a little rich you will find no trouble in starting your car. On a very cold morning put a cloth saturated with boiling water on the intake manifold a couple of minutes before cranking.

Q.: What would be the affect on an engine to use salt solution as a decarboniser, sprayed into the intake manifold? How strong should the solution be?

D. W. M., Wilton.

A.: A few years ago very exhaustive tests were made with salt as a decarboniser in the gas engine cylinder and did not prove safe and satisfactory. In perfectly dry oil it might do but little damage but lubricating oil is seldom free from water and when water is present corrosion and electrolysis is set up which seriously injure the bearings and wearing surfaces. There is no doubt about the removal of the carbon by the application of salt but in the end the loss is greater than the gain. If you wish to experiment with it use a saturated solution.

Q.: Can you tell me how to determine whether a knock is a writspin, a slap, or a bearing knock?

P. R., San Bernardino.

A.: A bearing knock shows up on a heavy pull up hill; a skirt or piston slap is more noticeable when the engine is cold; a wristpin knock shows up particularly when coasting and is a rapid clattery knock which decreases but little with lubrication.

Q.: Will you be so kind as to tell me through the Question and Answer column of The Times what is used in storage batteries to thicken the electrolyte so it is jelly-like in consistency?

LOUIS W.

A.: The commonest of the thickeners is sodium silicate. This retards evaporation and a battery filled with it does not have to be watered so often.

Q.: Will heavy valvoline help to keep a Ford from pumping oil past the piston rings?

C. M. L., Kenmore.

A.: Do not use heavy oil in a Ford under any circumstances; it will make lots of trouble. If your engine is pumping oil have it rebored. The job costs so little and does so much good that you cannot afford to run the engine in the condition you speak of. You will gain power and save money by having this done.

SOME WET WEATHER HINTS

In an effort to help the motorist, protect the pedestrian and relieve any possible congestion in the hospitals caused from wet weather mistakes, the Willys-Knight and Overland dealers of the city have compiled a list of "Ten Tips" that will also keep the new car new if carefully observed. There are really eleven items but the first one applies to all the other ten so it is not numbered.

Look sharp, keep within your brakes, and be a good sport.

1. Oozy mud plus a smoothly surfaced street equals a superskiddish combination. Keep your car well under control so that you will not have to depend on your brakes to make a quick stop on a slick street.

2. Watch for pedestrians on the open highway at night. In cool weather they are likely to be bundled up in dark wraps that decrease visibility. Give them room, and save yourselves trouble.

3. The roadhog is always with us. Don't endanger your own life nor those of your passengers by taking any chances with him. There is too much Volstead bitters about and he may be carrying a load.

4. It takes only one spark to make that fire, or one thief to make the haul, so keep your insurance in force even though your car may be out of service for a time.

5. [illegible] tires, no matter how sensible they may be, are poison on slick streets or in slimy mud. Chains in the tool box don't furnish much protection against that bad skid that ends in a wreck.

6. Schools are open and the kiddies are skipping back and forth. School signs mean just what they say: "Drive Slowly."

7. A judge in the East has ruled that failure to see a person does not relieve you of responsibility for his injury or death. If it is foggy or you are blinded by the glare of another car, pull up and play safe.

8. In the winter time it gets late earlier than in the summertime, necessitating more night driving. Carry extra light bulbs and see that your lights are adjusted to the road so that they won't blind the other fellow.

9. Trains and trolley cars are bad medicine any time of year. They travel fast in the suburbs, and they stop quickly at intersections. Watch them, don't try to beat them at the grade crossings under any circumstances, and don't follow them too closely.

10. When you are driving in a closed car and it is storm or cold and you have all the windows closed you can't hear approaching trains or other vehicles so easily. Make your eyes do double duty. Go slow, for death comes fast enough anyway and we are a long time dead.

MANY FAMILIES TWO-CAR FOLKS

DOUBLE GARAGES INDICATE A DEMAND FOR THE SMALL CAR

Reports from the official building permits offices, showing a big increase in the number of double garages for even the most modest of small homes, reflect the fact that thousands of families have now become "two-car" folks.

This conclusion is drawn by D. H. Thomason of the Thomason Motor Car Company, Star dealer.

Mr. Thomason reports that a big percentage of his sales of Stars, since he took over the new Durant-made line of automobiles, has been to business men who already had one or more machines. Without exception, they were eager to get a car like the Star whose low initial cost, small upkeep expense and staunch, good-looking construction appeal to the man who wants to know how his motoring dollars are being spent.

JOHN MANSFIELD ARRIVES

John D. Mansfield, general sales manager for the Dort Motor Car Company, is in Los Angeles conferring with F. A. Petrie of the Mission Motor Company on the success of the Dort in this territory. Mansfield is an annual visitor to the Coast and his long connection with Dort as sales manager is one of the outstanding features of the industry.

FIGURES SHOW BIG AUTO FLOW

Perhaps no better proof of the tremendous growth in the use of automobiles could be offered than the results of a count made by the Grand Central Garage, Grand avenue at Fifth street recently. The count was made, starting at 7 a.m. and ending at midnight, during which time 9906 automobiles passed the corner of the garage. Of this number, 3242 were counted from 7 a.m. to 12 noon, 5369 from 12 noon to 7 p.m. and 1895 from 7 p.m. to midnight. The peak was reached at 5:30 p.m. In the thirty minutes from 5:15 to 5:45, 1146 cars passed, an average of thirty-eight per minute or one every 1 3-5 seconds. Of course, in this count, there were included the cars entering and issuing from the garage, thus swelling the total above normal to some extent, as the Grand Central has a storage capacity of 1000 cars per day.

Local Salesman Displays His Enterprise

The expanding baggage compartment on a tilting rack shown in the photograph above is the invention of Robert Rohne, a Reo salesman. The photo below shows how the rack looks when in normal position and exposes the inventor himself.

EXPLAINING GASOLINE ACTIONS

Though gasoline does not reveal its difference to a casual observer, it is not a simple liquid like water or alcohol, but is in reality a mixture of a great many liquids which differ widely from one another in respect to boiling point, inflammability, etc.

"Perhaps the best illustration that I can offer as to the character of gasoline is to compare it to the different kinds of fuel you use when you light a fire in a furnace," says Harry [illegible], sales manager for Earle C. Anthony, Inc. "First you take some paper, then kindling, and last of all, coal. A match lights the paper, the paper lights the kindling and the kindling the fire to the coal.

"An exactly similar set of circumstances takes place in the cylinders of your motor. The electric spark from the spark plug lights the portion of the gasoline that boils at the lowest temperature and which are the most volatile; these in turn light those which require a higher temperature for ignition, and finally the temperature is high enough so the so-called heaviest 'ends,' which correspond roughly to kerosene, become ignited.

"In the old days, when a few drops of gasoline would evaporate from your hand almost instantly, gasoline was very volatile, or in other words, was almost all 'paper and kindling.' Nowadays, there is a lot of heavier elements, or 'coal' mixed with it. To get your fire started in the cylinder you have to use a rich mixture in order to get enough of the 'paper and kindling,' which is all that ignites while the motor is cold. The unburned heavier part, the 'coal' either goes to waste by disappearing in the exhaust or passes the pistons and deposits in the crank case where it dissolves and spoils the lubricating quality of the oil.

"This is the condition which the Packard fuelizer remedies and which accounts for much of the economy of the Packard cars, as to both fuel and oil. It is not an exhaust heater which does not operate until the motor has warmed up, but is a preheating chamber in the carburetor which begins to heat the mixture the instant you step on the starter, for when you step on the starter, a spark plug in the fuelizer ignites a flame in the fuelizer chamber and commences to warm and dry the mixture that is going to the cylinders.

"The fuelizer has been a valuable feature of Packard construction for many years, and each year is more and more appreciated by Packard owners because the quality of fuel is still declining."

Murphy's and Hearne's Cars on Exhibition

One of those interesting stories of the speedway—a natural mix-up which occurs when cars are roaring around an oval at blinding speed—came out last week at the Durant-Stevens, Inc., show of the Murphy and Hearne racing machines.

Eddie Hearne, who finished in fourth place, just behind Ralph De Palma, stated after the race that he and his pitmen became confused as to his standing in relation to De Palma. When the latter went out with tire trouble, Hearne figured that he went back into fourth place instead of third. He believes that had he known his true location, that he (Hearne) could have crowded his Durant Special a bit and, perhaps fought Ralph out of his third.

Both Hearne's car and Jimmy Murphy's great record-breaking Durant Special which won the big race, were shown at the race-car salon held last week by Durant-Stevens, Inc. Hundreds of visitors visited the salesrooms and viewed the victorious race cars and took occasion to give the "once over" to the stock Durant "fours" and "sixes," latest models of which also are being shown.

CONTROL WATER FLOW

The use of automatic thermostats to control the circulation of water through the radiator is covered by several patents held by Cadillac. Thermostats, incorporated in the water pumps, operate balanced valves which cut off the supply of cold water from the radiator until the temperature of the engine rises to that of efficient operation.

New Design Is Worked Out by Reo Salesman

A new model of the Reo Six, called the Suburban made its appearance on the streets a few days ago and attracted quite a bit of attention on account of some new features that have been incorporated in the design, which was worked out locally.

Two of the new features are a novel expanding baggage compartment on a tilting rack and a tonneau windshield that disappears. The car used for coversion into the Suburban was a seven-passenger touring type. The ordinary folding top was removed and a permanent top built instead, which has inclosed sides with plate-glass windows extending to the edge of the tonneau doors. The space above the door is completely filled by the wing of the tonneau shield giving an entirely closed rear compartment whenever desired.

When the tonneau shield is not desired it folds up compactly and swings up against the ceiling of the top where it is firmly secured with two thumb screws.

This new design was worked out by Robert Rohne of the Reo sales department as were the novel trunks and trunk-rack. Behind the tonneau Rohne has had built a trunk large enough to carry one or two suit cases or quite a number of parcels. Just behind the trunk stands the spare tire. When more carrying space is needed the trunk and tire are swung back and down ninety degrees so that both lie horizontal. False sides on the trunk open up to make a much larger additional compartment capable of storing a good-sized camp outfit. The original trunk is still availiable as before for the carrying of parcels or hand baggage without disturbing the larger compartment that has been constructed over it. The spare tire swings under the baggage but is still accessible in case a tire change has to be made.

In pointing out the advantages of the new features on the Suburban Byron C. Foy, manager of the Reo branch, said it has been found that an ever-increasing number of motorists want their cars equipped so that they can travel anywhere and have accommodations for baggage.

Health of the Industry Shown by Paige Prexy

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DETROIT, March 3.—The healthy condition of the motor industry is reflected by a comparison of the production and sales of the Paige Detroit Motor Car Company for the first two months of this year with 1922, according to Harry M. Jewett, president.

In January and February, 1923, the sales were 350 per cent greater than the first two months of the previous year, the production, planned in the expectation of the best possible market conditions for similar periods were only 261 per cent greater, says Jewett. As head of one of the ten automobile concerns in the United States which hold the enviable position of manufacturing 90 per cent of the automobiles built in the United States, Jewett believes that the figures of the Paige company are representative of conditions in general in the industry.

The sales figures from the percentages were made up from orders actually in the factory. It can readily be seen, says Jewett, that it will be impossible for the Paige and Jewett cars to be produced anywhere near the number needed to fill these orders.

PREDICTS FLOCK OF MOTOR CAMPS

DEALER POINTS ADVANTAGES OF STOPPING-PLACES TO THE TRAVELER

"The time is not far distant when every city in the country will have a municipal motor camp. The fact that 300 cities now have municipal motor camp sites constitutes one of the greatest tributes to the automobile as a factor in helping American citizens see their country first."

Thus Reeve Gartzmann, president of the California Oakland Motor Company, sums up the benefit of the automobile as a means of transcontinental travel as well as the shorter summer trips, which have grown in vogue tremendously in the United States.

"The 300 cities having municipal motor camp sites are performing a service for transcontinental motorists, and for those taking shorter automobile trips, that were hardly thought of ten years ago. In addition to these 300 cities, dozens more are planning camps for the 1923 season.

"Hundreds of additional camp sites are supplied on national and State forest reserves and on privately owned grounds.

"Official figures show that 598,000 campers used these municipal sites in 1922, whereas hundreds of thousands more camped in the State and national reservations.

"That this form of traveling has gained tremendously may be gleaned from the fact that nearly 7,000,000,000 passengers were carried in motor cars in 1922 as compared to a little better than 1,000,000,000 carried on steam railroads.

SOFT FOR BUS COMPANIES

The increasing number of tourists coming to Los Angeles and Southern California have made it necessary for the transportation companies to greatly increase and improve their facilities. This is especially true of those companies operating sightseeing busses.

Quick to realize the need of a coach more comfortable and luxurious than the conventional type as used heretofore, the Moreland Motor Truck Company has designed and built a new model tourist coach. Some time ago, when the new Moreland underslung coach chasses were first put into production, the possibilities of developing a de luxe touring model were seen, and work was immediately started on a body suitable for this service.

In designing and building both chassis and body, safety and comfort were the prime requisites. To reach the highest possible degree of safety, the danger of overturning was eliminated by the use of the underslung chassis. All possible comfort for the passengers was obtained by the use of specially constructed upholstery and other interior details. Easy entrance and exit were assured by providing extra-wide doors and by having the distance between the seats much greater than is usual in the ordinary type of sightseeing bus. As an added convenience, a rear compartment was constructed. Entrance to this compartment is by means of a door at the rear of the coach. Two individual de luxe chairs are placed in this space while on short trips, and for long intercity trips this compartment is utilized as a storage space for baggage. While serving as a baggage space, the chairs are removed and the upholstery is protected by canvas covers.

Two of these coaches were recently delivered to the Golden State Auto Tours Corporation for their select tourist service covering such trips as Los Angeles to Santa Barbara, Riverside and San Diego. These coaches will operate from the corporation's terminal at the New Rosslyn Hotel.

TUCSON-PHOENIX HIGHWAY READY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

TUCSON (Ariz.) March 3.—The Tucson-Phoenix highway via Casa Grande and Sacaton now is finished, except for a stretch of a few miles of desert travel between the Gila River and the end of the cement paving, five miles south of Chandler. This route is claimed to be eighteen miles shorter than the official highway via Florence. It is handicapped mainly by the fact that the Gila must be forded at Sacaton, though this has stopped traffic only a few days within the past year. In another year a bridge will be provided a few miles east of Sacaton, but, owing to its location, travel is expected to cross the channel as at present, save in flood seasons. On neither route is there a single grade between Tucson and Phoenix.

Uses a Willys Car in Mystic Trick on Stage

The Great Blackstone, celebrated stage magician and illusionist who has astounded audiences all over the country with his tricks, recently bought a 1923 Willys-Knight touring car, with which to complete experiments in mystical illusion, according to news received by C. J. Bullock, local Willys-Knight dealer, from a Willys-Knight dealer in Denver.

Blackstone's last trick was known as the "Vanishing Horse" in which a live animal was made to disappear instantly at his signal without any conceivable way out.

The "Vanishing Knight" trick, his newest, however is said to be far superior to the "Disappearing Horse."

The new Willys-Knight occupied by four passengers is driven slowly across a clear stage to the center where it rests on a previously examined rug showing that there is no trap-door arrangement in the stage floor.

A huge canvas canopy is lowered over the car, and at the shot from a pistol the canopy slowly collapses leaving the "Knight Riders" either suspended in air, standing on the floor or gone with the car at the will of the Great Blackstone.

He admits that it is a trick, conceived by clever stage work, but he heralds it as the best he has ever created, and as he leaves Denver for his eastern tour he predicts greater success than ever before with his new 1923 "Vanishing Knight."

FORCE GREASING WINS ON MERITS

Although the speed with which the public takes up a thing, sometimes is not indicative of its merit—in that fickle fortune may also toss it rapidly aside—yet a new proposition which wins instant favor and then holds and augments this favor through the test of years, proves itself doubly worth while.

In this connection, C. A. Roesch, president of the Alemite Lubricator Company of California, distributors of the Alemite lubrication systems, points out that force-greasing of cars by the Alemite plan won instant approval several years back.

"Within a very short time after it was brought out," Mr. Roesch said, "Alemite not only was installed by thousands upon thousands of owners, but also was made standard equipment upon most of the stock motor cars of America."

PATENTED DEVICE

The construction which renders the Cadillac tire carrier theft-proof as well as instantly accessible in case of puncture is a Cadillac patent. In this construction the entire locking mechanism is contained within the clamp screw, and the lock barrel itself is protected by a removable weather-proof cap.

Brooklyn Barber Shows His Mechanical Skill

Assembles Franklin of the Vintage of 1903

Buys a Few New Parts and Makes the Thing Run

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BROOKLYN (N. Y.) March 3.—Gustav Klinger, of 309 Linwood street, Brooklyn, N. Y., is proprietor of a "one-man" barber shop, but he is also somewhat of a mechanical genius. A short time ago, a waggish patron offered him an automobile free if "he would come and get it." He did not tell Klinger, however, that the machine was a Franklin roadster of the vintage of 1903—and serial number 19, which means that it was the nineteenth car turned out at the Franklin factory.

When Klinger came to get his car, he found it was entirely disassembled and had lain in a barn in that condition for more than ten years. He secured a push-cart, piled the disassembled car into it, and succeeded in getting it to the yard in the rear of his shop at the Linwood-street address.

With rare patience Klinger commenced putting the old car together. Gradually it began to take form and despite the taunts of jocular patrons, he kept steadily at his labor of love. The work progressed slowly, for Klinger could work only between shaves. With liberal doses of kerosene oil, he loosened the rusted parts and succeeded in assembling the motor, which ran across the frame instead of parallel with the side members.

Several parts were missing, but Klinger finally replaced them; he put in a brand new set of piston rings and spliced up the old chain extending from the planetary transmission in front to the rear axle. And finally one day the old car consented to run again—and run again it did to the queen's taste.

Klinger has had it out on the road a number of times and is much pleased with its operation. He says he is able to get close to forty miles an hour from "Old Reliable." His confidence in the 20-year-old vehicle is testified to by the fact that he insists that he would not trade the old veteran for some of the cheaper cars on the road today. Outside of a slight modernization in the shape of the hood and the 1923 license plates, the old car is exactly as it was twenty years ago when it first saw the light of day in Syracuse.

McGill Motor Company Has Radio Special

Radio fans are having a lot of fun getting acquainted with the many new call letters that are being assigned to various stations by the chief radio inspector of the Department of Commerce. "KOP" is the call for the Detroit police department. "WET" has been assigned to one of the boats. Some of the Navy boats are tuned in on "NIX," "NIT," "NOT" and "NAY." The foreign countries have some good ones too. In England common calls are "BVD," "GOP" and "JAP." Italy has "IWW." "JAP" is the call for Japan, and a French station is designated by "FUN."

"CLASS" is the call for the radio special at the McGill Motor Company, says William G. Fisher, salesmanager, and confirmed champion of the Gardner Four, with the three main bearing crankshaft.

The Radio Special is the new sport model Gardner, and Fisher says it broadcasts "CLASS" constantly with its sparkling nickel-trimmed accessories, its long low lines, and inimitable performance of its vibrationless four-cylinder motor that acts like an eight at the expense of a four.

Saving Sam Joins the Marines

The local recruiting arm of the marine service has selected Saving Sam, the trade character created by the Western Auto Supply Company, as the official mascot. Above, we have George Pepperdine, founder and president of the Western Auto Supply Company, presenting Saving Sam to Sergt. Spencer.

SAVING SAM FINDS NEW HOME HERE

Marine Recruiting Service Adopts Trade Character as Official Mascot

"Western Autos" trade character, Saving Sam, has been adopted as a mascot by the Los Angeles Recruiting corps of the United States marines.

Sergeant Spencer and his squad of "Sea-going Soldiers" first met "Sam" at the Beverly Hills race track after he had finished his spin around the track at a 114-mile an hour clip as Joe Thomas's mechanician.

"Big Boy" Spencer got one glimpse of Saving Sam's smile and decided that "Saving and Serving With a Smile," expressed the marines' duty to their country.

From all appearances "Saving Sam," who has long been known up and down the Pacific Coast, will soon take a trip abroad to make the acquaintance of the European motorists.

Improvement in Tires Is Illustrated

The public does not realize the remarkable advance in the construction of cord tires, according to Mr. E. Waldo Stein, racing expert of the Oldfield Tire Company. For example, on the speedway, quite often when drivers experience trouble of any nature with tires, the spectators are heard to comment that the driver has blown a tire. Frequently when the racing cars are seen to skid the public thinks the tire has been blown.

Few tires, however, are ever actually blown out, says Stein, and those that do are the result of wear where the driver refuses to stop and there eventually is not enough left of the casing to keep the air in. Bennett Hill, who rode fifty miles on the carcass in Sunday's race, drove directly on the cords. He finished this race, averaging 113.4 miles an hour, without a blowout.

In the last race, while a little tire trouble was experienced, none of the tires that were changed were blown, says Mr. Stein. Those that went flat did so as the result of punctures, due to picking up a nail, splinter or some such matter. Again, these tires are not particularly of special construction, having just a few special features such as tread design, and so forth. Using some of the lessons learned in racing, enables the tire manufacturers to build a better and stronger tire for passenger cars, giving the automobile owner more and more freedom from not only blowouts but other minor troubles.

In the last forty years more than 3000 acres of the English coast has slipped into the sea.

RICKENBACKER STEPS

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

INDIANAPOLIS (Ind.) March 3. On the frozen, two and one-half-mile bricked oval of the famous Indianapolis Motor Speedway, a Rickenbacker touring car traveled at the rate of eighty-three miles per hour. The test was made with top and windshield up, complete equipment and a full complement of passengers.

The car was run for a solid hour at the rate of sixty-three miles an hour previous to the trial for speed. In a speed trial a Rickenbacker sedan made seventy-two miles per hour.

The sedan was driven on a non-stop 500-mile tour of the course at the rate of fifty-two miles per hour and the touring car was driven 250 miles at a speed of fifty-eight miles per hour.

At a speed of eighty-three miles per hour, the Rickenbacker motor was turning up 4100 revolutions per minute, according to C. L. McCuen, who conducted the tests.

The trials at Indianapolis were made at the conclusion of a 4500-mile experimental drive conducted with two Rickenbacker cars. Leaving Detroit the cars were traveled around the lake to Cleveland, thence to Buffalo and on to Springfield, Mass., south through Connecticut and into New York City. From New York the cars were driven through Philadelphia, west over the mountains to Pittsburg and a dash from Pittsburg to Chicago—a distance of 580 miles—without a stop, in twenty-two hours.

Unusual conditions of sleet, snow, rain and cold were encountered and the chains were necessary on the wheels during many miles of the experimental journey.

NO AIR CONDENSATION

"We have eliminated all possibility of air condensation in Keystone Visible Oil Vendors by an ingenious device by which the air pressure is applied to the oil only at the instant it is drawn from the reservoir," says George W. Moore, secretary of the Keystone Iron and Steel Works.

NOTES AND PROBLEMS

PUBLICATIONS IN THE REALM OF CHECKERS

BY JOHN DOUGHERTY.

Chess and Checker Headquarters, 320 Union League Building, corner of Second and Hill streets. All chess and checker players invited to join. For further information regarding the club, see or write the secretary, D. H. Bowes, at the clubrooms.

All communications intended for the department should be addressed to John Dougherty, The Times, Los Angeles, Cal.

AMONG THE FANS

In the sixth round of the local tourney, Dougherty defeated Jensen 1 to 0 and 3 draws. In the next round Jensen and Nichols play to see which meets Dougherty in the finals and must beat him twice to win the championship.

In the chess tournament recently held for the club championship, H. Borochow won first place with S. Mlotkowski a close second.

W. A. Craig won the Oklahoma State championship in a tourney recently held at Oklahoma City. Mr. Craig formerly lived in Illinois.

TELEGRAPHIC CHESS MATCH

On February 22, Washington's Birthday, twelve of the Los Angeles chess players engaged a like number of the San Francisco players in a telegraphic team match which ended in a tie score with six points each.

In giving the individual scores below, the Los Angeles players' names are placed first. The Los Angeles players had the white pieces on the odd numbered boards.

Board 1. H. Borochow defeated A. J. Fink with the Vienna opening.

Board 2. R. F. Lyon lost to E. W. Gruer who adopted the Dutch Defense.

Board 3. S. Mlotkowski secured the first win of the match when W. Metzke resigned in the middle of the afternoon. The opening was the Tschigorin's Defense.

Board 4. Donald Mugridge, our "boy wonder," won from E. J. Clarke with the King's Gambit opening.

Board 5. Dr. W. T. Scott in the mid-game looked to have the stronger position but his opponent, F. W. Ryder finally secured a perpetual check and the point was divided.

Board 6. On this board the Ruy Lopez opening was played and A. F. Schneider and G. E. K. Branch also divided the point.

Board 7. E. R. Perry won from B. Smith with the Tschigorin's Defense. This was not wholly unexpected as, in the eleven telegraphic team matches Mr. Perry has played in since coming to Los Angeles, he has only allowed one draw game to mar an otherwise perfect score.

Board 8. On board 8 A. N. Pray and A. B. Stamer played the same opening and the Los Angeles player was apparently building up a strong game when he carelessly made a weak move which his opponent jumped on "like a hen on a June bug," and after that the local player, "pray" as he might, could find no loophole big enough to squeeze through and was eventually forced to resign.

Board 9. On this board E. W. Grabill and S. Maynard played a conventional draw with the Sicilian Defense opening.

Board 10. J. A. Drouillard lost to H. Epstein with the Queens Pawn opening. He could probably have done it with any other opening just as easy.

Board 11. S. Weinbaum and S. Ballow played a Center Gambit and divided honors.

Board 12. C. S. G. Patterson lost to S. Simon with the "Budapest" opening. I do not blame Patterson for not winning with any kind of a "pest"—he is too much of a gentleman for th

OLD FRANKLIN HAS 358,062 ON REGISTER

Motorists who figure that the "I'll old bus" has done pretty well if it lasts 50,000 or 60,000 miles, will be interested in learning of an automobile in use in Astoria, Or., which has piled up a mileage equivalent to more than fourteen times the circumference of the earth at the equator. The car, which is a 1910 Franklin, is owned and is still being driven by Walter G. Smith of Astoria. It was purchased in 1910 from the Omaha Franklin dealership. In 1917, when the speedometer connection broke, the dial registered 358,062.6 miles the car had actually traveled. Since that time Mr. Smith estimates that he has driven the car only about 4000 miles. Mr. Smith states that the thirteen-year old Franklin has covered the trip across the continent and back three times, and has been in thirty-nine states.

FULLER TICKLED OVER BIG ORDER

HAPPY BECAUSE GAS CO. PLACES AN ORDER FOR MORE WHITES

Have you seen O. R. Fuller the last two or three days?

Noticed that broad smile of contentment and satisfaction that seems to have moved in on his face?

"We sell White Trucks up at the White Auto Company," says Fuller, "and when I say sell I mean just that."

The Los Angeles Gas and Electric Company placed an order this week with the White Auto Company for twenty-one more White chasses, to include 2-ton, 3½-ton and 5-ton types.

This will make seventy Whites operating in the fleet of the local corporation. The twenty-one new Whites will be turned over to the extension and maintenance departments, it was stated under the $3,000,000 program recently inaugurated, to catch up and try to keep up with the runaway growth of the city.

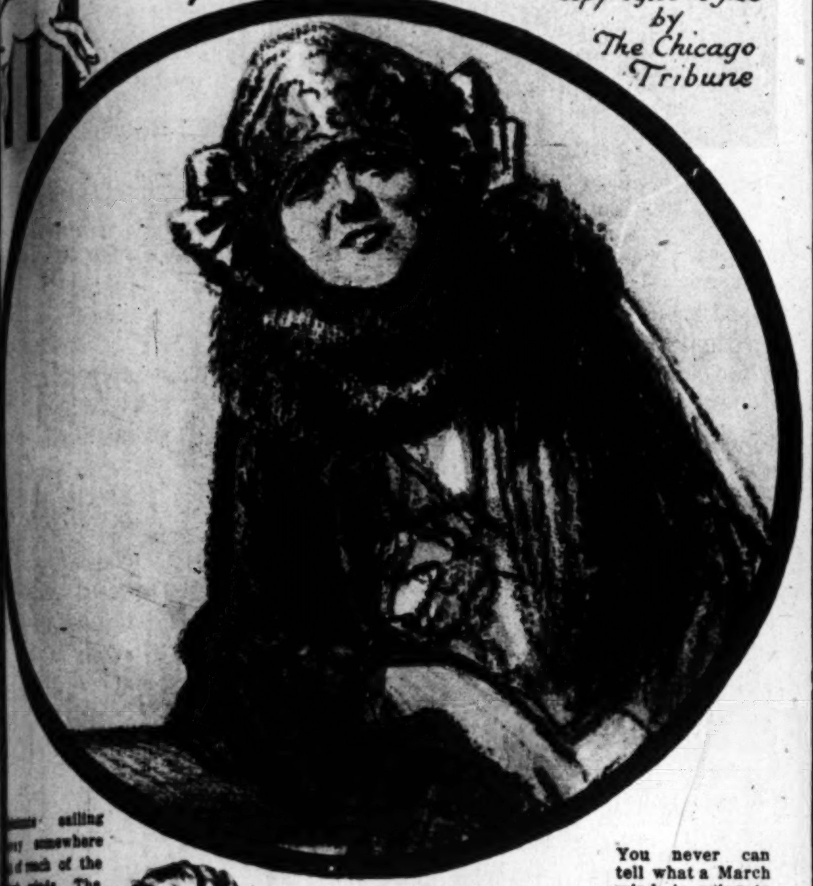
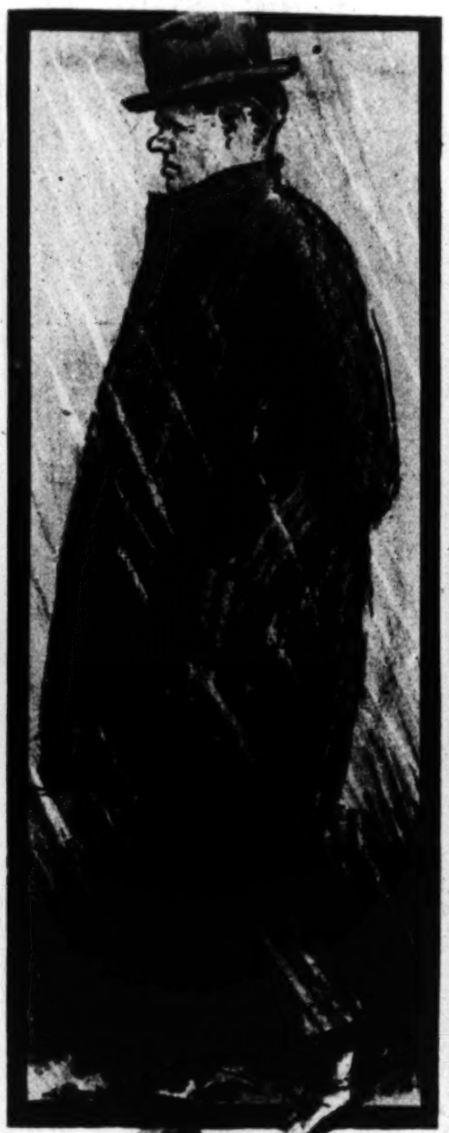
March Winds

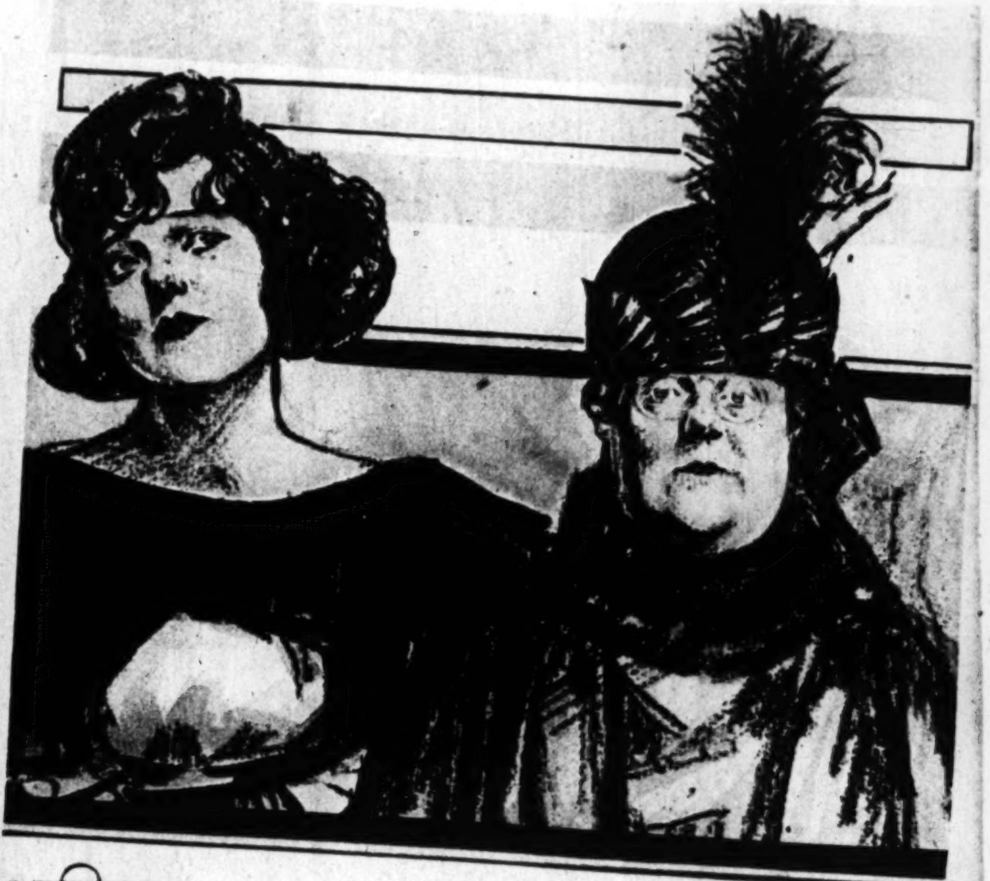
by W. E. Hill

Copyright 1923 by The Chicago Tribune

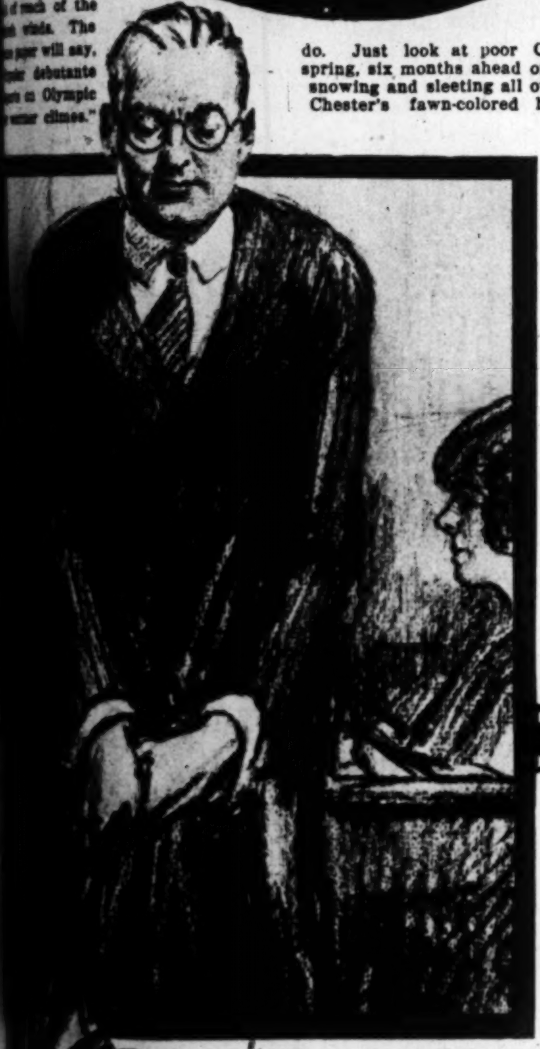




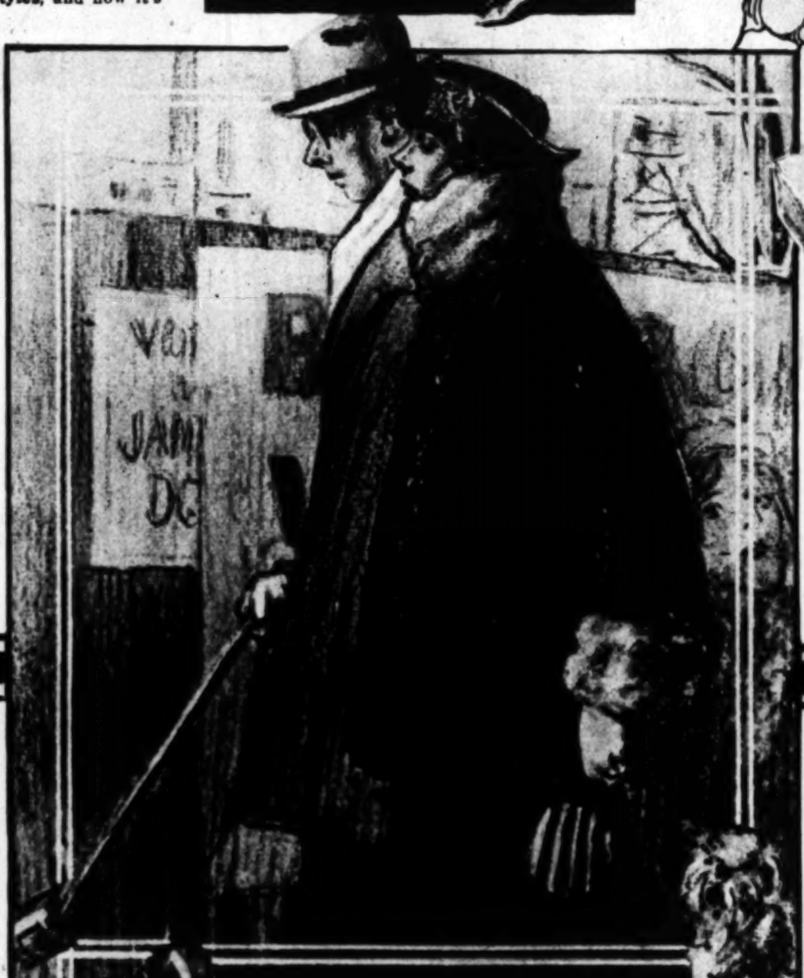
You never can tell what a March wind is going to do. Just look at poor Chester, all fixed up for spring, six months ahead of the styles, and now it's snowing and sleeting all over Chester's fawn-colored hat.



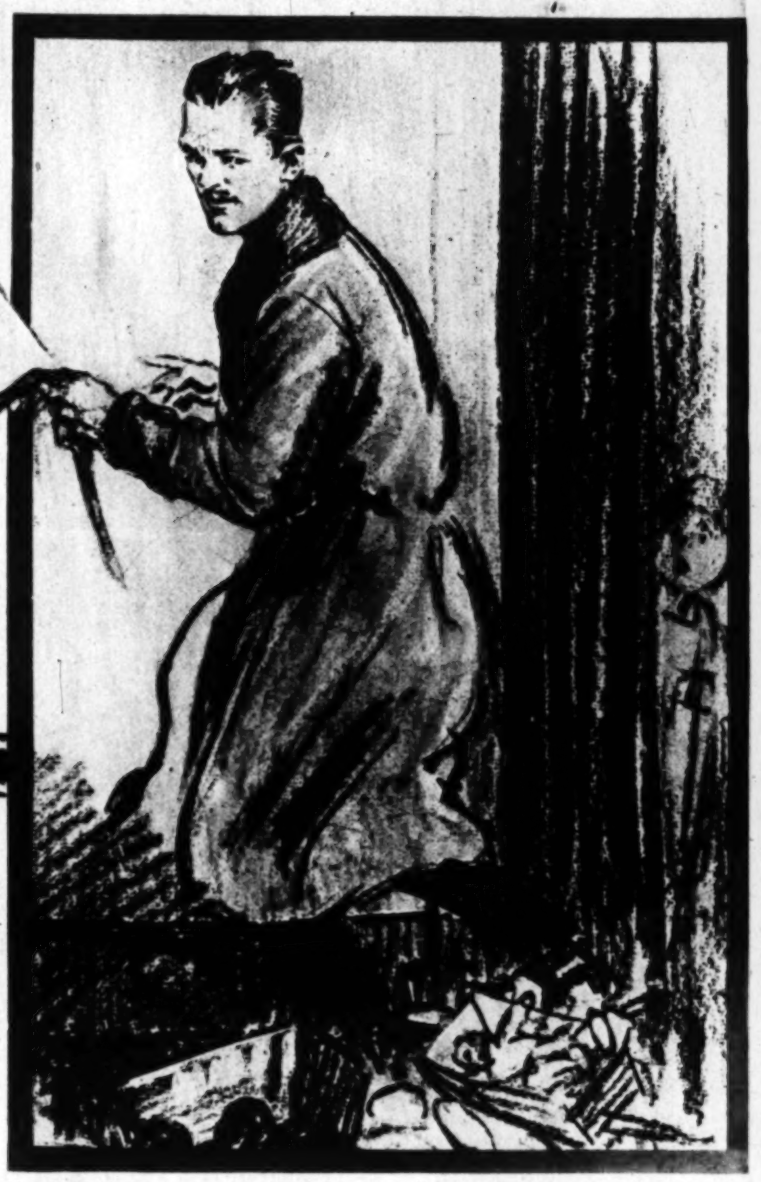
March is the month when the stylish stout lady, who decided last year she couldn't wear any of the new hats, decides this year she, can't wear any of the new hats. But she does.



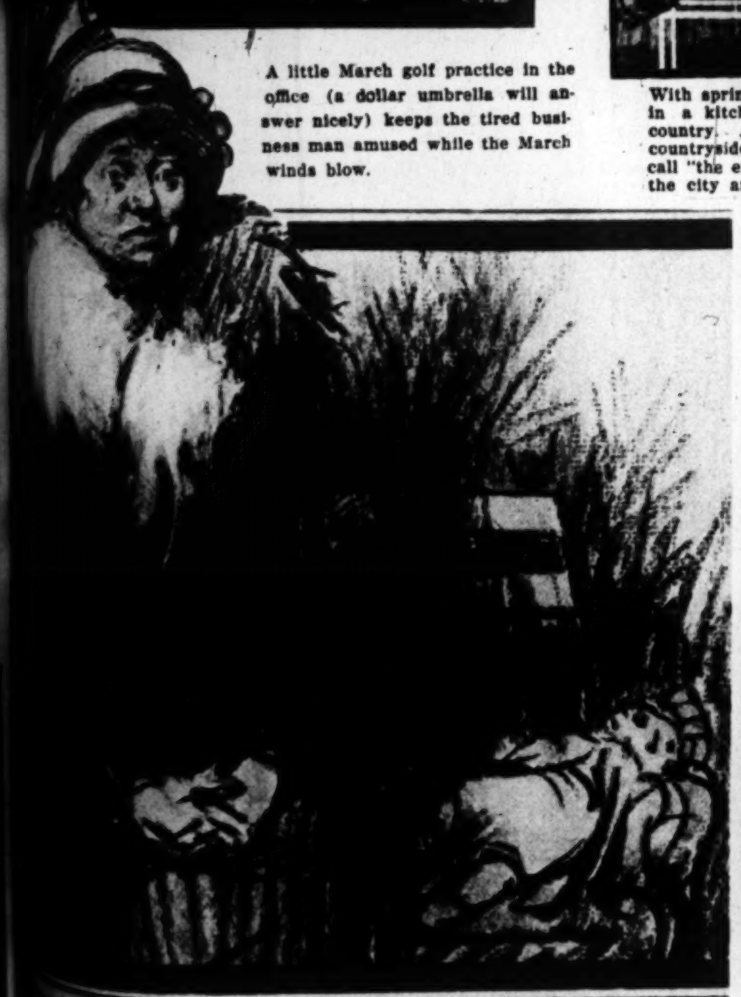
A little March golf practice in the office (a dollar umbrella will answer nicely) keeps the tired business man amused while the March winds blow.



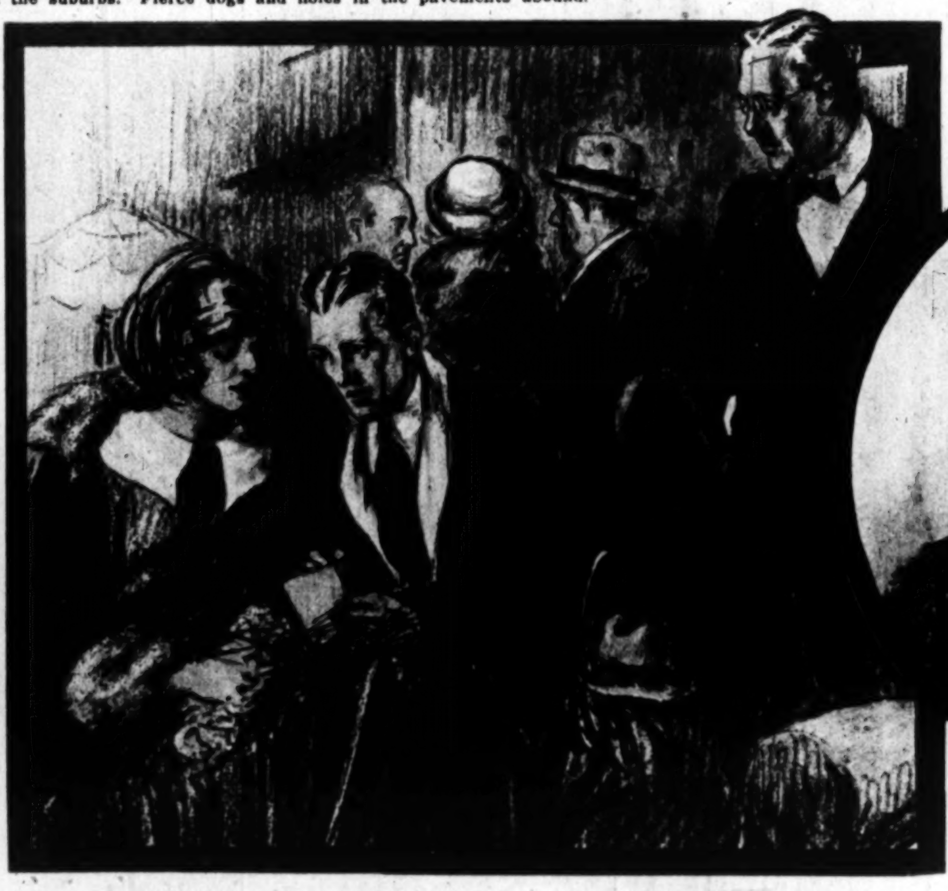
With spring just a month off the couples who have been cooped up all winter in a kitchenette apartment begin to long for the wide open spaces of the country. And they take long hikes through the waste spaces of the nearest countryside at hand—which usually happens to be what the real estate boys call "the environs," otherwise known as the tomato can factory district between the city and the suburbs. Fierce dogs and holes in the pavements abound.



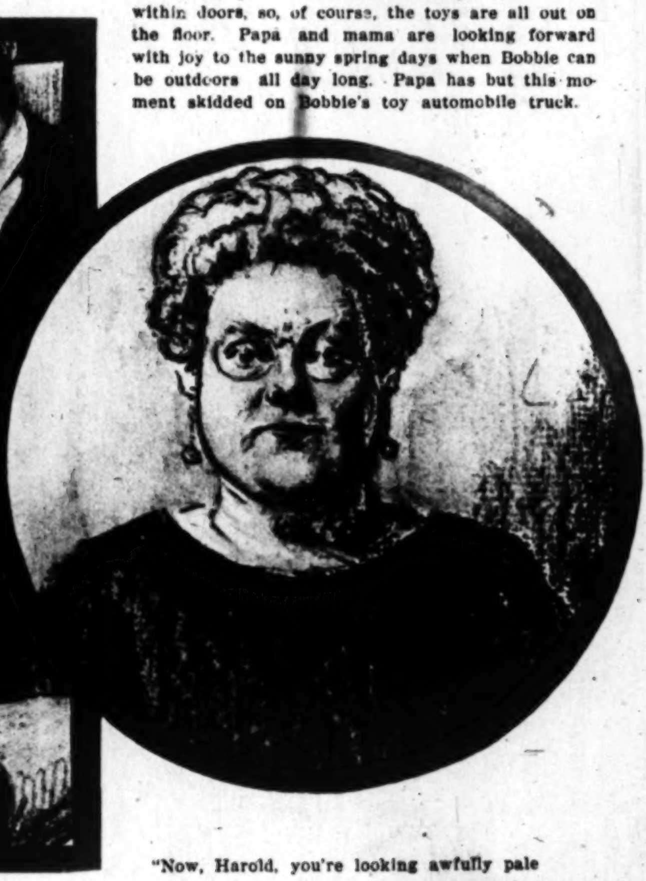
The blustery March winds have kept little Bobbie within doors, so, of course, the toys are all out on the floor. Papa and mama are looking forward with joy to the sunny spring days when Bobbie can be outdoors all day long. Papa has but this moment skidded on Bobbie's toy automobile truck.



March winds—the harbingers of the spring. It was just a year ago Ingrid and Nils were keeping company. And such company as they did and squealing and sitting on each other's laps in the park of an evening simply grand. In fact, it was just too grand to last. They quarreled in the evening of the longshoremen's clambake, to be exact—and, oh, the Ingrid. Ingrid is taking care of Mrs. Plumpton's little girl and if little gets home safe and sound it won't be due to Ingrid. Ingrid is miles of what might have been, and hating with a cold hate the gentle



Now is the open season for the prospective June bride to go shopping, armed with the check Aunt Abby sent. Up in the furniture department Clara and Porter, and a helpful salesman who is being much too helpful, are picking a couch for the living-room. On the back of an envelope, Porter is showing Clara just how far Aunt Abby's check will go.



"Now, Harold, you're looking awfully pale and run down. I'm sure you need a spring tonic." March and cod liver oil to Harold's mama are one and the same.

This natural fresh food is freeing thousands from all the ills of constipation

IN place of drugs which upset digestion and actually increase the trouble—instead of cathartics which have to be taken in larger and larger doses—

Physicians and hospitals today are prescribing Fleischmann's Yeast! It is not a medicine, but a fresh corrective food which simply assists nature to restore normal, healthy conditions.

Every cake of Fleischmann's Yeast consists of millions of tiny living plants, which help to increase the bulk of our concentrated modern diet, and stimulate the intestinal muscles to act regularly and naturally.

Your own physician will heartily endorse this principle of treating constipation by gently encouraging the intestinal muscles to act for themselves.

Hundreds of thousands of men and women are being freed from all the evils of constipation by the regular eating of Fleischmann's Yeast. It is in no sense a purgative, and produces no sudden violent action. It must be eaten regularly to achieve results.

Eat two or three cakes a day—plain, or dissolved in water, milk or fruit juices—preferably half an hour before a meal or the last thing at night.

If you eat it plain, follow with a glass of water. Get several cakes at a time—they will keep several days in a cool, dry place. Be sure you get Fleischmann's Yeast! All grocers have it.

"Assured perfect regularity"

"Since I was eleven years old," a New Yorker wrote us recently, "I had used everything that could be suggested for constipation—without a cure. Three operations had been necessary. And then three cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast a day for a period of one month not only assured perfect regularity, but brought me back to my normal weight."

"No woman is too stout to be stylish!"

Having closed backs, they clasp in front, eliminating the inconvenience of lacings, and adjust themselves instantly to the figure.

There are two styles—the all-elastic, and the brocade or coutil with elastic front sections.

"Stylastic Stylish Stout" Corsets are made in 14 and 16 inch lengths, in sizes 28 to 44. Priced $10 to $25. "Stylish Stout" Corsets: $6.50 up. Ask, too, for "Stylish Stout" Brassieres—they slenderize!

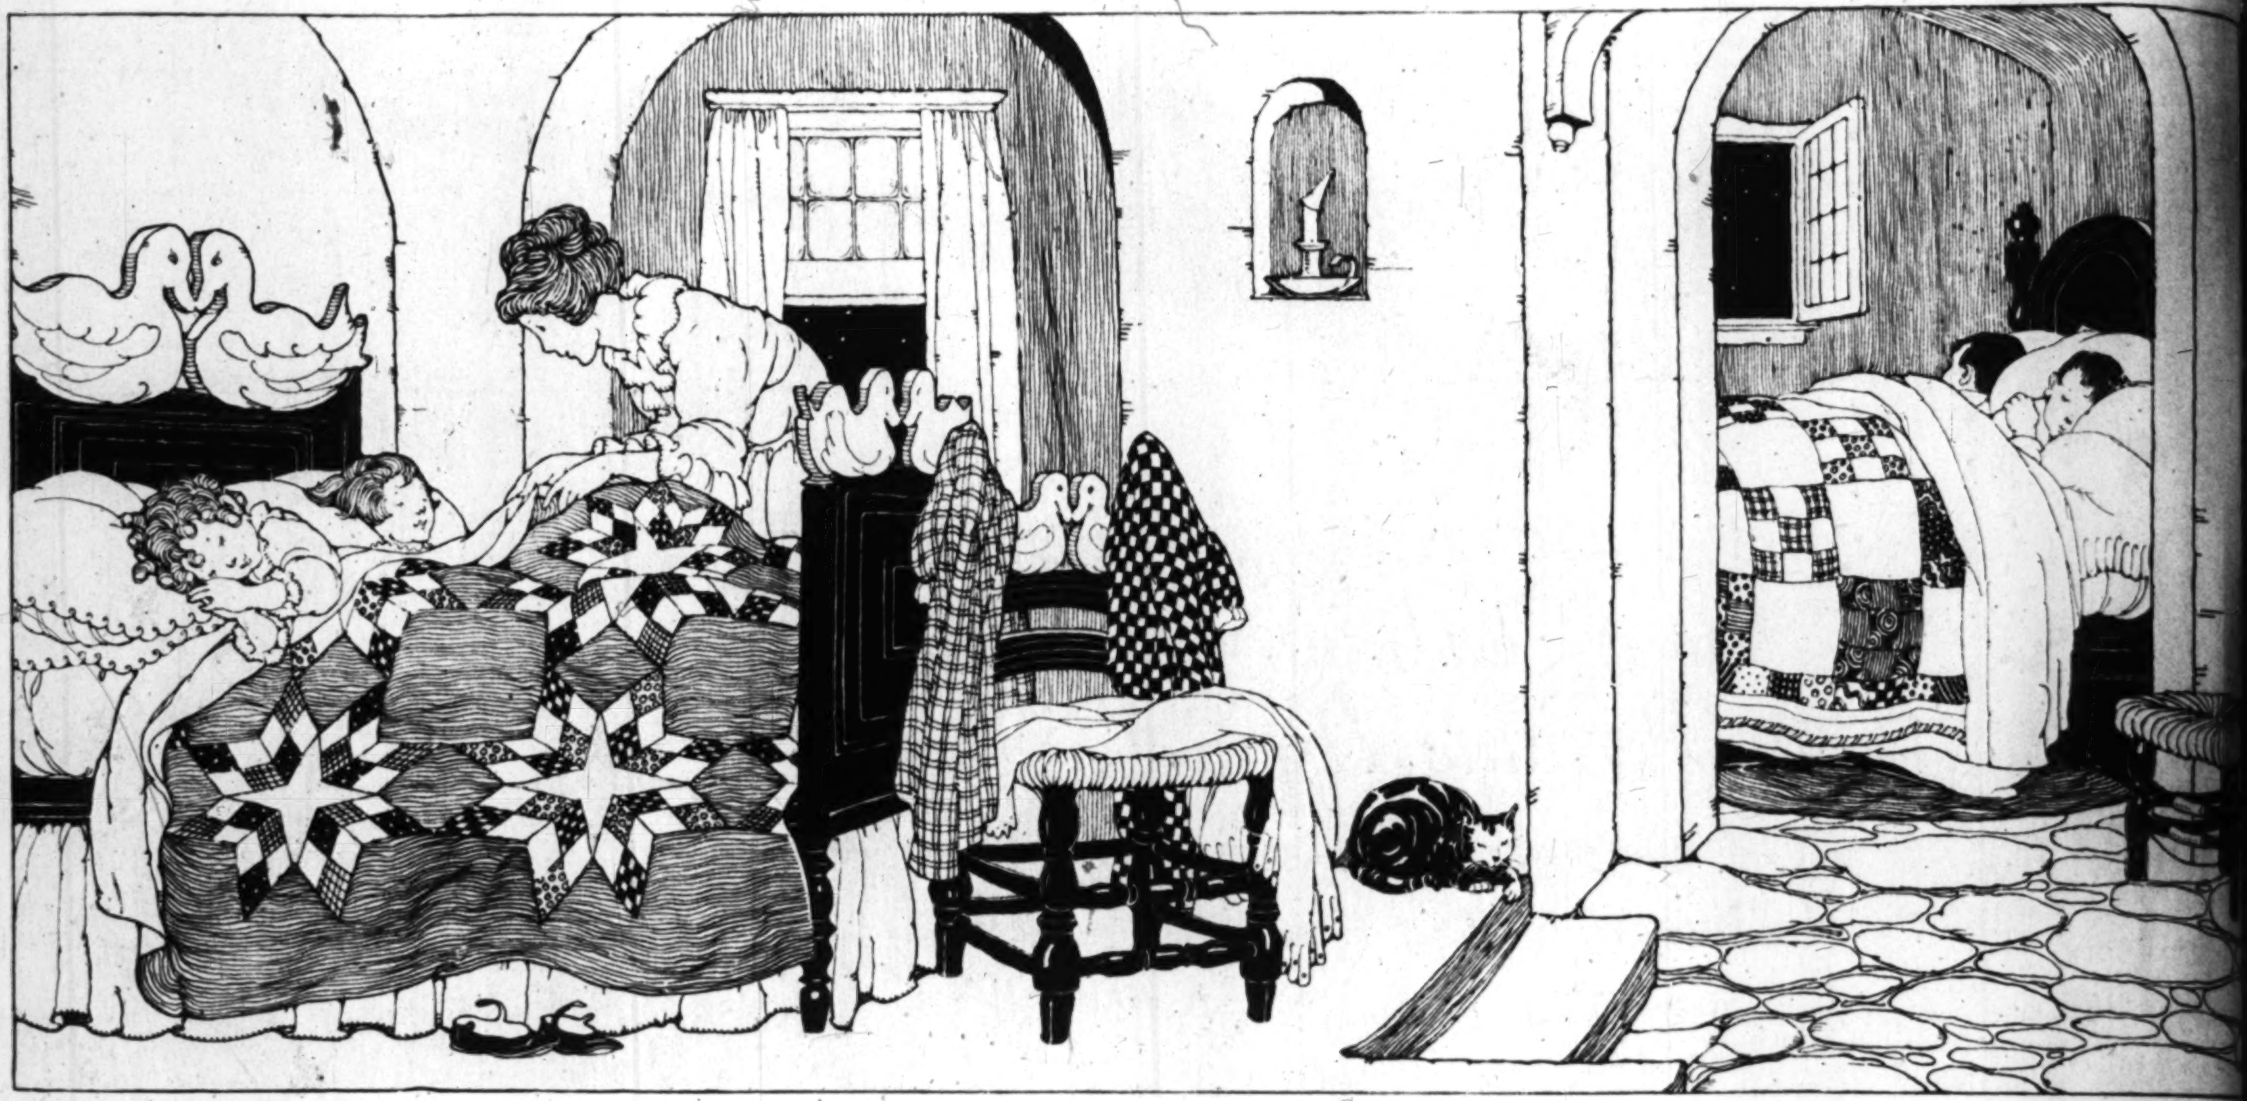
These spécialités—Rouge, Lip Rouge, Compacts and Creams blended here with pure Djer-Kiss Parfum imported from France



SOUND ASLEEP in their fanciful little bedrooms—Conny and Prudence and Jack and Jim. But is there anything unusual about the way these particular boys and girls sleep? Yes! there is. Never do they see any hobgoblins. Why, they never even roll and toss. What's the secret of all this? Mother knows! She has learned how to make "grown-up" foods digestible for boys and girls. In her family the boys and girls sit down at the same table as the grown-ups and eat the very same foods, too. But the foods digest readily—that's very important. Why they digest readily is told below for the benefit of all busy mothers.

To make "grown up" foods wholesome for childre

– a digestible shortening

A WIDELY circulated pamphlet issued by the Government Children's Bureau tells us that in New York City there are 60 to 70 children out of every 100 who are below par in one or more respects. This booklet says in part:

> "Inquiry into the living habits of these children almost always reveals a faulty diet or otherwise defective health program."

And official investigations tell us that all over the country there is a need for more careful supervision of childhood's diet.

With so many daily tasks, few mothers have time to prepare separate meals for their little ones. But any mother can choose the easily digested foods — tne foods which are healthful alike for "grown-ups" and children.

A test question for shortenings

In selecting the fats which are so essential to young health, she can ask the test question—"Will my little boys and girls easily digest foods made with this shortening?"

When Crisco enters a home, the mother can remove the "taboo" from many foods formerly denied to the children. For Crisco is a vegetable shortening endowed with healthfulness by nature. Crisco is very digestible.

With Crisco, children may safely enjoy fried foods. With Crisco, a mother may safely give her youngsters the cookies, pies and cakes they crave.

She may take, too, a new pride in her perfectly delicious cooking results. Crisp, inviting fried foods which digest readily! Light, digestible cakes which stay fresh longer! Tender, flaky and digestible pie crusts!

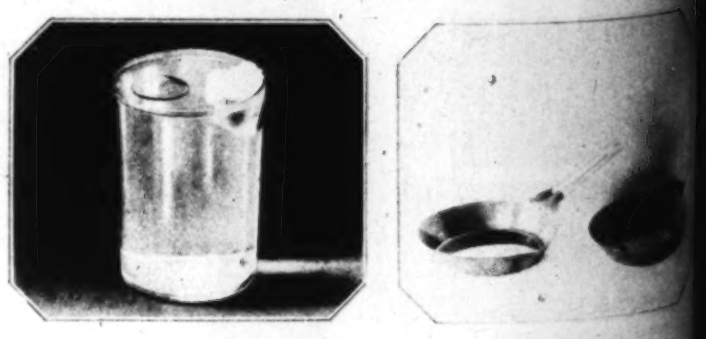
So we find, nowadays, that thoughtful mothers would no more deliberately choose indigestible shortening than they would deliberately choose inferior milk.

Instead, they gladly pay, for health's sake, the few extra pennies which Crisco costs in a week's baking and frying.

The really progressive grocer, you will find, prefers to sell the most healthful food ingredients. He is more and more recommending Crisco to take the place of shortenings whose ease of digestion may be questioned.

How to use Crisco

IN PAN FRYING as in deep frying, Crisco has reached proper frying heat when it browns a bread crumb in 40 seconds. (Do not wait for Crisco to smoke.) By straining Crisco you can use it again and again. AS SHORTENING use $\frac{1}{5}$ less of Crisco than you would of animal fats.



Two simple home tests

Low Melting Point
Easy Digestibility

Into half a glass of lukewarm water drop a small lump each of Crisco and any other shortening. With a spoon gradually add hot water until Crisco melts. You will find that few other fats melt at this point. Food authorities say that an easily digested fat should melt near body heat—$98\frac{3}{5}$ degrees. Crisco, you will find, melts even below this temperature. It melts at 97 degrees. (This test does not necessarily condemn the digestibility of the other fat, but it will aid you to establish Crisco's fine digestibility.)

Avoid Smoke and Odor!

Put into separate pans equ amounts of Crisco and any oth fat. Heat slowly for eig utes or until they reach a te perature where a bread browns in 40 seconds.

Notice that the Crisco, most cooking fats, does smoke at this proper fr temperature.

You will find that frying Crisco will be very helpf keeping your whole house and free from the odor of cook fats.
